Railroad Commissioner Billings has issued a circular to the superintendents and general managers of the various railroad companies operating in Michigan, calling attention to the act of the last legislature, which requires the bulleting of all trains, and urging a strict compliance therewith. According to the terms of the act, which become operative on Aug. 30, railroad companies will be compelled to place in a conspicuous place, at each passenger depot, located at any passenger station at which there is a telegraph office, a blackboard of suitable size, upon which shall be written at least twenty minutes before the actual time for the arrival of each passenger train, the fact whether each train is on time or not, and if late, how much, and the station at which the train was when the report was received. Any passenger train not more than five minutes late, shall so far as this act is concerned, be deemed to be on time.

KILLED BY THE FALL.

Another fatal accident to an electrical worker occurred at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the corner of Grand River and Lincoln avenues. Henry McKiddie, 35 years old and boarding at 249 First street, employed by the Telephone and Telegraph Construction Co., was the victim. Mr. McKiddie was at the top of the pole working in his capacity as a wireman when it was supposed he received a shock. Whether so, or not, he fell to the ground, a distance of about 40 feet, and sustained injuries, which rendered him unconscious. Harper Hospital ambulance was summoned, and he was conveyed to that institution, but expired soon after his arrival. An autopsy was held, which disclosed a fracture at the base of the brain, which was undoubtedly the cause of death. Mr. McKiddie leaves a wife, who is a present at Alabaster, Mich. He has been for some time in the employ of the company and was considered a careful and proficient workman. An inquest will be held by Coroner Bettinger at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.—Detroit Free Press.

The deceased is a son of George McKiddie, of Alabaster, and has a large circle of relatives and friends in the county, besides his wife and three children. His remains arrived this morning.

Obituary.

We are this week called upon to report the death of one of the most enterprising young farmers of Grant township, James Bamberger. While Mr. Bamberger had been ailing for sometime, it was not known that the nature of his disease was such as would result fatally. He was in town last Saturday, and Monday was taken worse, dying Tuesday night at 10 o'clock. The deceased was 37 years of age and had been a resident of Grant for the past seventeen years, where with his brother Peter, he had cleared a good farm and was comfortably located. He leaves five brothers and two sisters, besides a large circle of friends to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held at the Hemlock Road Baptist church yesterday and largely attended. The remains accompanied by Peter and Samuel Bamberger, were taken to his old home near Hamilton, Can., for interment.

The cook within the kitchen stood,
Her hands upon her hips,
And many were the angry words
Came pouring from her lips.

Her victim was the grocery-boy,
And softly thus spake she:
Oh, what a little fool you are,
To bring such stuff to me.

Take high price baking powder back,
And bring me "Calumet,"
And if he did not go straightway,
She's likely scolding yet.

New Law Commission.

The commission provided for by an act of the last legislature to examine candidates for admission to the bar, has entered upon its duties. The commission appointed by Gov. Rich is made up of Geo. H. Durand, of Flint; Prof. Mechem, of Detroit; Philip T. Van Zile, of Detroit; Russel C. Ostrander, of Lansing, and Mark Norris, of Grand Rapids. The commission will meet at an early date in Detroit to organize, elect a secretary and treasurer and to formulate rules, and the first examination of candidates for admission to the bar will probably be held at Lansing, Oct. 17.

The law provides that graduates from the the state university law school shall be admitted to practice upon presentation of their certificates, and admits attorneys from other states to try cases, although not for general practice. Other aspirants for admission, must go before the commission for examination. One of the rules contemplated will require candidates to pass an examination equivalent to a high school examination, in the ordinary branches of study.

Important Amendment to the Tax Law.

During the last session of the legislature, the following amendment was added to Section 135, of Act 206, of the laws of 1893: "Provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply to any quit claim deed or other conveyance containing no covenants warranty, nor to any land patent executed by the President of the United States, or the Governor of this State, nor to any tax deed made by the Auditor General, etc." This amendment took effect August 30th.

All instruments which are required by law to be recorded, which come under the provisions of the amendment above, may after the amendment takes effect be presented for record, without presenting therewith a tax certificate, and the same be recorded without the payment of back taxes.

The American Girl and Her Mother.

The English girl looks to her mother for council and guidance on every point in her life. Does the American girl? asks Edward W. Bok. The life of the French girl always remain a part of the being which bore her. Does that of the American girl? The Italian girl's life is known to her mother almost as well, even in its most inner thought, as to the girl, herself. Is that of the American girl? The gospel of the Swiss girl is that of solicitation for her mother, morning, noon and night. It is the gospel of the American girl? The Dutch girl never dreams of telling her mother that she is going to do thus and so; she asks if she may. Does the American girl? In Germany, the daughter's first thought, when she reaches proper years, is to relieve her mother of every domestic care and thought. It is the thought of the American girl?

