Boom Your Town.

A writer in an exchange speaks about his town in the following manner, which would be a good pattern for every person in this city to copy: To whom it may concern:

If there is any chance to boom business' boom it. Don't pull a long face and look as though you had a sour stomach. Hold up your head, smile, and look for better things. Hide your little hammer, and try to speak well of others, no matter how small you may know yourself to be. When a man drops in, jolly him. Tell him this is the greatest town on earth—and it is. Don't discourage him by speaking ill of your neighbors. Lead him to believe he has at last struck a place where white people live. Don't knock. Help yourself along by becoming popular, and push your friends with you. It's dead easy. Be a good fellow and you'll soon have a procession of followers. No man ever helped himself along by knocking other people down in character and business. No man ever got rich by trying to make others believe he was the only man in town who knew anything. You can't climb the ladder of success by treading on other's corns. You're not the only one. There are others, and they have brains and know some thing as well as you. There's no end of fun minding your own business. It makes other people like you. Nobody gets stuck on a knocker. Don't be one.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw him turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves it matchless merit for all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Only 50 Sold by Dr. G. S. Darling and J. E. Dillon druggists.

How to Recognize Smallpox.

The period of incubation of smallpox—time from exposure to the first symptoms of the disease—is 12 days on the average. It may be longer or shorter. In about three days more the eruptions begin to show as small red specks, and then as pimples or papules, as first on the forehead and wrists, gradually extending over the body so that the eruptions become general in about twenty-four hours.

On the fourth and fifth days of the disease (counting from the first symptoms); the eruption is papular, and the characteristic "shotty" sensation is obtained by passing the fingers over the skin. During the next 24 hours the papules become vesicle, with clear summits. From the sixth to the eighth days these vesicles or watery blisters become yellow and the eruption has then become pustular, the pustules often presenting a slight depression in the center, that is, they are "umbilicated."

The fever having declined when the eruption first appeared, now rises again,

Severe pains in the small of the back is somewhat characteristic of smallpox.

In modified smallpox or varioloid, the eruption aborts at various stages or fails to follow a typical course.—Exchange.

It has been demonstrated by experience that consumption can be prevented by the early use of One Minute Cough Cure. This is the favorite remedy for coughs, colds, croup, asthma, grippe and all throat and lung troubles. Cures quickly. Dr. G. S. Darling.

A gentleman recently cured of dyspepsia gave the following appropriate rendering of Burns' famous blessing. "Some have meat and can not eat, and some have none that want it, but we have meat and we can eat.—Kodol Dyspepsia Cure be thanked." This preparation will digest what you can eat. It instantly relieves and radically cures indigestion and all stomach disorders. Dr. G. S. Darling.

Whittemore.

Wheat harvest has commenced.

C. M. Davis was in Saginaw this week.

Mrs. C. M. Davis and little son returned last Friday from a visit at Tawas City.

George D. Armstrong was over to Turner this week.

The rain on Monday evening was very beneficial to growing crops.

Ed Williams has a grocery wagon on the road nowadays.

A few of our fishermen still fight flies and catch trout.

The firm of Williams & Hunt has dissolved partnership. Mr. Hunt retiring and Mr. Williams continuing the business.

Growing Sweetness.

As near as can be ascertained by the State Land Department, which has supervision of the sugar beet business in Michigan, the acreage this season is much larger than that of last year. And from present indications the prospect of a good crop is very flattering.

The Michigan Sugar Beet, published at Bay city, is discussing the present outlook in the state where beets are being grown, and in looking over the crop he finds it in a very flourishing condition and failed to find a dissatisfied grower in all his travels. Last season there was much dissatisfaction in the western part of the state, and farmers who went into the business this year did so only after persistent solicitation, but so far as we could learn none were sorry that they stuck to the game, while many were lamenting that they dropped out. Beets in the western part of the state are fully up to, and in some places ahead of the average Bay county crop. Many fields are about ready to lay by and some have been given their last cultivation. The western beet crop this year will be up to the average in the state, and will dispel the idea that a profitable crop cannot be grown in that section of the state."

Crop Report.

U. S. Department of Agriculture Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau, Michigan Section for the week ending July 14, 1900, says:

The mean daily temperature for the week ended July 14, 63.7 degrees was 6.3 degrees below the normal; the average total precipitation, 0.60 of an inch, was 0.13 of an inch above the normal; the sunshine averaged 52 per cent of the possible amount.

