Eleventh Annual Commencement Of Tawas City Schools.

An Interesting Event in the School History of the City.

The graduating exercises of the schools of a town always are, and of right should be, interesting events. It is natural that when our boys and girls reach that important goal in their school career we should feel an interest in them and wish them to appear well before the public. Yet, not all graduating exercises are alike in interest and inspiration to those who participate and to the general public. Sometimes the exercises are tame and commonplace, so much so that we usually look for something tiresome and tedious on such an occasion.

If anybody attended the eleventh annual commencement exercises of the Tawas City schools at the court house last Friday evening, June 25, expecting to hear something tiresome or in any way unmeritorious, he or she was most pleasantly surprised. Never before did graduation exercises in Tawas City go off with so much vim and good feeling. In the first place, the class was, we may say, an exceptional one. Composed of five young ladies, in the bloom of young womanhood, admired and respected by the entire community, they gave promise of acquitting themselves nobly in their graduation speeches, and they did not disappoint us, but rather surprised us by the brightness and originality of their work, none of which was stilted or produced with a desire to create an effect.

Before the hour for opening the exercises the court-room was crowded with an eager but orderly crowd. Many had to stand during the entire time of the exercises, but they were patient and appreciative listeners. It is to be regretted that the city has not some more commodious hall where such exercises could be conducted. The rostrum was beautifully decorated with a canopy of the class colors, crimson and gold, and embowered with potted plants and flowers. In the background the class motto, "We Will," appeared in large letters of pale green.

At 8:00 o'clock Prof. A. A. Ellsworth appeared from the ante-room, followed by the five graduates, all of whom were plainly and tastefully attired in white. Miss Edyth Walker brought up the rear, and to the strains of a march, rendered by Miss Elsie Mount, who presided at the piano, all came upon the stage and were seated, amidst applause.

Rev. E. O. Sutherland delivered the invocation, which was followed by a piano solo by Mrs. E. King, who rendered a choice classical selection. To those who appreciate music of the highest class, executed by one who has the touch and the technique of the accomplished musician, this was a rare treat, and the generous applause gave evidence that it was appreciated.

Miss Ethel Hartingh delivered the salutatory, which though brief was to the point and filled with good thought.

Among other things Miss Hartingh, by way of greeting, said: "I suppose you see little difference in the classes that go forth from our schools from year to year, but to us it is an important day in our lives. It is the day for which we have worked for twelve long years. Undoubtedly, many of you can look back over your school lives and recall incidents, red-letter days in your school calendar. Perhaps your graduation day was one of them, when you said 'good-bye' to your teachers and your school friends, many of whom had been with you through nearly your whole school life. Tonight is our time to say 'good-bye' and to start life anew, as it were, some of us here at home, others amid different surroundings. But wherever it be, if we go through life weak and cowardly it is the fault of ourselves, not of our environment.

Miss Hartingh was followed by Miss Agnes Galbraith, who chose for her subject, "The Influence of Character." Her handling of the subject showed careful preparation and excellent choice of language.

These words on the influence of character are words of wisdom: The crown and glory of life is character. It is the noblest possession of man, constituting a rank in itself, an estate in the general good will; dignifying every station and exalting every position in society. It carries with it an influence which always tells; for it is the result of proved honor, rectitude and constancy, qualities which perhaps more than any other command the general confidence and respect of mankind. Let me then aim at the possession of a good character as one of the highest objects of life. It is well to have a high standard of life, even though we may not be able altogether to attain it. Whoever tries for the highest results can not fail to reach a point far in advance of that from which he started, and though the end attained may fall short of that proposed, still the very effort to rise can not fail to prove permanently beneficial.

Miss Winifred Hartingh sang a vocal solo, and although this was almost the first appearance of the young lady before the public, she called forth a perfect storm of applause and for encore sang "Annie Laurie." Miss Winifred has a very sweet voice, unspoiled by affectation. Every note is clear and natural and has a quality of sweetness and depth not often possessed by a young girl. Her singing has been much spoken of and commended by many who had the privilege of hearing her on Friday evening.

