Lumber Output of Michigan.

That eastern lumber manufactures are looking forward to the day when the mills of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota will be idle because of the lack of timber and are planning accordingly was illustrated yesterday in a statement made by John E. Glover of St. Paul, says a dispatch from Seattle to New York Commercial. Mr. Glover is one of the wealthiest lumber manufacturers in the middle west. He tana was second, the Mistake has been engaged in the lumber third and Oom Paul fourth. This business nearly half a century race was sailed in the lighest and was formerly a large stockbreeze of the regatta. Mr. Glover said: "I venture the prediction that in the next five years the lumber output of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota will shrink between 50 and 60 per cent, and that in 10 years there will not be half a dozen mills running in the three states. The timber is now practically gone. Washington, Oregon, British Columbia and ultimately Alaska will be depended on to furnish the big supply of lumber for the east and the central west

"Washington lumber has already taken its place at the head of the list in the eastern markets. Organized labor is just now receiving a crushing blow from the hand it kissed on election day, 1900.

Now we are told that Admiral Schley has been beycotted by the naval crowd at Newport. That is just the sort of thing that the coun try is coming to expect regularly from the navy.

Sir Thomas Lipton feels very sure of winning the cup, and perhaps he is right. Experts say that the accident to the Shamrock was a yery lucky one for her as it led to her being fitted with a mast that gives much better results than the old one did:

The printing press has made presidents, killed poets, furnished bustles for the beauties. curtailed the powers of kings and graced the pantry shelves; it has converted paupers into bankers and made liars out of college presidents, but it cannot be run to suit everobody and a man is a chump who tries it.

Under the present dog law, owners will get a receipt and a tag bearing the consecutive number of receipt, when they pay their township tax this fall. The collector will report to the sheriff all who have not paid the dog tax and the latter will notify his deputies in the various townships to collect the tax or kill the dog.

Few navy officers seem to realize that the country, which was once Col. Loud and his delegates, these proud of them, is now getting into a from Oscoda. Au Sable and the first frame of mind that bodes ill to their ward of this city, walked quietly out future welfare. If such things as of the court room, Mr. Rix, who was those of the last few months go on one of the tellers, resigning to accomwith their support. they may learn pany them, some day that after all, they are merely hired men whom Uncle Sam proposes to keep in order.

The year 1900 was a comparatively favorable one for shipping disasters on or near the coasts and on rivers of the United States. There were 346 total vrecks as against 538 the year before, and 888 partial wrecks and casualties as against 1,036 the year before. The lives lost were 252, the lowest on record in the present United States maritime statistical bureau.

That there is no money in politics, says a contemporary, is a fact that is becoming better realized each year. Run over the list of politicians of your acquaintance and pick out those who would not have been better off physically and financially if they had never entered the political arena. The only men who make money out of politics are the grafters, and they own interests.

It seems no great wonder that the captain of the ship which carried the school teachers to Manila should be unwilling to undertake so great a responsibility as to allow thirty weddings to occur on board his vessel when the courtship in many cases had been confined to ten days or less. The proposition was sufficient to phase a very stout heart. Who shall now say that the desire to enter the wedded state is not contageous? ### THEY SPLIT

The Republican County Convention Resulted in the Loud men Bolting.

Two Delegations go to the Standtsn Convention.

Tha republican county convention to elect delegates to the Congressional convention at Standish, meet at the court house in this city last Monday afternoon. In the absence of chairman P. E. Shien. Judge Connine, of the county committee called it to order, and called C. R. Jackson, as temporary chairman. W. F. Whittemore, of this city, was elected temporary secretary, and W. J. Fox, of East Tawas, and V. E. Rix, of Oscoda, were appointed tellers. The usual committies were then appointed and a recess taken to give them time to make their reports.

The committee on credentials reported full delegation from every ward and township, The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary officers permanent. Both reports were adopted without opposition.

