The poor board is unable to meet the situation and the mayor favors the appointment of a commission to assist in the work of relief.

Tawas City wanted a rail road direct to Bay City and Saginaw and she got it. Now the Herald says that in the last three months $3,000 has gone to the above cities for goods. Just so, and more, it will continue, until the people are educated to the fact that their home merchants can sell goods just as cheap as they can be got in the cities. The merchants can accomplish this by advertising, and no other way. If they do not, the rear end of their pantaloons will soon become glossy, the town die or turn into a modern Soium.—Brown City Standard.

There arrived at the F. & P. M. station two days ago, a man, his wife and two children, all from Germany, and all bound for the woman's brother's place at Arn, Bay county. They had a written destination, but the only Arn that could learn of was the one up in the southern part of Iosco county, on the D. & M. railroad. The postoffice name is McIvor. The immigrants went there, but found no trace of their relatives and came back to the F. & P. M. station, reaching there last night. They have since learned that there is an Arn station on the Michigan Central, 11 miles from Bay City, and they are going to named there today. Their relative is named Henry Zollman.—Bay City Times Press.

BEEF SUGAR.

Its Possibilities in Northern Michigan.

The beet sugar industry is rapidly forging to the front as one of the leading commercial industries of the world. It is now one of the leading products of Germany, and in the United States large amounts are being manufactured in Nebraska and California. The possibilities of its becoming one of Michigan's prominent industries, is very probably, and our own county of Iosco may be the pioneer county of the state to commence its manufacture.

An actual test of the growing of the sugar beet was made in this county in the summer of 1895, and as a result it was shown by analysis that the beets grown contained a larger per cent of sugar than the Nebraska beet. The test was made on different kinds of land and the results were highly satisfactory.

We are informed that an effort will be made to have a bill passed by the state legislature this month, paying a bounty on sugar manufactured in the state, for a few years to encourage the establishment of factories. Should such a law be passed, the establishment of beet sugar factories will rapidly follow.

Iosco county has thousands of acres of cheap lands which are peculiarly adapted to the raising of sugar beets, and, with the establishment of a factory in the Tawas—where all the natural advantages for such an institution can be had—our county would rapidly be settled up. This is a matter that is worthy of the careful consideration of our citizens.

To give some idea of the extent of this industry, we print the following Washington dispatch which appeared in the daily papers of this week:

Germany sent out in the season of 1895-96 of raw beet sugar, 958,128 tons, against 1,046,043 tons in the preceding year. The home consumption was 668,860 tons, against 552,695 tons in 1894-95. The factories employed in making sugar numbered 96,458 and they consumed 11,700,000 tons of beet root. The bad business of the preceding year forced the sugar makers to offer less for the roots and this in turn caused the farmers to plant less. United States Consul Monaghan at Chemnitz sends these statistics to the state department to back up his statement that Germany's beet sugar industry has been making huge strides in a dozen years in part owing to intelligent government aid, and also to the energy of the manufacturers who believe in helping themselves. He says that intensive farming rather than extensive farm may be made as profitable in Nebraska and Ohio as in Germany and he sees no reason to doubt that America can profitably make her own beet sugar and save the millions of marks that are annually spent in Germany for this article.

Color and Light.

Everybody knows that when the walls of a room are papered with a light paper it looks much more cheerful, but we hardly realize the great difference between dark and light papering. A scientist has now measured it in a systematic way, and has come to the following results: Suppose the room is covered with black cloth, and requires 100 candles to give it a certain degree of light. If you take away the black cloth and paper the room with a dark-brown paper, 87 candles give the same amount of light. With blue paper, 72 candles will do; with fresh yellow paint, 60 candles will give as much light; and with clean deal board walls, 50 candles are sufficient. But if the room be painted in white, 15 candles make it as light as 87 candles with the dark brown surroundings.—The Presbyterian.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS
Monthly Illustrated
AN INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE
Edited by ALBERT SHAW

"If only one magazine can be taken, we would suggest the REVIEW OF REVIEWS, as covering more ground than any other magazine."—Board of Library Commissioners of New Hampshire, 1896.

