SUGAR BEET PULP.

One of the Features Which Recommend the Sugar Beet Industry.

Among points about feeding beet pulp which a Nebraska cattle man determined by experiment were:

First.—That the cattle would eat as much as 100 pounds of pulp a day.

Second.—That they eat pulp with evident satisfaction and great relish.

Third.—That they consume very little or no water at all while eating pulp.

Other points of which he feels satisfied in his own mind but has not clearly demonstrated are that the use of pulp will effect a valuable saving of other foods, both hay and grain.

In years of drought, when foodstuffs are very high, the saving will be a very valuable one. Pulp is bulky and costly to transport and expensive to handle.
The charges, however, cut no figure with farmers delivering beets to a factory, who can as well as not take back a load of pulp to their farm.

Pulp, he further says, can be kept very easily indeed, as it becomes extremely compact and sour or ferments slightly. A large pile can even be left out of doors in very cold weather, and while a crust eight or ten inches will freeze on the outside the inside will remain in good condition.

All pulp should properly be fed in a barn where it cannot freeze and with other foods. During the earlier part of the feeding period, for instance, for three or four months out of six, it may be fed largely with a comparatively small feed of grain, although hay should always be fed with it. Toward the end of the feeding period the proportion of grain should be gradually increased and that of the pulp diminished for finishing the cattle for market.

He attaches the greatest possible importance in value to the use of beet pulp in beef production and does not doubt it will prove equally valuable in the dairy industry. Its value in feeding animals is one of the reasons why the production of sugar itself may find a firmer and more profitable location where dairy or beef animals are fed than in other sections where there are not so many animals to feed.

Another Nebraska stockman gives his experience thus:

I fed 300 3 and 4 year old western steers in 1891, the first year our factory opened. Of course I had no experience in feeding pulp, but I soon found that cattle were very fond of it. I think they will leave any other food known and eat it. As to the fattening quality, of course when fed alone it is almost valueless, though I believe stock would winter on it. Mixed with a cut feed of hay or straw or cornstalks on which cornmeal, bran or some other grain food is placed, it makes a ration which fattens very rapidly. By feeding the usual amount of meal with 75 to 100 pounds of this pulp per day per steer the fattening period will be shortened at least 30 days. In other words, you can get as good results in four months with pulp as you could in five without it.

I think steers will eat as much grain food per day or more with the pulp than they will without it. It is a great "conditioner" and appetizer, and we find the older it is the better the results. It will keep a number of years in the silo or piled up on top of the ground. It will turn black and spoil as far as the air goes through, which is from eight to ten inches. It will reduce in bulk fully one-half and grow as much richer. There are a number of big sheep and cattle feeders here, all of whom use it more or less. If anything, it is better for sheep than cattle.

Change Per Beth.

"You need a change," said the doctor.
"I think you should take a trip to Europe."

"Well, doctor," said the man with a large and expensive family, "you need a change, too, I'm thinking."

"Really?"
"Yes. You want to change your mind."—Philadelphia Press.

County C. E.

Held a Very Interesting Convention in This City

The County C. E. Rally held in this city, Saturday and Sunday, June 30 and July 1st, was one of the liveliest, and most instructing and interesting ever held in the county.
A large number of delegates being present from the different societies throughout the county; but what was a striking fact that each society represented a different denomination, yet a better feeling of tellowship and good will toward men could not have been manifested. It showed itself in the eager, smiling faces which gathered at the different churches at every session; in the joyful greeting heard on all sides as the people assembled together; in the inspiring song services which opened every session of the convention.

The first session met at the Baptist church Saturday evening, opened by a song service conducted by Mr. F.
McGlone of this city. With his leadership the singing seemed to fetch us before the gates of paradise; it seemed to lift them up into a higher plain of life and the church rang with music as it had seldom heard before. He was assisted by a union choir from the diereat earchures of the city.

The delegates and friends were most heartly welcomed by C. A. Jahraus, who spoke to them, as usual, in his cheerful and happy manner.
Mr. Peter Osborne of Whittemore, responded, after which papers were read by G. L. Cornville of this city, on "Good Literature," and "The Family Alter," by Prof. J. A. Campbell of Whittemore, which were very instructing and interesting.

The beautiful weather Sunday added much in attendance and to the cheerfulness of the meetings.