Frequent showers have interfered considerably with haying in nearly all counties of the state and in some cases the cut has been considerably damaged; the nights have been cool and have somewhat retarded the growth of corn; otherwise the weather conditions have been very favorable to crop growth. Haying in the southern and central counties is very nearly completed. Wheat and rye harvests have been general in the southern counties and cutting has begun in the central and some of the northern counties. Both wheat and rye have so far been generally well secured and in the southern counties, threshing has begun. In spite of the cool nights corn has made fair progress and looks strong and healthy. Oats are generally heavy and very promising. Potatoes, beans and sugar beets have all made good growth and continue to look promising. Buckwheat has germinated finely and taken a good start. Reports that apples are still falling are quite general; much of this falling is due to high winds that have been quite frequent during the week.

CONVENTION DATES.
July 25—Democratic State nominating convention at Detroit.
August 9—Tenth district democratic congressional convention at Bay City.

By-the-way, is Dewey going to support the ticket? We should really like to know.

THE democratic convention to nominate candidates for state officers will be held at Detroit next Wednesday.

THE democratic congressional convention for the Tenth district has been called to meet at Bay city, Aug. 9.

THE next national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will open at Chicago, August 27, and promises to be the largest ever held by that organization.

D. B. HILL says that a president is something like a sausage—better if you don't see him made. Mr. Hill ought to know something of the ingredients that go to making presidents and his opinion is worth taking.

A. R. WIER, of AuSable, has announced himself as a candidate for the republican nomination of Judge of Probate, and promises to give other candidates a warm race for the place.

How long will the people of this country be willing to keep an army of 50,000 men in the Philippines? It is now indirectly admitted by the McKinley administration that it must be done for an indefinite period to keep the peace.

Now it has developed that Richard Croker refused to allow Hill to make a speech seconding Bryan and that sage of Wolfert's roost had to get Connecticut to grant him its time in order to be heard. This Croker is getting a little too numerous, as it were.

THE name of Stephen H. Langdon, commissioner of schools of Monroe county, will be presented as a candidate for superintendent of public instruction, at the democratic state convention. Mr. Langdon is a graduate of the U. of M. and one of the ablest educators of the state.

AFTER a sleep of fifteen months the Turner Times again makes its appearance under the management of A. D. Hammond. The new editor sends out an excellent paper and if the people of Turner appreciate a "good thing" they will give the Times liberal patronage. Here's success to you Bro. H.

THE Kaiser has abandoned his holiday. Lord Salisbury is working over time. Joe Chamberlain stays at his desk. The Czar is working like a day laborer over the details of moving troops. Even the Mikado cannot get away to the sea shore. You see, none of these leaders of nations have any front porches on which they can sit and let the world wag.

WITHOUT going into the question of imperialism, we must admit that we agree with Erastus Winslow in wondering how Senator Hoar could so denounce the President and his policy and yet declare his intention of supporting him this fall. No doubt, the Senator's attitude is quite logical, but unfortunately, it resembles the "peace of God" in that it "passeth understanding."

WHEN the democratic state convention meets next week it will have of Kalamazoo. Anyone of which will be a strong candidate.

BEFORE the Porto Rican tariff law was passed, the democrats pointed that Porto Rice was suffering from her exclusion from our markets. Nowadays, the republicans are pointing out that it is prospering from partial inclusion in them. Neither argument has anything to do with real question, which is whether or not Porto Rico is of right entitled to full inclusion.

OFFICIAL figures show that China, England and Spain each sold more merchandise in the Philippines during 1899 than this country did. We only sold goods to the value of $1,350,364 to the islands, while we probably spent ten times that much during the same period to keep our flag over them. Even from the sordid standpoint of dollars and cents ownership of the Philippines doesn't pay.

HON. J. K. WRIGHT, of St. Louis will be a candidate for the nomination of commissioner of the state land office at the democratic state convention. Mr. Wright has served one term as receiver of the U. S. Land office, and one term as register, when the office was located at Grayling. He is in every way qualified to fill the position of land commissioner and the party can find no stronger candidate. He is well and favorably known throughout northern Michigan, as a lawyer of more than average ability.

THERE seems to be no doubt that ex-mayor George D. Jackson, of Bay City, will be the democratic candidate for congress from this district. While Mr. Jackson has not sought the nomination and has expressed his desire not to enter politics he is without question the choice of his party throughout the district. And more, his nomination will be received most cordially by a large number of influential republicans who desire to see a man of ability elected to represent the Tenth district. Mr. Jackson is a man in the prime of life and a successful business man. He is in every way qualified to represent the large and varied interests of this district in the national house of representatives and his nomination will be received with much confidence.

