COUNTING THE STARS.

Photographic Methods Have Largely Assisted in the Development of Astronomical Research.

Recent tidings from the Cape of Good Hope seem to confirm in a rather remarkable way the fact of the general richness of the southern skies in stars. The evidence now before us is provided in a photograph which has been taken by Dr. David Gill, the illustrious astronomer, at the cape. A highly sensitive plate was exposed to the sky, the light of the stars being concentrated by the aid of a powerful telescope specially constructed for the purpose of taking photographs in the celestial spaces. Only a small part of the sky can be represented in one picture, and about ten thousand plates would be required to produce a picture of the whole sky.

The longer the exposure the greater is the number of the stars which are described on the plate after it has been developed. Bright stars may record their impression by an exposure of a second or two, but when the faint stars are to be depicted, exposure of an hour or of several hours is demanded. At the Cape of Good Hope, as at other places, many photographs have been taken in pursuance of a general survey of the heavens, but the picture to which we are now specially referring received an exceptionally long exposure, and possesses, accordingly, an exceptionally large number of stars.

From an examination of this photograph, writes Sir Robert Ball in London Graphic, it has been possible to count the number of stars it contains, or, rather, to estimate their number, for it would have been rather a tedious piece of work actually to reckon the tens of thousands of stars which the plate showed. It was then an easy matter to calculate what the number of stars in the whole heavens would be, supposing that the plate contained what might be regarded as a fair sample of the sky. The result of this computation is indeed an astonishing one. If the sky were generally as rich as the part on the plate in question, it appears that the number of stars in the heavens cannot be less than three hundred mil-

Of course it may well be that the sky Au Sable. on the part represented may be more copiously jeweled with stars than many lot 6, blk 6, Oscoda. other regions. On the other hand, it cannot be supposed that the stars acfually shown on the plate, numerous as they certainly were, adequately exhibited all the contents of the sky in the examined. There must have been bundreds of thousands of stars too taint to record their images even with the profession and a posure which the plate taine e 1/2 of n w 1/4 and e 1/2 of s w 1/4 of recepted it therefore seems not at all n w 1/4 sec 32-23-9. malikely that the stars in the heavens ray amount to the gigantic total just

-Next Thursday is Thanksgiv-

-Joe Rosenthal is in town for a few days this week.

—Democratic jollification to-morrow (Saturday) evening.

-Forester's ball in the Opera House on the evening of Thanksgiving.

-The new heating apparatus in the M. E. church is now properly adjusted:

to the city this week purchasing a fine line of goods for the Holiday trade.

-Mrs. Chas. Dease and C. A. 90. Curry are attending the Baptist S. S. convention at Saginaw as delegates this week.

-McFaden's Elopement Co. will play in the Opera House on the evening of TuesdayNov 29. This troupe have with them a gold band and orchestra.

about completed. Joe now has one of the neatest and most commodious stores in Northern Michigan. He's a hustler.

-Transcient thieves are all the rage. Ex-marshal Hewson had a tussel with one who attempted to steal a valise from the dock last week. Hank was too many for him.

-Alva Wood, having purchased the old Company store building is preparing to move the same across the street between the Erquhart building and the old Newman store.

-Improvements are going on rapidly. The new Episcopal church is up, the Strong House is booming, work on the new mill is moving, and many other notable improvements are being made.

-During the severe wind this morning two men of the scow Spalding, the Captain's son and son-inlaw, in attempting to jump from the boat to the dock, fell into the bay and were drowned.

-The tow barge Church went ashore in front of the lime kiln dock Sunday last during the high winds, and considerable difficulty ki, Charlie Jones, 90. was encountered before she was gotten off. Three tugs were insufficient to free the barge on Sunday, but by a little dredging Monday two were able to tow her to deep water.

Prescott Points

Nov. 16 1892.

Much enthusiasm was manifested here on receiving the glad and glorious tidings that the nation was once more redeemed. We have heard some Republicans make remarks to the effect that it would be deplorable indeed to defeat Hon, T. A. E. Weadock and elect Mr. VanKleck.

By-the-way, why does the Herald-Times crow so much victory? Is it because the Democratic county candidates were all except one defeated by the Republican boodle? The Ogemaw county Democrats can stand their defeat, as the grandest victory in the history of the nation has been achieved.

Nov. 15, 1892.

-There are numerous hunters scouring the woods throughout Reno, with headquarters here. But while game seems to be plenty, wild meat is scarce.

-Wager & Pfeiffler, have moved a crew of men into the camps formerly used by H. N. Laird, and have commenced skidding for the winters haul.

-J. W. Balcom is about to shut down and will also strengthen his woods crew for future operations. L. D. McCrumb tells us he expects to handle a large amount of timber this winter.

-E. E. Odell, the little hustler, at Balcom's is perhaps one of the busiest persons in Reno. We have noted this for some time, and had occasion to see Grant, late of said county, deceased, and some of his work of late, which both attracted and pleased us.
