Blown Up By Gun Cotton.

The New York World has published a letter from Havana stating that United States officials, after months of secret investigation, have discovered that the battleship Maine was blown up by gun cotton torpedoes planted in the bay for the purpose. The gun cotton, 700 pounds of which was used, was sent from Barcelona to Admiral Manterela, commanding the port of Havana, and was either stolen from the magazine where the stuff was stored or taken away with the knowledge of the officials in charge.

Admiral Mantelola's records will undoubtedly show the names of his subordinates who had direct control of the explosives, and in that way the identity of the authors and executioners of the plot to destroy the Maine may be discovered. Two or three men were engaged in the destruction of the Maine. A steam launch of Spanish make and now used by the United States government in Havana harbor conveyed the two torpedoes, according to the new evidence, to a point within a few feet of the berth of the Maine and anchored them. The torpedoes were kept in position by means of buoys floated eleven feet under water and ten feet above the anchors used to prevent them from being swept away. The torpedoes were exploded by contact with the keel of the Maine as she swung at anchor.

An Indian Mound Opened.

An Indian mound on the top of a bluff overlooking the Huron river at a point a few miles below Ann Arbor, was opened Saturday, November 18, by Dr. W. B. Hinsdale, dean of the homoeopathic department of the University of Michigan. Within was found a skeleton, two earthen pots and about a dozen small implements. The skeleton, which was that of a man, was lying on an oval bed of burnt clay. Its head was pointed towards the west. The position of the bones seemed to indicate that the body had been buried in a sitting posture. On the skeleton's left hand was a pile of bones not human. Among these were the two front teeth of a beaver. The implements in the pots included several arrow points, a number of awls made out of antlers, a copper needle and a barbed fishing spear. The spear was also made of an antler.

The teeth of the skull were all sound and were about one-third ground down. The edges being flat and smooth instead of pointed and sharp. The two eye teeth were slightly forward of the others.

The mound was about 15 feet in diameter, and originally several feet high, but as it had been plowed over for many seasons it had become somewhat reduced in size. The skeleton was found about four feet below the surface.

Michigan Men Lose.

Justice Street of Toronto, has decided the case of Smylie, representing the Michigan lumber men who wanted the law prohibiting the export of logs from Ontario crown lands and requiring the sawing of such logs declared unconstitutional. The decision sustains the right of the province to require the sawing of the logs in Canada. Justice Street held that the provincial legislature in passing the act was dealing with property belonging to the province, and over which they have the fullest power of control. They are entitled to sell it or to refuse to sell it, and if they sell they have the right to impose upon the purchaser such conditions as they deem proper with regard to the destination of the timber after it is cut.

Just Saved His Life.

It was a thrilling escape that Charles Davis, of Bowerston, O., lately had from a frightful death. For two years a severe lung trouble constantly grew worse until it seemed he must die of consumption. Then he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and lately wrote: "It gave instant relief and effected a permanent cure." Such wonderful cures have for 25 years proven its power to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung troubles. Price 50c and $1. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottle free at G. S. Darling's and J. E. Dillon's Drug Stores.

"One Minute Cough Cure is the best remedy I ever used for coughs and colds. It is unequalled for whooping cough. Children all like it," writes H. N. Williams, Gentryville, Ind. Never fails. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, pneumonia, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Its early use prevents consumption. G. S. Darling.

The Future of The Bicycle.

The bicycle as a fad has already become a thing of the past. Utility has taken the place of enthusiasm, and the wheel has ceased to be a craze. It still has a future as an excellent method of exercise, when reasonably used, and of quick locomotion. The Baltimore Sun looking into the statistics of the trade, finds there has been a heavy decline in exports from this country, notwithstanding the great decline in prices, and that original investors in cycle works have met with great losses. The same is true in England. In the first eight months of 1895 that country sold abroad $5,350,000 worth of bicycles, and in 1896 sold $5,986,500, but a decline set in in 1897, and in the first eight months of 1899 it sold only $7,398,500 worth. Of the companies organized in England in 1896 and since forty with shares aggregating $13,750,000 have gone into liquidation. Shares of thirty six leading companies show falls aggregating 39 per cent, some falling as much as 75 per cent. The common stock of such companies is now almost absolutely worthless. Probably this is the history of the trade all over. But within certain limits the bicycle will continue to be used. It may not be seen so frequently in the parks and on the boulevards as a pleasure vehicle, but as a means of getting quickly from one locality to another it is still the ideal method of locomotion. Like everything else, the novelty once worn off, it has come to the demands of practical use, and that is its future. It will be used but not abused.

Brave Bill Anthony.

"Brave Bill" Anthony died at the Presbyterian hospital in New York last Friday, half an hour after he had swallowed a quantity of cocaine at one of the Central park entrances.

William Anthony was the man who, Feb. 15, 1898, when the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, reported to Capt. Sigsbee in the famous words:

"Sir, I have the honor to report that the ship has been blown up and is sinking."

On his return to this country, Anthony was accorded receptions everywhere. When his leave of absence was ended, Anthony was promoted to be a sergeant of marines and was detailed at the Brooklyn navy yard.