RENO REPORT.

Wheat harvest has commenced. The shower Monday evening was very much needed.

Mrs. Thomas Jackson, who has been seriously ill, is recovering.

E. E. Odell is having a new residence erected. Mr. Sloan is doing the work.

Alex Anderson has built 240 rods of wire fence this season, which adds much to the appearance and value of his farm.

A "shadow social" will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Didders, Thursday evening, July 26, under the auspices of the Ladies' aid society of Reno. The proceeds will be used to purchase an organ.

Several new top buggies have been purchased by the young men of Reno but it is evident that more are needed. Three ladies and a gentleman in one single buggy on these hot days calls for action on the part of our health officer.

Council Proceedings.

Bay county highway commissioners are prosecuting all who allow Canada thistles to grow on their places. If the same practice was made here it would be a good thing. Don't eat too heartily, and thoroughly masticate your food. Don't keep your stomach full of cold beverages, but refrain from over exertion. At night if you don't care to bathe again, recline in a chair or hammock until you are cool enough to retire. You will sleep well and grow vigorous mentally and physically.

Small in size and great in surety

"Some go to church to weep, while others go to sleep; some go to tell their woes others go to show their clothes; some go to hear the preacher, others go to hear the solo schreecher; boys go to reconiter. Girls go because they "orter" many go for some reflection, precious few to help collection."

Among the cases acted upon by the state board of pardon at their meeting at Jackson on Friday of last week, was that of Jacob Katterman, of this county, who was sent to Jackson in May 1884, together with White and Reynolds for the Sholtz murder. The board recommended Katterman's release.

Last Saturday, Carl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Tayler, of East Tawas, had a narrow escape from drowning. His young companions gave the alarm and men on the dock immediately rescued him. It was a very narrow escape, but fortunately no serious results followed.

Fine line of summer lap robes and fly nets at C. H. Prescott & Sons.

There are some things in this world that doesn't cost any money, and yet which money could not buy. One of these is a cheerful disposition. That was a wonderful epitaph carved over one woman's grave in four words—"She was so pleasant." Smiles don't cost anything, so scatter them like rain—on the just and unjust. Somebody will raise up and call you blessed, and you will have done more to brighten the world than some millionaires.

The law holds both maker and circulator of a counterfeit equally guilty. The dealer who sells you a dangerous counterfeit of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save risks your life to make a little larger profit. You can not trust him. DeWitt's is the only genuine and original Witch Hazel Salve. A well known cure for piles and all skin diseases. See that your dealer gives you DeWitt's Salve. Dr. G. S. Darling.

The village dealer has about as hard a row to hoe as any man on earth, and he has got to look pleasant and hang on to the hoe handle no matter what happens. If a pastor's salary is a little short the business man must fix it. If somebody looses a horse Mr. Business Man must help to get another. If a celebration is going on he must dig up some more. If a beggar comes along he is the first man tackled.

There are no better pills made than DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Always prompt and certain. Dr. G. S. Darling.

A great many people do not understand that the only valuable feature of a death notice, to the newspaper and its readers, is the news that it contains—the place, cause and manner of death, name, history and character of the deceased, and any facts that the public would like to know. An extended eulogy, any poetry, in short anything that does not interest its readers, is not desirable to a newspaper—and if printed should be paid for, the same as any other matter that individuals wish printed for their own advantage or gratification.

A TENDER SPOT IN A PICKPOCKET.

Two pickpockets, Mr. Callaghan and Rabbit, on the warpath.

Suddenly Mr. Callaghan stopped, with a half smothered exclamation, and leaning toward Rabbit, whispered in his ear: "Great guns! Look at that girl, Rabbit! Ain't she an angel, a queen, a princess? Rabbit, if it were not for my undying love for Molly I would adore that girl. Rabbit, I am going to have her handkerchief or something from her if I have to do time for it."

"Which girl?" asked Rabbit.

"The one escorted by that handsome fellow who looks so pale—looks a trifle like me. Ten to one she has just rejected him. Ah, Molly, if it were not for you I might be rejected by that fair being myself. Rabbit, as she comes down to the carriage you take the left side. I'll get behind and on the right, which will be the more difficult, as the pale fellow will be on the right."

