An Important Experiment.

Many sheep growers in the country surrounding the sugar factories of the Saginaw valley and especially the small farmer who keeps but a comparatively few head of sheep grazing on his land, will watch with interest the results of the practical test to be made by W. H. Gilbert, of Bay City, in the matter of feeding lambs on sugar beet pulp noted several weeks ago in The News. While the past two years have witnessed a number of experiments in the feeding of cattle on beet pulp and beet leaves the majority of these have been on a small scale and although some satisfactory results have been reported the experiments have hardly been broad enough or of sufficient duration to offer a basis for any definite conclusions. In the present case the work will be done under the supervision or rather inspection of a representative from the Michigan Agricultural college at Lansing, so that when the test is finished in the spring, some definite and accurate results may be announced.

Mr. Gilbert last week had sent to this state from Montana 6,500 head of lambs. Of these 4,200 were placed at the sugar factory silos at Lansing, where they will be fed until spring. Their rations will consist of sugar beet pulp and clover hay, and it is claimed by those interested that the percentage of gain over those lambs fed on dry feed and such grazing as they may find will result in an increased value in the spring time.

The amount of food will be carefully estimated, and each month the lambs will be weighed by the Michigan Agricultural college inspector so that an accurate record may be had in the spring of the development of these lambs. Silos have been erected at the Lansing factory at a cost of $4,000 and all the conditions for a successful experiment have been carefully arranged so that the results in the spring should prove of value in determining the efficiency of sugar beet pulp as a feed.

In addition to the experiment to be made at Lansing, Mr. Gilbert has also placed 1,000 sheep in Ionia and the remaining 1,300 head have been scattered at various points throughout Bay county and so far as possible they will also be fed on beet pulp so that in the raising of the 6,500 head of lambs, their development will be watched under varying weather and home conditions, thus making the experiment broad in its scope.

Mr. Gilbert is himself the largest sugar beet grower in the state and he has great confidence in the value of the pulp as a food. He believes that sheep fed as these will be, on the beet pulp and clover, will present a meat which will be worth about 2 cents more per pound next spring than the ordinary run of lambs.

The train bearing this immense lot of sheep was an interesting one. It was composed of twenty-one cars, each containing over 300 sheep. Mr. Gilbert attempted to interest the Bay City factor in his experiment and wanted to have the silos erected there and the process of fattening in progress at his home city, but the sugar interests there did not take to the idea and so he closed arrangements with the Lansing people for the care of his flock.—Saginaw News.

A Village Blacksmith Saved his Little Sons Lite.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well-known village blacksmith at Grahamsville, Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to babe as to an adult. For sale by G. S. Darling druggist.

The Companion's Seventy-Sixth Volume.

In 1902—the seventy-sixth year of its publication—The Youth's Companion promises more varied attractions for its readers than ever before, and The Companion always gives more than it promises. The government of the United States will be represented in contributions from Secretary of the Treasury Gage, Secretary of the Navy Long, Postmaster General Smith, and Assistant Secretary of War Sanger—a list, it is believed never equalled in a previous year.

The government of Great Britain will be represented by contributions from the Duke of Argyll, the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava and the Rt. Hon. James Bryce, T. P. O'Connor and Winton S. Churchill, of the house of commons.

Other noteworthy contributions will be Wu Ting-Fang, Chinese minister at Washington, Booker T. Washington, president of the Tuskegee Institute, Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court, Gen. Charles King and Rear-Admiral Hichborn, while more than two hundred of the most popular of living story-writers will contribute from four to six fascinating stories to each of the 52 issues of The Youth's Companion for 1902.

To all new subscribers for 1902 and to those renewing their subscriptions, The Companion will send its beautiful 1902 calendar, lithographed in twelve colors and gold. By sending $1.75 before Jan. 1, the new subscriber will receive free all the remaining issues of 1901 from the time the subscription is received.

Obituary.

Mrs. Alice Reynolds, whose sudden death occurred at Onaway, on Friday, Nov. 22, of heart failure, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Davis, of this city, and was well known here.

