The SPORTING WORLD

Going to Henley.

C. S. Titus, the New York oarsman, who will represent the United States, intends leaving these shores in May in order to have ample time in which to become acclimated. Subscriptions are now being received at the Union Boat club, New York, for the purpose of meeting the expenses of the trip. Titus has rowed for the Union Boat club for about two years, and his fellow members are enthusiastic in the belief that he will capture the coveted Diamond Sculls, the emblem of international single shell supremacy, for which all oarsmen have feelings somewhat akin to reverence.

Titus is unquestionably the amateur sculling champion of the United States. He won the race for singles at the national regatta on the Schuylkill river last summer, qualifying for a contest with Ten Eyck to decide the premier-ship. The latter, however, had decided to go into business and resigned from active participation in rowing affairs.

The race for the Diamond Sculls will take place June 10, 1902. Titus will be accompanied by his wife, who is his only mentor when he is getting in shape for a contest. The champion will have a boat built by W. W. Rud-dock of Boston, who has promised him the best shell ever turned out of his shop.

Titus weighs 154 pounds; his rowing weight is 147. During the winter he will indulge in light training, walking ten miles daily among hills, playing golf and taking a Sunday spin of half a dozen miles on the Harlem when the weather is favorable.

The Modern Race Horse.

Sir Walter Gilbey, one of the foremost English authorities on horse breeding, says some hard things about the twentieth century thoroughbred and the present day system of racing. In his recently published book on horse breeding in England and India he gives it as his opinion that "the modern race horse is a machine constructed for no other purpose than to win races, which do not afford proper tests of the qualities wanted in horses. In a word, our English thoroughbred may be defined as a racing and gambling machine, pure and simple. He is no longer suitable for cavalry mounts, being too light and leggy."

International Athletics.

R. S. Patterson of the Dwight school of New York is to go to England soon in the interest of a movement to bring a team of English schoolboy athletes to this country next spring.

A wealthy New Yorker who wishes to remain unknown has offered to pay the total expenses of thirty of the best athletes in the English preparatory schools to come here in June. He hopes to have them meet the inter-scholastic champions from all over the United States in a dual meet such as Yale and Oxford might have.

Boom in Winter Athletics.

Track and field athletes throughout the country will have lots of competitors this winter. Following the athletic carnival at the Philadelphia sportsman's show there are others scheduled in New York, Boston and Chicago, while, in addition, there will be the regular winter games of the Knickerbocker A. C., New York and the Eastern A. A.

A Coming Champion.

Mike Murphy, Yale's famous trainer, states that he thinks Moulton will be the star sprinter of the coming season. He began as a novice last spring, ended up the season by winning the 100 yards and 220 yards at the Yale fall games, the latter in 21 4-5 seconds.

The Horse World.

Zelma, the dam of Dan Patch, 2:04 1/2 will be bred to Joe Patchen again this spring.

Dulce Cor, by Baron Wilkes, should be prominent in the show classes next year, as she trotted a mile in 2:11 1/2 fall.

Diodine, 2:10 3/4, by Diablo, 2:09 1/4, the sensational Oregon pacing mare, is out of Dione, by Secretary, son of Direct-or, 2:17.

TOO LITTLE ELEPHANT.

Couldn't Meet the Expectations Aroused by a Good Deal of Talk.

"It is my business, of course," said the advance agent, "to work up as much interest as possible in the circus before it arrives, and one of my strong points is the animals belonging to the museum part of the show. Anything about a savage tiger, a roaring lion or a mad elephant makes the farmer itch for a closer sight, and as a general thing you can't pile it on too strong. I overdid matters once, however. We had only one elephant with us that season, and he was undersized and nothing to brag of, but at a certain town in Indiana I wrote a column article about him and made him out the most dangerous thing on legs. According to my story, he had killed a dozen people, smashed up the circus three or four times and devastated a large area of farming country, and I certainly worked up a great interest.

"Among those who showed up on circus day," continued the agent, "was a gaunt, rawboned young farmer with a fist like a half bushel measure. He had business in his eye, but no one noticed it until too late. He entered the animal tent with hundreds of others and made for the elephant at once. The old fellow was chained by the leg to a stake and munched away at a pile of hay, and the countryman squared off and gave him a good looking over. Then he asked of a keeper:

"Is this the critter that has killed a dozen men?"

