WASHINGTON LETTER

(Special Correspondence.)
It is interesting to note that the supreme court is more nearly up with its docket than it has been for almost half a century. This important statement was made the other day by one of the oldest officials of the court, who declared that the tribunal is now only about one year behind in its work. He attributes this unusual condition largely to the unflagging industry and energy of Chief Justice Fuller. When the chief justice came to the bench in 1888, the supreme court docket was greatly congested and the work of the court was about seven years behind. This meant that the litigant who appealed his case to the highest tribunal in the land had to wait seven years for a hearing unless his case was of such an exceptional character as to be entered to the unusual privilege of advancement on the docket. Under present circumstances no litigant need wait longer than a year for final action on his case. Some of the relief has been afforded by the establishment of circuit courts of appeal, which were brought into life under the strong urgency of President Harrison. At the same time if the chief justice had been less pushing and indefatigable than Mr. Fuller, it is highly probable, in the opinion of old officials, that the court would be three or four years behind.

Must Work Full Time.
The postoffice department has issued to many postoffices an order that conveys a sharp intimation that the government must obtain a full day's service from each one of its employees. W. S. Shallenberger, acting postmaster general, signs this order, and in it he insists that former orders about the use of time recorders in postoffices must be obeyed.

The time of employees, as taken from the records made by themselves, shall be regarded as the official time. The recorders are to be used by the assistant postmaster superintendents, clerks, carriers and all other employees in reporting for duty, on leaving for or returning from trips or meals and at the close of the day's work.

At least once daily the aggregate time (total number of working hours and minutes served by each employee) must be entered in a time book, and the tapes with the original record securely pasted in a scrapbook furnished by the department for that purpose. The failure of an employee to register will be treated as a violation of the regulations and must be reported to the department by the postmaster for action.

Personnel Law a Failure.
It is generally conceded that the personnel bill, for which the engineer corps of the navy fought for years and years, has been a big disappointment to its originators. It gave to them positive rank for which they longed, but it wiped out their corps organization and absorbed the individuality of most of its members. The main argument that was put forward as a reason for its passage has fallen flat. This related to the alternating duty feature, by which all the officers under the grade of lieutenant commander were to be fitted for duty in the engine room and deck. It was claimed that by the adoption of this scheme there would be 1,000 officers equipped for both line and staff work. The practical operation of the law was vastly different from what had been planned for it. The engineers gladly took to the line, but the members of the line did not rush forward and ask for places in the engine room. It is said that less than two dozen of line officers have qualified for engineering work. Now, however, the department is to compel the young line officers to take up engineering duty, so the conditions promise to improve.

The Work Before Congress.
In Washington there is usually earlier talk than elsewhere as to the coming session of congress. Just now those most familiar with public affairs are convinced that the next congress will deal with a greater volume of more important business in its first session than has almost any of its predecessors for a third of a century. Besides the tariff and subsidy questions, there are the vital matters of insular government, the extension or not of the constitution to the new possessions and the re-enactment of the Chinese exclusion law, additional immigration legislation, the lengthening of the congressional and presidential terms by a few weeks to enable the inauguration of president and vice president to occur in clement weather and to provide for the assembling of congress earlier after its election.

No Corn Doctors.
Surgeon General Sternberg of the army objects to the employment of corn doctors in that service, as has been recommended by Colonel Phillip Reade, lately on duty at St. Paul as inspector general. The army medical officers say, in the first place, that the men selected for military duty are not of the half lame and decrepit variety, and if anything happens to the feet of soldiers it is likely to be more serious than can be attended to by so called pedal surgeons, or, as they are more commonly known, chiropodists. It is true that soldiers suffer a great deal as a result of long marches, but the remedy for this is in following the rules laid down by the doctors for the care of the feet and in supplying the army with a shoe which is at once comfortable and serviceable.

Colonel Reade's scheme for supplying the army with a new kind of doctor will not be adopted.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Yerkes states that such articles as are subject to an internal revenue tax when brought to the United States from Porto Rico for consumption may be reshipped to a foreign port without the payment of the tax.

Stepped Into Life Coals.

"When a child I burned my foot frightfully," writes W. H. Eads, of Jonesville, Va., "which caused horrible leg sores for 30 years, but Bucklen's Amlca Salve wholly cured me after everything else failed." Infallible for burns, scalds, cuts, sores, bruises and piles. Sold by G. S. Darling and J. E. Dillon 25c.

