IOSCO GOOD ENOUGH.

Some Interesting Comparisons
by N. C. Hartingh, after a Trip in the Northwest.

In conversation with Mayor Hartingh, who has recently returned from a business trip to the Pacific coast and some of the intervening states, the Herald representative has secured considerable information in regard to the advantages offered by other portions of this country to intending settlers, as compared with Iosco county, and we take pleasure in publishing the same.

Mr. Hartingh says that he met a great many people from various eastern and central states en-route to the western and north-western states, especially Idaho, Utah, Oregon, Washington and Montana. Nearly all these people expect to buy land at from $5 to $20 per acre and engage in farming and stock raising, and not a single person mentioned a condition which he expected to find that in any way surpasses the conditions now offered by Iosco county. Stock raising has received a black eye in that country from which it will never recover, and its former profitability and glory is a thing of the past. During the past year but little rain has fallen there and the flocks of sheep and cattle have suffered much in consequence, and are now suffering for the want of green pasturage and water, which for hundreds of miles it is practically impossible to secure. The greatest difficulty is being experienced in finding sufficient pasture to keep flocks alive, in nearly every instance herders are being compelled to drive the flocks up into the mountains to find anything to sustain life. Thousands of sheep and cattle die every month for want of water to drink.

This drought extends from Kansas to the Pacific, and north to the British boundary line, and is accentuated by the fact that farmers and settlers have taken up so much of the land and located wire fences that the territory which was formerly open and free pasturage is now cut up and restricted to smaller patches and poorer quality. Each year this trouble grows and the struggle against each other between the herders becomes more bitter, and will in a short time result in cattle owners having to buy outright their pasturage, which will, of course, result in squeezing out the smaller owners. This condition of affairs is already driving many of the herders and cattle owners up into the British territory, where large grazing ranges still exist.

The climatic conditions during the summer months, outside of the want of rain, are very little different from that of Michigan; and the fact that we never suffer from the fearful blizzards and cold which at times prevail in those states, and that cattle and sheep are there left out all winter on the ranges and mountains, wholly unprotected from storms and cold, would indicate that cattle and sheep raising in this portion of Michigan ought to be just as easily accomplished and as profitable as in any of the states named. Considering the bountiful rainfall which this section of the country enjoys the year through and the continuous pasturage during the entire summer, Iosco county is at least as good, if not better, than any of the states mentioned.

There may be a few favored spots in the western states, in sheltered valleys, well watered, mild winters and rich soils, or where artificial irrigation can be had, that are superior to our state. But with this exception, and in the growing cities, the lumbering and mining interests, which offer better wages to the laborer and more profit to the investor, Michigan, and especially Iosco county, offer chances to the ordinary citizen in such volume that he can travel that entire country through without finding its superior, unless as above stated, certain special conditions will assist the intending settler.

In talking with ranchmen, land owners, and intending settlers who are going to that country to better their condition, when they were informed of the conditions as they exist in Iosco county, with its abundance of good farming lands at the cheap prices of from $5 to $10 per acre, and the abundance and uniform rainfall the year round, which we enjoy, together with the large area of free pasturage which now exists on our good farming lands and our plains lands combined, and the large amount of net profit which our sugar beet lands yield to growers; without exception these people expressed surprise that persons living in this section should go west to better their condition, unless special inducements were offered to do so. During his entire trip extending over nine or ten western states, he failed to see one acre, where cattle and sheep were pastured by herding, which would compare with our common jack pine plains in the amount or quality of herbage produced, not taking into consideration our good farming lands.

The consensus of Mr. Hartingh's judgment, after as thorough an inquiry and investigation as he could make outside of his business engagements, forces him to believe that, aside from the mining and lumbering, wages and business in the growing cities; Iosco county offers generally a better field for the farmer and laboring man than any place in the north-west. Especially will this be true when the location of a sugar factory will add to the value of lands in Iosco county.

