A large number of the cities, villages, townships throughout the state are adopting resolutions, as suggested by the state board of health, requiring all dogs to be muzzled, and any dog running at large without a muzzle is shot. The precaution is a good one, as there are many cases of hydrophobia throughout the state, and we believe it should be adopted by our local board of health. There are several hundred dogs in the Tawas which could well be dispersed with.

Newspapers are the vehicle of all the really influential political discussion, says the Kansas City Journal. We are aware that it is professed in some quarters that the politicians wield the moving power which makes and unmake administrations, but the fact remains that it is the political information and argument presented by newspapers steadily through the year which establishes in the body politic the convictions and beliefs which determine elections.

In view of the large investments of American capital abroad, and of the immense credit balances resulting from trade operations during the past eight or ten years, it seems impossible that this country owes so much to Europe that 406 millions are required annually to settle adverse balances. Yet we seem to be paying out that amount annually for something, and it would be a satisfaction to know what that something is.

If the bill now before the legislature, which provides that all bondsmen for liquor dealers shall list $4,000 worth of real estate in order to qualify as such bondsmen becomes a law, it will raise hob for a good many saloon keepers. Not more than half of the bondsmen in the state could qualify in that way, as heretofore, men who were worth the $4,000 whether in real or personal property were accepted, notwithstanding the provisions of the old law. Some bondsmen, who could list $4,000 in real estate on a fair valuation, will hesitate to do so for fear of having their assessment raised. The saloon men should make a hustle for bonds if they do not wish to get left.

Saginaw Bay.

Low lie the mists on Saginaw,
The swishing waters of the Bay
Break on the beach and swift withdraw,
Lost in the shadows, silent, gray;
But up the East in lordly state,
The sun, glad harbinger of day,
Like one who journeys glad, elate,
Heeds not the mists that cloud his way.

Across the water's broad expanse,
A chaos in its shroud of fog,
The sun shoots forth an ardent glance—
Like vapors rising from a bog,
The mists ascend, the ripples gleam
With million sparkles of the light,
And lying like an artist's dream
The level flood bursts on my sight.

Oh, kingly, beauteous Saginaw;
Oh, fading line of treeless shore,
My soul stands still in holy awe,
Where waves have broken evermore
On sandy bar and pebbly beach,
Wave upon wave, with tireless sweep,
My heart in glad attune, for each
Is one great poem from the deep!

At night I'm startled in my sleep,
By some bad dream of this sad world,
But listening, I hear the deep
Soft murmurs of the waters hurled
In ceaseless waves against the shore,
Till like a mother's lullaby
It soothes my fears, and evermore
I wish to hear it till I die.

I sing to thee, thou lovely bay,
My song of praise this gladsome morn,
While memory is far away
In that quaint cot where I was born;
But in these ripened years of life
Thy calm is sweet unto my soul;
Oh, may the tempest and the strife,
When they across life's sea shall roll,

Leave me as calm, serene as thee,
As thou dost seem this morning hour,
As whispering of eternity,
Thou showest both thy peace and power.
Thou hast thy secrets, sparkling deep!
Thou dost but mirror souls of men,
For why we laugh and why we weep
Is far beyond weak human ken!

CALVIN GOSS.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunk in, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at J. E. Dillon and G. S. Darling's Drug stores.

Muzzle All Dogs at Large.

The following has been issued by the state board of health: Every local board of health in Michigan should immediately make and publish regulations ordering the muzzling of all dogs at large and the killing of all unmuzzled dogs found at large, and make provision for the prompt and effective execution of such regulations.

Local boards of health have full power to make such regulations, which when published, have the force of law, the violation of which is a misdemeanor. This power or authority, is implied, and is also given by statute in Michigan, in townships by sections 4412 and 4413, compiled laws of Michigan, 1897; and these sections are made to apply in cities and villages by section 4459, excepting in cases where the charters of such cities and villages contain provisions inconsistent therewith.

The section of law specifying the manner of the publication is as follows:

"Sec. 4416. Notice shall be given by the board of health of all regulations made by them, by publishing the same in some newspaper of the township, if there be one published therein, and if not, then by posting them up in five public places in such township; and such notice of said regulations shall be deemed legal notice to all persons."