"It is," was the reply, "and you'd better keep a safe distance."

"He smashes up circuses and devastates farms, does he?"

"He does, and I think he's getting ready to break loose now. Just notice the twitch of his ears. If he does break loose, there'll be fifty people killed."

"Then I'll stop him right now," replied the young fellow, and he jumped in and hit the Rajah a sockdolager on the ear that knocked him as flat as a pancake. They heard that blow clear out to the ticket wagon, and it took six men and a two dollar bill to work that farmer outdoors without getting up a riot. As for the elephant, he lay there as if dead for a good half hour, and it was a week before he got over the headache and got his appetite back. The papers gave me the grand guy about it, and I had to drop him out of my ads, and claim that our Bengal tiger was the only real man eater ever exhibited in a state of captivity."—Detroit Free Press.

A Race Against Time.

"William," said the colonel, "do you realize that you and I have got to swear off the first day of January next?"

"Yes, sir; I've been thinking 'bout it."

"Well, how much is left down there?"

"Over half a barrel, sir."

The colonel whistled a long, low whistle, looked out on the dreary landscape, pulled off his coat, hung it on a convenient peg and said:

"Bring me up a ton of coal, get me my slippers, have the daily newspapers sent to my room and tell everybody I'm not at home till after New Year's."—Atlanta Constitution.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Life is a joke just as long as you are the joker.

The Lord made good women to show us how different men are.

Most men can stand success better than success can stand them.

The way a man parts his hair has a great deal to do with whether a woman thinks he is a gentleman or not.

Most women's idea of an interesting man is one who will flatter them into insensibility or that they wouldn't like to have their daughters know.—New York Press.

Hard.

Weary Raggles—Talk about yer disgraceful deaths! Dey've put me to work cuttin' de wood dey're goin' to cook me wid!—Scribner's.

The Other View.

"It seems to me," said the lady, with a severe glance, "that the newspapers print some dreadful things."

"Yes," answered the reporter, "it often makes me sad to think that people insist on doing shocking things and compelling us to write about them."

Washington Star.

ENIGMA.

We go to church on Christmas day,
Mary and I, sedately,
My sweetheart softly gowned in gray,
With quiet step and stately.
She will not smile at what I say;
Her lashes veil her cheek.
What saint devout e'er knelt to pray
With face more calm and meek?
I would not dare to touch her hand;
Of very smiles I'm chary;
Some things no man may understand,
But this is—this is Mary.

We go to Martin's Christmas night,
Molly and I, for dinner.
Whose smile so quick, whose eyes so bright
As those of my sweet sinner?
We chat, we laugh, we toast, we quite
Lose sight of the hereafter,
I—and my darling heart's delight
Aglow with fun and laughter.
Beneath the cloth I press her hand,
My chum, so sweet and jolly;
Some things no man may understand,
But this is—this is Molly.

—Life.

Getting His Money's Worth.

"Shilly," I say, gov'nor, you're predicting rather a meekly future for me. Phrenologist—Well, what do you expect for 25 cents? Spring another quarter, and I'll make it better.

Willing to Work.

"Lady," said Meandering Mike, "I'm willin' to work fur me dinner."

"You are?"

"Yes'm. Dat dog o' yours has nipped me two or three times a season reg'lar fur the last three years. I'm ready fur revenge, an' I want to make it something disagreeable, something dat'll harrow his feelin's, something dat'll humiliate me forever if I was him. Lady, if you'll gimme a bar o' soap an' a pan o' water I'll wash de dog."—Washington Star.

Knockout Blow.

Silas—When my Uncle Zeke was in his prime, he was something of a fighter, but he finally got a blow that knocked him out for keeps.

Hiram—Who hit him?

Silas—Nobody hit him. He went to the city and delivered the blow himself.

Hiram—How?

Silas—By blowing out the gas.—Chicago News.

Both Distrustful.

"Gabriel," said the doctor's wife, "have you settled yet with Lawyer Sharpe for conducting that case for you in court last year?"