That the advantages offered by Iosco county are being appreciated by farmers and investors from other states is proven by the fact that thousands of acres of our lands have been snapped up by people from Ohio, Indiana and neighboring states within the past month, and that the demand is increasing. A very few years will see all our cheap lands taken up by people who see the advantage of investing in this locality.

Like a Drowning Man.

"Five years ago a disease the doctors called dyspepsia took such hold of me I could scarcely go," writes Geo. S. Marsh, well known attorney of Nacona, Tex. "I took quantities of pepsin and other medicines but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodal. I felt an improvement at once and after a few bottles am sound and well." Kodal is the only preparation which exactly reproduces the natural digestive juices and consequently is the only one which digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble.

PORT SAID.

There may be viler towns than Port Said. We have never seen them. Leadville in its most flourishing and fiercest days could not equal this city at the mouth of the Suez canal, says a correspondent of the Kansas City Journal. If ten righteous men were needed to save this town of 35,000 people, it would go unsaved. The inquiry, "Do you want anything?" which in Egypt covers a multitude of sins, is met with from small boys upon the main streets. Vice which in American cities hides itself in the back alleys here flaunts itself in gay gauze garb and brazen face upon the boulevards. It is a made town, on made earth, and its manufacture is not morally a success. The few decent people condemned by business necessity to dwell in Port Said console themselves by the assertion that all new towns go through this period of viciousness, and Port Said is not a quarter of a century old. After seeing Port Said we do not wonder that Moses fled into the wilderness.

Jan Kubelik on Love.

I have never in my life had the time to know any woman well enough to find out whether I loved her or not. I am now only twenty-one years old, and the whole of my life has been devoted to my art.

Now, some critic has said that my playing lacks only what love for some woman would put into it. I must admit that if there is any quality that only love could bring I must lack it, for I have never been in love, and just now I do not see when I ever am to be. I spend most of my time on the railroads, and from them I go to the concert halls. That is not the kind of a life that makes it easy for a man to fall in love.

I have never even had the time to think of an ideal. I suppose that when I see her first I shall recognize her.—Collier's Weekly.

She Smokes In Public.

Miss Dillwyn of Swansea, Wales, has in turn written novels, acted as reviewer for the London Spectator, served as a farm bailiff and is now the partner in a flourishing spelter business. She walks three miles to business every morning and remains at her office daily from shortly after 9 in the morning till 5 in the afternoon. She is a member of the school board and chairwoman of the hospital committee. She has one remarkable weakness. She is a lover of the "weed" in the form of cigars and makes no secret of her pleasure in smoking. She carries a cigar case and has even been seen in public with a cigar in her mouth. "I like to smoke," she says, "and I see no objection to it. I always smoke openly. I do not believe in women smoking in secret."

LOUD WINS.

Isosco's Candidate Downs Tip
Aplin by a Decisive Majority.

The Republican Congressional Convention at Bay City
Wednesday the Hottest Ever.

After one of the warmest campaigns in the history of the tenth congressional, Col. George A. Loud put the Hon. "Tip" Aplin out of business and secured the republican nomination at the convention in Bay City last Wednesday on the first ballot by a vote of 47 to 35.

COL. GEORGE A. LOUD.

The canvass has been a lively one by both candidates, but Col. Loud was highly successful in uniting the counties outside of Bay, and for the first time in years broke the vice like grip of the Bay republicans on the congressional nomination. He is to be congratulated on his success in accomplishing that which a few weeks ago was considered doubtful by his friends. "Tip" and his adherents fought to the last ditch but were fairly beaten when the "show down" came. For years the northern portion of the tenth district has had just cause to complain because their interests did not receive the attention which they should, while Bay county appeared to embrace the entire district. The opportunity is now offered whereby a man outside of Bay can be sent to Washington. Col. George A. Loud is an able, conservative business man, and his election would be a credit to Isosco county and the tenth district.

