Cattle Raising in Michigan.

The cowboy may soon be as characteristic of Michigan as the log runner used to be. Cattle raising is becoming a great industry in this state and those who are going into it are doing so on thousand-acre lines. The recent sale of 3,000 acres of land in Ottawa county is an instance of the progress being made in converting waste, cut over and farming land into pasture for cattle. There are several large cattle farms in Wexford, Clare, Oseola and other northern counties, and in the upper peninsula hundreds of acres of land are being converted into pasture. The time may come when the country will look to Michigan instead of to Texas for its beef. We certainly have enough land for the purpose and it is cheap, the climate is favorable, the grass is rich in quality and abundant, and the facilities for marketing the stock are as good as could be desired.

The cattle farms being established are in many instances being stocked with blooded cattle, and this should suggest that attention be given to dairy products as well as to beef.
There is no reason why Michigan should not rank with Wisconsin as a producer of butter and cheese. This state is as favorably situated, the conditions are so favorable, and under skillful management the business should be as profitable.—Grand Rapids Herald.

An Open-Minded Disputant.

Are we willing to see another side than our own? We all think we are, but are we? On the answer to this depends much of our usefulness in our communities. There are not two sides to every question, but there is another side to many a question of which we are now seeing only one. And if we are on the wrong side, it is of far greater importance to us than any one else that we consider the other side, and acknowledge our error. It was said of a certain man that he was always ready to see two sides to a question,—his own side and the wrong side. There are others who are as open-minded as he.—Ex

A Great Paper-Producing Country.

The United States is the greatest paper producing country on the face of the globe, its total output being a little over 19,000,000 pounds a day, of which nearly 5,000,000 goes to the newspapers, 2,650,000 is used for the printing of books and a little over 1,000,000 for writing. The rest is wrapping paper and boards of all kinds. Besides this 11,000,000 pounds of pulp are produced. The mills work night and day for the process has to be continuous on account of the heavy expense that would be involved in cleaning the machinery to prevent it from rusting or to keep the pulp from adhering.

Vacation time is here and the

There could be no healthier place for them. You need only to guard moving danger of serious consequences, for cuts, scalds and wounds, "I Folks who live in the thickly settled portions of Ohio and other southern states in glancing over the map of Michigan are prone to the belief that people who live in the northern part are either half-breed savages or fishermen, who when hungry simply walk down to the lake and get a mess of fish for breakfast. The man who coined the phrase "Pine barrens of northern Michigan," has worked a wrong that will take years to overcome. There are no pine barren in northern Michigan—the application is a libel. It exists wholly in the brain of the sap-head who writes for this country without having set foot upon its soil. Basking in the sunlight of a salubrious climate, and feeling from a cornucopia laden with a harvest of bountiful crops, the settler of northern Michigan is the more happy man than his brother on over-crowded farms in the older states. He breathes an atmosphere as pure and bracing as the chemical laboratory of nature is capable of producing, and his offspring grow up strong and healthful, imbued with noble hearts and lofty aspirations. Never failing crops are the reward of a northern Michigan farmer. He don't know a drought; and he never heard of a tornado or eyelone only from reading of it visiting at his wife's folks down in Ohio or out west.—Frankfort Patriot.

CHANGES IN FASHION.

Plain Coats Are No Longer as Smart as Formerly.
The Eton, the bolero and the Russian coat appear to be a long way ahead of all other coats for general wear, although some dressy sack models are being shown, and the Louis coat has its votaries. The plain coat, however, has had its day, and fashionable women pass it by. The large, loose fitting coats are accepted for carriage and evening wear, but capes are almost entirely ignored except by those who require elderly fashions.
The blouse is still in request, though it is by no means as universal as formerly, but bodices are still made blouse fashion.
There is undoubtedly a tendency to return to plain skirts this spring. Many however, which cannot be termed plain have still the long, unbroken line from waist to hem. Tiny tucks run in horizontal groups and are alternated with lines of baby velvet, braid or lace, and this is a popular fashion for voile.

