OTTAWA POINT!

Life Saving Station Shows Much Improvements this year.

People who have been in the habit of visiting the Ottawa Point Life Saving Station in years past, are much surprised at the improvements there this year. New walks are being laid from the dock and the dock has been repaired and improved, the trees and shrubbery has been trimmed and the grounds nicely cleaned up. All of which adds much to the natural beauty of the Point.

Capt. Martin Small, and his crew are always glad to receive visitors and do all in their power to make things pleasant. Capt. Small has been in charge of the station only this year, while the balance of the crew are the same as last year and are as follows: James Carpenter, Alex. Marontate, John Herrick, John Roy, Charles Parker, Charles Ferris, Nelson Sims, and Albert Oliver.

While at the Point one day last week we saw a fine oil painting of the station, showing the building, boats, etc., and were surprised to learn that it was from the brush of Charles Ferris, one of the surfmen. The painting is executed in an artistic manner and is an excellent reproduction of the place.

Our City Schools.

The fall term of our city schools will open next Tuesday, Sept. 7, with the following excellent corps of teachers:

Superintendent—Miss C. N. McElhinney.

Principal—Frank F. Stephenson.

Intermediate—Miss Anna Kehoe.

2d Primary—Miss May Crandall.

1st Primary—Miss Winnie DuPraw.

Ward school—Miss Mary R. Phinney.

Ten months of school will be held during the coming year, and it is to be hoped that the patrons will all do what is in their power to aid in the advancement of the present high standing of the Tawas City Public Schools.

A Challenge.

We, the undersigned Prescott nine, challenge the merchants and their employees to a friendly and scientific game of base ball, Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6th, 1897. The game to be played under league rules, except in running bases. The bases to be run on two legs, unless disabled, in which case they can run on one leg and two hands. We would further suggest that Drs. Darling and Conant be invited to be present with one barrel of Arnica and fifty yards of bandages. Mayor Murphy will present the winning nine with a prize. (Prize not named.) Don't be afraid, it will not be a bouquet of onions or cabbage. He always does everything with a big auger. Further, if Wilcox is put in the field he be allowed to catch with a bushel basket.

THE NINE.

Cityclists Attention

All Bicycle riders are requested not to ride on the sidewalk on the north side of Lake street, between N. C. Harting's residence and the Simon corners, in Tawas City, by request of the citizens.

M. MURPHY, Mayor.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to the friends and neighbors, for their many kindnesses and gifts of flowers, during the illness of our dear mother.

S. A. HOLLOWAY,
MRS. S. A. WALKER,
MRS. E. P. DOVE.

Male News.

S. Phelps and wife left last week for their home in Marshall.

Mrs. T. E. McKee and family are spending a few weeks visiting friends here.

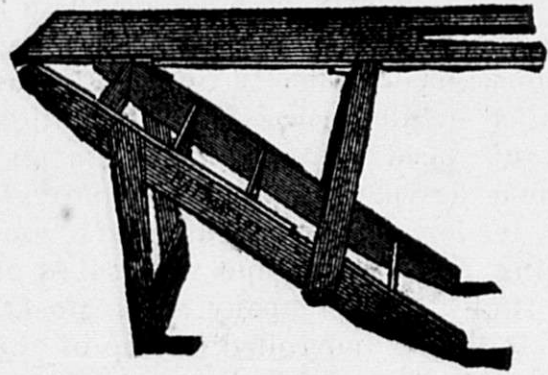

The infant son of Wm. Nunn was quite seriously hurt by a kick from a colt last Friday.

Two performers in teats of juggling, magic and slight of hand, Prof. Harry Wilson and Prof. Chas. F. McKune, struck town last week, both were good, but all pronounced Prof. McKune the best.

A Fine Boat.

N. C. Hartingh launched his yacht yesterday, after having it thoroughly rebuilt. The work was done by Lon Arnold, of Bay City, and shows Mr. Arnold to be thoroughly familiar with every detail of yacht building. Mr. Hartingh now has one of the finest sailing yachts on the lakes—comfortable, comfortable and safe. He had her changed from a sloop rig to the popular cat rig. Besides this she has been lengthened out ten feet, making her 48 feet over all. Her model is considerably changed also. While she has not yet been tested, it is expected that she will be very fast and will undoubtedly give a good account of herself in the races today and tomorrow.

