Ladies' Literary Club.

The annual banquet of the Ladies' Literary Club, of East Tawas, was held at the Holland on Friday evening of last week. These annual banquets are becoming very popular and were it not for the restrictions of the society it would be impossible to entertain all who would like to attend. Each member is entitled to invite one guest only, and as they all have either a husband, a brother or a sweetheart the general public is barred from participation. About fifty were present and enjoyed a varied and entertaining program.

Many of the members of the club were arrayed in costumes of other climes and represented characters other than their own. The Dowager Empress of China, with mighty headgear, and diminutive feet (we suppose), a Japanese maiden, a Scotch lassie, a girl from over the Rejne, a peasant from the Tyrols, Martha Washington, General Jackson's wife, a member of the Royal family of Canada, and several who might have come from the planet Mars, or descended from the man in the moon. While we never had any intimate acquaintance with the original characters, we doubt if they were superior to the counterfeits.

Instrumental and vocal music rendered by the Misses Benton, Miss Emery, Mrs. E. H. Walker, Mr. E. F. Loud and Frank Oakes was very acceptable and the recitations by Miss Mac Bourae were well received. This part of the program was preceded by the annual address of the president of the club, Mrs. H. T. Thomas, who in a very happy manner put every one at their ease and in the best possible humor for the appreciation of the good things to follow.

Between the courses of the banquet the toast mistress, Mrs. H. F. Sharpe, introduced the speakers who responded to the several toasts. "Political outlook of China," by Hon. A. E. Sharpe; we had supposed that reference was to the dishes before us, but from the remarks of the speaker we were led to believe that we were mistaken and that the "heathen Chinese" was referred to.

"The Twentieth Century Womans' Club," by Mrs. P. C. Goldie, was replete with descriptions of the good times to come from a Ladies Literary Club point of view; "A Prophecy" by Rev. Mr. Wye. After the reverend gentleman got over his fright he made some very pleasant prophecies, being somewhat hampered, however, in his flow of soul by the fear that his time was "too limited".

"The Open Door of China," was thrown well open by Mrs. S. E. Brown and we were treated to a fine picture of the interior, a veritable word picture painted by the hand of an artist.

"The Happiness of the Married Man," by Dr. F. C. Thompson. It has been said that a person can often talk best upon a subject he knows nothing about. It proved true in this case as the speaker did exceedingly well.

"Our Club" The paper by Mrs. Bissette was hardly a toast neither was it a roast, but yet it was done exceedingly brown. The writer was not "Bissette" with any difficulty of expression in describing the club members.

"A town without a Womans' club" was responded to by E. F. Loud with a series of well told stories. If the application was not plain, why, "you paid your money and you can have your choice."

All and in all, the banquet was a success and when another year shall have rolled around and another anniversary is held, may we like the author of John Gilpins famous ride, "be there to see."

The raising of the Battleship Maine.

Twelve bidders submitted proposals for the raising and removal of the wreck of the Maine from the harbor at Havana. Some of the bidders can hardly have been serious, since one proposed to do the job by use of balloons and another wanted $876,000 for the work. A Chicago firm shows a practical turn of mind by proposing to do the work gratis and give the government three per cent of the recovered material for relics. The Maine is an object of unusual interest for it represents the casus belli in an American war of conquest, which while a trifling affair in itself, had a mighty influence upon the policy of the American government. It was the temporary tomb of 260 American sailors, who were treacherously assassinated by persons unknown, while trusting their lives in the protection of the Spanish government. The mine, which blew the forward portion of the Maine to fragments destroyed the colonial power of Spain by its re oil, and extended the dominion of the United States, 1,400 miles into the Atlantic ocean and 7,000 miles into the Pacific.

The Maine raised from the mud and repaired so as to make a floating hulk would be the best paying war museum in the world. For a term of years at least it would be a strong attraction in any harbor of the United States and when patronage ceased, the material of the ship would be worth several times, what it cost to raise her. Some enterprising American with a little of P. T. Barnum's showman spirit, will yet make a fortune out of this monument of a remarkable war.—Detroit Tribune.

Delegate Wilcox.

The people of Hawaii should be given to understand that while it is their privilege to select their own delegates to congress, they cannot send a traitor, a professional violator of the law, a denouncer of the flag and institutions of the country and an all round enemy of American sovereignty, to mingle with honorable and patriotic men in the task of upholding and strengthening the institutions of a country he openly affects to despise.—Toledo Time.

Pneumonia Can be Prevented.

This disease always results from a cold or an attack of the grip and may be prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. That remedy was extensively used during the epidemics of lagrippe of the past few years, and not a single case has ever been reported that did not recover or that resulted in pneumonia, which shows it to be a certain preventive to that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained a world wide reputation for its cures of colds and grip. For sale by Dr. G. S. Darling.