The deceased was born at Sarma, Ont., Sept. 1, 1882, and came with her parents to this city in 1892, where she lived until about a year when she was united in marriage ago to A. W. Reynolds, and has since resided at Onaway until her death. She was of a happy, pleasing disposition and won many friends wherever she was known, and her short year of married life was a very happy one. She was a most faithful and devoted wife and the bereaved husband is nearly prostrated at her untimely end. She leaves a husband, a three-week-old son, father, mother, two brothers and two sisters, besides a host of friends to mourn her loss.

The funeral was conducted from the Baptist church last Wednesday, by Rev. Waterbury and Rev. Barry, and the remains laid at rest in the city cemetery. * * *

CARD OF THANKS.

To all those who so kindly assisted us in our great bereavement we wish to extend our heartfelt thanks, and we would especially remember the kindness of Rev. Barry, also of Mrs. Boynton, the members of the band and all others at Onaway whose assistance was so opportune and whose just reward can only be given by a Higher Power.

A. W. REYNOLDS,
MR. and MRS. M. C. DAVIS,
AND FAMILY.

To Patrons of Education.

On Saturday December 14, there will convene in this city, at the high school building, the 12th annual convention of Iosco Teachers. Efforts have been made to make this meeting one of the most interesting in the history of the association. Neither time nor labor has been spared in the preparation of this educational treat. The gathering of educators is headed by W. N. Ferris who will deliver his masterly oration on "Success" at the M. E. church Friday evening. The association meets but once in two or three years in this city and every effort should be put forth by teachers and patrons of education to be in attendance. Special arrangements have been made to receive the several boards of education in the county and the clergy. Limited time will be granted to any whose names do not appear on the program, who have practical ideas in touch with modern education. This will be an excellent opportunity to come and find fault with the teachers and their methods. If requested, a special half hour will be set aside for that purpose. None need feel alarmed of being present as due precaution has been taken to avoid riot and bloodshed.

Chicory and Flax.

Labor Commissioner Griswold reports seven chicory factories in Michigan with a daily capacity of 169 tons, and a capitalization of $175,000. Two of these manufacture the article complete as a substitute for coffee. The others at which the roots are washed, sliced and evaporated only, are located at Bad Axe, Bay City, New Haven, Capac and Ann Arbor. These five factories have an output of 16 tons of dried product per day, the value of which is $37 per ton.

The flax industry, comparatively new in Michigan, is thriving, although still confined to St. Clair county, where James Livingston & Co. own and operate six factories which use annually 4,000 tons of raw material.

Let there be a Punishment for the Crime.

The tragic death rate among hunters in the woods of Michigan this fall has been greater than ever before, considering the number of sportsmen in the woods. The dispatches every day tell of the "accidental" shooting of some hunter by another who had mistaken the victim for a deer. The coroner's jury meets, the sportsman gives his testimony with tears in his eyes, and a verdict of accidental death is rendered. But this does not bring back the life that has met with such an untimely end. Nothing can atone for its loss, the removal of the support of some family, the making of wife a widow, and children fatherless. It is nothing but gross carelessness, and the laws of Michigan ought to be altered so as to prescribe some penalty for the fool hunters who go through the woods firing recklessly at every moving leaf or animate object that may come within the range of their defective vision.

A man who may engage in a fight with a companion and give him an accidental blow which results in death is a seneable to the law, but the hunter who shoots down a man in the woods goes scot free, if he says he mistook his victim for a deer. Upwards of twenty-five homes in Michigan have been thrown into mourning this fall by the carelessness of these hunters, and something ought to be done about it. Only Friday came the news from Gaylord that a man sitting in his buggy, driving along a public highway, was mistaken for a deer and shot dead. Is there no protection for the unwary traveler upon the highways of Michigan? Must every person who ventures into the woods go encased in a suit of sheet steel armor, that he may be sure of returning home without a piece of lead in his body? That is what we are coming to.

There is no excuse for a man shooting another because the latter has a piece of burlap in his buggy. It is nothing more than a crime, gross carelessness, for which punishment ought to be provided. Fix a penalty of five years in Jackson state prison for the man who thus takes the life of another, and these so-called accidents will begin to disappear. A man may have an enemy in the woods. He shoots him down, intentionally, and if he says he mistook him for a deer, the law allows him to go scot free. Until the legislature takes some action along the line indicated, there need be no hope of ever stopping the wanton destruction of human life in the hunting districts of Michigan.