"Conductor's Clasp."

Such is the name of the new disease which The Free Lance declares has been added to the medical repertory through the "hurry scurry" of the age and the bounding propensity of the young and active woman. The cause is this: A bus appears in sight. The modern girl makes a leap on to the lower step. When in midair, the conductor grips her hard midway between the shoulder blade and the biceps. The grip or clasp is followed by bruises and contusions. The arm, affected by successive grips, gets tender and sometimes swollen. Medical aid is called in, with more or less effect. This is the new disorder known as conductor's clasp.—London Globe.

Private Schmidt's Shooting Score.

A letter to the Boston Transcript says that Private Schmidt of Company D, Fourteenth United States Infantry, now camped at the rifle range near Mount Clemens, Mich., made a score at shooting at 600 yards that broke the record of the whole army. The target was a dummy man. Nineteen out of 20 of his shots took effect, any of which would have caused instant death in a living man, while the twentieth shot would have inflicted a serious or fatal wound. Schmidt's achievement is said to be not only unparalleled in United States army rifle shooting records, but also without precedent in similar practice anywhere in the world.

Wolfe's Monument Neglected.

"It is sad," writes a Quebec correspondent of the London Post, "to see the state of Wolfe's monument today. Rank grass grows high inside the rusty and worn iron railings. The column is cracked and if nothing be done must soon perish. The monument, a simple column, with a helmet and sword on the top, and its inscription, 'Wolfe Died Here, Victorious, 13 Sept., 1759,' is sublime in its simplicity. The present sordid surroundings of the scene of the hero's death cannot be helped, but surely the monument itself on the spot on which he died should not be left uncareed for."

The Two Prayers.

A professional interviewer in Current Literature gives an account of how he once tried to corner General O. O. Howard. General Howard is, as everybody knows, a very religious man, and the professional interviewer got him to talk upon the subject of the efficacy of prayer. Speaking of a certain battle in the civil war in which Stonewall Jackson had badly beaten a Union force in which General Howard held a command, the interviewer asked: "I suppose that before the battle you prayed very earnestly?" "Yes," said General Howard, "I did."

"And I suppose that Stonewall Jackson prayed with equal earnestness on the other side?" "Undoubtedly," said General Howard. "Then, as he was successful and as he won the battle, either his cause was the right one or else the praying made no difference."

"No," said General Howard very softly. "He prayed that he might win that particular battle, while I prayed for the final triumph of our cause. So you see the prayer of each was granted."

Twenty per cent of the prisoners in the Chicago jail are victims of the morphine, cocaine or other drug habits.

Pigs in the Orchard.
Let the pigs pick up all the fruit that falls from the trees as fast as it drops. It will destroy the source of lots of pests to the fruit trees.

A new remedy for indigestion is now on sale at Dr. G. S. Darling's drug store. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. Samples free.

A Magnificent Contest.

A more beautiful test of seamanship was never witnessed than the contest between the Columbia and the Shamrock on Saturday. It would seem that in designing the lines of a racing yacht there is a little more to be accomplished, so closely do the contestants resemble each other in general plan. Prolonged tests of various models in experimental tanks have shown designers how to produce a hull of given bulk which will offer least resistance to the water, but when it comes to the air surface or sail area, there is still much to discover. Here the designers are dealing with an invisible element, and even after the most elaborate experiment the sailmaker never sure that he has attained the limits of his skill.

A racing yacht is a machine which requires the most delicate balance in order to attain the best results. The aim of the designers is to make a given yacht carry a large area of canvas and stand up stiffly under it. The position of the spar and the sail arrangement and area must be so adjusted to the balance of the hull that the latter will always present the least resistance to the water. When a boat is over-canvased, her speed is apt to be retarded instead of enhanced, and at the same time there is danger that something in her rigging may give before a sudden puff of wind. This balance cannot be figured out by mathematics with sufficient accuracy. It must be attained by experiment and adjustment at the hands of skilled yachtsmen who know where to look for error.

The two contestants for the American cup are evidently closely matched. It is doubtful if ever the contestants were so nearly matched before. On measurement it would seem that the Shamrock, with her larger spread of canvas and slight difference of hull, ought to run away from the Columbia for if the balance of her hull can be maintained, all that spread of canvas means additional power. When she showed a slight superiority over the Columbia in windward work Saturday, it looked as if it was all over but the whistle-tooting, for with that advantage of canvas squared to the wind many thought she would make a far greater gain on the homeward run. To their surprise, Columbia sneaked up and won handily without drawing upon her time allowance.

