The New York Roman Catholic School Board's report to the Board of Education showed that the Catholic schools of the city, are now providing for upward of thirty thousand children.

The Christian Men's Temperance Union of American, reports encouraging progress since its organization about two years ago. Preparations are being made for a National Conference.

It is estimated that there are 48,000 church edifices belonging to all branches of Methodism in the United States, having a total value of $168,000,000. Their total benevolence for the year 1894 amounted to $23,414,238—contributions to missions alone exceeding $1,000,000.

The annual report of the American Bible Society shows that there were during the last year 1,581,128 issues of Bibles, Testaments and portions, of which 735,221 were circulated in foreign lands. The total issues to date are 59,955,558. During the last year the gifts from the living amounted to $59,533. About $20,000 came from church contributions, $6,800 from individuals, and the remainder from auxiliary gifts.

The Michigan Congregational Association at its recent meeting at Olvret, organized a Michigan Home Missionary Society to carry on the Congregational State mission work. The third year of the home mission work, which is self-supporting, found a shrinkage in receipts, but there has been a large gain in the membership. A net gain of 3,000 membership is reported. The whole number of churches is 346, with a membership of 30,013.

The annual report of the mission work of the Roman Catholic church among the negroes and Indians shows that the collections for this work during 1894 amounted to $57,840. The total number of Catholic negroes was 156,783; the number of pupils in schools was 8,610; the number of baptism during the year, 4,394, of which 3,760 were of children. The negro Catholic population is strongest in Baltimore and in New Orleans. In Baltimore out of a colored population of 218,000, 36,650 are Roman Catholic. They have five churches, ministered to by fourteen priests. In New Orleans out of a colored population of 265,000, 80,000 are Roman Catholic.

THE Effectiveness of Paris Green is of varying results, as the experience of G. M. Nichols demonstrates. Experiment station bulletins and government reports recommend 1 lb of paris green to 200 gallons of water, applied early in the season. For the first application to half-grown potato vines, ½ lb to 50 gallons of water was used with no effect. After waiting 48 hours of sunny weather, the patch was again sprayed with paris green, 1 lb to 50 gallons. The latter spraying disposed of about half the insects in 48 hours. The patch was sprayed the third time with 1½ lb of paris green to 50 gallons of water, and the work was done effectively. Had Mr. Nichols sprayed earlier he would doubtless have found the 1 lb poison to 200 gallons of water effective. It is almost impossible to cover all of the leaves with paris green so that every insect will get its death dose in a very short time. The first application should be made as soon as the first larvæ hatch, using water liberally so that the paris green will be settled into the creases and folds of the leaves and caught on the hairs. If not applied until the larvæ are well grown, they are so wise that they will eat all around the poison before they take the part with paris green upon it. Under those circumstances, it should not be expected the poison would be effective in less than 48 hours. Used stronger than 1 lb to 200 gallons of water, the leaves are often injured.

Medical and Health Notes.

Every twenty-four hours the human body loses no small amount of heat by radiation from the surface during perspiration. But, contrary to what might seem probable at first though, this loss is oftener advantageous than otherwise. In this way an escape pipe, so to speak, is provided for the human mechanism, and just as the escape pipe of a steam engine is self-regulating, so, fortunately the radiation of heat from the surface of the body is under control of the nervous system. When the fact is made apparent to the nerve center that the temperature of the body is getting too high, notice is immediately sent along the nerves to open wider the blood vessels at the surface of the body, with the result that the blood flows nearer the surface, the sweat glands are stimulated to increase action, more water is excreted by them and with the water goes off the heat. Since it is by this means largely that the superfluous heat of the body, in health as in disease, is got rid of, it is clearly very important, especially at this time of the year, that the pores of the skin should never be allowed to become clogged. With the increased amount of dust in the atmosphere and its natural propensity for adhering to the perspiring body, the daily bath becomes more of a necessity during the summer months than at any other time of the year. One should take great care, however, that the bodily temperature is reduced as nearly as possible to normal before the bath is taken. If the temperature is somewhat high and the body perspiring freely, the danger of taking cold will be increased by the reason of sudden congestion of the blood in the dilated vessels at the surface of the body. Much of the advantage to be derived from sea bathing will be lost unless the crusts of salt which form in the pores of the skin on the evaporation of the water are removed by subsequent brisk toweling or fresh-water sponging. Not only is the perspiration an efficient means of removing superfluous heat, but by the same channel go out many of the waste products of the body. These waste products are always relatively increased in the summer months, and so it is doubly important that during this trying season we should keep the skin in a healthy and cleanly condition.—Ladies' Every Saturday.

When She Falls.

Did you ever hear of a man trying to lift an unfortunate woman when she fell from the high pedestal of honor and virtue? I think not. When once she trips and falls from the high and honored position, she lands into hell, from which no human hand will stop to lift her out; husband and father, brother and son, alike, are deaf to her agonizing cries for mercy, and thrust her from their sight. But on the other hand, you have seen men fall as low as it is possible for men to fall; you have seen the wife lift the husband from the gutter and press him to her heart. You have seen the wife follow the husband through this life in one constant whirl of misery, and, when by the gates of hell they separated, weep when she could go no further. You have seen the mother follow the son, and the sister the brother, through paths man has never been known to follow woman. Let the angels in heaven be the jury, and God Al-mighty the judge.—Ex.