Take the time necessary to read the advertisements in your local newspaper. You will find it profitable to do so. DENNIS, next to Holland Hotel, East Tawas. The eye is a faithful servant, but with what dignity that assistant is treated by ignorant people, and by persons too, who know better! The indiscriminate use of glasses bought, because they are cheap, of itinerant dealers, is a positive affront to the organ of sight. A purchaser from a street vender is set down as a piece of economy, but the subsequent payments in the form of headaches and other ills are not taken into account. The prohibition party county convention for Iosco county will meet at the court house at 2 o'clock next Thursday afternoon. In addition to the nomination of a candidate for county school commissioner and the appointment of delegates to the state convention; there will be an address by state chairman Fred E. Britten, of Detroit, and other speakers. In the evening a mass meeting will be held which will also be addressed by chairman Britten. No sensible man should or ever does get angry because a man duns him for his money. A dun is not an impeachment of a man's integrity, but is simply the outpouring of a publisher's necessities. For instance 1,000 men owe a man from $1 to $10 each; he has to dun them in order to pay his expenses. Instead of getting angry and stopping the paper because the publisher asks for what is due him, he should thank the editor for waiting so patiently and pay him up like a man. Hemlock Road. Miss Bertha Duval leaves Friday for Saginaw. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Stewart, on Feb. 4. Miss Anna Curry leaves Friday for her old home at Unionville. THE FARM CORNER.

Newsy Items Gathered From Many Sources.

DOCTORING THE HORSE.

Not infrequently a horse gets "off its feed." It will be discovered that its grain is untouched and possibly its hay is merely mused over and not eaten. In nearly all such cases the conclusion is jumped at that the horse is sick. Then of course, drugs are the next thought. The horse needs "toning up," and condition powders, or some condimental "stock food" is resorted to, with a childlike faith that it is good for the horse, "just what it wants," because somebody, never before heard of, and that nothing is known about, has said so in advertisement that reads as if written by a saintly benefactor. Now, before beginning to dose the horse with such stuff you can know nothing about try a change of feed, and it will probably be found that the horse is not sick at all, save of the kind of food that it may have been compelled to eat three times a day for possibly weeks and weeks. Some roots or other succulent food at such a time will be found excellent, substitute fodder corn for hay, and corn or barley for oats, or vice versa, and give a bran mash occasionally, warm if it will be more appetizing, and the chances are that the sickness (?) of the horse will disappear at once.

RETAINING OLD ANIMALS.

One of the drawbacks to successful farming is keeping unprofitable stock. Old horses, old cows, old sheep, and old hens even, help to reduce the profits of otherwise paying investments. Circumstances alter cases, so that no fixed rule can be suggested as to when an animal ceases to be profitable. But we have in mind the farmer who raises the animals with which his farm is stocked, and if he plans wisely, feeds generously and sells judiciously there will be improvement and success in every line. He must realize that the team which is now doing well will in a few years be greatly reduced in value, and dispose of it while it has a working value to its buyer. The cows best period is when she is five to eight years old. At this age she may be put in excellent physical condition and disposed of to the limit of her digestive capacity, ruined for milk production, and can end her career on the butcher's block. The cows which fail most signally in the hands of the city milkman are those which have already been highly fed by former owners. Therefore they are anxious to buy good looking cows that have only been moderately fed, knowing that they can stand the test. And it is remarkable how this class of cows respond to feed under such circumstances.—Farm Stock and Home.

HEARING AND WALKING SHEEP.

After a careful investigation of the subject we are convinced that, in the long run, it is more profitable to dispense washing altogether. We have secured better results by shearing our sheep during the first half of April than later in the season. This, of course, makes it impossible to wash sheep before shearing. We are satisfied that we can get, not only a heavier average fleece, but also a wool of better strength from the same flock by shearing during the first half of April than by shearing in May or June. If reasonable care is taken to keep the wool free from dirt and litter while on the sheep's back, then there is little to be gained by washing. By an examination of the wool market quotations we note a class of unmerchantable wools. This class includes wools poorly washed. A large percent of our Michigan washed wools are sold as unmerchantable, at a price about equal to that of unwashed wools. We should not leave this subject of washing without saying that if we could the washing process an advantage to grower and consumer alike we would still think the custom or doubtful utility on account of injury to the sheep. Sheep are often roughly handled and not infrequently we believe more injury is done to the sheep than good to the fleece. The sheep will suffer no inconvenience from the early shearing except for the first few days, if they are properly sheltered and protected from the cold, and more especially storms. The wool makes a rapid growth during the cool months of spring and the sheep is not sweltering under a thick blanket of wool. In the latter case the sheep is not only uncomfortable, but the wool makes but little if any growth. For several years, in a majority of instances, the eastern wool markets have been better in April than in June. This would give the grower, who makes a practice of early spring shearing, a slight advantage as to markets.—Bulletin 178, Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station.

CULL THE HERD.