Thus far everything was harmonious and the Emery men had entire control of the convention. But at this point Judge Connine, of AuSable, arose and offered a set of resolutions the purport of which were, that Mr. Emery be allowed to name the delegates to the Standish iconvention, and that they be instructed to vote for Mr. Emery as long as he believed that he had an opportunity of securing the nomination, but should the time come when he believed he could not secure the nomination, then the delegates was to go to Mr. Loud, thus making Mr. Loud the second choice of Iosco county. Insupport of his reslutions Judge Connine said he believed that by the showing made in recent canvass that Col Loud was a second choice and entitled to the support of his county delegation, if Mr. Emery could not be nominated. He asked that the vote on the resolutions be taken by ballot. This Chairman Jackson refused to do, but called for an aye and nay vote and declared the motion lost. Much curiosity is expressed as to what code of parliament ary law Mr. Jockson acted under.

After this motion was declared lost

The remainder of the convention then elected the the following dele-

C. R. Jackson, East Tawas. M. J. Connant, Tawas City.

J. E. Dillion, East Tawas. Thomas Bradley, Tawas City.

The delegates were instructed to vote for Mr. Emery until such time as he instructed them to do otherwise and to then yote for such person as he directed.

The Loud faction of the convention assembled in the county clerk's office and after electing George Sutherland chairman and Sam B. Gardner secretary, elected the following set of delegates:

M. J. Connine, AuSable. Sam B. Gardner, Oscoda. Edward F. Loud, AuSable. John Stone, Tawas City.

Time is required by an American ear to accustom itself to English "as she is spoke" in London. The cockney who had no difficulty of corrupting the Norman French, making Route de Roy "Rotten row" and Marie le Bon "Marylebone" and Beauchamp, who was one of the principal lieutenants of the Conqueror and was rewarded with the lands at Warwick, into "Beecham" would readily call High Holborne "'Ighobon" and Ludgate Hill "Lu gut'ill." Indeed the English of the caland bus driver, bright as they are in their own employments, is not readily understood. One has to ask a bus coxductor more than once as to the identi ty of the place to which he is bound, for in calling out the names there isu't the faintest resemblance to what he considers the proper pronunciation.

The American soldiers marched through the narrow streets and hurrahed for freedom. Phroso Gallo looked out of her shop window at the big, tall, bronzed troopers and sighed.

Phroso Gallo kept her aged parents by running a little lemonade stand during the weekdays, but on Sunday she was a

After awhile some of the bronzed soldiers came back. They had pitched camp and would rest there. A handsome fellow stopped at Phroso's counter, tipped back his hat and smiled. The little brown girl blushed.

"Does the big Americano want a drink?" she inquired modestly. "That's what I stopped for," he said

She mixed him a soft drink with her deft hands. The trooper stood back, admiring the charming young Filipino girl. "To your health," he smiled, before "But no," she replied; "that is wrong.

No, you must not -- to me." She produced "Anything goes with me." And the soldier walked away, glad he was in Ca-

He played the guitar and sang to her. He would laugh and joke about the war, but Phroso said little. Her heart was sad, and happy too. She loved her country, and she loved the big, tall soldier. Every Sunday the brown skinned beauty went to the little cathedral. There the natives gave her 2 cents each for the "cause." She prayed with the natives, and many gave their souls to God under the hearing of her beautiful voice. Justly she had earned the title of saint.

All the Filipinos looked at him. Her betrothed! "The devil will be to pay if I don't," he thought, so he sank beside the girl who loved him.

The news that Hollman was betrothed to the Filipino saint soon became camp talk, but the Yankee trooper staid out of church. He was afraid there.

But one day the troops were ordered away. Hollman went to Phroso to say goodby, but she would not have him go. "But I must go. It would mean dishonor. Then I need the money I get for fighting." "Do not talk about the money," the girl said. "See, I will steal for you. Here are the church collections. Take them, but stay with me." Hollman agreed that if she would let him take the things she offered to his tent he would pack up his trunk, leave the army and take her back to America with him. "Ah, that is so nice! But we will be happy in your land. See? I will gladly steal from my people to be with you. It will disgrace me here, but si, what do I care? You, you will be with me always.

Ah, everything is so good!" She kissed the big, bronzed man and went into the shop to wait for his return. 'A man came in, and she put salt in his lemonade. He cursed, but she smiled and looked out of the little dirty window. Her native lover, Emile Fernando, came in to have a chat with Phroso.

She looked at him in a faraway man-foot angrily. The little clock ticked off the hours, and Trooper Hollman did not return. Then Phroso went to the church and prayed. She knew he had deceived her. It meant disgrace and death, perhaps.