"After using many remedies, I tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, a few boxes cured the sore." Cures all skin diseases. Piles yield to it at once. Beware of counterfeits.

"Are you paid anything for swearing?" Eli Perkins once asked a commercial traveler. "No, I do it for nothing." "Well," said the lecturer, "you work cheap. Railroad Commissioner Osborn has placed in the hands of the auditor general a computation of the taxes of Michigan railroads to be paid this year, for the last time under the operation of the specific tax laws. The computation shows that the railroads of the state are required to pay a total tax of $1,483,906.84, as compared with a tax of $1,353,549.02 last year. The per cent of increase in the specific tax paid by railroads is more than 10 and indicates a prosperous condition.

The SPORTING WORLD

Champion Pole Vaulter.
The intercollegiate track and field championship meet will be held May 30 and 31 on Berkeley oval, New York, and one of the interesting features will be the pole vault. The work of E. H. Gray of the University of Pennsylvania will probably win the title, although he is sure to be hard pushed by Jerome Magee of Chicago university.

E. H. GRAY CLEARING THE BAR.
Gray broke the present record, established by Magee, at the recent meet of the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin field. He cleared the bar at the creditable height of 11 feet 8 inches. Magee is training hard in Chicago to develop his ability to its highest point. His ambition is to regain his lost honors.
Gray is a graceful performer, clearing the bar with ease and apparently with plenty of steam in reserve.

Cycling Trade Tricks.
There are tricks in all trades, and the pacemakers in cycling are known to have introduced schemes that sooner or later were adopted by bicycle manufacturers as part of the regular equipment. This was particularly noticeable in the matter of straight forks for pace following. Last year, when the rule was enforced prohibiting the rear man from sitting back of the rear tire, one pacemaker utilized a strap, which enabled him to lean far enough back to meet the head of the pace follower. The new rule provides that the rear wheel of the motor tandem shall not exceed twelve inches in radius and that the width of the motor shall not exceed six and one-half inches, allowing a width of thirteen and one-third inches for necessary cams, plates and bolts. At no place shall the width be greater than twenty inches excepting the handle bars and pedals. To prevent riders from stuffing towels under the rear saddles the N. C. A. board of control has decided that seats must be only eleven inches across and three from top to bottom.

Young Corbett and Sullivan.
Dave Sullivan has decided to abandon his English trip altogether and to make his coming fight with Young Corbett at Denver the main purpose of his pugilistic existence just at present. They are to meet at 126 pounds, and while the champion will be a strong favorite in the bout, the contest will be watched with great interest as giving a line on Young Corbett's condition and the value of his style of fighting against Sullivan as opposed to McGovern's.
Although "dope" cuts little figure in the prize ring and probably is more of ten overthrown than upheld, the fact remains that an easy victory over Sullivan will boom Young Corbett's stock immensely, especially as it took fourteen rounds for McGovern to dispose of Dave. A victory for Young Corbett probably will make him a much closer favorite in betting when he meets McGovern again than would be the case if the two were to come together at present.

Haff to Sail Rainbow.
Cornelius Vanderbilt has engaged Captain Clayton Haff to sail the seventy footer Rainbow the coming season. With the exception of last season, when he was first mate of the independence, Captain Haff has always been with Mr. Vanderbilt. He sailed the sloop Ilderim and the thirty footer Veda for Mr. Vanderbilt. Captain Spinney, who was in the Rainbow last season, will have charge of the Mirage, the Rainbow's tender.

Jack Carkeek, Wrestler.
Wrestling across the water is popular once more, and "all London is flocking to see Jack Carkeek, the American champion, take on all comers." This is what a London weekly says of him. It continues: "Mr. Carkeek is a thorough sportsman and takes his reverses when they happen with the best of grace."

Stahl Not a "Pro."
Catcher Stahl of the University of Illinois will not be with the Reds this season. He has written Manager McPhee that he will not play professionally this year, as he has another term at college and is desirous of playing football in the fall and baseball in the spring.