A majority of Michigan hunters may know how to use a gun. A third of them ought never to be allowed to have a gun in their possession, and a quarter of them are so easily taken with buck fever that they fire at any moving thing, man or beast. Let the legislature enact a law that will cover this feature and there will be at least some safety of passing along a public highway in the north woods.—Bay City Sunday Times.

A Physician Testifies.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and never used anything that did me the good that did," says County Physician Geo. W. Scroggs, Hail County, Ga. "As a physician I have prescribed it with the best results." If food remains undigested in your stomach it decays. To prevent this by dieting means starvation. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. You need suffer neither dyspepsia nor starvation. Dr. C. A. Wakeman.

HARDY SHRUBS.

Some Valuable Ones, Including Very Late Bloomers.

In regard to the common American holly the demand is increasing and prices have advanced. It will succeed almost anywhere. It does well on soil not particularly rich and, if neglected, will still thrive. I think it would be well if some of our farmers could devote from a quarter of an acre to ten acres to this plant. It would prove profitable. The market will take all you can raise of it.

Ligustrum japonicum has large, broad foliage, and is supposed to be rather more evergreen than the California privet. It is claimed to be hardy in Philadelphia.

Ligustrum legellanum is a type which is perfectly hardy even in the west and northwest. The winter two years ago killed out the California privet through that section, both root and branch. In habit of growth it is spreading and semiweeping. It will make a valuable plant as a single specimen, and I think it desirable as a hedge plant.

A French friend called my attention on the other side to Ligustrum coriaticum, a plant very little known in this country. I have carried it through the winter for four consecutive seasons. The plant is evergreen, of slow growth, but of especial beauty and resembles in growth Eonymus japonica.

A plant not seen very frequently on our grounds, but one of great merit, is the Daphne cneorum. The season of bloom is from midsummer to October. It is very fragrant and is a charming little plant, not showy, but one that should be in every collection.

Among spiraea there is one variety which has been overlooked—the Spiraea callosa froebelii, which was introduced about the same time as the Anthony Waterer and but for this coincidence would have had as great a run. It has a better color than the old Spiraea burmalda, but not quite so deep as the Anthony Waterer. It is in constant bloom from early spring until fall; foliage is of especial beauty.

The Caryopteris mastacantha, or blue spiraea, is not perfectly hardy. The tops kill back every winter; the root is hardly with me, and the effect of the winter freezing is only that of necessary pruning. Its season of bloom is from Sept. 15 until Oct. 15, color blue, and I know of nothing more showy in its season.

I planted last spring for the first time a Tamarix odessana, which is not entirely new to the horticultural world. The season of bloom is from July to October; foliage of a bluish green. Its great value is the long term of blooming late in the season. Its species is hardy as far north as Milwaukee.—H. F. Jones, New Jersey.

It was decided to organize a Michigan Sugar manufacturers' association, and to also send a delegate from each company to the meeting of the beet sugar manufacturers' convention which meets at Washington Dec. 10.

One of the most enjoyable occasions ever held in this city occurred Tuesday evening at the institution of Tawas City Chapter, Order of Eastern Star. The work of installing the new lodge was done by Grand Worthy Matron, Mrs. Denner, of Ionia, and Grand Worthy Patron Brown, of Lapeer. The new organization started with a membership of 23, and a large number of applications on file. After the work of organization was completed a fine banquet was served which was attended by a large number of the Masonic fraternity.

Information in official sources is that some of the companies owning Michigan beet sugar factories are collecting statistics to determine whether they cannot profitably refine Hawaiian and Cuban raw cane sugar during the half year and more that their factories are now closed after the season's crop of beets has been ground. Raw Cuban sugar is now delivered in New York and Philadelphia at 1 1/2 to 2 cents a pound. It is believed that the same article could be delivered in Michigan at less than 3 cents a pound and

The many friends of Mr. Ed. Graham, of Laidlawville, will regret to learn that his health still continues so poor that he finds it necessary to quit farming, and for that reason will offer at public auction, on Friday, Dec. 6, 1901, at one o'clock, the following property, to-wit: one span horses, a yearling colt, a spring colt, three spring calves, a wagon, buggy, spring tooth drag, disc, plow, garden seeder, a pair of sleighs, cutter, heavy and light harness, a quantity of hay, oats and peas and other farm implements. The terms of sale will be cash for all sums under $10, and one year's time on sums over $10 at 7 per cent interest on approved notes. Cash will be required for the hay, peas and oats.