The early six o'clock prayer meeting was led by Mr. McGlone. A very profitable hour was spent.

The Sunday morning session convened at 10:00 o'clock, opened with devotional service led by Mr. Prince of Alpena, after which was a solo by Mrs. H. H. Funk of East Tawas, followed by addresses by Rev. W. H.
Long, on "The New Era," and on "What we Need," by Rev. A. Waterbury.

The afternoon session met in the Congregational church at 2 o'clock and was opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. Barry, after which was a solo by Archie Barry. Papers were read by Mrs. Dillenbeck of Whittemore, and Mrs. P. C. Goldie of this city, which were very helpful and instructing, that of Mrs.
Goldie's especially so, showing the possibilities to which our boys and girls of today might attain to by doing the right things at the right time and being diligent and obeying the commands of God.

The talk to the juniors by Mrs. H.
F. Shier of East Tawas, was very helpful and full of good things for both old and young. Her remarks leaving a lasting impression on their minds; followed by a solo "Ninety and Nine," by Mr. McGlone.

The evening session opened at 6:30 o'clock with C. E. prayer meeting, led by Mr. Prince, subject, "When is a Nation Safe?" followed by an address by Rev. D. Q. Barry on,
"Development of Christian Character." The Elder spoke in a clear, forcible manner, giving some very practical pointers on christian character, showing that we should stand for truth and principle; followed by an address on "More Pledge Keeping," by C. A. Jahraus. Also an address by Rev. H. Goldie, on "Sabbath Desecration and Observance." His talk upon this subject should be heralded from shore to shore and from the arctic regions to the balmy breezes of the south. He spoke with that fearless and forcible manner that awoke a new spirit in the audience, it seemed as if they henceforth were determined to stand solidly for a better observance of the Sabbath day.

The solo "The Bird with a Broken Pinion," by Mr. McLean of Alpena was well received. Last but not least was the short address on "Consecration," by Mr. W. A. Prince of Alpena. He entreated them to obey

CONVENTION DATES.

July 25—Democratic State nominating convention at Detroit.

At six o'clock last evening no nomination had been made by the democratic national convention at Kansas City, but the ticket will undoubtedly be Bryan and Adli E. Stevenson, of Illinois.

The platform adopted declares against trusts, imperialism, militarism, and reaffirms the Chicago platform of 1896.

THE pleasant seaside days have begun when men who don't know how to sail or swim, give the life-saving service a chance to earn its living

THE first thing we know, there won't be a single country left in which a peace congress can be held without risking interruption by the guns of an enemy.

Too many cooks spoil the pudding. The republican platform was written by one man, revised by another, revised by another and another and finally Quigged and ended up the lamentable collection of yapidities it is. But what else could be expected.

THE present troubles in China can be used as an argument on both sides of the expansion question. For instance, if we didn't have the Philippines, we should have to send ships all the way from San Francisco, and then on the other hand, if we didn't have the Philippines, we should probably keep out of China altogether.

THE Detroit Journal has the "hardest luck," of any paper in Michigan. It had only nicely recovered from the effects of its boiler explosion when, last Sunday, its plant and offices were wrecked by fire. But with the progressive push of its publishers it greeted its readers on time Monday and will soon be itself again.

The Robin's Concert

BY FRANK H. BROOKS.

An Actual Occurrence.

When the first days of spring came in Washington, a tree in one of the little parks, of which there are many in the city, whitened with bloom nearly two weeks before there appeared any buds or verdure on the other trees or shrubbery. There were no leaves on the tree which bloomed. The blossoms swelled and burst their petals on the branches until they looked like a summer cloud.

Fronting on this park is a home in which a sick child had lain for weeks and weeks. She was nursed by one of the old black mammys so numerous in the national capital. As the sunshine became warmer, so that the window in the room of the sick child could be raised at certain hours, the child asked the old mammy to push her white bed near the window, and it was by this open window the old mammy sat and held the child's hands as she told her this story:

"Honey, dat tree dat look so like de cotton in my ole home is what dey call de Japanee magnoli. It doan' got no lebes on it, honey, like de magnolis in Dixie. An I tell you, honey, why it ain't got no lebes. Arter while, honey, dar will come a robin redbreast to sing dar in de middle of de white, bloom. An de good man want you, my honey, to see dat robin redbreast, an so he doan' put no lebes on de tree. Kase if dar wuz lebes on dat tree my honey cudden see de robin redbreast. Dat's why. An de robin redbreast he gwine to sing fo' you, honey, jes' fo' you."

