tickets to Lansing and return at rate of one fare for round trip, date sale Aug. 27 and 28, limited Aug. 30.

It is false economy to exist without taking your home paper; you don't know what is going on, or where the bargains are to be found,
and the facts are you lose many times its cost. If you have anything to sell advertise and let the people know it.

The poetical editor of an exchange
went to the wedding of Ebenezer Sweet and Miss Lemon, and wrote up the following notice the next day:
"How happily extremes do meet, Eliza and Ebenezer. For she's no longer sour, but sweet, and he's a lemon squeezer."

The most picturesque fish story of the season comes from Presque Isle county, where it is related that a lazy angler removed the young birds from the nest and replaced them with hollow tin dummies resembling birds.

Then the story goes on to say, the parent birds fill up the dummies with worms, which the lazy angler steals and thus keeps himself supplied with

Although there is a state law making it the duty of the highway commissioner to see that Canada thistles are not allowed to go to seed, yet an instance of the enforcement of the law is rare. A case occurred the other day near Fowlerville, however, and it cost the offending farmer $15.

Excursion to Muskoka Lakes, Friday, Aug. 24, 1900. For the above occasion the D. & M. Ry. will sell tickets to Muskoka Lakes and return via P. M. Ry., Port Huron, Mich., and G. T. at rate of 5.50 for round trip. Dates of sale, train No. 4, Aug 24 only and limit to return on regular train No. 8 including September 4.

"It's gettin' fashionable now it seems, among the high-toned to buy the most expensive china-ware they can find," said a good old soul, of Bad Axe, looking up from her paper.
"You don't say!" exclaimed her husband. "Yes indeed, it says so here. The Boston club has just paid $2000 for a new pitcher."

An exchange says: If you have anything to say about your fellow man say it while he is alive. A man's hearing is better while he is living, besides you can do him no good by reiterating all his good deeds after he is dead. It will not make his chances for heaven any better. God already knows of all the good he ever did.

Five dollar silver certificates of the new design have made their appearance. The feature of the new note is a large typical Indian head in the center, with a blue seal and a large letter V with the word "five" also in blue running in a curved line across it. As an artistic production this note is regarded as equal to any ever issued by the government.

National Encampment, Grand
Army of Republic, at Chicago, Ill., Aug. 27-31, 1900. For the above excursion the D. & M. Ry. will sell tickets to Chicago and return at rate of one cent per mile in each direction.
Dates of sale, Aug. 25-29, return limit to Aug. 31st. Arrangements may be made to have ticket extended until September 30th. Apply to agent for full particulars.

There is no need of a man living until he is fifty years old to blow in a shot-gun that is not loaded, buying gold bricks, guzzling patent medicines, lightning fires with kerosene, skating on thin ice, trying to beat other men at their own games, endorsing friends' notes and thinking he knows it all. The school of experience is a good school, but it is rather expensive and one way to avoid the experience is to keep a close lookout for the experience of others, which can be done by observation. There is no use drowning in the same hole where another man drowned the day before if one will only keep out.

This is the camping out season.
What a delight it is to sit cross-legged on the grass with the ants, when a chair would be ever so much more comfortable, or to fan the air or to fight mosquitoes in a hammock that corks one's spine and brings a rush of blood to the head. Then too, how delightful to cook the meals over a faggot fire out doors and breathe in enough smoke to cure a side of bacon while so doing. And then there are the foggy nights and chilly mornings and the hot stuffy tents and the leaky roof and the fishy smell and the mouldy bread and a whole lot of other things which we do so love to endure while out camping.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs.
George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her; and she writes, this marvellous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of its power to cure all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00.
Guaranteed. Trial bottles free at

CONVENTION DATES.

- August 28-29—Prohibition state convention at Lansing,
September 10—Democratic county convention at court house, Tawas City, September 12—Democratic congressional convention (10th district) at Bay City
September 17—Democratic representative convention (Iosco district) at West Branch, September 18—Democratic senatorial convention (28th district) at Roscommon.

The democratic senatorial convention for the twenty-eighth district will be held at Roscommon, September 18.