The pretty summer blouse in the illustration is made of net, with a yoke and insertion of gurgure lace. The fullness below the waist is held in fine tucks. The sleeves have an insertion running through their centers and a cluster of fine tucks. The waist buttons down the back with tiny silk buttons.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Feeding Young Pigs.

The young pigs at three or four weeks old will begin to nose around the trough where the old ones are feeding and try to pick up a little corn or mash as it gets thrown out. Then is the time to prepare them a trough by themselves that they may reach by going through a hole not large enough for the old ones to get through. In this put skim milk or a little warm fresh milk, and if one has his nose poked into it the sound of his eating will quickly bring the others to see what he has found. After a few days make a slop thin enough to pour well of two parts of shorts and one part of bran, mixing with warm water, and for a few days add a little milk. Try not to give more than they will eat clean, and if there is any left give it to the old ones. Feed only when the old ones are fed until they are weaned, and then three times a day until they weigh about 100 pounds, when twice a day will be often enough. A part ground oats might be better when oats did not cost as much more than bran as they do now. Do not crowd them with too much or too hearty food, but about a month before killing one-half cornmeal and one-half shorts will serve to make the meat firmer and add fat rapidly. Keep a lookout for the scours and give a little charcoal to assist digestion.—American Cultivator.

Raising Chicks.

The old fashioned hen is used for brooding the chick by E. C. Tefft, a successful Rhode Island poultryman.
He takes great care to have the young chicks protected from dampness and feeds the following mash, upon which they seem to thrive: For chicks up to six days mash two boiled eggs with one pound of crackers. Feed once in three hours, adding a few rolled oats.
From one week to six weeks old give one-third meal, one-third chops, one-third wheat bran. To a peck of this dry food add one quart of beef scraps.
Mix this with cold water and bake into a bread. Mr. Tefft advises, and whoever uses them should always follow the advice, the use of the best beef scraps on the market. The mash is fed in the morning. For noon and evening he feeds a mixture of equal parts of cracked corn and wheat.

Discrimination.

A year ago the president issued an order for the removal of fences from the public lands in the west. As usual, the order was not intended to apply to men of wealth and influence, but the small stockmen have been compelled to obey it. The Montana Stockman gives the name of one United States senator who has 50,000 acres of public land inclosed and has removed no fence and adds, "One can take the list of big fellows all through and seek in vain for any example of the fence removing order." The Montana Stockman has fallen into the error that justice has not recovered her sight, when, in fact, she can "see" a pile of money as readily as a poker player can "see" a pile of chips.—Dallas Farm and Ranch.

Two Oleo Questions.

Two puzzling questions have already come up in connection with the new oleo law. The manufacturers wish to use yellow butter for coloring their stuff and thus avoid paying the ten cent tax. It is expected that Secretary of the Treasury Shaw will decide that such colored oleo will be liable to the tax on adulterated butter. Another grievance is that of parties who export a grade of butter used by South American natives. This contains large quantities of salt, which are needed to preserve the butter. While this is not properly "butter," these exporters say that they should not be compelled to pay the tax on "adulterated" butter.
Their annual export is said to be about 6,000,000 pounds.—Rural New Yorker.

Value of Muck or Peat.

Recent experiments at the New Hampshire experiment station show that, according to the analyses of muck and barnyard manure, three tons of manure contain 23 1/4 pounds nitrogen, 15 pounds of phosphoric acid, 23 1/2 pounds potash. The same quantity of muck contains 27 pounds of nitrogen.
On the basis of these figures it is estimated, so far as fertilizing constituents are concerned, that three tons of manure are equivalent to ten and a half tons of muck. The fertilizing value of muck, therefore, is considered too low for long transportation. The character of mucks varies greatly, and it is only the richest of them that would likely prove of economic value.

Killing Noxious Weed.

One of the worst enemies of the farmer is the Canada thistle. It works more injury every year to farms than than many other causes to which greater attention is given. It spreads slowly, apparently, but sooner or later it takes full possession of the land and unless eradicated, the entire farm becomes worthless. The heavier seeds, which are carried by winds, will germinate, but its progress is by means of long white root stocks, which are proof against disease and season. It is claimed that a piece of root stock, if left in the soil, will grow from six to ten feet in a season, and from each small piece as many as 50 heads will grow. The best season to begin the war on thistles is in June. Plow the land and then plow again every few weeks until well into the fall, as the object is to kill the young growth as fast as it appears, as any plant must succumb if deprived of forming leaves, as plants breathe through their leaves. Another plan is to allow them to grow until the plants are high enough to mow and then run the mower over the field, repeating the work as fast as the plants appear.