Mr. Callaghan edged his way up and slipped his delicate left hand cautiously between the girl and her escort.

A singular thing occurred just then. He was close behind her. He noticed that she blushed very violently all at once and looked at the ground, just as his own Molly did the first time he kissed her.

Then Mr. Callaghan was conscious that she held something out timidly in her gloved right hand, bending her wrist just a little. Mr. Callaghan looked and saw something glitter.

He reached for the glittering object, intending to snatch it from her, when, to his intense astonishment, just as his hand touched hers, she placed the object carefully in his palm.

He looked at her just for an instant. She was still looking down and away from the pale fellow and blushing still more violently.

Mr. Callaghan did not stop to ask any questions. He got out of the crowd as fast as he could, well aware that he held in his hand a solitary ring.

He and the Rabbit met but a few streets away. Mr. Callaghan was flushed with success, but pensive. The Rabbit was hilarious with success and not at all pensive.

"Cally," said the Rabbit, "we're rich for a month."

"What did you get from that girl?" asked Mr. Callaghan in a rather preoccupied manner.

"Aw, nothing from her that was worth anything—nothing but a little note. What did you get?"

"This," said Mr. Callaghan, holding up the light a solitary ring.

"Great guns!" said the astonished Rabbit.

"Let me see that letter," Callaghan said abruptly. The Rabbit handed it to him. It was a note written in a man's strong handwriting and read as follows:

Well—I hand you this in your box because I can not wait any longer. Two years ago tonight I asked you to marry me. Your parents have never consented in all that time, and they never will. Do you love me enough to marry without their consent? If you do, hand me your solitary ring. I will come round at the close and take you to your carriage. You can give it to me then. If you do not love me enough to do this, I shall know what you mean, and I will start for the continent tomorrow, never to come back. JACK.

Mr. Callaghan was silent.

"Well," said the Rabbit, "we've made a pretty good haul tonight, haven't we?"

"Yes, and we've broken a man's heart," said Mr. Callaghan.

"What's that?" asked the Rabbit, unconcerned.

"That girl was giving this ring to the fellow with the pale face. It was telling him she was willing to marry him whether the old folks were willing or not, just as Molly is going to marry me. Now, he's going off with a broken heart, just the way I'd have done if Molly hadn't consented."

Very early next morning Mr. Callaghan stood at the door of a certain jewelry establishment that is known all over the world. He was just beginning to get sleepy, for it was about his usual bedtime.

Callaghan's proverbial good luck, to say nothing of his good judgment, did not desert him. He had picked out the right establishment, and ten minutes after it had opened its doors Mr. Callaghan was racing up Bond street in a cab. The driver stopped at a fashionable boarding house, and Mr. Callaghan, jumping out, ran up the stairs to the third floor.

Out of breath and with a lump in his throat from the fear of being too late after all he pounded on the door in no gentle manner. A voice told him to "come in." He did so.

"Well, what do you want?" asked the pale faced man.

"An invitation to your wedding," said Mr. Callaghan.

The pale faced fellow looked up from the trunk he was packing and mildly inquired if Mr. Callaghan was crazy. Callaghan held the ring aloft, as he had seen the actors do with similar things in the theaters, and said, "Behold your ring!"

"How did you get that ring?" asked the other, his pale face becoming suddenly flushed.

"Stole it," said Mr. Callaghan promptly; "stole it as she was trying to hand it to you. The fact is she thought my hand was yours. I have rather a fine looking hand myself, I've been told."

"What?" asked the other in astonishment.

"It's a fact," said Mr. Callaghan. "I stole it just as I said I did. Wanted something to remember her by, she looked so pretty. Don't blame you for loving her, not a bit. I'm in love myself and fancy pretty girls a great deal."

"Luckily for you my side partner nabbed your note out of her pocket at the same time. Wouldn't spoil your happiness for anything in the world. I hunted round and found out who you were and where you lived. Here I am, Mr. Callaghan, at your service, and here's your ring."

"Mr. Callaghan," he said, "you are an angel."

"They don't seem to think so down at Bow street," replied Mr. Callaghan modestly.—London News.

FITTING THE SOIL.

For Roots or Tubers—Comfortable and Uncomfortable Beets.

Figs. 1 and 2 show sugar beets grown under proper soil conditions, and Figs. 3 and 4 show beets grown in improperly prepared soil. These clearly illustrate that in the growing of beets success depends very largely upon the soil preparation. One has only to look at the illustrations from Cornell University experiment station bulletin No.