This illustration represents the SCHAU COLD-SET Tire Setter

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

CHANGING COLORS. Puzzling Effects You May Produce With Pieces of Cardboard. Take a piece of white cardboard and after you have painted half of it black, cut out a portion, as shown in the accompanying picture, and then through the middle stick either a long nail or a wooden peg which has a knob at the top, so that you may be able to turn it. Now, if you hold a green card behind the place where you have cut out a portion and then spin the cardboard quickly the green card will seem to be red and the more light is thrown on it the redder it will appear. In like manner a red card will appear green and a piece of blue paper will appear yellow.

Even more startling effects than these can be produced. For example, a figure with blue hair, a green face and crimson clothes will appear behind the revolving cardboard as though it was altogether of natural colors, for its hair will be blond, its face flesh colored and its clothes greenish blue.

Similarly, if a blue flower with red leaves is placed behind the cardboard, the flower will appear yellow and the leaves green.

Every Night After Dinner.

My father and mother can never be beat; They're the nicest that ever were made. They remember the fun they had when they were young.

And all of the games that they played. And, better than all, they play with us themselves; Yes, really and truly, they do! Every night after dinner till bedtime has come.

There's Willie and Burton and Prue And Alice—that's me—and my father and mother— Enough for some royal good fun.

We play blind man's buff and hide and go seek; You should see how my mother can run! They don't either one of them mind being "it."

And they always are awfully fair. We none of us think the game's any fun Unless all the players are "square." And every new game we teach father and mother.

They teach all the old ones to us; So we romp and we play, big and little together. With never a sign of a fuss.

But sometimes a stranger man comes to our play; He creeps in so quiet and still That we don't know he's here till we hear a deep sigh.

From our littlest one—that is WILL. Then we know that the Sand Man has joined in our play.

And is trying to put us to sleep. Then father and mother both kiss us "good night," And away into Dreamland we creep. —Elizabeth Jamison in Exchange.

Why He Did It.

A short time ago, as I was crossing one of Philadelphia's streets, a little boy not over ten years old who had been walking just before me ran into the street and picked up a broken glass pitcher. I supposed he intended the pieces as missiles, since the desire to throw something seems instinctive in every boy. Consequently I was much surprised when he tossed the pieces into a vacant lot at the corner and walked quietly on. As he passed me, whistling, I said:

"Why did you pick up that pitcher?" "I was afraid it might cut some horse's foot," he replied.

My next question was a natural one: "Are you a Band of Mercy boy?" He smiled as he said, "Oh, yes; that's why I did it."

The bands of mercy were drawn very closely around the dear little fellow's heart, I am sure.—School and Home.

A Different Whoop.

The whooping cough had caught many children of a certain neighborhood. A certain mother of a bright little boy had many fears lest her son should take it. She had talked and worried about it so much that her boy was almost afraid to leave her side.

One night after the little fellow had been put to bed a donkey was being driven past the house, and when right in front of the house he began with that terrible voice of his, "Hee-haw, hee-haw."

With a shriek, the little boy leaped from the bed, screaming at the top of his voice: "The whooping cough is coming! The whooping cough is coming, mamma!" He didn't catch the whooping cough that time.

One Way to Play Marbles.

The boys of Arabia have a curious way of playing marbles.

The marble is placed in the hollow between the middle finger and the forefinger of the left hand, the hand being flat on the ground and the fingers closed. The forefinger of the right hand is then pressed firmly on the end joint of the middle finger, which pushes the middle finger suddenly aside, and the forefinger slips out with sufficient force to propel the shooter very accurately.

He Would Mtd.

A little boy did something wrong one day, and his father punished him. His sister came into the room while he was crying and asked him what he was crying about, and he told her. She told him not to mind, but he said: "I will mind, for that's what I got a whipping for!"