"Illustrious Women of the Nineteenth Century" was the subject handled by Miss Floral Ramage, and to say that she did it justice is but feeble praise. We make the following brief extract:

Great lives are not made up by phenomena, nor are the most worthy careers the result of accidents. The most effective way of forming a strong and noble character is the study of the lives of those whose exertions have been crowned with lasting effects, or whose purity and nobleness of purpose have rendered them inspiring and immortal examples. The women of the nineteenth century who have become known to the world because of what they have accomplished have earned public recognition by their own efforts. Looking back over the years and comparing the position of woman in the 17th and 18th centuries with her position in the 19th, we find a vast difference in her place in the intellectual field. In every walk in life she can take a position in the front rank.

"Five Little Peppers and How They Grew," by Miss Nina Crandall, was the hit of the evening. In a unique and highly original manner, as prophetic of her class she looked back to graduation night after a space of ten years and gave a suppositional history of each of her schoolmates who graduated with her. The clear cut sentences, and the thought so admirably clothed in simple but effective and poetic language, made a favorable impression upon the audience. As an example, listen to a few of her closing words:

And thus it all ends. We shall probably never be all together again, even through correspondence. But still, shall one of us ever forget those dear old days? Ah, no. Too much of our life was spent there to allow us to forget them. And our motto. I wonder if the girls have lived up to those words, "we will." In their widely separated paths they seem to have been all successful in finding true happiness. With mature wisdom comes the thought that after all, mere determination on our own part is not sufficient. We need a stronger, firmer hand on the revolving wheel of events and so with trustful hearts we learn to add, "We can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth us."

A male quartette, composed of Revs. King and Sutherland and Messrs. Garber and Mount, rendered a beautiful selection and were heartily applauded, responding with "I've Lost My Little Doggie," very laughable and appreciated by everybody. Amidst the most boisterous applause of the evening the gentlemen took their seats but though the applause continued, they could not be prevailed upon by the audience to respond to a second encore. Amid this most enthusiastic applause Miss Grace Redhead, the valedictorian of the class, stepped to the front of the stage and in a most forcible manner presented her farewell thoughts under the title of "The Law of the Harvest." Let us offer a quotation from her address:

TAWAS CITY, MICH., July 3, 1903.

The Herald guarantees to carry your advertisement to more desirable customers in Iosco county each week than you can reach through any other medium. This is no bluff. Our list is open to your inspection.

The next campaign will be one of excuses on the part of the administrative party. Tweed and his ring would be put to shame were they on earth to witness the rottenness that is being unearthed in municipal, state and government affairs at the present time.

The July Woman's Home Companion contains a striking article on "Keeping House With High Explosives." It is an interview with Mr. Hudson Maxim: Mary Annable Fanton tells how he boiled eggs over dynamite and made tea with smokeless powder.

The Review of Reviews for July gives many interesting facts in connection with the Obrenovitch dynasty in Serbia, which came to so shocking an end on June 11. The prospects of the new reign and other topics related to political conditions and transformations in south-eastern Europe are editorially discussed in this number.

The dangers of administration parties with overwhelming majorities were never more strikingly shown than at present. In the postoffice and other departments at Washington, in the legislature, tax commissioners and state departments of Michigan, in the department of public works, of Detroit, we see thievery being practiced with bold defiance of the people. How long will the voters stand it?

When a merchant pays for advertising he does so because he wishes the people of the community to know what he has to sell. He wants all the people who use his kind of goods to know what he has and to know that he sells them at right prices. This being a fact he naturally looks to the newspaper that reaches the most people of his locality as the best medium to use. For this reason the Herald is the leading advertising medium of Iosco county, for the reason that it is read by double the number of people of any paper in the county. It is the people's paper and they all take it.

OBITUARY.

SARAH ANN HAYES.