A few days later, while the sun was shining warm and flooding the room, the old mammy moved the white bed to the window and raised the sash. And a robin, with breast as rich as cardinal, lighted on a branch of the Japanese magnolia and sang until its notes filled the tree of bloom and all the little park. It was in the morning. After a little while the robin took its flight, and the window sash in the sickroom was lowered.

"Honey, what did I done tell you?" said the old mammy as she tucked the coverlets about the sick child.

"Dat wuz fo' you, honey. De good man he knowed you wuz sick an he send de robin redbreast to sing fo' you. An now de robin redbreast he gwine away. What he gwine, honey? I doan' know fo' sho', but I tell you, honey, what I 'spec'. He got a nest somewha wia he got a l'il robin redbreast, an he gwine home to tell his l'il robin redbreast 'bout his singin fo' you."

"When he comin back, honey? I 'spec' he come back dis ebenin jes' befo' he have his supper. Kase he know you's sick, honey, an de good man gwine to take keer ob you an de robin redbreast."

In the afternoon, just before the sunset gun was fired at Fort Myer, in the Virginia hills, the robin came back and took his place in the bloom of the magnolia tree and sang. The sick child was again wheeled in her white bed near the window, and the black mammy was by her side.

"I knowed he'd done come back," she said to the sick child. "He done come back to tell you, honey, dat he been lone some way from you, an he gwine to tell you in a song, honey, 'bout his l'il robin redbreast in his home. He come to sing fo' you, honey, fust. Kase you sick, honey, an he got to sing to you fust; den he fly away to his own home."

And so it went on for several days. The robin came morning and evening and always sat in the midst of the bloom of the magnolia tree, always about the same hour, and sang. The man who cares for the park noticed it and spoke about it to people who stopped near the fountain under the magnolia and listened to the song of the first robin of the spring. It got to be the talk of people who lived around the park. Even some of the grown people wondered why the robin always came about the same hour and why it was always alone. A few of the older people said it was singing for its mate. But they did not know what the old mammy knew.

One afternoon, however— But the old mammy tells the story best:

"Dar gwine to be a concert, honey," she said as she looked out of the window. "Sho' you bo'n, de robin redbreast got comp'ny. When ennybody sing, honey, dey likes comp'ny. An, bress my hawt, honey, what you tink? De comp'ny what come to de robin redbreast's concert, honey, am a brack crow. Dar he sot, on anudder limb of dat magnoli, by his lonesome, his'emen to de robin redbreast. De crow can't sing a l'il bit. All he kin do, honey, is jes' to say 'Caw, caw,' jes' as some culled folks say, 'Huh, huh,' kase dey doan' know no mo'."

"Now de robin redbreast singin on de limb in the magnoli bloom, an de crow lookin 'cross de tree top at him. Now de robin redbreast quit singin an looks at Mistah Jim Crow, an I 'spec' he sayin to Mistah Crow: 'Now you heard me. What fo' doan' you say nuffin?' Dar he am, honey. Heah him—de crow? He sayin, 'Caw, caw.' Dat means dat he want mo' robin singin. An de robin redbreast he singin ag'in, honey. My, but dat is his best song! He jes' done frown 'nise' to make dat, an Mistah Jim Crow he settin on de limb lis'enen to git his money wuth. Honey, dat concert is fo' you. I done been raised 'mong crows all my life, honey, but I declar 'befo' de good man I nebber see Mistah Jim Crow come to robin redbreast concert befo'. Robin redbreast mighty proud to gib dis heah concert in de magnoli bloom fo' my l'il sick, honey. Now de robin redbreast got to go home to tell his l'il robin 'bout de concert. Dar he go, on his l'il wings. An dar go Mistah Jim Crow ober to Virginia. I wondah what he tell dem udder crows?"

"An I 'spec' dar'll be concerts now till my honey git well."

Neither the robin nor the crow ever came back after that evening. The old man who tends the park noticed it and spoke of it. The window of the sickroom was raised the next day, as usual. But no one looked out of it. The school children near by did not play in that street that day. And the second day some of the white bloom of the magnolia tree in which the robin had sung for the crow was taken into the house.—Chicago Trib-

GRADUATING EXERCISES.