The natives would care. "I pray God to make me a brave girl, for I will confess tomorrow," she said aloud, rising from the altar. Emile Fer-

John Bowman and family of Oscoda started Monday for the Pan-American. He had $160 with which to have their outing. Being unable to secure a state room owing to the crowded condition of the boat he and his family prepared to spend the night on the deck. Before retiring he looked for his cash and was dismayed to find it gone. A most deligent search was made but the missing money could not be found. On reaching Detroit the family abandoned their trip and returned home.

Fined for Contempt.

The jury in the case of the People vs. Oscar McDonald charged with poisining a well, which was out when we went to press last week were unable to agree, and were discharged, and McDonald is in jail awaiting another trial at the next term of court. We understand that the jury stood ten for conviction and two for acquital.

At the close of the trial, Prosecuting Attorney Jahraus called the court's attention to the fact that during the trial McDonald had handed a paper containing a marked article on circumstantial evidence principal witnesses, and she had given it to a member of the jury, and asked that both McDonuld and the woman be held for contempt of court for attempting to influence the jury. Judge Connine had both brought before the court and they were held guilty. McDonald was Peistow woman $5 or ten days in jail. The latter paid her fine. Judge Connine took the occasion to deliver a severe fecture and asked all officers and citizens to report all attempts of the kind to him. He declares that every attempt of this kind in his court shall be premptly punished. The action is one that will receive the commendation of all respectable citizens.

Ability to Originate.

The young man in demand everywhere, today, says a writer in Success, is the one who can create some thing, the man of productive power. There are many who can do routine work, follow prescribed lines, carry out in detail a program mapped out by others; but the man of origina force, of constructive energy, who can start out in untrodden paths and blaze the way for others, is as rare as he is yaluable.

There is always a premium on the thinker, the man of original ideas and methods and real productive force. Insurance companies are securing the country for such men; merchants are in need of them, great combinations looking for them as leaders; they are wanted in law, in the business world, in the field of science, in all walks of life.

W. W. BROWN.

Last winter I sold lambs at $11, says J. B. Peele of Ohio in Breeder's Gazette. My sheep are Dorsets, and my barn last winter contained the first Beason's cuttings of a four acre alfalfa field, five acres of oat hay and the ragweed, foxtail, etc., on a 20 acre field Where the wheat had failed. That was not an expensive feed to make baby mutton on, was it? We gave them some corn fodder, of course, but the bables got all the alfalfa. If hothouse lamb growers will try having lambs come in November instead of January and dress them properly and market them in large eastern cities, they will feel like kicking themselves for fooling away their time with ewes that only netted them $10 in wool and lambs.

Our lambs are born in November and December, in the pasture if the weather is pleasant, in the barn if nights are frosty, and as soon as the hard frosts come the barn and the paddock are their limit. If the ewes have had proper care during the summer, there is no trouble about an abundant flow of milk.

Branding Sheep With Paint. More complaint than ever is heard this year over the action of the western wool growers in branding their sheep with paint and tar, says Wool Reporter. No manufacturer who knows his business will buy wool loaded with paint except due allowance be made for the fact in the bill which the seller renders him. This should be readily understood by the grower, and it is difficult to understand how the latter can figure out any advantage to himself in sending such clips to market. Every time he does so he stands in the way of his own interests, for he is steadily building up for himself the reputation of offering a commodity which it will be te every one's advantage to have nothing to do with so long as anything else can be found in the market.

Favors Mutton Sheep. I think farmers have got to go to raising mutton sheep. When we have to sell our wool for 16 cents per pound, there is no money without mutton, says an Ohio sheep raiser in National Stockman. Dorset sheep are the best, as and are a hardy sheep and grow large. and have your lambs to market and not have them in the pasture for the summer pests.

Our experience in feeding soaked corn has been limited. The first to speak of was last season, when we were obliged to buy corn, and we bought it already shelled, says a correspondent of Swineherd. Being dry and hard, as it always is during the summer, we placed it to soak from one feed to the next, thinking it better to feed. We fed in troughs, and the soaking kept the pigs from kicking it out of the troughs to any considerable extent. We mixed and soaked outs with the corn and received as good results as if oats had been ground or fed otherwise.