In one of Anthony's coat pockets was found a letter written by him to his aunt, which read that he was discouraged and despondent, and was going to end it all. Among the other articles found was a picture of his one-month-old child, on the back of which was written: "Bury this with me." A Spanish-American war medal, such as all the survivors of the battleship Maine received, was also found.

An Observing Puppy.

A rector writes from Honiton, England, to The Spectator to record an instance of a very high order of intelligence in an animal, of a power of reasoning as distinct from any acquired instinct:

"I have a bullpup, aged 10 months, and a bulldog 4 years old, both of which live in the house and are great pets. A short time ago my wife was ill, and, though the older dog, owing to his quiet and sedate way, was allowed to enter her room, the puppy was never admitted. The nurse could always tell which dog was at the door, because the older dog gave one single and gentle scratch and then remained quiet, while the puppy scratched violently and frequently and whined. The puppy apparently could not understand why she was not admitted, and felt her exclusion sorely.

"One day she scratched furiously as usual. No notice was taken. Presently she was heard going flop-flop down stairs. In a few minutes the single gentle scratch of the old dog was heard, the door was opened, and there were both dogs, and, strange to say, from that time the puppy so imitated the scratch of the other dog that it was impossible to tell which was at the door. Undoubtedly the puppy went and asked the old dog to show her how he gained admission. How else can one explain the fact?"

Brave Men Fall.

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. J. W. Gardner, of Idaville, Ind., says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he don't care whether he lives or dies. It gave me new strength and good appetite. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents at G. S. Darling's and J. E. Dillon's Drug Stores. Every bottle guaranteed.

Paid Dear For His Leg.

B. D. Blanton, of Thackerville, Tex., in two years paid over $3000 to doctors to cure a Running Sore on his leg. Then they wanted to cut it off, but he cured it with one box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Guaranteed cure for Piles. 25 cents a box. Sold by G. S. Darling and J. E. Dillon Druggist.

It takes but a minute to overcome tickling in the throat and to stop a cough by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. This remedy quickly cures all forms of throat and lung troubles. Harmless and pleasant to take. It prevents consumption. A famous specific for grippe and its after effects.

In Ohio they are still debating over the question who it was that got "rebuked."

It is claimed that the nine sugar factories in Michigan will keep in this state $3,000,000, which has heretofore been paid for sugar outside of the state.

If the figures of the experts are reliable Boston drinks more whisky than any other city in the country. Yet no one has accused her of becoming boozey enough to fall off her self-erected pedestal of perfection.

THE reports to the commissioner of immigration show that for the months of July, August and September of this year, the number of immigrants admitted to the United States was 78,365, which is an increase of 19,043 over the same months of last year.

It sometimes requires more real courage to face the battle of life than to face powder, lead and cold steel. This is shown in the recent suicide of Bill Anthony, who distinguished himself at the time of the blowing up of the Maine by his cool and matter-of-fact report of the affair to Captain Sigbee.

EVERY year, the treasurer of the United States is called upon to redeem millions of bank notes, which have become badly worn as a result of constant handling. During the fiscal year recently closed, Treasurer Roberts gave new bills in exchange for old to the amount of $290,000,000 breaking the record of the last six years.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OREN gave the handle to the opinion mill a few more turns last week. To the secretary of state an opinion was addressed to the effect that it is the imperative duty of supervisors to furnish farm statistics to the agricultural department of the secretary's office, and if the supervisors want to hold their jobs they must send in the information. They cannot receive compensation for the work, but they can be bounced if they do not do it.

of this and adjoining counties wake up to the needs of the day and organize themselves into an association? Such an organization among the legitimate real estate dealers would do more than any one thing to bring settlers into this part of the state to occupy our vast era of excellent farming lands. It would place them in a position so that every person in search of land could be supplied with just what he wanted. A large amount of beneficial advertising could be done at a little expense. Let those interested push the matter at once.

"THERE lie before me the opinions of some twelve of the best-informed physicians on the question of the go-cart, and without exception they condemn its use for a child under two years of age," writes Edward Bok, in the December Ladies' Home Journal, pointing out the dangers of the "go-cart" for babies. "As everyone knows who has seen this new perambulator, it is practically the old baby-carriage cut in halves. The child's legs dangle over an abrupt edge, and his back is supported by a perfectly straight rest. It is, in reality, nothing more than a chair on wheels. The child is forced to take an upright sitting position, instead of being able to assume that recumbent posture which the old carriage allows. The child cannot lie down in the go-cart, and therefore during his entire outing he is compelled to assume a fatiguing position, and to depend upon unaided muscles for support at a time of life when the back easily becomes tired. The result is that no invention recently created is more clearly or directly inducive to spinal curvature."