THIS magazine is, in its contributed and departmental features, what its readers, who include the most noted names of the English-speaking world, are pleased to call "absolutely up to date," "thoroughly abreast of the times," "invaluable," and "indispensable." It is profusely illustrated with timely portraits, views, and cartoons. Its original articles are of immediate interest, by the best authorities on their respective subjects. The Editor's "Progress of the World" gives a clear, rightly proportioned view of the history of the human race during the current month. The "Leading Articles of the Month" present the important parts of the best magazine articles that have been written in every part of the world. The newest and most important books are carefully reviewed. Indexes, chronological records, and other departments complete the certainty that the reader of the Review of Reviews will miss nothing of great significance that is said or written or done throughout the world.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28, 1896.

Congress not being in session, the tariff barons who were in and around the Ways and Means Committee room at the Capitol, in which Mr. Dingley and his republican associates on the committee today began the public hearings upon the several schedules of the proposed new Dingley tariff bill, were the center of attraction. The schedule upon which today's hearings were based was that embracing spirits, wines and other beverages. The republicans had expected that the South would be largely represented among those asking for favors under this schedule, but they were disappointed. The next schedules to be taken up will be that of cotton goods followed by that on sugar and molasses.

There seems to be a general disposition to misunderstand the issue raised between Congress and the President by Secretary Olney when he said that the President would not obey a joint resolution even if passed over his veto, directing him to recognize the independence of Cuba, because the President alone had the right to decide such questions. It is not contended by the senators who will oppose secretary Olney's position that the president has not the right to recognize a new state without reference to congress; on the contrary, they freely concede him that right. They claim, however, that a joint resolution of Congress when it becomes a law, whether by ordinary methods or by being adopted by a two-thirds vote over the president's veto, is just as binding upon the president as any other law. In other words, that while the president may exercise his discretion as to recognition in the absence of Congressional action, it is in the power of two-thirds of congress to compel him to obey its behests, in recognizing the independence of a new state, as well as in anything else. The claim that congress wished to deny the president's right to act independently of it in recognizing a new state has been put forward to muddle the question. The question will not be settled soon, anyway, as the Cameron resolution for the recognition of Cuba hasn't the slightest show to get through the house, and will be fought strongly in the senate.

The announcement that representative and senator-elect Money, of Miss., who is a member of the house committee on foreign affairs, had taken advantage of the congressional recess to go to Cuba for the purpose of making a personal investigation of the situation, has caused much gossip in Washington. While everybody knows that Mr. Money means well, there is a disposition to regret the publicity which has been given to his trip, because it looks like a reflection upon our state department and its agents in Cuban.

Confidential agents of the Wanamaker and the Choate senatorial booms have been working on the friends of McKinley in order to get him to throw his influence on their side. But they have not succeeded. While there is little doubt that most of the original McKinley men would rather see Wanamaker sent to the senate from Pennsylvania than Quay's man, Penrose, who, by the way, is being supported by the National A. P. A., and Choate elected senator from New York, instead of Platt, but they cannot see a good enough chance for either to win to advise McKinley to take a stand that would make Quay and Platt the open enemies of his administration.

Hon. Wm. S. Holman, of Ind., whose familiar face and rigid views on government economy have been missed from the present house, has been elected a member of the next, and is more determined than ever to live up to the reputation he made as the "watch-dog of the treasury." When the republicans take the first step towards an increase of extravagance by the introduction of a new people that it exists under present expenditures; he will also endeavor to show that the expenditures of the government should not exceed $350,000,000 a year, and that if they were reduced to that amount the present tariff would produce an annual surplus of $100,000,000, which could be applied to the reduction of the bonded debt.

The Pacific railroad lobbyists are so uneasy about the prospect of the funding bill to come up in the house Jan. 7, that they have followed representatives out of town, in order to talk to them in favor of the bill during the recess. The opponents of the bill are also active, and the four days it will be under discussion in the house are not at all likely to be dull.

THE State Legislature meets next Wednesday.

It is designed to colonize this vast tract with Swedes. Here is a pointer for people concerned in the development of Northern Michigan,—Saginaw Courier Herald.