"No," said the doctor. "It was about that time, you remember, that I operated on him for appendicitis, and I want to know what his bill is before I make out mine. I suppose he's waiting for the same reason."—Chicago Tribune.

In the Geography Class.

The teacher was slightly deaf, and the bad boy known as Dick Bunkus meanly took advantage of the fact.

"Richard," she asked, "what is the shape of the earth?"

"Like a coconut," said Dick; "same as your head."

"Correct, Richard," she said, "but speak a little louder, please."

His Explanation.

"A St. Paul man knocked his wife down by smiting her with the family pug dog."

"What did he say when they arrested him?"

"He said the accident wouldn't have occurred if they had kept a mastiff instead of a pug."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Similar, but Different.

Wife—Why, John, I'm astonished that you should spend $7 for a hat.

Husband—Hub! That's nothing. You paid $12 for yours.

Wife—Indeed, I didn't do anything of the kind. I had the bill sent to you.

—New York World.

The farmers of the country will be delighted to learn that the Bureau of Animal Industry has prepared a bulletin for their delectation on a serious disease of hens which the Bureau says is a form of sporadic septicaemia caused by a highly virulent form of nongyrogenic, striptococcus. Hitherto the great mortality among chickens has been charged to preachers.

We should think that every labor organization in the country would make a rush to endorse (?) a labor-capital peace commission which has Mark Hanna and Grover Cleveland as its chief promoters. If Mark was really sincere in his statement that he would give anything to promote peace between labor and capital, he could accomplish much by giving the men in his employ liberal wages and desirable hours.

The effect of the newspaper prominence which the Maccabees of Michigan are now receiving cannot fail to work harm to that order, as it cheapens it in the eyes of the people. Men are slow to in any order that appears to be disrupted by internal differences. Major Baynton has outlived his usefulness to the order and in his declining years appears to be allowing personal prejudices take the place of good judgement. His present fight for what he calls expansion is more to give him a chance to fight the Supreme tent than for the real benefit of the Great Camp of Michigan. It will be a sorry day for Michigan Maccabees if they ever adopt the expansion plan.

The Children and the Farm.

It is said some parents hesitate about giving their children a college education, fearing that they will never come back to the farm. They base their fears upon observations which go to show that only one out of every five of farmers' sons and daughters who go away to college come back to the farm. It might not be best for all to take up agricultural pursuits, perhaps, but it would be better if all were educated energetic farmers, and helping to advance the business along more scientific and progressive lines. Children on the farm should all have something distinctly their own that they may care for it and reap what profits it may produce. This will excite an interest in farm work and farm life that can be instilled in no other way.

When an orchard is planted allot a portion of it to the children, with the understanding they must care for it and be entitled to the money it produces. The same may be said of the garden. Cultivate their aesthetic tastes and their love for the beautiful. The child is always full of life and energy, and is either at work or play. A vigorous, healthy child, is never seen killing time.

If the energies of a child can be directed along a practical line for just a part of the time better results would be obtained. If parents would only arrange in some way that the farm would become a source of revenue to the children as they grow up, many more of them would be agriculturists from choice. The child learns that the chief aim of man is to make money, and when the farm does not bring them in anything they soon lose their love for it, and look to some other calling or profession to bring them opulence and ease. Most men and women of to day who were farm bred and reared look back upon their rural life as only one of drudgery, with no financial recompense for their time and energy spent.—Bay City Times.

A CONJURER'S TRICK

He was only a poor little Frenchman, chief (and only) prestidigitator, conjurer and sleight of hand artist at "Montmorenci's wonderful, world renowned circus." Still, it was rather impudent of him, a sallow little man of fifty, to fall in love with pretty Nellie Waring, the principal bareback rider. Poor Nellie told him it could not be.

"Besides," she said, "there's Jack, you know."

Jack Thornhill was the big, handsome trapeze artist.

There was one man named Hayercraft, who came regularly every night. He used to leave boxes of sweets at the door for Nellie and throw bouquets to her every night. Neither she nor Jack took any notice of this at first, but one evening, when the bouquet contained a bracelet set with pearls and a note asking for a meeting at an appointed place, Jack got wild.