After a long illness, Mrs. Sarah Ann Hayes died peacefully about midnight last Friday and was buried from the Presbyterian church in Tawas City on Sabbath at 2 p. m. Rev. E. O. Sutherland conducted the funeral service, assisted by Rev. A. C. Kay, of East Tawas. A large number of friends from the two towns, and also from the surrounding country gathered at the funeral, showing their affection and high esteem for the deceased, and tenderly followed the remains to their last resting place. The choir, consisting of Mrs. Goldie, Mrs. Taylor, Mr. Prescott and Mr. Mount, sang sweetly and appropriately hymns which Mrs. Hayes had loved, and it was noticeable that the theme of them all was heaven and the glories of the future life. The minister spoke of the desirable ending of a righteous life.

Mrs. Hayes had been a Christian from early in life, and was sustained by an unwavering faith through all her sickness until the end. Born in Strathroy, Canada, 1844, she came to Saginaw, Mich., when 16 years old. Two years after, she was married to Francis E. Hayes, and continued to live in Saginaw until 1878, when the family moved to Oscoda county. From there they came to Tawas township in 1892 and have lived here since that time. Mr. Hayes, five children and fourteen grandchildren survive her, and two children are dead. A son died in infancy in 1872 and a daughter at 23 years of age died in 1893. The living children are: Frank Hayes, Oscoda county; Charles, Saginaw; Clifford, Grant township; Burr, Saginaw; and Daisy, who cared for her mother during her illness and remains with her father at the old home. The sons, with their wives were all at home when she died, as was also her brother, Allen Husband, of Saginaw. Two nephews, Alfred and Robert McCormick, came later to attend the funeral. She was a model mother and dearly beloved by her family and all who knew her best.

Rise up and call her blessed,
There's a pall over the dear old homestead—
The light of the altar hath fled;
Our mother—its ministering angel—
Lies sleeping the sleep of the dead.

ANNA FITZGIBBON.

Died, at her home in this city, Sunday evening, June 28, 1903, Anna, widow of the late John Fitzgibbon, aged 65 years. The deceased was one of the oldest pioneers of the city, having resided here for over thirty years. She has been in very poor health for the past two or three years, and for the past few months has been confined to her bed. The immediate cause of her death was heart failure. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. H. E. Gate, and Misses Ida and Addie, and two sons, John, of Missoula, Mont., and James of this city, besides a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. The funeral was held from St. Joseph church Wednesday forenoon, Rev. Fr. Kinney officiating, and the remains were laid at rest in the Catholic cemetery.

Improved Condition of Crops.

The weekly crop bulletin issued by the Michigan section of the U. S. Weather bureau last Monday says:

The mean daily temperature for the week ending June 29 was 59.7 degrees or 8.3 degrees below the normal; the average total precipitation was 1.17 inches, or 0.42 of an inch above the normal; the sunshine averaged 58 per cent of the possible amount.

Although the early part of the week was quite cool, the ample showers, followed by the warm weather of the past few days has caused a marked improvement in all crops. The rain has been especially beneficial to wheat, rye, oats, barley, peas and meadows, which are in a much better condition than they were a week ago. In the south-eastern counties of the Lower Peninsula the rains were heavy enough to flood low lands and rot late potatoes, beans and late corn, but such damage is generally light and not very extensive. The warm weather of the past few days has greatly improved the color and size of corn and been generally beneficial to all crops.

Wheat is filling nicely and beginning to mature—harvest will begin in the extreme southern counties sometime this week. Rye is generally quite promising. The condition of oats is rather uneven, but generally the straw is short, although the head is a fair size and filling well. Corn is small and backward, but shows great improvement in color; it is not well cultivated at present. Sugar beets, peas and early potatoes are doing well. Beans have been germinating slowly. Buckwheat seeding is well advanced in the central and part of the southern counties.

Haying is quite generally begun in the early portions of the Lower Peninsula; the yield from old meadows is poor; new meadows are yielding fairly well, but not as much as last year; the cut so far has been generally well secured.

Apple prospects continue fairly promising.

DINNER GOWN IN PEAU DE CREPE.
The rage for shirrings has called forth charming variations of designs and very attractive is a reception or dinner gown on which this work is introduced. This is represented in old ivory peau de crepe, both bodice and skirt being inset with Marechal Niel yellow flowers in applique.