TOO MUCH OUT OF GROUND—AS IT OUGHT TO GROW.

143 to see which beets were made comfortable and which were so cramped and hampered that they were compelled to throw out feeders, or fingers and toes.

Fleshy, rapid growing roots, as the beet, or tubers, as the potato, in order to expand and grow naturally in the ground must have the soil so mellow and loose that in growing they will not be crowded out. In the case of the beets with the prongs the subsoil had not been properly loosened so that the roots could develop in it, and as growth progressed feeding roots were thrown out in the directions of least resistance, and the result is a monstrosity.

It has been found that a plant will send out feeding roots in the direction of the most available plant food. Where fertilizer was applied to beets as a top dressing a large per cent of the crop was ill shaped. The sugar beet requires for proper growth a deep, mellow, well drained soil. If these conditions are not present naturally, they must be produced artificially by those who would succeed in growing beets for the factory.

What is true of the crop just mentioned is true to a greater or less extent of all farm crops. Certain conditions are required to make the plants comfortable, and these conditions vary with different crops.

In potato culture one question which is asked more than all others combined is, "What makes the potatoes grow out of the ground?" We are informed that the potatoes must be hilled in order to keep the tubers from becoming sunburned. A rapidly growing tuber must have a mellow soil on all sides in which to expand if it is to expand uniformly. If the lower side of the potato rests upon hardpan or upon soil which has not been well fitted, it must of necessity expand in an upward direction.

The plow if properly used is the most effective weapon of the farmer in reducing the soil to a state of subjection. It destroys undesirable plants, it aerates the soil, it presents new surfaces for the roots of plants to feed upon. By pulverizing the soil it increases its moisture holding capacity, it enables the plant roots to come into intimate contact with the soil particles. In other words, it tends to produce conditions which will make the plant comfortable.—L. A. Clinton in Rural New Yorker.

Nursery Inspection in Ohio.

Ohio now has a law intended to prevent the introduction and spread of San Jose scale and other insects and diseases injurious to trees, shrubs, fruits, etc. The law provides for an annual inspection of every nursery in the state and forbids the transportation or sale within the state of uninspected nursery stock, whether grown

FURROW AND FLOODING SYSTEMS—IN THE CASE OF FRUIT TREES, ETC.

Under the furrow method of irrigation parallel furrows are plowed leading from the ditch through the field between the rows of the crop to be irrigated. A small opening is made in the ditch to let the water into each furrow. A dam of canvas or earth is placed in the ditch just below the lowest furrow into which water is being run at the time, thus holding the water nearly level in that part of the ditch from which it is being drawn. Where the slope of the ground is excessive these furrows must be run diagonally or irregularly in order to reduce their grade and thus prevent erosion of the soil.

In the case of fruit trees it is generally found desirable during very hot weather to prevent the water from coming into actual contact with the trees because of the danger of scalding. Flooding the surface also results in some soils in baking and compacting the earth about the trunks and roots of the trees. To avoid these consequences the furrow system is employed, one or two furrows being plowed along each side of a row of trees at a distance of two or three feet therefrom, and the water is turned from the ditch into these furrows and permitted to traverse them slowly from end to end, thoroughly soaking the ground as it progresses and reaching into the roots without coming in contact with the stems above the surface. The necessary moisture is thus imparted without the wetting and subsequent baking of the surface which might result from flooding. When the trees are sufficiently irrigated, the water is turned out of these furrows and into others, the process being thus continued until the whole area has been served. The furrows are then filled in with a plow, the whole surface worked over with a cultivator and no trace left of either the furrows or the application of water.

This method also requires the attention of an irrigator to see that the proper amount of water is kept in each furrow and it does not break out and flood the surface in places, leaving the furrow beyond the break without water. One man can take care of a FURROW IRRIGATION. Considerable number of these furrows at once and under favorable conditions of surface and water supply can accomplish the irrigation of as great an area in a given time as by the flooding system.