The democrats of the Iosco representative district will meet at West Branch, September 17, to nominate a candidate for the state legislature.

The prohibition state convention will meet in the central M. E. church in Lansing, August 28-29, for the purpose of nominating a state ticket.

The democratic county convention has been called to meet at the court house in this city, Monday, September 10, to nominate candidates for county officials.

The tenth district democratic congressional committee met at Bay City last Saturday and decided to call another convention to nominate a candidate for congress in place of ex-Mayor George D. Jackson. The convention will meet at Bay City, September 12.

It is a curious fact, which may or may not be repeated this year that in every election for president in which the same candidates confronted each other twice in succession the nominee who was beaten in the first instance won in the second. Jefferson, who was defeated by John Adams in 1796, defeated Adams in 1800, Jackson who was left behind by John Quincy Adams in 1824, was far ahead of Adams in 1828 William Henry Harrison, who was easily beaten by Van Buren in 1836, just as easily defeated Van Buren in 1840. Cleveland who was 65 in the minority in 1888 against Benjamin Harrison, had a majority of more than that figure over Harrison in 1892.

Fixed Salaries for Legislators.

Undoubtedly, as a member of local reform organization suggests, the payment to legislators of a fixed salary of $1000 per session, would be a change calculated, in time, to improve the character of law-making bodies in Michigan. The $1000 figures suggested is not one-third what would render the office an especially desirable one, but still, with this sum, the legislator who relied on his official salary alone for his compensation, might find it possible to return from Lansing without actually being money out of pocket by reason of his service to the state, and this an important consideration with young men, who have their future to make, and with older, busier men, to whom it seems a high, unbusiness like proposition to sacrifice money as well as time and personal convenience at the state capital. A fixed salary of $1,000 or more per session would render it possible to interest a better class of men in the office of legislator and would, besides, tend to shorten the sessions. With the compensation set at a definite sum, whether the length of service were long or short the tendency on the part of the legislators

000 or any other reasonably liberal figures, arises from the disrepute into which legislators have fallen in Michigan. The idea is widely prevalent among the voters that the official salary represents but a small part of the earnings of the average legislator that of his aggregate salary he does very little to earn the $21 a week and perquisites contributed by tax-payers. If the existing movement for a reform in legislative conditions should result in the exercise of unusual care in the choice of the next legislature, and if that legislature should justify to some extent the popular expectations as to what a legislator should be, public sentiment in the state might reach a point where it would consent to the adoption of a fixed salary amendment.

The argument that fixed salaries would give better legislators ought to be a cogent one with the people, but it won't be as long as the aggregations at Lansing show the grafting capacity they have shown in recent years. The people are as reluctant about raising the salaries of the grafters as a carefully conducted business corporation would be about raising the salaries of employees who had uniformly shown themselves to be careless, inattentive and inefficient, if not dubious honesty.—Tribune.

Twenty-Four O'clock.

Sounds queer, doesn't it? But when you come to think of it, the queer thing is that we have been content to bungle along for so many years beginning all over again in the middle of the day as if we didn't know how to count above twelve.

What countless blunders have been made because every time figure represents two different hours half a day apart!

The inconvenience of our present method shows itself especially in railroad time tables. To try to keep the a. m. and p. m. straight in one's head in planning a long journey is often an exasperating piece of business.

All this difficulty may be avoided by the simple expedient of continuing the numbering of the hours up to twenty-four instead of stopping in the middle and beginning over again.

This improvement comes to us from an unexpected quarter. Beginning January 1, 1901, the government offices, telegraph, telephone, railroads, steamship lines and all public offices in Spain (!) are to use the new method.

It may seem strange to adopt improvements coming from that particular direction, but would it not seem stranger to find ourselves even twelve hours behind the times as compared with that country.

As a matter of fact we believe the improvement is not original with Spain, but has been in use in some parts of Italy for many years.

The slight practical difficulty of adjusting our present timepieces to new conditions can easily be overcome by inserting the numerals from thirteen to twenty-four in small figures immediately over the present numerals from one to twelve.—Free Press.

