Result in County and City,

The results of the spring election throughout Michigan shows a very light vote, unless some special local plurality of about 50,000.

Arbor, Ladington, Ypsilanti. The on the township tickets was as follow. Democrats won in Bay City, Niles, Jackson, Eaton Rapids, Hillsdale, Petestkey, Albion, Flint, Coldwater. Muskegon, Cadillac, Marshall, Iron Mountian, Ionia, Lapeer, Charlotte, and Manistee. Owosso elected the prohibition candidate:

The indications from the returns throughout the state is that both constitunal amendments have been defeated. The one relative to making the salary of the members of the legislature $1,000 per term, seens to have got the worst defeat.

The result in Iosco county is given below in as full detail as it has been possible for us to secure it:

THE COUNTY.

There was a very light vote polled on the state ticket throughout the county, not to exceed 1100 votes being cast. Of this number the republican will probably have 775 and the democrats about 325. Giving a republican majorlty of about 450.

This County gave a majority of 188, against the amendment to give members of legislature a salary of $1,000, per term, and 102, against the amendment relative to galary of Judge of Bay County.

J. A. CAMPBELL.

The republican candidate for county school commissioner had no oppossition and his vote will be considerable higher than that of the republican state candidates, in the county.

TAWAS CITY.

The election in this city on Monday last was the most quiet ever known, practically no interest being manifested. Out of 300 voters but 183 went to the poles. The republicans elected their entire ticket, with the exception of one supervisor, on alderman and one constable. The vote in detail on both city and state

Caught a Dreadful Cold.

Marion Koake, manager for T. M. Thompson, a large importer of fine millinery at 1685 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, says: "During the late seyere weather I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once, I am now entirely well and feel very pleased to acknowledge its merits," For sale by G. S. Darling.

Good Roads.

just because proper attention is not for the candidates on the Peoples given the road bed when the proper time came. One great obstacle to the cause of good roads has been the objection of the farmers to giving up their privilege of working out their road tax instead of paying it in cash and thus obtaining a competent road Robert Wilkins justice by 15; and maker and grayel, preferring to throw a pile of stones and sods into the middle of the road and so improve(?) the highway. Farmers can better afford to draw their produce thirty miles over good roads than to pull it through ten miles of mud. If the vim now displayed to assist capitalists to build railroads was exerted in graveling good roads throughout the country, it would be of untold value.—Ex.

Dog Tax.

Michigan has had one years' experience with a dog tax law which collects the tax at the same time it is levied, or kills the dog. To enforce this law a dog warden is appointed by the township board of every township, who receives 25 cents for every $1.00 tax collected, and $1.00 for every dog he kills. The killing of the dog has been very unpopular among a certain class of people in many places, which resulted in making people a little timid about accepting the office of dog warden. This has had the effect of a new bill being introduced in the legislature at Lansing to repeal the law, and the dog tax assessed by the supervisor in the spring, and collected in the fall by the township treasurer, who is to kill the dog if tax is not paid. He is to receive four per cent for collecting and $1.00 for every dog killed.

It seems to us that this is a serious mistake. As a rule the dogs which kill the most sheep are those owned or harbored by people who pay no property tax, do not well care for their dogs, and resort to all manner ofmeans to avoid paying the tax upon their dogs. It is therefore evident the collector must visit these people for the express purpose of collecting the tax upon the dog, and the probability is that he will have to visit them several temes to make the collection, or win their eternal enmity The entire township ticket was by killing the dog the first time, if he elected in this township, by the fol- were so fortunate as to find it, but in lowing majorities: Supervisor, nine cases out of ten it would be own-William West, 12; clerk, William ed by some one else at tax collecting O'Brien, no oppossition, treasurer, time. Death of Mrs. J. E. Chase.