Fastidious Speech.

How many people are there who pronounce and proportion of their words correctly, not merely by reason of clipping and mousing, but by ignorance of good usage? We find them everywhere, and they lay the accent on the first instead of on the second syllable of acclimate, for example; or they pronounce the second syllable of acoustics, coo, instead of cow. They do not put the accent on the last syllable of adept, as they should do; they leave the u sound out of buoy; they pronounce duke with the sound of oo instead of with the simple long u; emphasize the first instead of the second syllable of enervate, and sound the t in often. They are astonished to know that precedence has the accent on the second syllable, and placard on the last; that quay is called key; that sough is called suf; that the z instead of the s sound is to be given in sacrifice, and the reverse in rise; that subtle and substle are two different words; that the last syllable of tortoise is pronounced tis instead of tus; that it should be used and not ust; and that it is not the zooo, but the zoological gardens where one goes to see the chimpanzee, and not the chimpanzee. It is quite time, we think, when we hear one of these talkers, for some of the fancy work and studies of the day to be dropped and a little hard work on the dictionary put in their place. —Ladies' Every Saturday.

Musty Hay.

In answer to a correspondent's inquiry as to what effect musty hay would have on the milk feeding it with equal weight of cob meal and bran, the Country Gentleman says: "There appears to be wide difference of opinion as to the influence of the food on the flavor of milk and butter. The old and more common views is that when an animal eats turnips, onions, bad ensilage or poorly cured hay, the odors or flavors of these materials are imparted to the milk. Lately, the opinion prevails to some extent that the so called "animal odor" is communicated to the milk from the foul smells of the tie-up at the time it is drawn, and in a similar way, the flavor of turnips is absorbed from the air of the stable, where the food has been handled. According to this view, if milk could be drawn so as not to come into contact with the air of the stable, no animal odors or food flavors would be noticed. It is entirely probable that the odors from impure air are often taken up by the milk, and afterwards credited to the food, but we are not prepared to declared that flavors are imparted in no other way. We are inclined to think, however, that the accidental flavors of milk are largely due to influences extraneous to the cow, unless she is deceased. It is wise, of course, to avoid such hay as that described, but if this were on hand and circumstances seemed to require its use, we would not despair of making a good quality of butter.

This hay can be made palatable, by moistening it, and then scattering all or a portion of the grain on it."

The Next Wheat Crop.

To sow, or not to sow; if any, how much to sow, are questions which many farmers are asking about wheat. The advance in prices over those prevailing last season lends a little encouragement. This year's crop is certainly not a large one in the aggregate and there is no great surplus. On the other hand the enormous corn crop now practically assured will tend to keep down prices. For many reasons an actual large acreage will be sown, however, much it may be reduced over than usually devoted to this crop. It is obvious that, if wheat is to be sown at all the land should be put in good condition. If it is to follow any small grain crop, the land should be plowed as soon as may be, better if plowed some weeks since. In a marked degree wheat makes a well-compacted soil, but with the surface well pulverized. Getting the land in good condition often has more to do with securing a good yield than does the choice of the variety or whether a little more or less seed is sown per acre. There is a growing appreciation of the press drills as these more certainly cover the seed thoroughly and compact the covering to a satisfactory degree. This is especially helpful if there is a deficiency in moisture at the time the wheat should germinate. But millions of acres of good wheat are annually grown where the seeding is done with the tube drills. As to amount of seed, it is safer to sow a liberal quantity, say one and one half bushels per acre, if the land is not in good condition. Where the conditions are favorable, excellent crops can be secured from sowing a very small quantity. Large yields have been secured where one peck or even a less quantity of seed was used per acre. As we ordinarily sow much of the seed fails to germinate, at least fails to reproduce. If only one bushel is sown and each kernel produced one stalk bearing a head of average size, the yield would be much above the average. But it is safe to provide against unfavorable conditions by sowing more seed than would otherwise be necessary. The plant adapts itself to conditions. If the seed is thinly sown there is a greater tendency to stool than if a larger number of kernels start. To secure the largest yield from a small quantity of seed, one would plant the kernels separately, perhaps a foot apart. Often a large number of stalks are thrown up in this way. In ordinary field crops of wheat from thirty to sixty stalks may be found per square foot, but not all of these will mature heads. The chinch bug question must be taken into consideration in many cases. Perhaps never before has this pest been so abundant and so widespread as this year. No one knows whether they will be equally abundant next year. Fortunately it frequently happens, as with other insects, that when they have become very abundant, disease or insect enemies destroys most of them. At least it will be wise to plant to keep the wheat and other small grain fields in such shape as to make injury to corn or other late crops as little probable as may be. —Prarie Farmer.