Representative Convention.

A convention of the democrats of the Iosco Representative District, will be held at the court house, at West Branch, on Monday, the 17th day of September, A. D. 1900, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon for the purpose of nominating a candidate for representative in the state Legislature from said Iosco District, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

The several counties are entitled to representation in said convention as follows: Alcona 4 delegates; Ogemaw, 7; Iosco 8; Roscommon 2. Dated, August 23, 1900.

L. J. PATTERSON, Secretary. E. H. WHEBON, Chairman.

Senatorial Convention.

A Democratic convention for the 28th Senatorial District is hereby called to meet in the village of Roscommon, on Tuesday, September 18, 1900, at 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for state senator for said district to be voted for at the ensuing November election. The several counties of said district will be entitled to delegates as follows: Alcona 3; Clare 6; Crawford 2; Gladwin 3; Iosco 6; Missaukee 5; Ogemaw 5; Oscoda 2; Roscommon 2. Total 33.

L. J. PATTERSON, Chairman. G. S. STROUT, Secretary. Dated, September 21, 1900.

Democratic County Convention.

A democratic county convention for the county of Iosco will be held on the 10th day of September, 1900, at the court house in Tawas City, for the purpose of nominating candidates for county offices, to elect three delegates to congressional convention which meets at Bay City September 12, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The several townships and wards will be entitled to delegates as follows: Alabaster 2, Peanuts. All boys and a good many of their sisters are fond of peanuts. Everybody knows that no circus is complete without them, but probably not many boys or girls either know just how they grow. The peanut is supposed to be a native of Africa, where it forms the chief food of certain regions, but it is found, too, in South America and Europe, the species varying in the different countries. Here in the United States it is cultivated chiefly in Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. The seed planted is the nut or kernel, and care is taken not to break the skins. The plant grows like a vine, and the nuts hang on it like pea pods. A single vine will, it is estimated, produce about 100 nuts if it is of the average good condition. At this rate the yield per acre is 40 bushels. Three varieties of these nuts are grown here—the white, the red and the Spanish. They are readily distinguished, as they have individual characteristics. The next time you eat a peanut with two kernels very white, with pink skins, you will know it is of the white variety, which is the most important. The shell of the red nut sometimes holds three or four dark kernels, and its skin is of a decidedly dark red, so you cannot mistake that, while the Spanish nut is so much smaller, with a lighter skin than both of the others, that it will not be mistaken for either. Nearly 5,000,000, of bushels of peanuts are used in this country every year.—New York Times.

Microscope With a Sad History. A microscope belonging to Marie Antoinette has been recently discovered in a city in the center of France. A little before her marriage the young archduchess of Austria expressed the strange desire of possessing a microscope. When asked what she intended to do with it, she answered with a sad smile, "I would like to see my happiness, which is so small that I cannot see it with the naked eye." The microscope, which was incased in a delicate little box and bore the mark, "Angelo Gozzal, Optician at Parma, 1762," figured among her wedding corbelle, or presents. It was constructed according to the directions of Dr. Lieberkuhn, who had made many improvements in the microscope, invented in 1690 by a spectacle maker of Middleburg, Zacharie Jansen, and its magnifying properties are nearly as good as those of the latest manufactured microscope.—Art International.

Stella J. Tibbets of Boston has successfully passed the examination required by the board of registration in pharmacy. Her name was first on the list of the nine who received certificates out of the 42 applicants examined.

Johnson Captures the Nomination for Sheriff on the First Ballot.

A. R. Wier for Judge of Probate, and James Richards for Co. Treasurer. The Rest by Acclamation.

The republicans of Iosco county met at the court house in this city yesterday and nominated their county candidates. While no extended battles were fought the convention was interesting all through. The ticket nominated is well balanced and fairly well distributed geographically. While there are a few sore spots left on some of the unsuccessful candidates, it is probably the most satisfactory convention from a party standpoint held for several years.

The convention was called to order at 10.45, by Chairman Butts, of the county committee, who called James H. Nesbit, of this city, as temporary chairman. John McFarlane, of Au-Sable, was elected temporary secretary.