A Great Sensation.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind. when W. H. Brown of that place, who was excepted to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from asthma, but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure." Similar cures of consumption, pneumonia, bronchitis and grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c. and $1. Guaranteed by J. E. Dillon and G. S. Darling, Druggists. Trial bottles free.

The news of the death of Henry Gale, at Baker City, Ore., came as a shock to his many friends in this city and vicinity. His death occurred Mar. 23, as the result of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered a few weeks previous. The deceased was a well-known resident of this city for many years previous to last fall when he removed with his family to Oregon. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him and had been called to fill many positions of trust and responsibility, including those of alderman and supervisor of the first ward, and always discharged his duties with honor and credit. As indicated by the deal the new company will engage in stock raising on an extensive scale. This is one of the largest real estate deals ever made in this section of the state and includes the largest and best improved farm. This farm has for years been Mr. Prescott's especial pride and has received his personal supervision, but advancing year makes it incumbent upon him to lessen his numerous business responsibilities.
Mrs. Robert Tate died at her home in this city at 2 o'clock last Sunday morning, after a long and patient suffering from consumption. The deceased was about 50 years of age, and was born in Simcoe county, Ontario. She was united in marriage to Mr. Tate, at Saginaw, twenty-five years ago last September, and has been a resident of this city about twenty-one years. Besides a husband, she leaves one daughter—Mrs. Joseph Brabant—and one sister—Mrs. Sarah Donahue, of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa,—to mourn her loss. While a lady of retired disposition, she was most highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. The funeral was held from St. Joseph's church at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, Rev. Fr. Kinney, officiating. The remains were laid at rest in the Catholic cemetery at East Tawas.
We invite the ladies of the Tawas to visit our store on Friday and Saturday, April 10th and 11th. C. H. PRESCOTT & SONS.

Found Dead.
The remains of an unknown man were found in Dead Creek, at the railroad bridge, in this city, last Saturday morning, by Bert Holloway, who reported to Sheriff Johnson. A coroner's jury was impanelled and the remains removed to Evertz undertaking establishment. The remains were identified as John Jenkinson, a woodsman, from AuSable. It has been learned that he left AuSable Friday evening to go to Five Lakes, Lapeer county, where a brother resides. He paid his fare to this city, but did not get off at the depot. When Conductor O'Brien passed through the train to collect fares after leaving this station, the man told him he wanted to get off here, and the train was stopped at Halletown crossing and he got off. While the inquest has been adjourned until next Wednesday evening, it is evident that the man had started to walk back, and while crossing the bridge had fallen off—a distance of about ten feet—breaking his neck. The night was very dark and being unfamiliar with his surroundings, such a supposition is the most reasonable, and upon examination Dr. Darling found that the neck was broken. The sum of $3.03 was found in his pocket. The remains were sent to his brother at Five Lakes for interment.
Three weeks ago his brother, George, was killed by being caught in the shafting at the Alpena paper mills. The inquest is in charge of Justice Kelly, and the following jury, E. M. Schlechte, Wilfred Grise, John O'Brien, Thomas Galbath, G. W. Mount and H. E. Gates.

JAMES H. POUND

One of Michigan's Ablest and Most Successful Lawyers

SUPREME COURT NOMINEE

Just the Kind of Man the People Need to Protect their Rights from the Encroachments of Corporations

Hon. James H. Pound, the nominee on the Democratic ticket for justice of the Supreme Court, is not only one of the ablest lawyers in the state of Michigan, but is also one of the most loyal friends of the common people that this state has ever produced.

The explanation of Mr. Pound's strength with the people who know him best is his rugged and unwavering integrity. He is emphatically a man of the people. He has no patience with sham and pretense, and is absolutely unimpaired by appearances. Although he owns a very large amount of property in Detroit—all earned by his untiring labors in his profession—he is plain and unpretentious in his dress and careless of the appearance of his busy office to an extent which is often called eccentricity. He is, in fact, a sort of Michigan Horace Greeley, and like the great journalist, he has things of more importance to attend to than clothing and office fixtures. He is a man of strong and vigorous intellect, and has decided opinions, which he is not afraid to defend. He deals sledge hammer blows at everything he attacks, but is absolutely sincere in everything he says, and the people of Detroit have learned to trust in and rely upon "Jim" Pound, as he is familiarly called.