Mrs. Olive C. Chase passed from this life, at her home in this city, at Neil McDonald was brought home about 11 o'clock last Sunday morn-

The deceased was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W Force, of Tawas township. She was born in Ontario, May 31, 1874, and came to this country with her parents in 1880. She was united in marriage to J. Earnest Chase in September, 1892, and for five years resided at Owosso, where Mr. Chase was employed in the Woodard casket factory. About three years ago they removed to this city, owing to her failing health, and since that time she has been under the treatment of Dr. D. C. Howell, but notwithstanding his skillful treatment, death came to relieve her sufferings.

She was universally beloved by a large circle of acquaintances, who join the bereaved husband and parents in mourning the death of one who was taken in the prime of life. Exactly What Can Be Done With Good Results.

That good calves can be raised on whey there is no quest on, says a correspondent of Hoard's Dairyman. Of course nobody would want to feed whey to a young calf the first few weeks of its life. There is no occasion whatever to feed the dairy calf whole milk for a longer period than one week. Let the calf have the milk of its dam for the first week of its existence.

It is certainly not best to permit the calf to suckle the cow. The ordinary cow has probably twice as much milk as the calfeneeds, and to permit the calf to suckle at will and overgorge itself will bring on disorders of a serious nature. Fifteen pounds a day is fully enough milk for the calf in the first week of its existence. Very much more than this works harm and it is a very poor cow indeed that doesn't give double this amount in the first week of lactation. Then if the calf is allowed to suckle any part, at which time will this be? Shall the calf suckle first and then milk out the remainder, or vice versa?

If the calf suckles first, it is plain that the remaining portion after the calf is supposed to have got sufficient will contain by far the greatest portion of the fat, for the last quart or two contains five or six times as much fat as the remainder. Again, if the cows are milked first and the calf allowed to take the remainder, it is plain that the calf has obtained the richest portion of the milk.

The only logical way, then, is to milk the cow at first and all the time and let the calf drink the milk from the pail.

For the first week the calf gets whole milk right from the cow, and for no longer, given in two feeds, seven to nine pounds at a feed, twice a day. At the end of the first week we introduce skimmilk, so that at the end of the second week the calf is getting four quarts of whole milk and four quarts or less of skimmilk mixed, fed blood warm.

Now, at the end of the second week we introduce whey (the whey must in every case be boiled), very gradually at first, so that at the end of the third week the calf is getting half whey and half skim and whole milk, or, in other words, one-fourth whole milk, onefourth skim and one-half whey, mixed and fed warm of course. No whole milk is fed after the calf is 21 days old. At the beginning of the fourth week the ration is half whey and half skimmilk, about nine pounds at a feed, fed twice a day.

Gradually during the fourth week the whey alone—that is to say, when the calf is 28 days old no milk of any kind is fed. Whey completely takes its place. The amount of whey to be fed will vary somewhat, but as a rule about ten pounds at a feed, twice a day, will be ample at 28 days old. The amount of whey can now be increased to 15 pounds at a feed when 2 months old and continued till the calf is 5 or 6 months old. The whey must always be first boiled as it comes from the factory and fed at blood heat.

Of course no calf is expected to subsist on whey alone no more than on skimmilk alone. He must be fed some grain. At 3 weeks of age a calf will begin to eat meal, and a constant supply should always be before him. Whether meal should be mixed with the whey and skimmilk is an open question. If the meal is first scalded so as to break up the starch cells, it may be mixed with either whey or skimmilk, but dry meal should in no case be ever mixed with whey or milk to be fed to a young animal, let it be a calf or a pig.

Feeding For Milk.

John Dean, writing in The American Agriculturist, says:

Upon proper feeding devolves the financial success of every dairy farm. As I look at the question it is this: To get the best results from the least expense. I have 15 cows, mostly Holsteins. The milking is started about 5:30 a. m. and is completed and milk cared for by 6:30 Then I feed each cow one bushel silage made from Stowell's Evergreen sugar corn, upon which I give them their grain ration composed of two quarts gluten meal mixed. At noon the cows are let out to water and exercise in the yard for one hour only in fine weather. My experience has been that the warmer and more quiet the stock is kept the better the result will be.