The farmer may prefer to use the land by plowing and planting to potatoes, and by frequent cultivation he will destroy many of the thistles and the potatoes will pay for the labor. It may not be possible to subdue them the first year, but if the work is well done the thistles may be completely destroyed the second year, when the ground should be plowed in the spring and a crop of early cabbage grown, remove the cabbage, plow and harrow, then broadcast the land with Hungarian grass seed. As Hungarian grass grows very rapid and may be mowed once a month it gives the thistle little chance, while the previous cultivation of the cabbage crop will have greatly reduced the thistles in number. The plan is to keep them cut down from July to frost, when they will be under control.

The roadsides must be carefully attended to, for it is there that weeds are neglected and hence protected. Neighbors should work harmoniously in the destruction of weeds, as frequently some negligent farmer injures the entire community by producing the seeds of weeds that are carried by the wind over a large area. Weeds are carried long distances on the tops of railroad cars or by water, in fact, there are so many modes of distribution that it is impossible for farmers to escape the weed nuisance, but they can prevent their spread, and in protecting his neighbor he also protects himself. The Canada thistle is not so great a nuisance as many suppose if farmers will only determine to combat its spread.—Chicago Chronicle.

Mortality For June Fell Off Greatly.

The influence of the wet weather of June upon the mortality statistics is somewhat surprising. According to a statement made by the secretary of state Monday the number of deaths in Michigan for the month was 2,234, which was 452 less than reported for May and 100 less than June of last year. The death rate was only 11 per 1,000 inhabitants. There was 395 deaths of infants under one year of age; 147 deaths of children aged one to four years and 651 deaths of persons aged 65 and over. Tuberculosis caused the death of 205; typhoid fever 27; diphtheria and croup 29; scarlet fever 16; measles 32; whooping cough 34; pneumonia 160; cancer 17; accidents and violence 176. There was 8 deaths from smallpox, three of which were in Detroit. There was 3 deaths reported from lightning.

Mr. Balfour, England's New Premier.

Mr. Balfour is a man of peculiar temperament. By inclination he is a scholar and a metaphysician. His intellectual endowments are of a high order and circumstances placed him in politics. He has made his mark in a sphere for which he would appear to have been unfitted, and he has developed in the atmosphere of politics and under the tutelage of his distinguished uncle into statesman of such ability that the king has placed the government in his hands.

He is 54 years of age and has been in politics since the early '70s. In 1874 he was elected to parliament. In 1878 he accompanied his uncle, Lord Salisbury, to the Berlin conference in the capacity of secretary. In July, 1886, he was appointed secretary for Scotland, and entered the English cabinet in November. A year later he was made chief secretary for Ireland, one of the most difficult posts in the British government. At this appointment the Irish leaders laughed aloud, for Balfour, the blushing, diffident, unready, student, was regarded as a rather clever, but withal a weak man, who owed his advancement in politics to the fact that he was the nephew of his uncle.

At Home.

The return to Hutchinson Monday of Perley P. Pendergast and bride has given abost of Hutchinsonians an opportunity to congratulate and express well wishes to one of the most high-minded, generous-hearted and public-spirited young men this town has produced. And an admirable phase of his character is his spirit of modesty which would probably incite him to thrash the editor if he thought by so doing he could suppress any allusion to the splendid qualities of heart and mind which knit to him so many friends in this community in which he has spent his life. The same good sense and quick discernment which has made him success in everything he has undertaken thus far assisted him in choosing a wife who is in every way a cultured, womanly girl, qualified to make a home happy and preside over it with queenly grace. Their wedding trip was a delightful one from Tawas City, Mich., the bride's home, down the great lakes to Buffalo, thence to Albany by rail and down the Hudson to New York City; thence to Providence, R. I., and Essex and Boston, spending the 4th of July in the latter city where they saw patriotism uncocked on historic grounds. Mr. Pendergast says he saw more men drunk in Boston the 4th than he has seen in all of his life in McLeod county. They took time to enjoy scenic and historic points and now are anticipating the pleasure of soon settling down under their own vine and fig tree on 5th avenue west.—Hutchinson Independent-Times.