The Making of Good Coffee

Begins in the growing. Anywhere between the plantation and the coffee pot the flavor may be changed, the quality spoiled by carelessness, inexperience, or unscrupulous methods. From the time Arbuckles' Coffee leaves the hands of the grower until it reaches the user in a sealed packet, it is handled with the same watchful care, the same thought for cleanliness, that you would give any article of food that goes on your table: The house of Arbuckle is the largest and oldest coffee house in the world. Its employees have grown up caring for this great business; the business has grown great under the care of its employees. As a result of this personal care, is used every day in more than a million American homes. Its reliability is recognized; its quality is appreciated; its flavor is enjoyed; its price is a revelation.

ARBUCKLES' Roasted Coffee

Ask the grocer for Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee, and be sure you get the genuine. All other package coffees are but imitations of Arbuckles'.

In each pound package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee there is a list of articles. With each package in which the list is found the purchaser has bought a definite part of some article to be selected by him or her from the list, subject

"I was nearly dead with dyspepsia, tried doctors, visited mineral springs, and grew worse. I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. That cured me." It digests what you eat. Cures indigestion, sour stomach, heartburn and all forms of dyspepsia. Dr. G. S. Darling.

Editor Peak, of the Linden Leader says: "As it is fadish and every day becoming more so for Edith to change her name to Edyth, and May to Mae, Mabel to Mabelle, Ada to Adah, Ora to Oran, Della to Dellah, and 'sich like,' that we have decided to adopt a cognomen likewise freakish, get in behind the band and say 'program.' Henceforth in the future we wish to be known as Edytor Wylum Henry Pique. Might just as well be in sulphuric hades with appendicitis as to be out of style. Next week we calculate to blow ourselves for a new shoe string, a bottle of perfumery and a pair of red ribbed gulluses. Then we can dress up and get out and be somebody. We have stayed in just as long as is prudent on account of a homely sounding name and a scanty wardrobe."

FARM & GARDEN

CELERY TALK.

Surface Culture in Double Rows With a Manure Mulch. Apropos of setting celery for fall and winter crops in the south, T. Grenier, a man of mark in the gardening fraternity of the north, meditates

THE OLD TRENCH SYSTEM.

In past and present methods of celery culture after the following fashion recorded in Farm and Fireside:

The method usually employed there is to plant in beds six feet wide, with alleys of same width between each two beds. The space for the plants is slightly excavated, say four inches deep, and the plants are set in rows across the bed, which rows are one foot apart, while the plants in the rows are set six inches apart. The bed is then gradually filled up with earth from the alleys. The prime condition of success in growing celery thus closely together is an excess of available plant foods in the soil. It is not enough that we use plenty of manure in the soil, but this manure should be old—that is, well rotted and intimately mixed with the soil. I wonder what success southern people would meet if they were to try the old plan of planting in trenches. Sometimes I have a notion to plant a patch in this way again. The chief difficulty is the fact that in order to go a foot down into the ground we have to dig up a portion of the hard clay subsoil. Of course we have to set the plants in good surface soil. After the trench is dug a lot of fine manure and good surface soil, well mixed, must be put back into the trench, say not less than four inches deep, and into this the celery is planted. We may have a single or a double row. I am now quite in favor of making double rows in any way we may plant. It gives double the number of plants and requires only one banking, boarding or filling up.

In reality there is little difference between the old trench system and the mulching system as now practiced by me. The illustrations will make this plain. Any way the principle is the same. Fig. 1 shows the young plants in the bottom of the trenches, with banks of earth between the rows. Fig. 2 shows the double rows on the surface of the ground, with banks of coarse manure between each two double rows, the manure being held up and away from the plant rows by boards set up on long edge on each side of each double row.

In either case the plants are protected from drying winds and heat. In the mulching system we have another advantage. If weather is very dry and hot, we can let a stream of water, if we have it, soak through the manure, thus forcing rapid growth of the plants in any kind of weather by means of the easily assimilated plant foods which the water dissolves from the manure and carries down to the roots of the plants. With celery thus managed and protected there will be very little chance for rusts or blights to attack the foliage, but if they do spraying with Bordeaux mixture in the earlier stages of growth or with a weak solution of copper sulphate will restore the plants to health.

Topping Cotton.

Experiments for the purpose of determining as to the effects of topping have been made at the stations in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana and South Carolina. In only one of the experiments so made, an Alabama experiment, "were the results decisively in favor of topping." This was for one year only. For the year next following "the slight advantage was with the plants not topped. The Georgia station in 1890 or 1891 obtained a smaller yield from topped plants than from those not topped."

The effects of topping at different dates were studied in these experiments, and it was found that "the earlier the topping the greater was the injury." At one of the stations, that of Mississippi, "topping as late as Sept. 20 resulted in a large shrinkage in yield. It is, in a suggestively cautionary way, observed that "topping has given contradictory results under different conditions." — Home and Farm.

How to Save Bromus Inermis Seed.

We have been asked how the seed of Bromus inermis may be saved, says the Denver Field and Farm. The hay may be harvested with a binder the same as small grain and can be shocked in the same manner. It can be thrashed with the common grain separator with the wind largely shut off. In thrashing it in North Dakota the whole sheaf was allowed to pass through the separator, and, in order to lose as little seed as possible, the wind was shut off so closely that the seed was not well cleaned. It was after