The Cycling Girl.

A good deal is being said and written about the cycling girl, and much of it is due to dyspepsia, mental stricture or moral strabismus. Bless her winged heels, let whirl at will. She is filling her lungs with pure life-giving atmosphere and putting good muscles where it will be able to do the most good. If she needs to keep a cigarette-smoking dude off the front steps when he comes spooning around poisoning the clematis and plants about the porch, she will have both the strength and the nerve for the task. The languid miss is not in it, and will not be missed. That assertion may be misleading. She is liable always to be missed, for no one will unmiss her. She is so liable to have wheels where they are of no use. The ancients painted Mercury with wings to his heels. Given wheels instead, and the ancient myth is realized, but the fleet-footed god is of both sexes now, and to have a fair chance with her brother she has donned bloomers, forsooth. Well, what of it as long as you are happy? Hasn't there been a good deal said about the coming woman wearing the pants, and can they wear a style that is more fetching than the bloomers? They fill the bill and insure safety to the riders, and on her wheel she is not only improving health but her morals are safer than when spooning on the stairs or behind the plants in the conservatory, if she happens to be a society girl, or when occupying a settee in a half lighted park, if she isn't. The preacher who objects to the bike and the bloomers belongs to the class who a few years ago were shocked when the ungodly violin and box of whistles were introduced into the church services. Oh, yes! the devil has taken to the wheel; and he travels by steam, behind the bob-tailed steed, in the trolley car and he limps along on foot as well. He goeth about like a roaring lion, but he is less likely to catch the cycling girl than her unhorsed sister, if she only sticks to her steed and gives her feet wings when the forked-tailed fiend shows his cloven hoof in pursuit.—Bay City Times-Press.

Feeding Corn Fodder.

Corn fodder is unquestionably the most valuable fodder which the farmer grows upon the prairies of the West. It is to him, therefore, a matter of the utmost importance how he shall preserve it and use it. This paper will deal only with the feeding of fodder; and just here the remark may be made, that in a country that farm labor is dear, while it is impossible to keep the cost of labor within reasonable limits, it does not follow that mode of handling foods which involves the least labor is the best. The tendency with us is to cut the labor down so that we are not able to get the best results from the food which we use.

Where we are to get the most out of corn fodder that can be made from it, we require to run it through a cutting box. When thus prepared it may be fed in any way that may seem good to the fodder, that is to say, he can feed it in any combination decided, and it is a safe principle in feeding to use foods in combination when it can be done. Of course, attention must be given to the nature of the combination.

When corn has been grown for the fodder with a goodly number of matured ears in it, an excellent food is thus secured when it is run through the cutting box. It may be fed to any kind of live stock on the farm. It makes a good food for young horses or cattle without any additions to it. When given to dairy cows in milk, or to cattle that are being fed for beef, meal of some kind should be added. The meal should be given along with the cut fodder, and in the cut form it also makes an excellent food for sheep more especially for those that are being fattened. It will also be good for breeding ewes when the portion of the corn in it, that is of the grain, is not too large. The kind of meal added and the quantity will depend upon the object sought, but as corn is a carbonaceous food, that is, a food used largely in the production of heat and fat, the meal fed alone with it should partake more or less of a nitrogenous character. Such adjuncts as wheat, bran, oats and oilcake form an excellent combination with corn.

The modes of preparing corn fodder for use by shredding or by running the same through a threshing machine, seem to be growing in favor. But there is that standing objection to them: the fodder cannot be so well fed in combination with other foods. Meal cannot be combined with the fodder, hence it would have to be fed directly, without admixture, which in the judgement of the writer, is decidedly objectionable when feeding cattle. Some authorities, however, dissent from this view. Then there is the further objection to threshed or shredded corn fodder, that when stored in large quantities it will not keep, unless it be over-dried in the curing. It may keep for a time during very cold weather, even when properly cured, but no one can forecast with any certainty how long the weather is going to remain cold.

Of course, when corn fodder is run through a cutting box it will not keep long in large quantities any more than shredded fodder, but it is not usual to cut up the fodder for weeks ahead. The plan more commonly adopted is to cut up enough at one time to last for a week or two, and then to cut again and again as needed. With a tread power and cutting box the farmer may thus find exercise for the stack bull which will keep him hale and strong. The corn may be brought directly from large shocks in the field, or from mows where it may have been stored away in an upright position. The former plan is commonly adopted where the precipitation is light in winter, and the latter where rains are frequent.

The method of preparing corn for use by cutting it as described, is certainly a good one. The average farmer can adopt it even though his buildings may not be sufficient to provide any considerable amount of storage room. The manure is readily available, that is, it is ready for use as soon as made, and without any composting. It is also easily handled. Of course, corn fodder may be fed direct in the long form, and it is more commonly so fed, but the stock will not eat it up clean even though it be well cured. Sorghum may be fed in the uncut form with much better advantage than corn, as, owing to the saccharine character, live stock will eat it up clean when it has been properly saved.—Thos. Shaw in Prairie Farmer.