On Tuesday evening the 26th, the graduating exercises of the eighth grade, of the Whittemore schools took place at the M. E. church, in that place: Those graduating, Miss Eta Mills, Miss Allie Campbell, Miss Julia Lail, Leslie H. Belknap and Leon Belknap. The invocation by Rev. Osborne being very impressive, after which the regular program proceeded.

The class history by Julia Lail being well rendered. The message to Garcia by Leon Belknap received with applause. Opportunity by Leslie Belknap being well received. Ideal Life, by Etta Mills, beautifully rendered. The Class Prophecy, by Allie Campbell being exceptionally well rendered. The music throughout being the best that has been heard in this place for years.

The presentation of diplomas by the director of the school, H. M. Belknap, was done in his usual graceful and happy way. After presentation of diplomas, Little Bessie Curtis presented each of the graduates with a wreath of choice roses.

The gathering was large, filling the church to its fullest capacity. The decorations were beautifully arranged causing favorable comment, in fact was never excelled in this place. Great credit is due Prof. Campbell and Miss Oaks and many ladies and gentlemen in their efforts and assistance in making this the banner graduating exercises ever held in this place.

Miss Florence Oaks, the successful teacher of the primary department of this school for some years has secured a position in the Tawas City schools leaves here with the universal respect and well wishes of all. While we regret exceedingly to see so qualified a teacher leave us, we feel confident she will prove herself as successful in her new field of labor, as she has here. As to Prof. Campbell, he is well known throughout the county for his energy and scholarly attainments, it goes without saying that his services are highly appreciated and are effective here as well as elsewhere in the county and as a teacher he has few equals. The school has made rapid progress and no one could work more jealously for the advancement of this school and its pupils than the teachers for the last year.

Receives the Republican Legislative Nomination.

The republican legislative convention for the Iosco district, composing the counties of Iosco, Ogemaw, Alcona and Roscommon, was held at the court house in this city last Tuesday, and Albert E. Sharpe, of East Tawas, received the nomination on the second ballot.

The convention was called to order at 11 o'clock, by Fred Johnson, of Roscommon; secretary of the committee, who called Edward Chappell of Alcona to the chair as temporary chairman. Bert Kiely, of Roscommon was elected secretary; after the appointment of the usual committees, a recess was taken until one o'clock.

After dinner the temporary officers were made permanent, and the report of the committees received and adopted. The nominations were then taken up. Prosecuting attorney Harris, of West Branch, presenting the name of Albert E. Sharpe; Mr. Kiely, of Roscommon, presented the name of Fred Johnson, and N. C. Harting presented George L. Cornville of this city. Mr. Johnson was not known as a candidate until Monday, but believing that the contest between Mr. Sharpe and Mr. Cornville was very close his name was presented as a compromise candidate. The first ballot stood:

Sharpe.....10
Cornville.....7
Johnson.....4

On the second ballot Mr. Sharpe received the nomination by the following vote:

Sharpe.....12
Cornville.....7
Johnson.....2

The convention adjourned immediately in order that the Ogemaw delegation could catch the Rose City train for home.

COMMUNICATION.

To the taxpayers of fractional school district number 7, Tawas City and Tawas township: Notwithstanding "the legend" above the entrance to the school board room which reads "No farmer need apply." I again offer to do all the work as director of the school board for $15.00 per year instead of $50 as you are now paying. My offer stands good for one year or for three years as you may choose. I shall not canvass for votes for the place. I knew the cause of the opposition to my election and it you will closely watch the proceedings at the coming annual meeting you will also know as well as I do.

I am yours faithfully,
HENRY L. DRAKE.

D. J. CASEY DEAD.

D. J. Casey, chief engineer of the Detroit & Mackinaw railroad died Friday night at a Phoenix, Arizona, where he went two months ago for the benefit of his health. Mr. Casey was formerly assistant chief engineer of the Michigan Central with headquarters in Bay City: When J. D. Hawks became general manager of the Detroit & Mackinaw, Mr. Casey was employed as engineer. Early last fall Mr. Casey contracted a cold which settled upon his lungs and ran into consumption. His remains will be brought to Bay City for interment - Bay City Sunday Times.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw him turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves it matchless merit for all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Only 50c Sold by Dr. G. S. Darling and J. E.