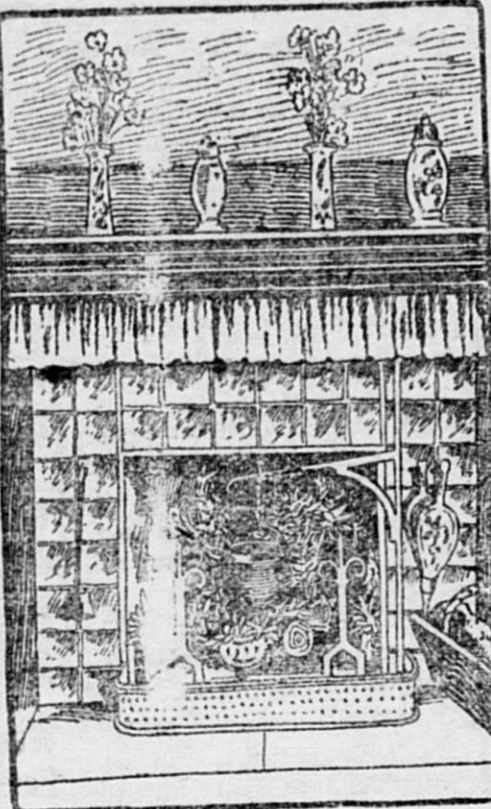

A FIREPLACE GARDEN.

It May Be Made as Attractive as One In a Window.

Of a number of excellent plans for screening or decorating a fireplace none is more sensible or ornamental than that of turning it into a sort of fernery. Ferns, ivy, swamp lilies, periwinkles and two or three varieties of bright iris love to root in cool, dark, moist places, and, properly drained and planted, a fireplace garden can be made just as attractive as one in a window.

One woman whose cottage drawing room is provided with a very old fashioned square brick fireplace, in which the antique crane still swings and above which the narrow mantelshelf is set very high, resorted to very simple measures for beautifying it during the summer. She bought three copper pots, such as the florists hang in their windows full of flowers. These she had filled with earth and planted with green things that love the shade, and, stringing them along the crane, she effectively screened the smoke blackened cavern where the flames had leaped all winter.

Many of her friends have since had polished steel cranes fixed in their modern fireplaces, and on these they have hung brass kettles and bowls.

A FLORAL FIREPLACE.

and one went so far as to have her bric-a-brac dealer hunt up for her a true old fashioned, three legged iron crane pot.

By another equally pleasing arrangement the florist will measure a fireplace and build a special floral hearth box. He makes this box of beaten brass or copper or tiles or painted wood and roots in it iris and lilies and green upstanding things that will shut off the view of the grate or the gap left by the removal of the firelogs and logs with a wall of color and verdure that is a delightful ornament to any room.

Woman's Lot in Persia.

Theoretically the Persian woman is about on the mental plane of the guinea hen. From all part or lot in the interests of the thinking, acting world she is traditionally disqualified. Her spirit is attuned by immemorial inheritance to monotony, which may be varied now and then by a sound beating from her husband. This she accepts as one does an unsatisfactory change in the weather. She is practically a prisoner, with not much to do and no company save that of her children and other "fractious" like herself. With these she is in most cases not on the best of terms, and if she tries to make away with the children of her rivals at a given opportunity it is no whit more than they would do for hers. She is not supposed to have mental needs; she is not accounted a sufficiently important part of a Persian's establishment to have her health asked after by his friends, and to make such an inquiry is an unpardonable breach of decorum.

The Woman Movement.

The woman movement is not a fad or a caprice. It is a cosmic current like democracy and cannot be arrested or diverted. Men who insist that women must go back to the kitchen and parlor and "let men's work alone" make the common mistake of hasty people who pass judgment before "the meanings" are disclosed. Women may get back to the parlor and kitchen. Time only can tell, but it will be only by going forward.

The universal awakening of the women indicates a something working in the larger purposes of the world which is beyond the vision of any individual. It will work itself out and justify itself as a necessary stage or time in the plan of creation.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Hair Treatment.