A Useful Article.

The above represents a combination ironing table, step ladder and washing bench, recently patented by Ross V. English, of East Tawas. It is one of the most substantial and useful articles, and will be fully appreciated by any house wife when once used.

The Primary Teacher.

Lift your hat reverently when you pass the teacher of the primary school. She is the great angel of the republic. She takes the bantling flesh from the home nest, full of pouts and passions, an ungovernable little wretch, whose mother honestly admits that she sends him to school to get rid of him. This lady, who knows her business, takes a car load of these little anarchists, any one of whom, single handed, is more than a match for his parents, and she at once puts them in the way of being useful citizens. At what expense of toil and patience and soul weariness? Her's is the most responsible of the whole system, and if her salary was doubled she would not receive more than she earns.—School News.

$1.00 Per Year in Advance

THERE are no less than thirty women lighthouse keepers in the employ of the United States at present and some of them have been in service for forty years. Harriet E. Colfax, keeper of the light at Michigan City, Lake Michigan, was appointed in 1861

DON'T get excited over the speculative advance in wheat, owing to short crops in Europe, and don't, for God's sake, lose sight of the silver question in the struggle. While wheat is booming, corn is at 28 @ 30c; oats 17 @ 18c; hay $6 @ 7, and everything else is on a silver ratio. The hay crop is worth more than wheat; so is the corn crop. Eggs are way down, but are worth several times what the wheat crop is valued at. Wages are on a Chinese basis. If you let a trifle like a corner in wheat swerve you in your struggle for economic justice, don't whine a year or two hence. We told you so.—Cheboygan Democrat.

CHICAGO boot and shoe manufacturers say that the duty on hides in the Dingley tariff law means millions to the beef trust, and the fact points to the conclusion that it was that interest which crowded the item into the bill. Ostensibly the duty was imposed in behalf of the poor western farmer and cattle raisers, but as one manufacturer puts it: "The farmer has no hides to sell; neither has the stockman, because he sells his cattle on foot and he will not get a penny more for the cattle because of the duty. Again the grand old party has got close to the farmer—close enough to sell him a gold brick which will turn out to be anything but a Klondike nugget in the hard assay of actual experience."—Saginaw News.

THE republican papers now have enclosed on their insides a supplementary sheet furnished them by Mark Hanna's Bureau of Education. In large and startling headings it reads: "Prosperity's Wide Sweep" "Whole country is on the High Road to Good Times." On one side they have a picture of a sleek, well fed monopolist opening the door of a factory with its windows broken and cobwebs over them, while a scrawny and poor workman is holding out his hands welcoming Uncle Sam who is coming towards them with his hat off carrying in his arms the tariff bill. The main thing in the picture is the plutocrat with his shiny plug hat and self-satisfied smile. He is the main thing in the picture as well as in the tariff bill. Uncle Sam and the working man look thin, and we are sure they will be and remain thin until they get sense enough in their heads to know that more taxes will not lighten their burdens and make them happy and fat.—Michigan Democrat.

REV. FAYETTE L. THOMPSON, of the Central M. E. church, of Lansing, preached a very sensational sermon, in which, among other things, he said: "There is such a thing as a revolt against motherhood. Looking out upon the world as it is today, you discover, first, that the society homes of your city are comparatively childless homes. One or possibly two children may be there, but more and more likely none at all. Why? Simply because society has voted children a nuisance. Poodle dogs are quite the thing, but children are not to be thought of for an instant, and so you will find in many a so-called home that the poodle dog has usurped the child's place. This revolt against motherhood is based upon two facts.

First, children mean that social functions must be surrendered. Second, strongest of all is the devil-born conception that permeates very largely a considerable segment of what calls itself 'society' that child-bearing is vulgar and maternity not for refined, cultivated people. Because the homes best able to care for children are refusing the responsibilities of parentage and because the homes where the children are in abundance have the least opportunities for advancement, therefore you have the serious governmental problem simply that you are supplying the coming generations from the least, instead of what should be the most desirable of our population."