The Girls and the Prince.

When the Prince of Wales was in America, in 1860, he was a young man of nineteen and unmarried. Naturally, the American girls were deeply interested in him, and a period of the most romantic excitement ensued in all the cities. Every subterfuge to dance with the young Prince was resorted to, and members of his party were bribed to arrange a waltz with the Heir Apparent; the most unusual expedients were resorted to by girls. His baggage was kissed as it was put aboard the cars, and when he left a hotel room women would rush in and carry away in bottles the water in which he had washed his face. Church people forgot themselves and stood on the cushions of the pews in order to see the Royal visitor. On every hand it was a season of excitement, and balls, dinners, fetes and receptions ruled. One of the Prince's party was Stephen Fiske, the journalist, who was delegated by the elder James Gordon Bennett, of the New York Herald, to remain with the Prince while he was in America. Naturally, Mr. Fiske saw all the incidents of His Royal Highness' tour. Taking to the American journalist the young Prince saw that he was present upon all occasions. Now Mr. Fiske has written out the whole story, and it will form the January installment of the Ladies' Home Journal's series of "Great Personal Events." Illustrations of some of the great scenes have been made, and these will be given with the articles in the January Journal.

HERE'S YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

A New Eight-volume Encyclopaedia

At About Your Own Price.

Every one who has had occasion to consult the cumbersome old encyclopaedias for some needed information, effectually concealed in some long article, will be glad to know of the appearance of a new general reference work built along different lines, so that any child who can read may successfully consult it.

Such a work is The New Standard American Encyclopaedia in eight large quarto volumes, and which embraces the substance of all the other encyclopaedias, besides a very large amount of new up-to-date matter none of them contain. It introduces a vast number of new words, names, facts, ideas, inventions, methods and developments. It treats, in all, over 60,000 topics, which is from 6,000 to 10,000 more than any other work. The publishers of the "Standard American" have also lavishly embellished the new work. There are over 3,500 illustrations, which cover every conceivable subject, lending new interest to the descriptions, and forming a succession of pleasing surprises. It also contains over 300 colored maps, charts, and diagrams, and constitutes a complete atlas of the world such as no other encyclopaedia has undertaken to present. This feature will be found of the highest value in the education of the young, for the pictures and colored maps will have a distinct fascination for them, and thus prove an important incentive to reading and study.

The professional or business man, whose time is money; the teacher, who is called upon to at once answer all sorts of questions; the toiling student and inquiring scholar, at home or the desk, will find in the new work the most useful and practical library in the world for quick and ready reference on all subjects. One who owns it will possess the equivalent of a score of other reference books which would cost many times the price of this.

Another feature in which the new work stands absolutely alone, is in its very full appendixes, which embrace over 100 subdivisions, including a Biographical Dictionary, a Dictionary of Technical Terms, a Gazetteer of the United States, Presidential Elections in the United States, Religious Summaries, State and Territorial Election Statistics, Statistics of the population of the world, and a veritable mine of information or thousands of subjects of universal interest and importance.

But it is in its treatment of recent subjects that the Standard American will be found of paramount value. All other encyclopaedias are from five to ten years old, and are silent regarding hundreds of topics that every reference work should contain. Such, for instance, as "The X-Ray," "Argon," "Horseless Carriages," "The Atlanta Exposition," "Color Photography," etc., etc. It also gives biographies of hundreds of people who have lately become famous, such as Prof. Roentgen, discoverer of the "X-Ray," Ian MacLaren, Dr. Nansen, the explorer, Rudyard Kipling, etc., etc. On account of its lateness in all these matters, as well as its accuracy, it has become the standard in Schools, Colleges, Courts, Public Libraries, and wherever important questions come up for discussion.

It would therefore seem that no professional man, artisan, mechanic, teacher, pupil, or farmer, can well afford to be without this most useful, practical and latest of all encyclopaedias, especially as its price has been so arranged as to make the work a great bargain, and render its possession possible to almost any one who earnestly desires to own it. Detailed particulars regarding the work and how to secure it at practically your own price, may be found in an advertisement on another page of this issue.