Singeing the hair is a good thing when it begins to turn gray and break off. Such a condition shows a failure of the hair pigments. Try a simple hair tonic made of one ounce of borax, one-half ounce of gum camphor and a quart of boiling rainwater. Apply to the scalp once a day. Do not forget that ill health affects the hair to an alarming extent. Don't worry, keep the digestion in good condition, don't wear yourself out with work or study, don't tie your tresses tightly and don't use harsh brushes or steel combs.

Scorched Lines.

Here is a formula that, it is said, will restore scorched linen: Peel and slice two onions and extract the juice by squeezing or pounding. Then cut up half an ounce of white soap and add two ounces of fuller's earth; mix with them the onion's juice and half a pint of vinegar. Boil this composition well and spread it when cool over the scorched part of the linen, leaving it to dry thereon. Afterward wash out the linen.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Use the white of an egg for a burn. It forms a coating which excludes the air.

A good remedy for catarrh, it is said, is the free use of boracic acid as a snuff.

As a laxative stewed or baked apples are excellent. As destroyers of fatulence they are unequalled if their use is persisted in.

It is said that if the feet are well soaked in warm water at night and then the corns rubbed with castor oil these troublesome excrescences will disappear.

If you awaken in the night coughing and cannot stop, get a small portion of powdered borax and place it on your tongue and let it slowly dissolve, and it will almost instantly stop the cough, as it will also relieve an ulcer in the throat.

At the first suspicion of ivy poisoning wash the skin in water in which common baking soda (saleratus) has been dissolved. Make the solution strong and "spat" it on, allowing the deposit of the white powder to remain on the skin. Apply frequently for twenty-four hours.

Destroy Your Bric-a-brac.

The first impulse of those who would become civilized is to rid themselves of things, and they hasten the hour of freedom by presenting their unholy possessions to less enlightened households—a cheap vase to a sewing woman, a gilded brazier, tied with blue ribbons and used as a paper rack, to some innocent dependent. But this is profoundly selfish and irresponsible. It purges the original owner of the horror, but it only passes it along to afflict humanity. There is but one road to freedom—destruction of things!

A fire in the back yard fed with wooden shoes can be relied upon; purple jars, not being combustible, might be drowned in the depths of the sea; brass dragons with curly tails, called candlesticks, awkward to hold, with no human touch of imagination or handicraft about them, therefore neither useful nor beautiful, might be disposed of to the junk man; plush things without a name seem to demand the ash barrel, for the vital purity of fire repudiates them, and they do not burn well; tidies are prehistoric, but if any have survived the ash barrel is also their true home.—Margaret Deland in Harper's Bazar.

Physical Culture.

Many people think that "physical culture" means to don a gymnasium suit and go through a few calisthenics. It means so much more than that. It means the science of living—how to be strong mentally, morally and physically; how to make the most of one's life; to know what to eat; how to take care of the body; how to exercise; how to rest. It is learning to control one's nerves. The game of basket ball, combining, as it does, the exercise of both the mental and physical powers, found instant recognition among the directors of the physical training schools for women, and it may be said to mark the introduction of the true athletic spirit in women's colleges. Basket ball supplies a long felt want and combines the beneficial results obtained from the rope, bar, running, jumping and other gymnasium exercises and has the additional interest and spirit of competitive sport.

Richest Woman in the Pacific.

Mrs. Emma E. Forsythe, whose father was an American citizen and whose mother was the daughter of a Samoan chief, is believed to be the richest woman of all living in the south Pacific islands. Her father was American consul in Samoa many years ago, and she was born there. At the age of eighteen, having been well educated, she married an Englishman, who soon died, leaving her a small estate. This was thirty years ago. Mrs. Forsythe began trading in different parts of the south seas and made money fast. She now lives on the island of Neu Pommern, one of the Bismarck archipelago, owned by Germany, where she has a plantation of 120,000 acres, with fifty European employees and hundreds of natives. Other lands on the islands are also owned by Mrs. Forsythe.