His success in his chosen profession has been phenomenal. No lawyer in the state of Michigan ever had such an extensive practice as that which Mr. Pound has built up by his acknowledged legal ability, and by the successful outcome of the litigation which he has conducted. He has been entrusted with the care of more than 1,900 cases in courts of record, and he has been retained in more than 300 cases in the Supreme Court, having argued and briefed 206 Supreme Court cases up to the time of his nomination. Conclusive proof of his legal ability will be found scattered through a hundred volumes of Michigan reports. Mr. Pound is president of the Wayne County Bar Association, and is universally esteemed by the members of his profession.

His popularity with the people of Detroit, who know him best, is conclusively shown by the vote which he received in 1898, when he was the Democratic nominee for congress and ran 5,200 votes ahead of his ticket, and also by his vote at the following spring election for circuit judge. He was elected circuit judge against an adverse Republican majority of over three thousand, but was counted out by a pretended plurality of 25 votes.

Mr. Pound is a man in the full vigor of perfect health; is 6 feet in height, and weighs more than 225 pounds. He was married some twenty years ago, and has two children, a boy of 17 and a daughter younger. Although he is a relentless fighter when he engages in any controversy, he is a man of even temper and generous disposition, and has a host of friends among all classes, parties and creeds.

Mr. Pound was born in Detroit, August 27, 1852, and is a product of the British Isles in two generations. In his veins the blood of England, Scotland and Ireland unites, and he has profited by the virility of all three branches of his ancestry. Mr. Pound's grandfather was a British soldier, who fought through the wars with Napoleon, but who nevertheless was so fired by the spirit of liberty as to seek a new home in America, emigrating to this country in 1831. Mr. Pound was educated in the public schools of Detroit, graduated from the law department of the University in 1878, and entered at once upon the practice of his profession. He has always been a public spirited citizen, and a generous supporter of every deserving enterprise. He has never been an office seeker, but has served as circuit court commissioner, and also as a member of the board of health of the city of Detroit, both of which positions he filled with credit to himself and the satisfaction of the people. Upon the board of health, particularly, he rendered the most valuable services to the citizens of his city.

Mr. Pound is an indefatigable worker; his rare natural abilities being increased by his perfect health and physical endurance, and his knowledge of the principles and practice of law is equalled by few men within the boundaries of our state.

The most prominent characteristic of James H. Pound is his intense love of justice, and his hatred of wrong and oppression. He is universally considered in Detroit the champion of the poor and middle classes, and his offices are thronged with clients who come to him because they feel that they will obtain a champion, willing and able to obtain justice for them.

Among the many cases which Mr. Pound has conducted in the interests of the people we might mention his recent successful suit against the Michigan Telephone Co., his defense of the workmen charged with conspiracy during the strikes of 1893, his contest of the labor union law, and his defense of the Salvation Army against encroachments upon personal liberty, conducted by the notorious Frank Andrews, who was then police commissioner.

He has represented widows and orphans, the lame and the blind, and the oppressed laborer, and if the working classes do for James H. Pound one-tenth of what he has done for them without money and without price, Mr. Pound will be elected justice of the Supreme Court.