"Just charge it to me," said a man who had left an order with a merchant. "No," said the merchant, "for your sake as well as my own I will not give you credit. You are honest at heart and work hard all the time and intend to pay, but you have a habit of buying on credit, and buy too much and cannot pay your bills. It would be a Godsend to you if every one refused you credit. You are in debt up to your eyes, although your neighbor, whose salary is not as large as yours has money in the bank, simply because he refuses to buy things until he can pay for them in cash. I mean this kindly, stop and reflect over the matter carefully."

BROWN'S CASH STORE,

OPPOSITE DEBOR, TAWAS, MICH.

How to make cheese on the farm is told by Mrs. Frank Norton in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. She says: I use my night and morning's milk and stir all together till well mixed, pour into boiler on the stove and heat slowly till the thermometer stands at 90 degrees, stirring it often to prevent scorching. Now pour it off into your tub or churn if you have it. If you have about twelve gallons of milk, it will take one rennet tablet to make it. If less, take less of the tablet in proportion as one tablet makes 100 pounds of milk.

Dissolve the rennet in about two tablespoonfuls of warm water. When the milk has cooled to 85 degrees, stir in the dissolved rennet. Stir constantly till thoroughly mixed. In about three minutes you will see the milk is changing to cheese. Cease stirring now and cover up for about fifteen minutes. A higher temperature than 85 degrees hastens the process, but wastes the butter fat and makes the curd tough.

Handle curd very gently till it is solid, as rough or quick treatment causes escape of butter fat and impoverishes the cheese. Now lift the cloth and find the whole mass coagulated. Take a long knife and cut clear across from side to side and clear to the bottom with long, slow, sweeping strokes. Let stand a few minutes and dip off all freed whey with saucer or skimmer. Cross cut as before, leaving curd in inch squares. Dip off whey again. Again cut curd and dip whey. It collects very rapidly, and the tub can be tilted so as to drain off, or if churn is used tilt it and put a saucer inside to prevent curd from blocking the passage after pulling out the churn plug.

Let it drain this way, cutting occasionally as before till the curd is quite solid and squeaks when moved. Salt to taste and chop fine with chopping knife. Lay a square of muslin in your hoop (pail or peck measure). The muslin should be dipped and wrung out of hot water. Pour in the chopped curd. Bring corners of muslin up and pin over top of curd. Never mind if hoop is ever so full. It will sink down. Set to drip on top of pail or pan. Put light weights on at first. I use my two flatirons that have the patent handle.

Let it now stand this way for four hours. Take out and change muslin and turn cheese; return to the hoop, add more weight and repeat this till cheese only makes the cloth damp. I usually change cloth and turn cheese about twice a day. Thirty-six hours is sufficient time for a small sized cheese to press. Now take from hoop, cut cheesecloth to fit around cheese large enough to lap on both ends of cheese. Cut two pieces to fit ends. Now smear all over with good salt butter. Put your cheesecloth smoothly on and paste down smooth with butter to keep out cheese fly. Put cheese in cool, dry, airy place and rub and turn every day to keep off mold. If butter dries in, put on a little more.

Dairying in Denmark. There are 1,713,735 cows in Denmark, an average of 456 for every 100 acres of land under cultivation and 736 for every 1,000 inhabitants. In 1898 the butter exported amounted to 121,418,431 pounds, in 1899 to 122,412,533 pounds and in 1900 to 124,623,211 pounds, of which 3,593,362 pounds were packed in tins. The remainder was in firkins.

The proper harvesting and preservation of the hay crop have a great influence on dairying, especially winter dairying, says G. E. Newell in American Cultivator.

A wise and consequently successful dairyman is always looking ahead a year or more and making his plans accordingly.