The pigs did not tire of the soaked corn, as we have seen them do on hard, dry corn, and they would leave dry corn any time to eat the corn that had been soaked. They did not eat any more greedily in this way than otherwise and seemed to relish the soaking. We think soaked corn a good thing for the pigs, as their power of mastication is found wanting compared to that of the hog. One can notice that a pig grinds dry corn with difficulty. We were pleased with the results and shall continue to soak corn this season. We shall shell all the corn we soak, as we do not think it a good idea to feed soaked ear corn on the ground in the Scours In Young Pigs. Pigs that have this trouble when they first begin to eat are off feed at once and rely on their dams for nourishment and consequently must be reached through their mother's milk, says J. M. Jamison in National Stockman. On the advice of S. H. Todd I used copperas for the trouble and found it the shortest cut of anything I ever tried. A teaspoonful of this dissolved in a necessary amount of water, say a pint, and mixed with the sow's ration of slop once a day for three or four days I have found sufficient to check the scours. Nor does there seem to be danger of recurrence when the pigs again begin to eat, as there is when the sow is limited in her feed till it is checked and then brought to full feed.

Feed of Young Boar.

Concerning the proper care of a boar a year old and weighing 300 pounds A. J. Lovejoy says in Breeder's Garette: I would, to develop the boar and add flesh at the same time, take equal parts of shelled corn and oats and have them finely ground, add about 10 per cent by weight of oil meal and mix ell into a thick slop (about as thick as 't would pour out of a pail nicely) and 'eed him twice daily of this all that he will eat up clean. If the above could be mixed with skimmilk or buttermilk, so much the better. Give the boar run in, with cool shade to Me in drying the day; also see that he in pure, clean water to drink. " ment, with an occasional wast brushing, will get him in fine condition.

RED POLL CATTLE.

Characteristics Which Distinguish This Breed.

In a general way the Red Polls closely resemble Devons, except they are lar habit and fine grained flesh, the throughout. same active, hardy disposition and much the same style. Red Polled breeders would say their cows are better milkers, but this doubtless would depend much on the selections.

As a rule, Red Polls when fat should be like Devons, round rather than square. The fat should be very evenly distributed and should not show in bunches. Like the Devons also, some strains are inclined to be high at the tail head. This is doubtless an old characteristic in both breeds, but is pretty well bred out in the best specimens. It probably does not detract from real utility, either for milk or beef, but it is not attractive, and I should not care to use a bull of that

In weight the Red Polls considerably exceed the Devons'in steers under 3 rods, which pass to a timber across the years old and nearly equal any of the outside. The milk, though not so will breed any time you want them to abundant as with the milk breed of goats, is richer than cow's milk. Their tanned skins, though inferior in quality to the skins of common goat, are used for leather. Their pelts make the neatest of rugs and robes, and they are excellent pets for children. A few of them in a flock of sheep are a protection from wolves and dogs, and their manure is noticeably helpful to the grass which follows them after they have cleaned away the underbrush.

Meat of Angoras. The Angora goat, and in the same measure the different breeds of short haired goats, do not pile much fat on their meat. They are not heavy, their bones are small, their joints small, flavor agreeable and tasty and the appearance of the meat attractive. It is well known that thousands of goats are annually shipped to market, bought and slaughtered by the big packers, but it comes out as mutton. It eminently suits many American housewives, for it just meets their demands. Whether it would do so well if she knew just exactly what she was being handed across the counter is another story.

A Great Memory.

What memory can do is illustrated in the case of a New York tailor who cannot read or write. He is probably the most widely known man in his business, as for many years he has done business with New York's firemen and policemen. Almost every man of these two bodies has dealings with this tailor, and each month between the first and tenth days he visits every station house and engine and truck house to collect his dues. It is said of him that in all the years he has dealt with the firemen and policemen he never was known to make a mistake of a cent, although all his records of transactions have been kept in his head.

They Stuck It Rich.

It was a grand thing for this com munity that such enterprising firms as G. S. Darling and J. E. Dillion secured the agency for Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, this wonderful remedy that has startl ed the world by its marvelous cures The furor of enthusiasm over it has boomed their business, as the demand forit is immense. They give free trial bottles to sufferes, and positively guarantee it to cure coughs, colds.I bronchitis, ast hma, croup and al throat and lung troubles. A trial proves its merit. Price 50 cents and