The following committees were appointed: Credentials—Thomas Bradley, J. W. Curtis and S. C. Williams. Permanent organization and order of business—M. J. Conant, Harvey Brown and John A. Campbell. Resolutions—A. E. Sharpe, George Sutherland and V. E. Rix.

A recess was then taken until 1 o'clock.

The convention was again called to order at 1.20, and the first business taken up was the report of the committee on credentials. The committee reported full delegations present from each township and ward, and one extra from Baldwin township. This contesting delegation participated the warmest "scrap" of the convention. It appears that at a caucus held in that township in May last John Oilworth was elected as a delegate, said caucus being attended by five electors. After the fight for the nomination for sheriff became exciting, the desire for another caucus developed on the part of many of the voters and one was called a couple of weeks ago, which elected John Sullivan. The committee on credentials reported in favor of seating Mr. Sullivan. A. E. Sharpe moved to amend the committee report by substituting the name of Dilworth for that of Sullivan. After 30 minutes of lively "scrapping" during which it developed that the Curry forces were supporting Dilworth and Johnson's Sullivan, and in the course of which many uncomplimentary personalities were indulged in, the amendment was lost and the committee report was adopted.

The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary officers permanent which was adopted.

The committee on resolutions reported the customary resolutions endorsing McKinley, Roosevelt, and Bliss, (but were peculiarly silent as to Crump,) and the party policy in general, all of which were adopted with a liberal amount of enthusiasm.

The nominations were then taken up, the first being that of judge of probate. There were six starters in this race, the other six being withdrawn previous to the start. A. R. Wier won on the second ballot. The vote was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Votes. A. R. Wier 15, Maynard Butts 8, C. R. Jackson 7, George Cullham 2, J. S. Bassan 3, John W. King 1.

The next was the nomination for sheriff, in which the principal interest of the convention centered. One ballot settled the matter, however, Collie Johnson receiving 21 votes, to 9 for Charles Curry, 5 for James Quinn, and 1 for James Richards. After this nomination the exodus of spectators caused such a commotion that a recess of twenty minutes was taken, during which the City Band discoursed sweet music.

July 1900.

There were 2,569 deaths reported the secretary of State for the month of July, corresponding to a death rate of 12.4 per 1000 estimated population. This number is 216 more than the number of death for the preceding month and 110 more than the number registered for July, 1899.

There were 561 death of infants under one year of age, 141 of children aged one to four years and 611 of persons aged 65 and over.

Important causes of death were recorded as follows: Consumption 134; other forms of tuberculosis 42; typhoid fever 36; diphtheria and croup 10; scarlet fever 18; measles 14; whooping cough 28; pneumonia 84; diarrheal diseases of children under 5 years of age 278; cerebrospinal meningitis 24; cancer 108; accident and violence 197.

A considerable increase was shown in the proportion of deaths of infants under one year of age, corresponding to an increase in the number of deaths from diarrheal diseases. All the other causes of death were nearly stationary or showed slight amounts of decrease, except pneumonia, which was only about 50 per cent of the preceding month.

Crop Report.

U. S. Department of Agriculture Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau, Michigan Section for the week ending Aug. 4, 1900.

The mean daily temperature for week ended August 18th was 69.6 degrees or 2.9 degrees above the normal; the average total precipitation was 9.56 of an inch, or 0.05 of an inch above the normal; the sunshine averaged 40 per cent of the possible amount.

Weather conditions of the past week have been generally favorable for crop growth and field work, although showery weather in some counties has interfered with oat harvest. Showers have been quite general in the southern and central counties and have been very beneficial to corn, beans, potatoes and pasture, which had suffered from the extreme heat of the preceding week. Oat harvest is quite generally completed in the southern and central counties, well advanced in the northern counties and just beginning in the upper peninsula. Oats are generally a very fine crop in all counties of the state. In the upper peninsula, barley and spring wheat are being cut; pea harvest is quite general in the northern counties. The excessively hot weather of the preceding week has apparently injured buckwheat, which is not as promising this week, although still indicating a fair crop. Corn and late potatoes are generally in very good condition and promise good yields. Corn is now glazing. Beans are maturing in the southern counties and are nearly ready to pull; the bean crop has been shortened somewhat by the high temperatures and some correspondents complain of rust. Sugar beets continue very promising. In the extreme southern counties fodder and early planted corn is being cut. Apple prospects better than expected, although apples have been falling badly. There are many reports of plums rotting; pears and grapes indicate good yields.