At 3:30 p. m. I feed the same amount as fed in the morning. Milking begins at 5 p. m. and is finished and cared for by 6, after which the stock is given a either English hay, oats cut in milk and cured as hay, Hungarian hay or meadow or swale hay, so that the cows get a change of feed every day. While ing gives entire satisfaction, yet I am ready to accept any method which will recommend itself to me to be superior to this. The result of one year's experiment with the above mentioned method has been to get 5,509 81/2 quart cans of milk from 14 cows.

Some Requisites For Calf Feeding.

clean, using plenty of litter. A dirty a day and 15 pounds of good hay in 24 pen is conducive to scours. For several calves fed together, fit up narrow stalls at one side of the pen and fasten each calf by a rope or stanchion to feed each separately. This will prevent the stronger calves from getting more than their share. Keep them fastened or tied for half an hour after eating to prevent their sucking each others' ears. The pails used for feeding milk should be thoroughly cleansed and scalded with boiling water each day .- Ameriean Agriculturist.

FATTENING CATTLE.

Plenty of Good Water Should Be Kept In Ensy Reach.

The successful feeder knows the valne of having good water within easy reach of his cattle. When steers are doing their best, they acquire a disease which we may call laziness, and there fore it is very essential that water be near at hand at all times. If not, they will endure the pain of thirst for some time rather than move about much to quench it. If water is handy, they will drink from three to five times daily, while on the other hand if it is necessary to slip down a steep creek bank and wade in the mud in order to get to the water's edge they will-drink only once or twice daily and of course all they can hold each time. Probably no bad effects would be noticed, yet the best results are not to be expected when such conditions exist.

Tanks are used by most stockmen, and in this way water is brought within easy reach of the cattle. Yet during the winter months it is no Ittle chore to keep the ice broken so they may drink when they are thirsty. Besides, it is clear to all that an animal cannot make the best gains when it must push away the pieces of ice in order to get a sip of the freezing water and after having just partially quenched its thirst stand shivering in the wind.

Here again the fattening steer will not drink the required amount of water to produce the best results, because the water is too cold, it is not palatable. it makes the teeth ache, chills the animal and retards digestion for a time. There is no better investment for a man who intends to feed cattle during the winter than to buy a tank heater. These heaters have been used successfully and with good results at the Kansas State Agricultural college. One will be all that is needed in a tank large enough to water from 40 to 60 head of

RAISING THRIFTY LAMBS.

Much Depends on Care Given Ewer

We used to like to make such a change when there was very cold weather, as they not only would eat the coarse fodder better then, but would bear the more heating grain.

GIVE THE HOG ROOM.

Animals Crowded In Small Pens Make Poor Pork.

It is a mistake to suppose that at any period of a hog's life, from birth to the day of slaughter, he is better off without exercise. Many, if not most, of our farmers make rail pens not more than seven feet square inside measure and besides the feed trough put in from four to six hogs. Thus crowded they cannot lie down even with comfort, and the continued "scrouging" is all the exercise they get. Hogs that are | til 2 or 3 days old. and five quarts shorts and middlings | kept in such pens, necessarily filthy and nearly always muddy, whether it rains or not, may take on fat rapidly, but not flesh.

The increase in weight is from a diseased condition of the digestive organs and the organs of elimination which results in deposits of fat, mingled with scrofulous tubercles and degenerated glands. We don't want any such meat. The hog, even up to killing time, feed of dry fodder, which consists of should have plenty of fresh air, exercise and room to keep himself clean, which he will do if afforded an opportunity and which he cannot do when confined in a narrow cage like a crim-I have tried a number of ways of inal. The average pigpen is a place of feeding, the method I am now pursu- torture and should be abolished and is abolished by all intelligent and humane hog raisers.

Worms In Horses.