The foundation of all profitable dairying lies in having cows that will produce a large quantity of rich milk at the lowest possible feed cost. In order to have this kind of cows the dairyman must weed out all that do not come up to a profitable productive standard, and when he has got his herd upon this basis he can continue the process by still further weeding out the poorest of even these. Of course in order to intelligently cull a dairy herd the owner must know what each animal in the herd does during the year. He must not guess at it, but must know. Fortunately he is not without the means of knowing, for the spring balance and the Babcock test and the individual milk record, taken in connection with the feed given, will enable anyone to ascertain the yield of the cows composing the herd per year, and its cost, both absolutely and comparatively one with another. Science has come to the dairyman's aid with these facilities for finding out what his cows are doing, and it will be a part of wisdom to employ them. Many a dairyman has found on applying the test and keeping individual records, that cows which he thought were only indifferent ones really made all the dairy made, while others thought to be good ones were making very little money and were some times actually losing money and being kept by the better work of their herd mates. A profitable cow is not necessarily the one that gives the largest amount of milk when fresh. It is not even the one that gives the richest milk; it is the cow that during the year will send the largest amount of butter fat to the churn at the lowest cost per pound.

SMOKING HAM AND BACON.

Many of our farmers think there is so much difficulty in smoking meat that they eat a tasty rasher of bacon or ham only when they buy it, and at an advanced price of 3 or 4c. a lb. Some writers would lead us to believe that smoked meat is very nice, but they make it so difficult and propose such ways of obtaining it, that those who do not know of simpler ways will be very extravagant if they eat of their own making. Waiving all calculation as to the dimensions of the smoke house, whether built by a combination of neighboring farmers, how the cupola or jet will be made, the color of painting, size of windows etc., I will endeavor to describe my manner of proceeding, which after a long experience, I would not change for a combination, or other schemes. The first thing wanted is the meat properly cut. This you can have in 15 minutes' time, with an ax, a knife and a pig. With the ax split it down the middle; cut the hind leg close to the ham, but not quite off; hack the bone of the leg in four or five places, cut the leg entirely off and lay it aside. Then cut across in front of the ham, round the ham into shape and take out the bone. Now cut across behind the shoulder, and cut the body piece lengthwise, taking off the thick of the back for pork, leaving for bacon the thinner part of the body. Cut the pork into pieces suitable to go with beans. Take all the lard off, and the ribs from the bacon piece and the shoulder. Now cut across separating the shoulder from the neck. Cut off the head. Cut the neck in two pieces. Take the cheeks off to go with pork. Cut the head across at the eyes, ears and nose, and down the center. Cut the fore leg same as the former one. Leave the shoulder square. Now trim and thoroughly wash all blood off. The trimmings, the head and the feet will go for pot. This and the ribs will be used fresh. Generally, the ham, bacon and pork are put into the same barrel to pickle; but the dry salted bacon has a better flavor, and with proper attention to rubbing in the salt and turning, any one with a cool cellar and preferably a large slab of slate to lay the meat on, can make nice meat. With the dry salt system, we add coarse sugar and saltpeter. In ten or fifteen days, according to the thickness, the meat will be salted sufficiently (this applies to small pigs). On taking it out wash it thoroughly. At the leg run a knife between the meat and the skin a couple of inches and cut through. In this put a cord, well tied and hang to dry. For a smoke house, take out both ends of a barrel. Set it on three bricks or blocks. Hang the six pieces of meat in the barrel on iron rods. Cover up with sacks. Slip underneath an old pan of live coals and corn cobs. Don't let it get too hot. Keep the smoke going four or five days, or as much more as you like smoke. Or, with a large lot of meat, I have used a sugar or crockery hogshead with one end out. Set the other on the ground, put sufficient earth in the bottom to be safe from burning, and with a wire attached let a pot containing the coals down from the top. I never used a dry goods box, but either of these ways will make a good smoke house for a farmer. And now to keep the meat properly, dust each piece thoroughly with pepper, wrap in newspapers and again with thick paper, using paste to put the second on thoroughly. Pack in a barrel with grain, dry sawdust or preferably salt. It is certain that in all this there is no extra work until you arrive at smoking, and the extra work in that is very trifling.—John Dickson in Country Gentleman.

Serious Business.

"This Mrs. Nation has ceased to be a joke," remarks the Kalamazoo Gazette News. It was no joke to begin with. The warlike woman, having smashed a saloon, was in turn mauled with a whip by the saloonist's wife in a way that beat the nation. It is no joke. It is scarcely less serious than the effort of a Detroit some years ago to infuse into the mind of a newly arrived German an American sense of humor. Said the Detroit man "Here's a good joke for you: Out in California is a place where the trees grow so tall that it takes two men to see the top of one of them." The new arrival never smiled. "Isn't that a pretty good joke?" inquired Detroit, growing red with embarrassment. "Dat wash no shoké," responded the German, with solemnity, "cot vash von tam lie."

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. Dr. G. S. Darling.

Will Boom His Business.

S. Laval, a merchant, of Dallas, Texas writes. I can now eat anything, sleep well and feel like working all the time. It's the best medicine on earth." It's a wonderful tonic and health builder for, tried weak, sickly and run down people. Try it.