Fall plowing is well advanced in the southern counties and has made good progress in the central and northern counties; in the latter sections there is considerable complaint that the soil is too dry; in the southern counties the ground is in good condition for working. In very few cases rye has been sown, but practically no fall seeding has been done.

A Few Suggestions as to the Cost of Bad Roads.

The assessed value of land in Virginia for the year 1893 amounted to $126,990,053. Now it is certainly reasonable to assume that those values would be increased by not less than 20 per cent with a good system of roads which would give an increase in value of $25,398,010.60, interest on which at 6 per cent amounts to $1,523,880.63. Now, that amount of interest represents the increment value we should possess under the desired conditions and is, therefore, an annual charge against the state on account of bad roads.

I have figured from the Statistical Abstract of the United States for 1893 that our principal crops of corn, wheat, potatoes, and tobacco amount to 1,265,782 tons of 2000 pounds. I omit all other products as lumber, mineral, and other crops as an offset against that part of the crops which may be consumed at home and taking 2000 pounds as an average load and 10 miles as the average haul, would give 12,657,820 ton-miles, which, at 25 cents per ton-mile, represents $3,164,455 as the total cost of hauling all products to railroad or market. Now if under the proposed conditions of good highways, the average load can be increased to even 4000 pounds, then we are again paying each year $1,583,227.50 for our bad roads. But if we can haul the load of 4000 pounds in four-fifths of the time required to haul the load of 2000 pounds on the unimproved road, then we effect a saving in cost of $612,891, and that amount must be charged to the account of bad roads.

Then taking the assessed value of all vehicles in the state at $3,051,783, and estimating annual depreciation under present conditions at 10 per cent, it is perfectly reasonable to assume that under the proposed condition 5 per cent would cover depreciation thus giving another charge of $151,586.90.

And finally taking the assessed value of horses and mules at $13,495,932, and allowing that with good roads we can reduce the present cost of feeding and depreciation of stock to an extent represented by 2 per cent of value, we have $404,877.96. Then we may sum up the annual cost of bad roads in Virginia as follows:

To interest on depreciation of land	$1,523,880.63
To additional cost of hauling	1,582,227.50
To loss of time in hauling	612,891.00
To depreciation of vehicles	151,586.90
To depreciation of horses and mules	404,877.96

Chargeable to bad roads 4,275,463.99

Prof. Eley has estimated that the loss per horse per annum on account of bad roads amount in the United States to $15, and figuring on that basis for the state of Virginia we would have 290,567 horses at $75, or $21,358, $95 as the cost of bad roads, or $14.78 for each horse instead of $15. I have thought his figures too high until I made these calculations, but I am now convinced that they are perfectly reasonable.

If my reasoning on this subject of the cost of bad roads is correct we are losing in this state $11, $13.60 for each day in the year, or $2.58 per annum for each unit of population. If we had the use of the money chargeable to bad roads we could construct 1,710 miles of the best class of macadam roads each year, and in fifteen years our road system would be on a plane with that of France.

According to these figures our bad roads are costing us $2,478, $48.96, more than the total tax collected in the state, which, in 1893, only amounted to $1,996, $45.02, or considering the total taxable values of the state for 1893, we are paying a little more by the tax collector. On its list there are no delinquents and there can be no evasion of payment. It reaches every class, creed and condition.

When the Roman emperors built thousands of miles of their magnificent highways all over Europe they were conferring a priceless boon upon unborn nations, but they were, in fact, simply emerging from conditions which threatened to destroy their empire and extinguish their greatness. But nevertheless, these roads remain today as examples of the highest art in highway construction, and the pretorian roads that echoed to the tread of Caesar's legions now under the wheels of modern ordinance.