Jack consulted with the Panjandrum as to what he should do and promptly received the only advice the poor little man could think of giving—to challenge the fellow to a duel. This, Jack explained, was impossible, but said that the next best thing would be a thrashing and asked his friend to accompany him to the place next day and "watch the performance."

Jack approached to where Hayercraft was standing and asked him "if the note was his writing." He received the defiant request to mind his own business.

Hayercraft was no coward, but he knew he was no match for Jack, so he stepped back a pace or two and drew a revolver.

Jack sprang at him with his fist clinched and grasped the revolver. There was a short struggle, during which they fell together on the ground. Then there was a report, and then Jack rose, breathless, leaving his opponent lying still and motionless, with the revolver clutched in his hand.

A very ugly rumor began to gain ground among the company, and all advised Jack to clear out of the neighborhood for a time. It was to the effect that Hayercraft had sworn that Jack Thornhill had shot him and that a warrant was out for his arrest for attempted murder.

Jack's appearance on the trapeze was just before the Panjandrum's show, and it was while the former was taking place that the little man noticed among the audience one night, with his eyes fixed intently on Jack, a burly inspector, whom he had seen several times in the town.

He stepped into the arena and was greeted with the customary applause, for he was a great favorite with the audience.

"Ladies and gentlemen, tonight I have ze honor to present to your notice a trique which is new, all entirely. I was make ze omelet cook in ze seek 'at, eef any gentleman shall be so good as to lend him me. Ah, ze gentleman zere," and walking up to the inspector and leading him, not unwillingly, into the arena amid a roar of laughter, "he will be so good as to assist of me."

"I borrow your seek 'at, sare," the little man went on, taking the hat from the inspector's head with a flourish, "and I breaks zese two eggs in him as you see."

He produced the two eggs, apparently from the victim's breast pocket. His eyes sparkled strangely as he went on, tapping the inspector knowingly two or three times on the breast, where he heard the rustling of paper. Then he proceeded to break the shells and let the yolks fall into the hat, amid roars of laughter at its owner's disconsolate face.

"Now you must cook 'em, but I not hurt ze 'at. I take zese two pieces of papaire," which he produced very quickly and apparently from nowhere, "and I light zem—so. Now you must hold zem under ze 'at till they are quite burnt out."

The inspector took the paper as directed and held it at some distance under the hat till the last portion was consumed, when the Panjandrum, after a few passes and some cabalistic words, produced the omelet in a dexterous manner and showed the hat uninjured.

While the audience was clearing out of the theater the inspector remained standing in the arena, when he turned round to Montmorenci and said:

"Now, look here. I don't wish to be unpleasant at all, and I've got my duty to perform, and it must be done. There's one of you people wanted for attempted murder, and I want to take him away now. It's Jack Thornhill."

The Panjandrum, now quietly smoking a cigarette, stepped into the middle of the group and said:

"Perhaps the gentleman, before he takes our friend away, will tell us his authority for doing so."

"Certainly. I have a warrant signed by a magistrate."

He put his hand into his breast pocket; then he turned pale and hastily felt in the other ones, and, oblivious of the presence of the lady artistes, he used a bad word. "I've lost it!" he burst out.

Before a new warrant could be obtained Hayercraft had relented and confessed that he had shot himself by accident.

Six months afterward, when Jack and Nellie had been married, the world renowned circus and entertainment came to town again, and the inspector came to spend a friendly evening with the company.

In the course of conversation he asked the Panjandrum if he could imagine what had become of the warrants on that night, whereupon the little Frenchman, with a shrug of his shoulders and a wink at his friends, answered:

"You used them to cook the omelet!"

FARMERS-SUGAR BEETS,

Two Things that can Assure the Future of Iosco County.

We are to be favored by a Special Discussion of these Matters through Farmers' Institutes.

Do the farmers of Iosco county want a beet sugar factory at home?

If so, are they interested enough in the matter to aid in securing it?

They can answer these questions in the affirmative in two ways.

First:—By subscribing to raise beets to supply one when it is located here.