Better Times only Temporary,

A good many well meaning people, who are too busy or too lazy to do their own thinking, and who get their opinions second-handed from their party leaders, are flattering themselves that the long deferred good times, which the confidence men predicted would immediately follow McKinley's election, have at last arrived.

It is true that there is just at present a reaction from the long continued downward tendency of prices, but the way in which it comes confirms the position of the silver men last fall. They asserted that we could have no prosperity until the farmer got better prices for his crops. The gold men declared that this was nonsense and that all that was needed was confidence. Their prediction proved a miserable failure, and for nearly a year after election conditions grew worse and worse. Finely, however, we were blessed with an enormous crop in this country and simultaneously there was a corresponding shortage in Europe and Asia. The amount of grain required from the United States will be a great deal more even than that of last year, when our markets felt the result of the famine in India. The consequence has been that the increased demand for wheat has raised the price, and as the price of wheat has advanced it has brought up the price of other grains which can be used as a substitute.

The theory of the silver men is now demonstrated to be true. No sooner did the price of farm products begin to advancing than business began at last to awaken. Country merchants, realizing that the farmers would have money to pay for their goods, sent orders to the wholesalers, and the wholesalers ordered from the factories; consequently the mills which were shutting down two months ago are now opening and running on full time.

If the prices of farmers' products could be kept advancing we might look for permanent good times; but unfortunately they are simply the result of failure of crops in other lands. If Europe and Asia have an ordinary crop another year there will be no unusual demand for our grain, and again our prices will fall and the American people will be in the slough of despond. The men who expect permanent prosperity will be disappointed for with a largely increased volume of money prices will only be kept up here by a famine abroad and it is not to be expected that the crop conditions will continue another year as they are this.—Peioskey Democrat.

The Klondyke Situation

If the Klondyke gold-fields had been located under hospitable skies, with easy means of transportation, the rush of eager adventurers would have been unparalleled in history. As matters stand, the exodus of prospectors to Alaska has only been limited by the means of transit. All the steamships regularly sailing from points on the Pacific coast to Alaskan ports have been crowded to their utmost, and various other crafts have been chartered to take special parties. Eight or ten thousand men in all have been carried as far as the Alaska coast. Most of them are taking the overland route, from Dyea, instead of making the long de-tour by way of the Yukon River. But the overland road is an exceedingly hard one to travel, and the number of would-be prospectors is vastly in excess of the means for conveying outfits. The consequence is that a great many men have made a start on the fearful trail with little prospect of getting over the Chilcoot Pass to the mining district before winter sets in. It is to be feared that the lack of sufficient supplies may entail serious sufferings. It is a great mistake for any one to start for the Klondyke district—which lies practically on the arctic circle—without being well supplied with everything that he will need, especially with money. Juneau, the capital of the Territory of Alaska, will be crowded this winter with disappointed men who must wait until next summer to find the road passable to the Eldorado of their hopes. On the eve of the adjournment of Congress there was created the new office of Surveyor-General of Alaska. Hardly any surveying at all has been done in that vast region. Next spring there will be an enormous rush of American prospectors, and it is believed that the gold-bearing gravelbeds of the streams on the American side of the boundary line may prove to be as rich as those on the Canadian side.—From "The Progress of the World," in American Monthly Review of Reviews for September.

What Advertising is.

I wish somebody would tell me how it would be possible to make everyone understand exactly what advertising really is. It is one of the simplest things in the world if you look at it in the right way. It is simply telling a plain story. It consists merely of giving information to possible buyers. It does not mean under-statement or over-statement. The more nearly an advertiser can picture the goods of a store, the better the advertisement. It should be made attractive, of course, but attractiveness does not necessarily mean smartness or newness. An advertisement should be made attractive in just the same way that a magazine article is made attractive—by illustration. There need not be anything startling about the illustration. There need not be anything smart about it. It ought to convey an idea applicable to the goods talked about in the advertisement. It need not be original. It may be a copy of a picture one hundred years old. If it is a handsome picture and suitable to the subject, it is just as good as a new picture. There are very few new pictures, anyway.—Shoe and Leather Facts.