He knows that because hay is a winter food for cows is tabooed by some is due to the reason that it is improperly cured and stored in the summer.

If we could only have weather made to order during haying, a much better quality of fodder than the average would result.

Whether, even with the most favorable weather conditions some farmers would never have good hay.

They harvest it too expeditiously and then pack the imperfectly cured grass into tight barns, where the excess moisture it contains results later in musty or "smoky" hay.

The bulk of the hay crop in the United States is harvested, according to latitude, prior to the middle of July, and it has long been considered as a rushing season of work.

With modern machinery the ease and rapidity with which the crop can be handled tempts the farmer to imperfect curing, and this is a point that I wish to speak about.

Do not put damp hay into large mows or stacks. If the grass contains an admixture of clover after a few hours' sun in the swath, cure it in cocks capped if necessary against any possibility of rain.

The idea is to get the moisture pretty well out of the hay before it has been stored away in bulk and yet not let it become too dry and bleached by too much sun.

The so-called "sweating" process that freshly cured hay passes through, being simply the evaporation of excess moisture, should take place under conditions in which air can freely circulate through it.

By this plan fresh, sweet hay can be fed out to the cows in winter, resulting in an increased milk flow and augmented dairy profits.

The principal reason that hay has fallen into such disrepute as feed for dairy cows is because there is so much poor hay fed.

Where hay is stacked it will always pay to thoroughly protect the top and sides against any inclemency in the weather. Balloon framed sheds are useful for this purpose, but they must have tight roofs.

The Pastures. One of the surprising things in farming is the gradual development of land to a point where it will yield returns never dreamed of by the early cultivators, says Professor James S. Doty in American Cultivator. Over in parts of England and Scotland farmers and dairymen make a living from pasture lands which have an assessed valuation of $400 and $500 an acre. They do this when prices for the products are no greater than American farmers receive.

The secret of their success is necessity. They have been forced to make every square inch of soil pay its highest profit, and as a result they have some of the finest pastures in the world. The soil is so thick and compact that it is almost impossible to cut through it. The roots form a solid mass in the soil, and the grass grows luxuriantly, even defying dry weather and producing good crops in spite of close cropping and late in the season, when frost ordinarily kills less successful pasture.

The thing it is the farmers have cultivated the soil, planted and replanted grass seeds, dressed the pastures repeatedly with fertilizers and made them in every way productive and fertile. The soil is not more adapted naturally to pastures than millions of acres in this country which today produce only indifferent crops of grass. The soil is made artificially rich, and the soil is the result of careful, intensive farming.

To Get Good Pastures. In the first place the ideal pasture land must be seeded with good seed, and liberal expenditure of fertilizers must be made annually. Then weeds must be religiously destroyed, pulled up root and branch every year. It is impossible to get a good pasture unless weeds are pulled up. If this work is continued carefully every year, in four or five seasons weeds will have no chance whatever. The grass roots will occupy the soil so completely that no weeds can find lodgment there.

Weeds are the bane of American pasture fields, and the more they are allowed to grow and produce seeds the more obnoxious they will become. It is impossible to get grass seed today that will not have some weeds in it, and the only hope of the farmer is to pull up the weeds as fast as they show themselves. Good culture of grass pastures will pay as much as any kind of farming ever attempted in this country and especially where the land is located near large cities and good markets for dairy products.

Silage For Dry Cows. Silage and hay will make a good growing and maintenance feed for young stock and dry cows, but will not suffice for cows from which one expects any considerable amount of milk, says Hoard's Dairyman. One reason for this is that such feed is very bulky, and the cow cannot eat enough of it to supply the necessary nutriment for bodily maintenance and furnish solids for milk. A further reason is that a ration composed exclusively of silage and hay does not contain enough protein. Therefore if the cows are giving considerable milk they should have some concentrated feed fairly rich in protein, such as bran, gluten feed, gluten meal, brewers' grain, cottonseed meal, etc.

For the young stock and dry cows feed from five to ten pounds of hay and all the silage they will eat or conversely twenty-five to forty pounds of silage and all the hay they will eat without any waste.

GRADES AND FULL BLOODS

Value of Registered Bulls in Building Up a Dairy Herd.