CHURCH COLUMN.

This column is devoted to the interests of the various churches and church societies of the Tawas and each pastor and officer is invited to contribute to it.

CHURCH NEWS.

The great porygrot temperance petition, with its myriads and signatures, is too large to be carried around the world, and a certified copy must be borne instead. The Golden Rule declares that is bad, as the petition should be allowed to speak for itself.

The Christian Endeavor is widely adopted by the Methodist church in Great Britain. The Union Methodist Free churches have 175 societies, the Primitive Methodists, 124; the Methodist New Connection, 280; the Bible Christians, 41, and the Wesleyans, 63.

The Salvation Army has now reached its two thousandth commanding officer and the enrolment of its five thousandth auxiliary, with an attendance of upward of a million per month, or nearly 16,000,000 at its meetings per annum. In view of this the Army is preparing a special memorial number of the War Cry.

In Ayer, Mass., thirty-one clergymen have banded themselves into a union the specific purpose of which is social and moral improvement of the community. The ministers who have thus come together represent very diverse religious views, some being Baptists, some Unitarians, Congregationalist, Universalists and one Catholic. Their platform is: "Friendship and acquaintance with each other's religious doctrines, local co-operation with each other on the basis of love to God and man, the furtherance of social reforms and the bringing in of the Kingdom of God."

In these days of liberal thinking and interchange of thought, there is no excuse for narrowness or self-absorption. Every year churches and individuals grow more charitable, and this is well. Concessions to the views of others may be made, provided that no shape of principle is yielded up. The great lesson to be earned from contact with our fellow men and their interests, is that there are other ways of living, not better, perhaps, than one's own, but equally good; that there are broader ways of thinking, a fuller intellectual life, and other ways equally sincere of worshipping that same Father before whom all churches kneel and whom all creeds acknowledge. —Free Press.

A distinguishing characteristic of modern times is the remarkable growth and success of young people's societies, both denominational and undenominational. The great C. E. Convention recently held in Boston was undoubtedly the largest religious gathering ever held in the world's history. The total membership of this tremendous organization is now 2,473,740, distributed through 41,229 local societies. The Epworth League now aggregates 1,000,000 members in the Methodist church. At its recent convention, held in Chattanooga, 20,000 delegates were present. About the same number were enrolled at the gathering of the Baptist Young People's Union, held in Baltimore not long ago. —N. Y. World.

"There is no book, no church, no inward monitor, no testimony within, without, that can make us to know the truth without moral fitness and endeavor on our part. There must be truth in the inward parts, in order to our finding truth anywhere. But, with this, there is truth for you and me, to believe, to know, to live by and to die by. The book, the conscience, the experience of humanity, through all and above all, the life and testimony of Jesus Christ, these are fountains through which the living stream swells forth. What prophets have seen, sages thought, and saints lived, is true. What Jesus believed, knew and taught is true. You shall sooner convince me that you sun emits darkness, than make me believe other than this. Yes, you and I have seen human lives that we knew were based on truth. So the truth which shall judge us at last marshals us to right or to left to-day." —Rev. J. Westly Earnshaw.

Weak, Irritable, Tired

"I Was No Good on Earth."

Dr. Miles' Nervine strengthens the weak, builds up the broken down constitution, and permanently cures every kind of nervous disease. "About one year ago I was afflicted with nervousness, sleeplessness, creeping sensation in my legs, slight palpitation of my heart, distracting confusion of the mind, serious loss or lapse of memory. Weighted down with care and worry. I completely lost appetite and felt my vitality wearing out. I was weak, irritable and tired. My weight was reduced to 100 lbs., in fact I was no good, on earth.

A friend brought me Dr. Miles' book, "New and Startling Facts," and I finally decided to try a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Before I had taken one bottle I could sleep as well as a 10-yr.-old boy. My appetite returned greatly increased.

When I had taken the sixth bottle my weight increased to 170 lbs., the sensation in my legs was gone; my nerves steadied completely; my memory was fully restored. My brain seemed clearer than ever. I felt as good as any man on earth. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a great medicine, I assure you." Augusta, Mo. WALTER R. BURNAN.