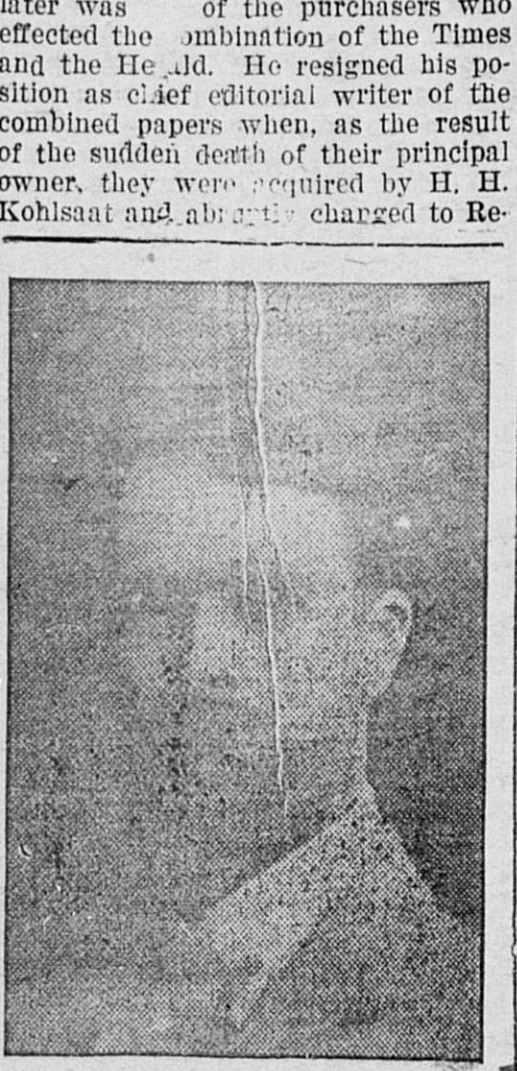

HON. WILLIS J. ABBOTT

Democratic Nominee for Regent of the University

HE IS AN IDEAL CANDIDATE

A Distinguished Author and Editor, Splendidly Equipped for the Position for Which he was Chosen

Willis J. Abbott, one of the nominees for regent of the university, is the editor and part owner of The Pilgrim, a popular magazine published at Battle Creek. Mr. Abbott is by profession an editor and author, coming from the family which gave the nation such distinguished men of letters as Wm. S. C. Abbott, the historian, Jacob Abbott, the author of the Rollo books, and Rev. Lyman Abbott, the successor of Henry Ward Beecher. He was graduated in the law department of the university in 1884, after having taken also a special course of three years in the literary department. He has been journalist and author ever since. In 1893 he was managing editor of the Chicago Times then owned by the elder Carter H. Harrison, and later was one of the purchasers who effected the combination of the Times and the Heald. He resigned his position as chief editorial writer of the combined papers when, as the result of the sudden death of their principal owner, they were acquired by H. H. Kohlsaat and ably charged to Republican in policy. It may be noted here that in almost twenty years of journalism Mr. Abbott has never served any except a strictly Democratic newspaper.

HON. WILLIS J. ABBOTT

In 1895 he was called to New York to take charge of the editorial page of the New York Journal. It will be remembered that in '96 the Journal was the only great city newspaper that supported the Democratic ticket and the fight it made is historical. This political campaign was directed in the Journal office wholly by Mr. Abbott, who not only supervised the political work of the Journal at prepared and distributed the weekly political "extras" of which over 5,000,000 were sent out during the campaign.

In 1898 the illness of a member of his family compelled him to leave New York. He then established his home in Ann Arbor, where he had been graduated in '84 and where in 1888 he married the daughter of Christian Maek, a prominent banker. In 1899 he took charge of the press bureau of the Democratic national committee with headquarters at Chicago, and conducted that bureau until election day in 1900. While directing the work of this bureau he also acted as the adviser of William R. Hearst in the establishment of The Chicago American and was an editorial writer for that paper throughout the campaign.

Shortly after the campaign Mr. Abbott acquired an interest in The Pilgrim, a popular magazine published at Battle Creek, but which up to that time had been but little pushed for prominence. The chief owner of the magazine, A. C. Wisner, a man of large means and strongly Democratic sympathies, determined to push it to the front as a popular magazine with distinctly radical Democratic tendencies, and as such Mr. Abbott has conducted it with notable success. His home is in Battle Creek and as a delegate from the third district he wrote the platform on which L. T. Durand ran for governor last fall.

It is proper to say, however, that Mr. Abbott's political activities have been incidental rather than the chief interest of his life. He has never held no sought office. He is an author of established position having written nine successful books on American history, of which the "Blue Jacket's" series and the "History of the United States Navy" are the best known. He is also a contributor to the foremost magazines of the country.

No alumnus of the University of Michigan has done more in a purely literary way than Mr. Abbott. Few recent graduates have been more successful as business men. He is emphatically not a politician, but rather a type of the American citizen who devotes to politics all the time and thought he can spare in order to advance policies which he believes will be of advantage to all the people.

HON. WELLINGTON R. BURT.

HON. WELLINGTON R. BURT

The nomination of Hon. Wellington R. Burt, of Saginaw, for regent of the University, the Democratic State Convention selected one of Michigan's foremost men. For many years Mr. Burt has been identified with the growth and progress of our state, and the rare business ability which has made him so successful in his own affairs is need by the people of this state in the management of their great University.