Second:—By attending a series of Institutes to be held this month at which sugar beet growing will be a special feature of the discussions.

The first of these meetings will be held by Mr. I. D. Saydan, of St. Louis, a man who is not only a practical beet grower, but is thoroughly familiar with the manufacture of beet sugar. Mr. Suydan, is sent here by Prof. C. D. Smith, superintendent of the state farmers' institute society, for the express purpose of talking to the farmers on the question of beet growing, and it is beyond doubt the best posted man on the subject in the state.

These meetings will be held at the court house in Tawas City, Tuesday, Jan. 14, at Whittemore, Wednesday, Jan. 15, and at Hale, Thursday, Jan. 16.

The farmers of Iosco county will show the proper interest by agreeing to raise beets. It is assured that a factory will be erected at the Tawas in time to consume this year's crop. That this will be a guarantee of the county's future, all agree.

Following these one day meetings comes the regular annual institute at the court house in this city on Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 29 and 30, at which the subject will be further discussed by men well posted on beet culture. Other questions of vital importance will also be considered at this meeting, and if our farmers are awake to their own interests all of these meetings will be attended by the farmers.

Let everyone know that you are alive to the future success of our county by being present at both the meetings of January 14, 15, and 16, and January 29 and 30.

Forage Crops.
A writer in the Ohio Farmer gives the following computations of four crops which he grew for fodder last season, computed from weighing the product of one square rod in each field, taking what he thought was the best part of the field, a method perhaps as fair for one as the other: Soy beans, medium green, 9½ tons green forage per acre; whippoorwill cowpeas, 12½ tons per acre green forage; Early Orange sorghum, 18½ tons green forage per acre, and red cob ensilage corn, 3 tons per acre of green forage. All had a moderate dressing of stable manure per acre and each the same amount of commercial fertilizer.

That Should Be Enough.
"You have stolen my ideas," asserted the struggling young author.
"True," admitted the successful plagiarist, "but the knowledge that you have been of assistance to so great a man ought to satisfy your ambition."—Chicago Post.

One Theory.
"How did Jenkins get that great bump on his forehead?"
"I don't know unless it was that his head grew so big that it hit the roof."—Washington Times.

President Callaway a Stenographer.
Samuel R. Callaway, president of the American Locomotive company, was more than thirty years ago at the head of the shorthand writers of this country. He kept up his practice and today could take a trick at an important assignment with the best of stenographers.

Senior Officer of G. A. R.
Senator Hawley of Connecticut is the senior surviving officer of the original organization of the Grand Army of the Republic.

PROBATE ORDER.

Owners of horses should not forget that there is a state law against cruelty to animals, and that failing to properly blanket a horse on a cold day constitutes sufficient evidence to compel the owner to pay for his forgetfulness.

Marrage appears to have been on the decline in Iosco county during 1901, only 71 licenses having been issued, as compared with 93 in 1900. July heads the list with ten, while December and February contribute only three each.

The many friends of George H. Cosgrove, formerly of Oscoda, now of Ann Arbor, will join the HERALD in extending him congratulations for his marriage to Miss Mary E. Bell, of Ann Arbor, which occurred Christmas day.

From the Grand Marais Herald we learn that C. M. Smith has leased the city barber shop in that village and assumed charge of same last Monday. Marshal is a good barber and his many friends here hope he has struck a good thing.

The Omer Progress changed hands Jan. 1, having been sold to Sagelstrom, Ransom & Co. Editor Taylor has made a good paper of the Progress during his six years of ownership and his many friends wish him success in the future.

If the old saying, "All the world loves a lover," is true, then the fiction in the Cosmopolitan for January should be popular, indeed. All the stories vary in treatment, plot and action, from Frances Courtenay Baylor's charming story, "Cupid's Practical Joke," to Maarten Maarten's strong domestic tragedy, "Her Father's Wife," but all have love for a central theme.

The Scientific American gives this receipt, which the whole world should know: At the first indication of diphtheria in the throat make the room close then take a teacup and pour into it an equal quantity of turpentine, then hold the cup over the fire so as to fill the room with fumes. The patient inhaling the fumes will cough out the membranous matter and the diphtheria will pass off. The fumes of the turpentine loosen the throat and thus afford the relief that has baffled the physicians.