As far as seamanship is concerned, it is doubtful if a better crew could be mustered than Sir Thomas has furnished Captain Sycamore. Their maneuvering for advantage showed that every inch of the way. The Columbia won apparently because her sail plan is more delicately adjusted to her requirements, and because Capt. Barr knows his boat thoroughly at every angle of the wind and in every velocity of wind. He knows what she will do under all conditions, and adjusts her sail area accordingly.

Greater interest was never manifested in a cup contest. Sir Thomas Lipton has shown himself such a gallant yachtsman that a great many Americans, who lack nothing in love of victory and national pride, have expressed the wish that he might have the honor of winning it back. They have confidence in the seamanship of American sailors and in the ability of American designers, and therefore feel that a loss of the cup would be but a temporary loss. The yachts competing are better matched than ever before, so the eyes of all America and all Britain are centered upon this friendly contest, each realizing that the final result is still uncertain. Sir Thomas is wishing for a stiff blow and every American will give him the benefit of prayers, for Capt. Barr undoubtedly knows what the Columbia can do in heavy weather, and his countrymen have confidence in him and in his magnificent craft.—Evening News.

Horses Scarce and Costly.
The horse is not extinct yet, but persons in the horse business report that he is scarce and costly. They say that in the neighborhood of New York $5 horses have been bringing $40 or $50 and $50 horses $150 or $200. The chief reason for the dearth given by a dealer quoted in one of the neighborhood papers is "electric scare." It may be remembered that it was given out two or three years ago that all the horse work was soon to be done by electricity. The farmers and breeders, it seems, took these assurances so much to heart that fewer colts were raised. Then the Spanish war put the government in the market for horses and mules; the Boer war has made a market for 50,000 more; the horse distemper early in the summer killed some; the extreme heat killed many more, and altogether horses are scarce. Evidently it is going to take time to wean humanity from horses. It can't be done in a single generation, even though Edison's storage battery turns out to be all that is hoped.—Harper's Weekly.

Unfortunate Andree.
"Now that so much interest is being shown in polar explorations," says the Boston Herald, "it may be interesting to remember that Andree, the unfortunate explorer who attempted to reach the pole by means of a balloon, set a limit, which has just elapsed, beyond which his return might not be expected. He said, 'If you have no news of me by the end of July, 1901, you may give me up for dead.'"
"As a matter of fact, he has been given up for a long time, though as yet no light has been thrown on how far north he ever went or what was the cause of the disaster by which he lost his life. Possibly some traces of him will be found by the expeditions that are to operate to the north of Franz-Josef Land."
"The Swedish government still offers rewards for any one finding the remains of the balloon or any object that belonged to the expedition, and it is announced that this offer will remain open until the end of 1905."

A Shipbuilding School.
"According to advices from Kiel, the new high school there for the teaching of shipbuilding and construction of machinery will be opened in 1903," writes the Berlin correspondent of the London Express. "The school will be wholly in the hands of the state, but the cost will only in part be borne by the state, the town of Kiel contributing £3,000. There will be one department for the learning of shipbuilding, each course lasting one year, and another department for machinery, the course of instruction being divided into four quarters of the year, classes being held in the evenings and on Sundays for shipwrights, locksmiths and smiths. The Krupp Germania wharf has already promised as much as £250 annually for the next ten years toward the expense."

W. T. Wessoh, Gholsonville, Va. druggist, writes: "Your One Minute Cough Cure gives perfect satisfaction. My customers say it is the best remedy for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles." Dr. C. A. Wakeman.

The Dog's Funeral.

With much ceremony and many manifestations of grief a pet fox terrier, the property of two daughters of a wealthy New Yorker, was buried in a fancy sealed coffin on a beautiful knoll overlooking the Housatonic river, and an expensive tablet will be erected to mark the grave.

The terrier belonged to the Misses A. and M. Harris, whose father owns a fine summer residence in Zoar Bridge, a hamlet seven miles from Derby, Conn. The dog died in New York, and the young ladies, accompanied by F. S. O'Connor, a friend, who acted as undertaker and sexton, arrived from New York. In the baggage car was the coffin which contained the body of their pet.