It is a sad travesty upon our nineteenth century civilization that here in Virginia, the mother of states, where thousands of miles of difficult railroads have been located and built, requiring the best skill of the engineer and the unstinted treasure of the capitalist, the locus of the first practical system of electric railway, a world teacher in the art of tunnel construction, with geographic, geological, and climatic condition supplemented by unparalleled economic resources, we are still in the very infancy of the art of building and maintaining our public highways.

"Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small; and so, Mr. President, with the accumulated grist of our four hundred years, gained under the nether stone of experience, we are ready to rise, and, with the same spirit which prompted our forefathers to wrest from King John the charter of human liberty, we are prepared today to lay the corner stone for the creation of that equilibrium in our system of internal improvement which is no less essential in political than in natural economy. It is in evidence and attested today by the presence of representative men from every part of this broad commonwealth that the term of our bondage is closing and the day star of brighter era has appeared.

I am filled with faith as to the result of this convention. It is the first time in the history of our state that such an assemblage, for such a purpose, has ever been convoked, and it has come to pass as a necessity born of conditions. I know my people and I honor their history and traditions which teach me that when once they have resolved themselves to the accomplishment of a purpose there is no looking backward until the goal is reached.

Through me, their unworthy representative, and my worthy colleagues, the Association of Engineers of Virginia sends you greetings and Godspeed in the great work you have undertaken, and I know that this convention, with it the good wishes of every Virginian who loves his state, will address itself to the task of reform in road laws with a resolute determination that recognize no such word as "fail."

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Cure guaranteed. Only 50c. Sold by Dr. G. S. Darling and J. E. Dillon druggists.

The Belgian hare is a new farm crop in Michigan.

A short hay crop will bring the corn stalks into use as fodder.

Fresh, clean bedding is as welcome to the tired horse, as to the tired, or hired man.

A hot sun will do a lot of damage in stunting the calf. See that it has some shade.

Mowing the weed before they go to seed saves you a lot of work for next season.

Water the horses as often as possible. A little at a time is better than a deluge at long intervals.

Do not allow the dry sweat to remain on the horse over night. It will cause the coat to fade.

The cabbage and the weed do not flourish in the same field—that is, the cabbage does not flourish.

Hatch some scheme to help the horse keep the flies off themselves. You know how the flies torment you.

The well tilled field, whether of beets, corn potatoes, or what, stood the drouth best, and produced the best growth after the rain came. Great is surface cultivation.

It will be well for those who take the trouble to prepare now to relieve the winter forage scarcity. The wise farmer will be making money while the careless farmer will be looking for something to spring out his stock on.

CROP ROTATION AND DROUTH.

Every report from drouth-stricken regions this season shows that small grains were in the worst condition on the ground occupied by the same grain last year. Of wheat this is noticeably true, and the longer that grain has grown continuously on the same land the poorer the crop this year. Wheat on breaking, on summer fallow, or after corn or other grain, is invariably reported as standing the drouth better, and as likely to yield 8 to 10 bushels to the acre as against 4 to 6 bushels in adjoining fields where wheat followed wheat. This is a lesson on crop rotation that should be remembered and utilized in future operations.—Ex.

THE SWINE PLAGUE.

The state sanitary live stock commission is making a determined effort to stamp out the swine plague or hog cholera in this state. President Brown of the live stock commission, asserts that the disease has cost the farmers of Michigan hundreds of thousands of dollars, the loss in a single township often aggregating $5,000 to $6,000. While there is no recognized cure for this disease it is the opinion of the commission that by intelligent restriction and the employment of sanitary methods the ravages of the disease may be prevented to a great extent. The commission has therefore secured an allowance from the board of auditors for the purpose of printing circulars describing the disease, giving methods of preventing infection, care of animals and disinfection of premises. These circulars will be placed in the hands of supervisors whose duties under the law are to take every possible step to limit the spread of the disease whenever notified of an outbreak.