It is with pleasure that the friends of George Armstrong, learn of his speedy recovery. There will be a great rejoicing when George comes home next week.

It is not surprising the amount of business done in real estate by John W. Curtis, for he does business in an honorable way and is entitled to more than he gets.

Many familiar faces have been on our streets during the week. The boys from the camps and the school-marks from the outlying districts have been home for the holidays.

The Whittemore dramatic club will give an entertainment Wednesday evening, Jan. 8, at K. O. T. M. hall. There will be no cost in connection with this treat, and all are invited.

A. B. Wismer has enjoyed the heaviest trade in his business life. He is carrying a full and complete line of general merchandise and by fair treatment to all is building up an extensive business.

Ed Williams is one of our most progressive hustlers. He carries a most complete line of groceries and meats, besides buying and shipping wood, ties, furs, hides and anything the farmers bring in.

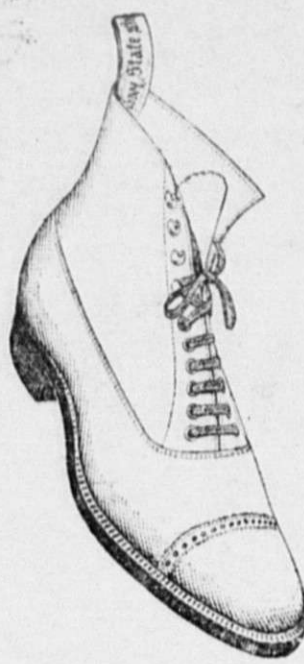

There is urgent need of a city scavenger in this place as heaps of ashes are accumulating in the streets in front of stores and dwellings. Possibly the town contemplates repainting in sackcloth and ashes.

It is to be hoped that the season for shipping live stock by express will soon be over as the patience of our long-suffering station agent have been severely tried in carrying for chickens and puppies left for days at his office.

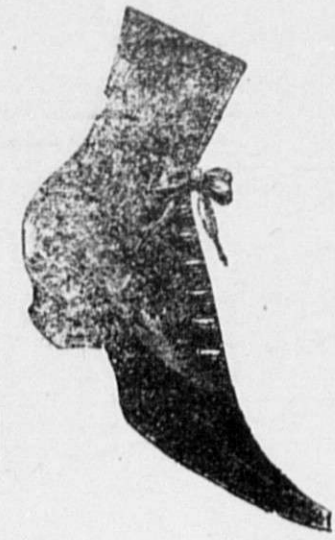

Rev. J. W. Osborne arrived home from the Upper Peninsula Monday, and Mrs. Jackson, of Ontario, his sister, is also here, and a reunion of the Osborne family was held at the Prescott farm Tuesday evening and an enjoyable time was had.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without gripping or distress. Are safe, sure, gentle, thorough. Purely vegetable. Dr. C. A. Wakeman.

The Week of Prayer.

The "Week of Prayer" has now been observed for more than forty years. The original proposal for it was made at the annual meeting of the Lodianna Mission, in India, Nov. 29, 1858. It was entitled, "An Invitation to United Prayer" and was addressed, "To the Church of Christ throughout the World." The proposal was promptly acted upon by Christian people in the world. It has been observed ever since with most encouraging results. God is doing and will do wonderful things for the church in answer to prayer. According to custom the local churches will hold union prayer meetings next week, to be led by the pastors in turn, using the following topics.

Monday night 7:30—The Vision of God in Christ—(Presbyterian church.)

Tuesday—Our Nation—(Presbyterian church.)

Wednesday—Our Churches—M. E. Church.

Thursday—Christian Mission—(M. E. Church.)

Friday—The Family and the School—(Baptist Church.)

Saturday—The coming of the Kingdom—(Baptist Church.)

All interested in the extension of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ are urged to attend and participate in these meetings.

Has Many Virtues.

For cuts, burns and bruises DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequalled. Draws out the fire, stops the pain, soon heals the wound. Beware of dangerous counterfeits. Sure cure for piles. Dr. C. A. Wakeman.

Notice