This method is also applicable to the irrigation of corn and in fact of any crop whatever which is planted regularly in rows, a single furrow between each two rows being generally used for such crops. When applicable, it is the favorite method both for its convenience and the economy of water thereby effected. But where the ground is very irregular this plan is often inconvenient, for the reason that the furrows paralleling the rows of crop would upon such surfaces be up and down hill and would therefore not carry water. To make this method applicable in such cases it would be necessary that the rows follow approximately the contour of the ground in order that the parallel furrows might carry water throughout their entire length. The irrigation of irregular surfaces, however, is generally conducted under the flooding system except in localities where, as in parts of southern California, the value of the crop frequently warrants the expense of leveling off or terracing irregular surfaces or the application of water through buried pipes, as it is arranged in the water supply of cities.

A modification of the flooding method is the compartment or check system of irrigation practiced in some localities, particularly in portions of Arizona. This consists in dividing the field to be irrigated into squares or compartments by levees or dikes of such height as to cause the water to stand over the entire area of the compartments at one time, the water being admitted to each compartment by means of a gate in the levee. The water is allowed to stand until the ground has become properly moistened, the time depending largely upon the character of the soil. The compartments or squares vary in size according to the slope of the ground, but are not usually more than an acre or so in area.—J. C. Ulrich.

A Good Late Sowing Crop.

A crop of barley and peas is very useful for late sowing and may be seeded from Aug. 1 to Sept. 1 in New Jersey. Its field management is practically identical with that of oats and peas. It is not injured by light frost and can be fed throughout the months of October and November. The yield, however, is very much influenced by the season. If the weather is cool and

GROWING STRAWBERRIES.

A Summary of Experiments by Professor Rame of New Hampshire. The culture of strawberries is the same both for home and the market. The strawberry does well wherever given good cultivation, proper drainage and plenty of fertilizer in available form.

Well rotted manure, bone meal and wood ashes (or some of the potash salts) are considered the best fertilizers.

Fall plowing, mulching with manure and thorough preparation of soil before setting plants are the first steps in strawberry growing.

A crop of clover or other green manure known to be free from insects will, when plowed under, prove of great value to the crop.

BRANDYWINE, BUBACH NO. 5, HAVERLAND.

Coarse manure may be plowed under with good results, provided it is applied early enough to be well decomposed by planting time.

Spring set plants give the best results; where fall set they should be grown especially for that purpose, small pots being most commonly used.

Where plants are grown by hill culture they are usually set in rows 3 or 3½ feet apart and one foot apart in the row, all runners and blossoms being kept off the first season.

In matted rows the rows are from 3½ to 4 feet apart, and plants are set from 15 to 18 inches in the row, according to variety and width of row.

Fruiting one season only is usually advocated by best growers. It is less work and more profitable to set a new bed than to renovate an old one.

It is necessary to protect the plants in winter by mulching with some material, such as straw, marsh hay, pine needles, pine boughs, coarse manure, etc., to protect from heaving.

Failure to get a maximum crop frequently comes from improper fertilization. Have at least one row in every four of a perfect flowering variety.

The practical growers generally agree upon the merits of the following varieties: Beverly, Brandywine, Bubach, Clyde, Crescent, Greenville, Haverland, Lovett and Warfield.

Irrigation has proved of great value wherever tried.

Summer Pruning Needed.

Blackberries and raspberries should be stopped when the new growth has reached three to four feet, depending on varieties. To develop the fruiting side branches I have found it important to stop the new growth on the Cuthbert when it reached above and beyond the fruiting stems; also to cut out and burn the fruiting canes as soon as they are done fruiting. It gives room for the new wood to keep an upright position and destroys very many lice and other insects that infest the old cane. Currants and gooseberries need pruning as soon as the fruit is gathered. Cut out all surplus old wood. It may have lice on it, or, in the stalk, the larvae of the stalk borer.

Spiraea prunifolia, lilac, forsythia and all the early flowering shrubs want cutting back severely immediately after blooming, so that they have time to develop new wood and flower buds on them before winter. Others want shaping to make them pleasing to the eye and sometimes for their own good.

Roses need the pruning shears at intervals all summer. Cut back the blossom stalks when the blossom falls and let it start a new blossoming stalk instead of blind wood. In this way you may have not only June roses, but roses nearly all the time till sharp freezing weather.—Charles Black, New Jersey.

A Gem Among Chinese Primroses.

Among recent introductions of the primrose family a writer in Meehan's Monthly has mentioned Primula sietlala as one of the best. The foliage is very dark purple in color. The flowers are pure white and about one inch in diameter, produced on tiers one above the other, reaching over 20 inches in height. The plants flower much longer than the sinensis type. The seed should be sown in April in light soil to get good sized plants and given a little more sun than is usual for sinensis.