A Chesaning grocer has a new way of settling his poor accounts. He gives the debtors thirty days notice to settle their accounts, with a promise of a good whipping if they do not comply. One man received a good sound flogging Saturday, in consequence thereof, and the grocer promised to whip him every thirty days until the account was settled.

A few nights ago a young man of this city returned home from a party, sat down on the front steps and went to sleep. Some hours later he was awakened in a neighbor's parlor, where he had laid down. His coat, vest and hat were found next morning hanging on another neighbor's fence. We are afraid our name would be Dennis, if we told who he is, so we simply mention the facts.

Rev. J. O. Miller, who has been in charge of Christ's church, East Tawas, for the past year, has been compelled to resign on account of poor health, having suffered from several attacks of hemorrhage of the lungs during the past few weeks. Last Tuesday he left for Phoenix, Ariz., hoping a change of climate will be beneficial. During his residence here he has made a host of friends who hope to hear of his rapid recovery.

The other day a very modest and absent-minded young lady went to the mill for some flour. She gave the miller what she thought was a neatly folded and ironed pillow slip. The miller emptied one scoop of flour and it went right through to the floor. Just then the horrifying discovery was made, and what had been taken for a dainty little sack had two outlets, and each outlet was trimmed with embroidery. Ed. fainted and the young lady rendered him no assistance, but returned home at a double quick gait.

In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. Then he made the editor, liberal patronizers, and prompt paying subscribers, and it was good. The next day a Minnesota blizzard set in and created a man who didn't take his home paper and another who didn't believe in advertising, and then rested. Then the devil got into the moulding room and created the fellow who takes the editor's paper for years and fails to pay for it. The devil then rested, but the editor has never had any rest since.—Ex.

Next Monday, Labor Day, will be most appropriately observed in Tawas City. One of the most exciting games of base "bawl" ever witnessed on the shore is scheduled to take place. Prescott's "sluggers," under the management of Capt. Ed. Wilcox will meet Ramage's "Klondykers." The game will be started promptly at 1 o'clock and full nine innings will be played if daylight lasts long enough. Who will referee the "scrap" has not been fully decided as yet, but a man of iron nerve will be secured. The clubs are to be composed of the men employed in Prescott's store, and the down-town merchants and no "ringers" will be allowed.

OUR FARMER CORNER.

Hints for our Country Readers, which if Followed will Save Dollars.

Carlessness.

It is unsafe for a farmer to be careless, for if there are boys on the farm they will be careless, too, and misplaced tools and neglected work, especially on a small place, may easily shift the scale from profit to loss. Have a place for everything, and see that everything is put in its place. A hoe left in the field and allowed to rust may not amount to much, but a number of hoes, and a number of other tools, especially if they include some of the more complicated and expensive farm machines, often add up a bill that is formidable.

Outside of labor, tools and fertilizers are the two big items of expense; but while both are lovers for producing greater profit, and should in no case be reduced, the former could usually be cut in half by judicious care. It is surprising how long tools may be made to last, and how quickly they may be destroyed. It is not service that is to be feared, but rust. Three or four weeks of neglect could destroy the best hoe, which as many years of hard service would only wear to a keener edge. —Farm Journal.

Breeds of Sheep.

Some persons are apt to become lost among the many breeds of sheep and unable to make a choice on account of the variety offering. But a good sheep may be of any race, or color even, white or black or yellow, for the purpose for which any one may use him. To some extent a sheep is valuable for some special location, as for instance, the mountain breeds, as equally so the lowland breeds, and marsh breeds. But it has appeared that all these breeds when brought into this great North America have found homes anywhere and everywhere, without any regard to their antecedents. It is true that some of our breeds seem to do better in some places than in others, but yet others thrive side by side with them. It is in the man rather than in the place, or the sheep, that success in the rearing exists. And the right man will always find the right place for any kind of sheep he may take a fancy to. Indeed, this word exactly fills the bill, it is the fancy of the man which always does and always will control the choice of the flock. This may be thought somewhat questionable, but as a matter of experience the writer of this, who has kept sheep in the North and South, East and West, during forty years past has kept every leading breed during the time, must say advisedly and truly that as far as choice of breed is concerned it is immaterial; all that is wanted is a good sheep and a good shepherd to manage it. Then all goes on well.