Bedroom Punishments.

Bedroom punishments for children are extremely bad and the shutting up of little ones in darkened rooms and cupboards absolutely wicked. This has been known to be the cause of much unhappiness in after life. The telling of alarming stories by ignorant nursemaids, too, cannot be too sternly and promptly checked. If we wish our young children to go to bed happy when night comes, we should carefully guard against any bad impressions being connected with that time. There is no doubt that the child who sings herself to sleep at night is the one whose night's rest will be most beneficial and whose mental powers will increase properly with the rest of her body.

The Dutch Linen Chest.

A visit to the linen chest of a Dutch housewife is always a delight. It may be noticeable that some piles of the snowy table and bed linen are tied with blue ribbon and others with pink ribbon. If so, it will be explained that each represents complete sets, one of which is in use this year and the other waiting its turn next year. The edges of the piles will be as regular as if they had been cut with a knife.

The Nasal Douche.

A writer in The Lancet says that children should be taught to use the nasal douche when they are taught to use the toothbrush. If the organ were daily cleansed, he says, with a slightly astringent douche, such as a weak solution of sea salt, colds and germ diseases would be much less frequent.

The Reigning English Beauty.

Who is the greatest beauty of the early part of the twentieth century? Is a question which was discussed a little while ago by a number of well known people. After the claims of many of the most noted women, including Princess Henry of Pless, the Marchioness of Londonderry, the Hon. Mrs. George Keppel, Miss Muriel Wilson and Mrs. Langtry, had been advanced by their friends the decision was finally given in favor of the Countess of Warwick. Her beauty, coupled with her charm of manner, her exquisite sympathy allied to bright wit, which is never ill-natured, all combine to give her that position which in the old days would have been held by the queen of the tournament, the woman who not only satisfied those who knew her, but struck the imagination of those who were only privileged to gaze on her.

Protect the Ankles.

Doctors say that unprotected ankles are responsible for many of the illnesses from which women suffer, a very large proportion of which have their origin in what is termed "just an ordinary cold." These ordinary colds would be much less ordinary if only women could be persuaded of the extreme folly of wearing low shoes in cold or wet weather. There is but little risk of taking cold in the most inclement weather during the walks if the feet and ankles be well protected. Either stout boots should be worn, coming well over the ankle, or else gaiters in addition to thick boots.

To Clean Laces.

Cover a bottle with white flannel, carefully baste on the lace to be cleaned and rub with white soap. Place the bottle in a large jar filled with warm suds, let it remain two or three days, changing the water several times, and boil with the finest white clothes on washing day. When the water has become somewhat cool, remove the bottle, rinse several times, wrap a soft, dry towel around it to absorb the moisture, remove the towel and place the bottle in the sun until the lace is thoroughly dry, when it may be unwound.—Housekeeper.

That Little Touch.

The smartly gowned girl knows that it is the touch that makes all the difference between mere clothes and a painting, between mere clothes and an artistic costume. She has observed that exquisite taste presents itself in details—trifles light and airy, yet sufficiently weighty to turn the scale from failure to success, from inferiority to distinction. Because of this she is always on the alert to discover that little touch which makes the smart girl smart.—Woman's Home Companion.

Dangerous if Neglected.

Burns, cuts and wounds often fail to heal properly if neglected and become troublesome sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve prevents such consequences. Even where delay has aggravated the injury DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve effects a cure. "I had a running sore on my leg thirty years," says H. C. Hartly, Yankee-town, Ind. "After using many remedies, I tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, a few boxes cured the sore." Cures all skin diseases. Piles yield to it at once. Beware of counterfeits.

Wants Others to Know.

"I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers for constipation and torpid liver and they are alright. I am glad to indorse them for I think when we find a good thing we ought to let others know it," writes Alfred Heinze, Quincy, Ill. They never gripe or distress. Sure, safe pills.