Manager E. H. Walker of the Martin & Boggs lumber inspecting office, at this place, informs us that lumber shipments to date from this port exceed by far those of any season in the past seven years. With this sort of a start the season of 1902 promises to be the banner shipping year for lumber from Grand Marais. Indications point that the balance of the season will be equally as good and possibly better than the fore part and if such the case a large summary may be looked for at the end of the season.—Grand Marais Herald.

The Orangemen's celebration in this city last Saturday passed off quietly and was a most enjoyable occasion. It is estimated that at least one thousand people were in attendance. Besides the parades there were addresses. The ball game in the afternoon between the local team and the Omers, was an easy victory for the latter, by a score of 23 to 5. The Annual School Meeting.

Last Monday evening occurred the annual school meeting of school district No. 7, and it was largely attended. The report of officers were of an encouraging nature, in that the district is in better financial condition than for several years. This is caused by the larger amount of delinquent tax and primary school money received during the past year. About $2,000 covers the estimated amount to be raised this year.

Free Lectures.

To the pupils and former pupils of East Tawas high school, and teachers of Ioseco county:

Our high schools have been named the working man's college, but my experience has shown me that they are the normal schools of the land. Our teachers get an excellent scientific and literary education, fitting them for teaching. There are however, certain subjects that our high schools as a rule does not overtake, they are as follows, Pedagogy, Psychology and School Law. Rev. A. C. Kay proposes to give a course of lectures on these subjects, free to all present and former pupils of East Tawas high school and teachers of this county. The course begins Tuesday, July 22, at 10 a. m., in the principal's room of the high school in East Tawas. They will extend over three weeks and close just as the summer institute begins. All are invited to take advantage of this training, for if well attended, they may lead to a permanent summer school.

Mother Always Keeps it Handy

"My mother suffered a long time from distressing pains and general ill health due primarily to indigestion," says L. W. Spalding, Verona, Mo. "Two years ago I got her to try Kodol. She grew better at once and now, at the age of seventy-six, eats anything she wants, remarking that she fears no bad effects as she has her bottle of Kodol handy." Don't waste time doctoring symptoms. Go after the cause. If your stomach is sound your health will be good, Kodol rests the stomach and strengthens the body by digesting your food. It is nature's own tonic.

THE TRIAL OF LOVE

She had promised herself for life to a man whom she had met only a few days before.

The drawing room clock ticked harder than usual that afternoon, and Elsie kept looking up from her work to notice how the hands flew.

Only a few steps beyond the garden she met him. He was punctual to the minute and beamed with joy because she came out to meet him.

"Are you very sure," she began, breaking a dry twig into tiny bits—"are you really, really sure that you love me?"

"Sure of it? But there is surely no one who has forced me to say it!"

"No. But you don't know me. What is it about me you love?"

"Everything." He loved the folds of her dress, he loved the flower she wore on her breast, and he did not understand that under each question to him lay a question to herself.

But why should she be the only one to doubt and worry? And so to disturb his composure she began to set forth her faults.

Finally the blood rushed to her head. It annoyed her to find she could not convince him. He sat there in the secure belief that she wished only to humble herself because of her great happiness.

She knew of a way to make him understand, but her tongue seemed tied when she tried to speak.

"No, you do not know me," said she. "When I answered you as I did this morning, it was because—well, not wholly because—but perhaps partly because—because of hardships at home."

There was a crackling of twigs. He had turned on his arm and was gazing at her without a word, but the color was gone from his face.

There came over her a feeling of unspeakable regret. With a few words she had destroyed something she could never get back again.

There came over her a feeling of unspeakable regret. With a few words she had destroyed something she could never get back again.

"Ah, you are afraid of hardships?" His voice sounded heavy, and his eyes looked far away over the broad meadows visible through the opening in the trees.