Give two ounces of turpentine in onehalf pint of raw linseed oil at a dose three times a day before feeding for two days, then give one quart of raw linseed oil at a dose as a physic. Feed Always keep the calf pens dry and 4 quarts of oats at a feed three times hours. Put on a muzzle to keep him from eating his bedding.

Pigs Pastured on Rape. Pigs pastured on rape are remarkably healthy. They relish the food, and it seems to keep them in fine condition. Hogs need exercise, especially the breeding sows, which should have the run of a large dry yard or lot. During cold weather hogs should have all the clear water they want at least twice a day.

SHEEP IN COW PASTURE.

They Will Thrive on Herbage That Cattle Will Not Touch.

While Professor Shaw says that from 10 to 20 sheep could very well be kept on every hundred acres on the farm' without costing the owner any thing for food in winter, we will go further than that and say that we and that on most farms that we have seen the cows would find more feed as a result. They eat many plants which the cow does not eat, and many of them are such weeds and bushes as encroach upon the pasture unless they are kept down by hand labor or other means than the grazing of the cow. That they enrich the land over which they roam is too well known to require any argument. The proverb that "the hoof of the sheep is golden" is centuries old and is too evidently an allusion to their ability to improve the soil they travel over to need an explanation. Cows have no objection to feeding over the droppings of the sheep. They are so fine and so scattered and so quickly lose their odor that the growth which is produced by this fertilizing element is more liable to be eaten too closely than to be neglected.

When they have been together a short time, they will be found to keep very closely together, the sheep learning to look to the cows as their natural protectors and the cows as ready to do battle for them as for their calves. We would not take a pasture suitable for 60 sheep and add 10 cows to it, for they would find short picking, but the pasture that would feed 10 cows must have been exceptionally well kept from weeds and bushes if there would not be feed enough left that the cows had rejected to feed from 30 to 60 sheep all the pasturage they would need.

WASTE OF CORN FODDER.

Valuable Food That Should Be Turned Into Profitable Meat.

Professor Shaw renews his plea for greater economy upon the western farm. Of that most palpable and useless extravagance witnessed in ninety-

In stunted before birth and that has to the aggregate the uncut corn must overcome the weakness if not disease amount to millions and millions of that it may inherit from a parent that acres. CARE OF WEAK LAMBS.

How to Treat Those That Are Unable to Suck the Ewe.

There are many times when lambs are dropped that are too weak to get up and suck the ewe. If it chances to be one of twins, it may be that before it is found the other and stronger one will have taken all the milk from the ewe, or the lamb may be so chilled as not to have the power to suck. We have saved such a lamb when it scarcely had life enough to swallow by giving warm milk a little warmer than it came from the cow, and if we had it in the house we would add about a teaspoonful of spirit or a little warm ginger tea to the half cup of milk, says an expert grower. It will take but one or two teaspoonfuls of milk at a time un-

When fresh milk is not at hand, use condensed milk, about a teaspoonful of it to ten spoonfuls of hot water. Be sure to have it at least blood warm. When it is able to stand alone, the lamb may sometimes be put back on the ewe if she will own it and has milk enough for both. If not, it can be brought up on a bottle and will usually outgrow the one on the ewe if given all it will drink of good milk.

After the first feeding rub it dry and wrap it in a warm blanket, then place it where it will keep warm. With a flock large enough to keep a man to watch then: at lambing time this may not be necessary, but where they are visited two or three times in a night there may some come in the interval that will need attention.

Breeding Mules.

We are of opinion that mule breeding has been too much neglected in the south and perhaps elsewhere. The mule is really the most useful draft animal on the farm and by far the most economical. For real rough farm work mules are better than horses. They are not quite so speedy as horses, but there is much plowing on every farm that cannot be done both rapidly and well, and for steady pulling at a uniform speed the mule has no equal. They are hardier and more easily kept and more cheapty fed than horses, and when grown for market they are always ready sale at higher prices than farm horses. Large mares and well bred jacks are needed to produce mules that will bring $200 at 2 years old .-Farm and Ranch.