AS TO WHITE.

A Few Facts on the Subject of his Application for Pardon.

During the past few weeks much has been published and said regarding the attempt to secure a pardon for William B. White, now serving life sentence at Jackson. Of the three men now serving sentences for the Sholtz murder, White and Katterman have made applications for pardon. Certain parties in this county have, for consideration, taken a very active interest in White's case, but for some reason have attempted to secure but a few signers to their petition from this city, where the interested parties lived and were best known.

When the state board of pardons visited the county a few weeks since, to make investigations, these same people arranged the meeting for Au Sable and East Tawas failed to notify any one of the same, except those known to be friendly to White, notwithstanding that the board requested that all parties interested be notified. While in the county the board came to the conclusion that they were being hoodwinked and upon investigation found that a large amount of the testimony furnished them was misleading. Since that time other facts have been brought to the attention of the board which put a much different aspect on the case, and no favorable action on the application will be had until further investigation is had, and all parties give a chance to be heard.

The board of pardons is composed of Messrs H. D. Smith, of Cassopolis; C. F. Beck, of Detroit; N. R. Gilbert, of Bay City, and C. L. Rarden, of Greenville, all of whom are men of honor and integrity, and have no wish to take advantage of anyone, but wish all to have a fair hearing. When they set the date of their meeting in this county, they notified parties here to have notice given so that all interested could appear, but the one requested to give the notice failed to let anyone but those wanted by him to hear of the meeting, for fear of certain facts being brought to the attention of the board, which were not favorable to White.

The HERALD has no personal interest in the matter, but when it is nearly the unanimous opinion of our citizens that White got no more than he deserved and should remain where he is, we shall continue to advocate the wishes of our citizens, and not those of men who are getting paid for their efforts in White's behalf.

Eureka Chemical and Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis.
Dear Sir:—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became excited, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being, at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco-Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it.
Yours very truly,
C. W. HORNICK.

Rice is attracting attention as a food for stock and poultry. There is a large amount of badly cleaned and broken rice which might be very profitably thus employed.

Ask some men for an advertisement or a few locals and they will say they don't believe in advertising—a paper is never read. Let one of them be caught kissing his neighbor's wife or trying to hold up the side of a building sometime, and his tune changes instantly, and if the printing office is in a garret of a seventeen story building he will climb up to the top and beg the editor to keep quiet—not to publish it in the paper. The paper is not read—oh no!—Ex.

A sagacious genius has invented an appliance which, when attached to the big sleeves worn by the summer girls is so pleasingly constructed that they though the sleeves be hugged flat will immediately puff out again when the pressure is withdrawn. This removes a great obstacle to the full enjoyment of summer outings.

In certain counties in Illinois a new trick to defraud the farmer is being practiced. Two men paint a sign on a farmer's fence and give him a few dollars as a guarantee that no one else be permitted to paint a sign over theirs. The farmer is asked to sign a receipt, which turns out to be a promissory note for $200 or $500.

We live in a real and a solid and truthful world. In such a world only truth, in the long run, can hope to prosper. Therefore avoid lies, mere show and sham and hollow superficiality of all kinds, which is at best a painted life. Let whatever you are, and whatever you do, grow out of a firm root of truth and a strong soil of reality.

A friendly game of base ball was played Wednesday afternoon between the city officers of East Tawas and Tawas City, which furnished a large amount of amusement for the spectators. By swearing in one of the best amiture catchers in the vicinity as fire warden, East Tawas had the strongest club and won the game by a score of 35 to 15. The kicking was all done before the game, however, and the boys from this city are satisfied. Another game will probably be arranged soon, when the result is liable to be different.

Under the laws of Michigan, bicycles have the same right on public highways that are accorded to other vehicles, but it is worth remembering that pedestrians have the right of way at crossings. That is to say, drivers and riders must differ to the walker, and the later is not required to exercise undue haste in getting out of the way.

An exchange tells a good story of a father and mother who were trying to find names for their twin babies, who by the way were girls. It was decided that the father must name them. After casting about and finding no names that exactly suited him, he determined to end the strain on his mind and call them "Kate" and "Duplicate." In the course of time another pair of twins came, and they were boys. This was the husband's opportunity to get even, and he wanted his good wife to christen the boys. Imagine the feelings when the mother one day told him she had named the boys "Pete" and "Repeat."

Prize Hogs in South Carolina.

The News and Courier will pay $100 in gold to the two farmers or other persons who shall raise the two heaviest hogs in South Carolina during the year 1895.

The only condition of the contest is that every contestant must be a subscriber to The Weekly News and Courier. The contest will close on Dec. 25, 1895, and the prizes will be awarded as soon thereafter as it is possible to compare the returns and ascertain who have raised the winning hogs.

The contest will be open to every man, woman and child in the state who is a subscriber to The Weekly News and Courier, and who can own and cultivate a pig. The purpose of The News and Courier in offering the prizes is to encourage the people of the state to raise their own meat and to show that South Carolina leads in the production of hog and hominy, as it leads in the manufacture of cotton goods.