The party was driven to the Bassett House for dinner. In the afternoon the coffin was opened, and a last look was taken at the dead pet. Then the funeral party went to Mr. Harris' country home. On a knoll which is a part of the estate on the green bank of the river the dog was interred with as much solemnity as would attend the funeral of a child.

The Owl.

Get a peanut with as large a top to it as possible. Paint or mark on each side with your pen a round black spot where the eye should be. Make little marks on the shell to indicate feathers. To make wings use a small piece of common tissue paper, which you must cut in the shape of wings and spatter with ink. Paste these wings on the back of the peanut. Make the eyes of little round pieces of silver or white paper and stick a pin through them, with which you can then fasten the eyes to the peanut at the black spot. You must now get a little twig and fasten the peanut to it by running two pins through the branch. Thus you will be able to make a very fair specimen of the owl tribe.

Jennie's Boots.

Jennie's boots were wearing out, and, holding up her foot to her mother so that she might see the sole hanging loose, she said:
"Look, mamma, the skin's coming off my boot."

A curious study of the decadence
of a New England village is contributed to the Review of Reviews for October by "A Sometime Villager."
This writer, who has been acquainted with the fortunes of the village in question, and of the people who have gone out from it, for nearly half a century, conducts his readers along the village street, noting the familiar landmarks and the changes which have occurred in the different houses.
The story that is told of these old dwellings and their former occupants is an interesting summary of social facts and conditions.

edy and three doses relieved me entirely." This remedy is for sale by Dr. G. S. Darling.

"THE BEST EVER!"

That is the Verdict as to the 27th Annual Fair.

"The best fair ever held," seems to be the universal verdict relative to the 27th annual exhibition of the Iosco County Agricultural Society,
which closed last Friday.

Every department was well filled with fine exhibits and a large attendance was had every day, that of Friday being estimated as the largest ever known at a fair in this county.

In the stock department the exhibits exceeded last year by about 40 per cent, the grain exhibits were 75 per cent larger, the fruit about 60 per cent, dairy and household 80 per cent, and an average of 50 per cent increase in the other departments.
This is an excellent showing when it is remembered that last year's exhibits exceeded those of several years previous.

The receipts were the largest in several years and are sufficient to meet all expenses of the fair and cover the repairs and improvements
on the grounds.

The attractions in the amusement line were the best ever held. The races were good. In the free-for-all race on Friday, Kate Sprague, owned by D. Cody, of Oscoda, took first, and Sixty-six, owned by W. H. Quesnell, of AuSable, second. The running race was won by W. H. Clough's Buckskin, Sam Anker's mare taking second.

Thursday the Turner Juniors defeated the East Tawas Leaders, at base ball by a score of 6 to 8. Friday forenoon the Baldwin team beat Tawas City by a score of 23 to 11.
In the afternoon Tawas City defeated
East Tawas by a score of 12 to 11.

The balloon ascensions by the Keyes' Bros. Amusement Co. were the big drawing card of the fair, and no one who saw them were disappointed. Two better ascensions and parachute drops were never witnessed.
That of Thursday was exceptionally fine. The weather was ideal for the occasion and the balloon attained a height of at least a half a mile before the parachute was cut loose and soared gracefully to the ground within a quarter of a mile of the grounds. The balloon landed about a half mile out in the bay. The ascensions were made by W. G. McGreanor.

Next week we will publish the entire list of prize winners.

At Tawas Next Year.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Association of Northern Michigan held their annual reunion at Lewiston last week,
and a highly enjoyable time is reported. The Association accepted the invitation of the Tawasess to hold their 1902 reunion at this point, and it now devolves on the citizens of the two cities to make that occasion a success. The officers elected for the ensuing year are:

- President—J. M. Walker.
  - Vice President—L. B. Smith.
  - Secretary—B. F. Oakes.
  - Quartermaster—R. Wade.
- The date of holding the next reunion is left to the committee to be appointed.

"I had long suffered from indigestion," writes G. A. LeDeis, Cedar City, Mo. "Like others I tried many preparations but never found anything that did me good until I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. One bottle cured me. A friend who had suffered similarly I put on the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. He is gaining fast and will soon be able to work. Be-he used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure indigestion had made him a total wreck. Dr. C. A. Wakeman.

amining my books.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R.
Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is sold by G. S.
Darling.