"Then it would be best for you to reconsider," he continued. "I am a business man, and my position is not firmly secured.

"It makes no difference to me, no difference at all, if I have to bear hardships with you," she said softly.

His eyes came back from the far fields. It was only a cloud that had passed over the sun.

He understood now that the little bird he had wished to charm for himself had been frightened only by a too sudden approach, but that it now came of its own accord and that all he had to do was to open his arms.

In a little while they went back the way they came, but this time they did not pass the garden gate.

Getting Used to It. She—Mr. Miller used to be well spoken of, but of late he is in bad odor.

Little Conveniences. Every housekeeper should provide herself with little conveniences for doing her work.

FOUNTAIN OF SALT.

An Attractive Household Ornament That is Easily Made.

An attractive household ornament, having the appearance of a marble fountain, can be made by putting some salt and enough water to dissolve it in a very small glass fruit dish and from day to day adding a little more water and salt.

A FOUNTAIN OF SALT.

spread and crystallize over the edge of the glass, then down around the outside. The dish may then be stood upon another similar dish of larger size, as shown in the illustration, and salt and water placed in it regularly in like manner.

With the constant additions of salt and water the crystallization will spread over and down the entire column, appearing like a fountain or waterfall, white and sparkling. The salt will harden, holding all the sections of the marblelike pillar firmly together.

Systematize the Housework.

It is a very common fault with women to ruin their health and their tempers and to waste their energy by neglecting to systematize their housework.

There was a crackling of twigs. He had turned on his arm and was gazing at her without a word, but the color was gone from his face.

Egyptian Women.

The Egyptian beasts of burden—the camel, the ox, the donkey—have the same patient look as the people. It may not be improper to add another beast of burden, woman.

Supersensitive Children.

There are children born into the world in these days of nervous and industrial strain and strife so highly strung, so intensely sensitive, that they shrink from a sharp word as some natures would recoil from the sting of a whip.

Broil Bacon in the Oven.

Try broiling bacon in the oven some time and you will find that you have not done it sooner. The oven must be very hot and the bacon shut in a folding broiler and over a roasting pan.

Little Conveniences.

Every housekeeper should provide herself with little conveniences for doing her work. A short handled, bread paint brush is handy to wash the outside of window sills and an old tooth brush for washing around the glass.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Young Drummer.

Although he is not higher than a bass drum, little Malcolm Robb Gerlach of Allegheny, Pa., who is but five years old, plays the bass and while he is doing that plays either a snare or kettle drum, just as the occasion demands.

Two years ago the youngster began playing on a toy drum, but one year ago Malcolm began following his elder brothers in their rehearsals of orchestration. The elder brothers, two in number, are skilled musicians.

He has now acquired the art of reading, and he follows the score as perfectly as any trap drummer could. Seldom does he make a mistake.

Be Careful.

Be careful to use good grammar. One of the most common grammatical errors in the United States is "the don't." People who would not dream of letting such an absurdity as "he do" cross their lips seize every occasion to declare that "he don't" without apparently the least idea that they are offending against the laws of the language.

A Pie Investigation. One morning Johnny's mother discovered a shortage in her supply of pies, baked the day before, and her suspicions fell upon Johnny.

Snow and Hall.

Why water should sometimes fall as soft snow crystals and at others in hard lumps of ice is a question of interest. The difference is entirely one of time.

What He Knew of Beds.

One day in school the teacher told an Irish boy to spell and define bed. He got the b-e-d, but couldn't tell what it spelled.

Master Dickey Dawdle-so.

Master Dickey Dawdle-so is a little boy I know; Called in ample time each morn, Stopped to dream, to stretch and yawn; Late to breakfast, then, of course, Mamma groaned and Dickey crossed.

Old Furniture Made New.

If you have any old kitchen dresser or table considered utterly worthless and only fit for firewood, a skillful hand at spatter work can make it an attractive piece of furniture which will all its place for fifty years longer and be admired by all who behold it.

Farmers in Town.

Can any one subscribe to a really good reason why farmers rent their farms and move to town when the debts are paid and a chance comes for rest and enjoyment for the family?