As to the fleece, we may say there is a demand for every kind of wool grown, and as for mutton, while it is true that some naturally surpass other kinds, it is only for the excessively nice mutton-eater that one well kept and fed sheep will surpass any other kind. It is somewhat like the gifts of mind mentioned by the old writers; men have them not all alike, but some exceed others very greatly in the kinds of them. All, however, are useful and find a place in the world. So it is with the sheep. We have here many less kinds than exist in that small country, England, more properly Great Britain and Ireland, or the United Kingdom, but there each man swears by his favorite kind, that it is the best, and so it is for him. And so let us all choose according to our fancy, and then make our choice, by skilful culture the best for each one of us. There is no war of breeds anywhere; every specialist in breeding sheep is helping to advance the race. The only thing to be done is to get the choicer breeds of the best sheep possible, and then by the best management try to keep it up to the highest standard. But don't let any of us be like the man whose mind could not be made up to a choice, and so made none. Every one who can should have a flock and care for it as well as he can, by study of the animal and due attention to every one of its necessities. —American Sheep Breeder.

Manuring in Fall.

Manure on the farm does not accumulate in sufficient quantity to permit of applying it over the whole farm, and during the busy season the opportunity for handling it is restricted, but after corn is harvested manure can be spread wherever it is deemed advisable. A question which has been well discussed by progressive agriculturists during the year is that of spreading manure or applying fertilizers in the fall. The farmer has something to lose and to gain by so doing. In its favor it is claimed that by spreading in the fall the labor can be performed with less interference with other work, but if done in the spring the hauling will be more difficult and other work may be more pressing. By spreading in the fall the manure need not be decomposed, but should be free of all bulky stalks or coarse materials that slowly decompose, the manure being spread on the ground that has been well plowed, the cultivator working it into the soil in order to prevent rapid loss by washing from heavy rains. It is maintained, however, that a loss is sure to occur if manure is spread in the fall owing to leaching of the soluble portions, but such may happen in the spring as well, while the keeping of the manure in the barnyard too long entails a loss of the soluble portions and gaseous matter without the soil receiving those substances at all.

The problem also extends to fertilizers. Although commercial fertilizers are sold on a guarantee that certain proportions are soluble, it is known that during short seasons of growth the plants cannot derive as large an amount of soluble plant food as the fertilizers can supply, and this happens more especially if the supply of moisture is limited. If fertilizers are applied in the fall there will be a gain of time, and the loss will not be large if the soil is heavy and the subsoil is close. The applications of fertilizers in the fall, however, depends upon the kinds used. It may not be proper to apply sulphate of ammonia, nitrate of soda, sulphate of potash, or muriate of potash, as they are very soluble especially if water is abundant, but there are several forms of phosphates that will be more serviceable in the spring if applied in the fall, and as phosphates are cheap compared with the potash and nitrogenous compounds, the cost is but little, and the loss, if any, during the winter need not be large, as phosphates that have not been acidulated disintegrate slowly in the soil. Phosphate rock or ground bone may on some soils be applied in the fall, so as to have the plant food available at the proper time.

To prevent loss in winter progressive farmers aim to keep the land covered with a crop. If wheat is seeded down in the fall the young plants will begin to utilize any plant food rendered soluble, and will make considerable growth before the ground freezes. If crimson clover is sown the farmer may add a small proportion of potash to the phosphates before applying. The clover will, like the wheat, arrest loss and reduce the amount of nitrogenous fertilizer intended for the spring application. Should rye occupy the land it will also prevent loss of available material. It is necessary, then, for the farmer to apply fertilizer according to the winter crop that is to occupy the land. But the question is one of the period of application rather than of use, and the labor must be considered. If the labor is given when the farmer is not busy is some other direction its cost is less than when he has a large proportion of work to perform. The profit from a crop is that portion remaining after all expenses are paid, which includes interest on capital, seed, rent of land, manure and fertilizers, and if the cost can be reduced in any manner the profit becomes correspondingly larger. For that reason any work that can be done in the fall lessens the urgency of spring permitting the farmer to utilize more time and keep his crops in better condition.