Mexican drawn work is introduced on the decollete bodice, and the ceinture of apricot velvet adds a rich, bold tone. Hand embroidery here finds expression, done in Corticelli wash embroidery silk. The effect is very beautiful.

Shirred costumes will be seen in the numerous crepes, and indeed there is nothing prettier than nun's grey crepe de Chine fashioned in shirred effect, deep around the shoulders, hips, and knees, with adjuncts of grey and white lace, the finishing touches being supplied in fringes, tassels, and delicate cords.

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick of Colusa, Calif., writes, "for 15 years I have endured insufferable pain from rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for liver and kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by G. S. Darling, Tawas City, and J. E. Dillon, East Tawas, druggists.

He will then attempt to devise some general system of fire control for the States studied, so that the Bureau, if called on, will be able to furnish their legislators with recommendations for fire laws based on a thorough knowledge of the conditions.

Eleventh Annual Commencement Exercises.

Our youth is the time in which much of our sowing is done. During the years we are attending school we are sowing seed that will produce a harvest of grain or one of weeds, just as we choose to have it. If we have been sowing seeds of hard study, pure thoughts and noble actions, we will have, upon starting out in the world, fixed habits along those lines that can not fail to accomplish great things. In our old age we will surely reap a reward that will far exceed what we have sown. We, as a class, have said "We Will," and it remains for us to show what "we will." Will we go on sowing grains of wheat or will our garden contain only thistles. Let us hope that each one, when she stands at the close of her earthly existence, as she stands at the close of her school life, will look out over a field of waving grain and rejoice that there is a "Law of the Harvest."

After the valedictory address the Hon. G. A. Prescott, president of the school board, in a few well chosen words, presented the diplomas.

Rev. E. O. Sutherland and Miss Effie Graham sang a duet, responding to the liberal applause with a second selection.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. E. King, and as the audience dispersed there were many expressions of approval for the excellent program furnished.

The young ladies of the graduating class were showered with compliments and congratulations by their many friends, and all will hope that the promise of happiness and usefulness in their lives given upon the evening of their graduation may be amply fulfilled.

Prof. Ellsworth as principal, and his excellent corps of teachers deserve much credit for the success of these graduation exercises, and the hearty appreciation of the people of Tawas City, as expressed on last Friday evening, will be a powerful incentive to renewed effort upon their part to fulfill their aims and purposes as teachers in the fullest manner. The work of these graduates gives evidence that the training received from their teachers has been thorough and practical.

The school board of Tawas City should feel proud of the showing made last Friday evening.

An Animal Story For Little Folks
The Lazy Goat

There was once a goat whose name was Fritz and who was not at all fond of work, and the members of his family sent for the doctor and said: "What shall we do, doctor, to restore our little goat to health?" The doctor looked him over and then replied, "He merely needs exercise and plenty of it." The next day the doctor came back to see how his patient was getting

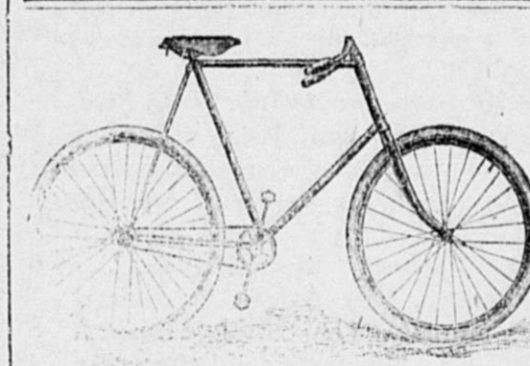

CRYING AS IF HIS HEART WOULD BREAK along. He was surprised to find Fritz crying as if his heart would break. "What is the matter?" asked the doctor. "Well, sir," replied Fritz, "you told me to exercise, and I am crying for the exercise that it furnishes me. Do you think that I'll soon be well, sir?" "No," answered the doctor, "nor will any one else who tries such a plan as that. You are so lazy that nothing will cure you except a good, sound thrashing." And the same day his father gave him one, and he began to grow better at once.—Detroit Journal.