In 1892 my uncle owned a herd of grade Jerseys and natives averaging 200 pounds of butter per year. We had the chance to secure a bull calf by paying express charges from a registered Jersey cow that had a record of twenty-one pounds of butter in seven days, says a Vermont farmer in Hoard's Dairyman. Two years later he secured another from the same herd whose dam was the daughter of the above mentioned cow and had made as a three-year-old eighteen pounds eight ounces of butter in seven days.

What is the result? His herd averaged 300 pounds and a little over in 1899.

At that time we took it, and for the year ending Aug. 1, 1900, we sold 220 pounds of butter fat per cow at the creamery. Adding one-seventh for surplus or overrun, we have 320 pounds of butter per cow for that year.

JERSEY COW PRIMROSE DAISY.

We then commenced making butter at home, and we have made 325 pounds per cow from twenty cows this last year.

This herd is now headed by a Hood Farm bull, for which we had to pay a good price, but had far better do it than to breed any grade Jersey bull we know of.

The first two bulls were sold here in town, and nearly every farmer says that his best cows were sired by one or the other of them.

I have had several years' experience with registered Jerseys, and to my mind our grade herd is just as good for milk and butter as thoroughbreds, but of course they will not sell for a fancy price. It seems to me that it is better for a poor farmer to grade up a herd in this way than to pay for registered Jersey cows. And remember and see that the bull you buy has not only a long pedigree back of him, but a butter and milk pedigree as well. Our bull is grandson of Old Pedro and has splendid butter and milk ancestry.

Drying Up Dairy Cows.

Many farmers are thinking of turning their cows dry. Some have begun to do so already, perhaps in order that they may winter them more cheaply, says F. E. Uhl in Kansas Farmer. Should this be done? The answer to this question depends upon the circumstances. Many Kansas cows can be doubt be turned dry with profit to their owners, but it would be folly to dry up all of them. The best cow, the young, promising heifer, should not share the fate of her beefy sisters.

Let us note the cows that may yield better returns from eating only coarse roughness. Those that are unprofitable at best, yielding less than enough to pay for feed and care in an ordinary year, the slow and hard milker, may as well eat at the second table unless they have lately or soon will come fresh. The fairly good cow could be dried off in many cases after she has given the most of her flow for the year. The beefy cow must certainly take a back seat.

There are some cows, however, which should have the best, and these are the best cows, together with the heifers, which may become best cows. Cows which usually pay well for feed and care should be well fed even at some sacrifice, especially if they are fresh late in summer or fall.

Ripening Cream.

Cream should be ripened at a temperature of 70 to 85 degrees F., owing to the length of time in ripening and the amount of acidity when started, says A. J. Myers in Kansas Farmer. The texture of the butter depends upon the changes of temperature brought about during the ripening process. To get a good firm texture in the butter it is necessary that the cream be subjected to a temperature below 50 degrees F. for several hours some time during the ripening. Butter makers differ as to the best time to hold cream at this low temperature. Some hold that it should be cooled immediately after separation to below 50 degrees F. and held at this temperature. Others claim that the best plan is to hold the cream at a temperature favorable for the growth of lactic acid germs (75 to 80 degrees F.) until the cream contains the required amount of acidity for churning and then cool to below 50 degrees F. and hold until ready to be churned.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough, Cold and Bronchitis Remedy," says Mr. E. S. Phillips of Brown, Ark. "I cured me of whooping cough. I cannot speak too highly of it. This remedy always was the good one, if not praise of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere." For sale by G. S. Darling, druggist.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels making you feel like a new man. For sale by G. S. Darling, druggist.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:
BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.
Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.
About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.
I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.
I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain
Very truly yours,
F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Our treatment does not interfere with your usual occupation. Examination and advice free.

The Children's Friend.

For coughs, croup, bronchitis, grip and other winter complaints. One Minute Cough Cure never fails. Pleasant to the taste and perfectly safe. J. B. George, Winchester Ky. "Our little girl was attacked with croup one night and so hoarse she could hardly speak. We gave her a few doses of One Minute Cough Cure. It relieved her immediately. When she awoke next morning she had no signs of hoarseness or croup." Dr. C. A. Wakeman.
