The Moving Sidewalk.

A well known French engineer, M. That part of Paris now has an omnibus line, but owing to the crowded condition of the streets the accommodations are very unsatisfactory. According to the Electrical World and Engineer, the platform itself would consist of three parallel parts, running with speeds of 212, 5 and 7 miles an hour respectively. A passenger walking on the third platform could thus attain a speed of nine to ten miles. The promoters are contemplating even a quadruple platform. making the higher speed as great as twelve to fourteen miles an hour.

Judge George H. Durand's Letter of Acceptance

An Able and Dignified Presentation f the Issues of the Campaign and His Pledges to the People of Michigan, read before the Democratic state central committee by his brother, L. T. Durand, in Grand Rapids, Tuesday, is as follows:

Flint, Mich., August 30, 1902. To the Democratic state central committee and to my fellow-citizens of

In presenting my formal acceptance of the nomination to the office of governor of this great state-a nomination so generously tendered me by the convention of that great party whose founders believed and intended that the people and not the spoils en should govern-permit me, in addi on, to express the deepest regret which I feel in not being able at this particular occasion, on account of sickness from which I trust I shall speedily recover, to be present and speak personally to all who have become enlisted and are interested in the welfare of Michigan, and to express my high appreciation of honor paid me by the nomination, and of the many warm testimonials of friendship and support, irrespective of party politics, which I have received from all parts of the state,

A Personal Sacrifice for the Publie Good.

I had endeavored to indicate my wish that the convention might, from the many capable and available men of the party, select another to carry the standard in the battle for better government, but the manner in which the request has come to me, both from the convention as a deliberative body and from the ranks of the people of Michigan, has seemed to make it my impera- and the general welfare of our state, tive duty, as I view it, to lay aside personal inclinations and interests and to resolutely do what I can towards of a few, the manhood and sovereign the betterment of the conditions with power which the citizen possesses which we are perplexed.

It was never intended that the people should, by the power of individual or combined wealth operating through political machines or otherwise, be thwarted in their right to be represented by one from their own ranks and of their own choice, whose sterling manhood and intellectual fitness were alone sufficient to insure their confidence and esteem. Necessity for Primary Election

The methods by which machine politics have dominated political conventions and usurped and ignored the rights of the people respecting local legislation, are matters too well known to be disguised, and should be resented at the polls in November. The appeal that the people of Michigan have been making so long for a primary election law which shall be the means of puriving the avenues to positions of pubic honor and trust has not been heed- something higher than his own happied, and complaints which now come ness.

Judge Durand's address to the voters | from every quarter of the state abundantly demonstrate the wisdom of the convention in insisting that this measure shall be so engrafted in our system of state government that political jobbery shall no longer be permitted to feed the ambitions of any man or any faction conniving for public office.

I hope to live to see the day when the aspirations of an honest man shall not suffer because he refuses to wear another's political yoke. I hope to live to see the day when a true, noble manhood shall count for as much in politics as in private citizenship. Independent Voters Must Smash the Machine.

A party machine is a baneful thing no matter in which party it works its cunning. The interests of this great state are always at stake whenever a public trust is to be committed to one of her citizens, and whenever legislation is enacted affecting her people at large, or affecting her great cities where home rule should ever prevail. Whenever a nomination or an election to a public office is made to depend upon the liberal and scandalous use of money, or is to be obtained only at the behest of some political master, it is high time that the rank and file of the citizens of Michigan assert their sovereignty and deal the iniquity the blow it deserves. And whenever a few public servants in legislature assembled shall set at naught the wishes of the citizens of our cities, who best know their local needs, and whose influence and commerce have done so much for agriculture, for the industries and impose upon them such legislation as will best subserve the political ends should prompt him to effectually correct the evil at the ballot box.

Corporations Should Not Control the State.

As the office of governor of this state is the most important public trust which its people can commit to any man, so I conceive it to be the duty of the incumbent to have the welfare of the people his sole concern, and as remarked by me on another occasion, if D.