The game of ball arranged between the business men of Oscoda and Tawas City for last Tuesday, at the former place, resulted in a victory for Oscoda, by a score of 42 to 31. The Tawas City team were obliged to pick up two or three men, as several of their regular men could not go, but notwithstanding Tawas should have won the game had it not been for the rank umpiring of an Oscoda man, who attempted to fill that position. A return game will probably be played here next week.

Naturally, people wish to purchase goods as nearly direct from the manufacturers as possible, thus saving the money which would otherwise go to the middle-men. If you buy your dry goods, clothing, etc., of Friedman, you can do this, as he has just returned from New York City with a large line of these goods. Call and examine his line.

Fiction and travel are the strong points of the September Cosmopolitan which, by the way, illustrates better than any previous number, the perfection of its plan for printing a magazine of the highest class. Conan Doyle, H. H. Boyesen, and Clark Russell are among the story-tellers. A well-known New York lawyer relates the story of "A Famous Crime"—the murder of Doctor Parkman, by Professor Webster. A delightful sketch of "An English Country House Party," is from the pen of Nina Larre Smith—the house at which she visited, being no less than the historic Abbotsford, still occupied by the direct descendants of Sir Walter Scott. "The Realm of the Wonderful," is descriptive of the strange forms of life, discovered by science in the ocean's depths, and is superbly illustrated in a surprising and marvelous way by the author, who is a member of the Smithsonian staff. An article on Cuba is timely. Without bothering the reader with unnecessary description of the famous yachts now so much talked of. The Cosmopolitan presents forth full-page illustrations, showing these boats. Thomas Moran again contributes a series of the most exquisite landscapes of western scenery, twelve in number, illustrating an article by Col. John A. Cockerill, on "Modern Utah." And it may be said that no more beautifully illustrated number of The Cosmopolitan has ever been given to the public.

Bay City has a family of children that will grow up thugs and wife beaters, if they keep on. They make it a practice to scour the neighborhood for cats. They then imprison them in the cellar, cooped up in a box for several days to repent, as they put it, before the animals die. A regulation hanging then takes place. Many pet cats are missing.

"Whisky Point" is the name of a place on the shore near this village, but the pilot of the ferry boat never calls it out. He tried it the other day, and the passengers were in so great a hurry to get out, that they nearly tipped the boat over, and he had to turn around and come back empty-handed.—Harbor Springs Liar.

Governing Children.

Parents have proudly told me of sickening battles with their children, will pitted against will, till at last the stronger physique gained the mastery and the child's "will was broken." Such victories are worse than defeats. I have seen a father and his little boy stand pitted against each other, with a look in each face that I could call nothing but hatred; and when I thought of the power of the one and the helplessness of the other, I could not but admire the boy's pluck. There should be no such occasions. The parent stands convicted of utter stupidity in finding himself in any such situation.

There are times when it is wiser for the parent to ignore some mood on the child's part. The part of the parent should be in ever seeking the wise opportunity to impress the child with the virtue that is the reverse of some fault it falls into. Children pass through various phases, and some dragon of a fault that one has been worrying over and planning against, suddenly vanishes into thin air and is no more. Sometimes one fixes a fault by noticing it too much. It becomes an expression of nervousness. The child repeats a fault through an inability to pass over it. It becomes like a hard word in the spelling book that he has met before. He recognizes the word without knowing its name, and at the same moment remembers his struggles with it, and the painful impression fills him with nervousness, his mind becomes confused and he cannot control his thought. It is wise with a fault, as with the hard word, to let it go, to escape it. Omit the hard word; avoid anything to excite the habitual fault. Presently the child forgets the fault. It may be said that injudicious parents often create their children's faults.—Ladies' Every Saturday.

A Smile.

How many of us come to the breakfast table every morning, or nearly so, with a smiling face? Not many, if judged from what one sees. When one stops to reflect on the glum countenances that confront us of a morn-nature, and it does seem as if this old world is becoming more and more sour every day.

Is it such a task to smile then? Of course everyone knows that hunger, such as accompanies the night's fast, is not conducive to good humor, but so much lies in habit.

Hardly a girl but wishes to have a beautiful face. If it could only be remembered that beauty consists not alone of the "satiny skin and glorious eyes," but that the expression is almost everything, and a sweet smile, especially, covers many a defect.

No matter how beautiful a face may be, if ill-temper and petulance are stamped upon it, half the charm is gone. If a smile does not come naturally and voluntarily, coax one there, and in time the smile that at first seemed mechanical will surely become bright and spontaneous with real good feeling.

Dear girls, before you leave your rooms in the morning, consider the smile a part of your toilet, and do not cross the threshold before it has come. Indeed, you will be surprised how sunny and cheerful an aspect everything has taken on.—Ex.
