LATEST FASHION NOTES.

A CREPE DE CHINE BODICE.

Many waists in crepe de Chine, Louise, and peau de soie are seen beautifully embroidered with Corticelli filo silk, which is always found the most suitable for this work. The model shown has the popular mutton-leg sleeves displaying novel pointed cuffs, and the sloping shoulder is admirably produced by a cape-like device extending well out over the shoulder. Embroidery plays a conspicuous part in the making of this pretty little waist.

The fashion in sleeves changes with great rapidity, and new designs are being constantly produced. Shirring which is now rapidly gaining in popularity, is used in sleeves to good advantage. This work always lends itself best to soft materials. One of the new coat sleeves is the pagoda or flowing style.

The Treating Habit.

Is it not a fact that men really spend in treating amounts that they would hesitate to give away, no matter how deserving the charity? It is a trait of human character that comes through this all absorbing disposition to "hold your end up" when with a friend. Hundreds of men take thousands of drinks that they do not want, and other hundreds pay for thousands that are not desired.

Two men meet, and one says: "Mighty glad to see you. Let's have something." Neither generally needs or wants a drink. But the man who offers it wants to show that he is generous. He takes this method to prove that he is glad to meet his friend. The friend, after he has taken the drink that he did not want, to prove that he too, is a good fellow, insists upon a second round.

The German custom of entering a saloon, taking a drink and paying for it, and no others, if adopted in America would prove a blessing. The American custom of treating is decidedly a curse. What we do for friendship's sake costs us many a dollar and many a pang.—Springfield Union.

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equalled. Joe Golobick of Colusa, Calif., writes, "for 15 years I have endured insufferable pain from rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for liver and kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by G. S. Darling, Tawas City, and J. E. Dillon, East Tawas, druggists.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION.

The next regular teachers' examination will be held in the school house, Tawas City, beginning Thursday a. m., August 13th, 1903. Certificates of all grades are issued at this examination. J. A. CAMPBELL, Commissioner.

To Cure a cold in One Day.

Studies An Unknown Bird.

Taxidermist Wood, of the U. of M. museum has recently spent several days along the AuSable river in Oscoda county, where he went to secure specimens of Kirtland's Warbler, its young, eggs and data as to its breeding habits, which for the past 62 years, since it was discovered, have been unknown. He has been entirely successful and secured a nest, young birds and one egg. These are the only specimens ever secured.

The nest was built in the ground at the base of a jack-pine. It was a beautiful surrounding for a nest—wintergreen, sweet fern, trailing arbutus and low bush huckleberries, almost covered the nest. Thousands of acres, where the birds are found, was covered with these plants. It was one of the hottest places imaginable and took five days before Wood discovered this nest.

The nest was composed of grass, lined with pine needles. The egg was white, brown speckled. There was many of the birds singing in the neighborhood, but that a specimen was secured at all can be considered a great achievement, as the museum now has a complete family, a nest and an egg.

This specie of bird is by no means extinct, being as plentiful as ever, but they are very shy and have never been studied. Their winter home is in the Bahama islands, but even there only 30 specimens have been secured and only 27 in the United States.

Mortality During June.

There were 2,319 deaths reported to the Department of State for the month of June, corresponding to a death rate of 11.4 per 1,000 population. The number of deaths was 414 less than the number returned for the month of May.

By ages there were 378, deaths of infants under 1 year, 149 deaths of children aged 1 to 4 years and 699 deaths of persons aged 65 and over.

Important causes of death were as follows: Tuberculosis of the lungs, 178; other forms of tuberculosis, 22; typhoid fever, 22; diphtheria and croup, 56; scarlet fever, 10; measles, 19; whooping cough, 28; pneumonia, 128; diarrhea and enteritis, under 2 years, 65; cancer, 133; accidents and violence 164, including 23 deaths from drowning and 2 deaths from lightning. There was a general diminution in the mortality from the causes given, as compared with the preceding month.

Five deaths were reported from smallpox, 1 in Westphalia village, Clinton county, 1 in Pontiac city, Oakland county, 1 in Flynn township, Sanilac county, and 2 in the city of Detroit. One death from chickenpox was reported from Clearwater township, Kalkaska county.

The Saginaw Races.

Those of our community who once each year indulge in their favorite pastime, of going to the races, will now arrange their plans to spend a portion of next week at Saginaw, where the big event is to open on Tuesday afternoon with three good races on the card. We note by the Saginaw papers that the entry list is a large one, and that four full days' racing will be given. The management at Saginaw, has made a good record in the past in conducting good clean sport and in protecting the public from the jockeying and jobbing and to those of our citizens who enjoy the light harness sport Saginaw offers a most excellent opportunity.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind. "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds."

It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, lagrippe, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free at G. S. Darling's or J. E. Dillon's.

The Pope is Dead.

The gallant fight against death came to an end Monday, when Pope Leo XIII died at the age of 93. Thus closes a life which has won the respect and admiration of the entire civilized world. He has proven himself a man of the greatest intellect and ability, and in his international dealings has been just and honorable. During his life he had ever labored to be true to himself and the world.

Death of Dr. Goodale.

Died, at his home in East Tawas, Thursday, July 16, 1903. Dr. Henry A. Goodale, aged 79 years, 9 months and 13 days.

The deceased was one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Iosco county, having resided here 32 years. He was born in New York state, October 3, 1823, and came to Michigan in 1840. He located at Flint, where he studied medicine and graduated from the Cleveland Medical College in 1848. In 1862 he enlisted as surgeon of the 21st Michigan infantry and served throughout the war, seeing much service, including three months and nine days as a prisoner in Libby Prison. After the close of the war he settled at Bay City in 1865, where he remained a few years before coming to East Tawas.

In early life he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Buell, of Genesee county, who died about 1851, when his only child, Henry B. Goodale, now residing in Wilber, was an infant. He was married the second time to Miss Mary Davis, who died about four years ago.

Dr. Goodale was a member of G. K. Warren Post G. A. R. and Iosco Lodge K. of P. under whose auspices the funeral was held last Sunday afternoon. He has also for a number of years been a member of the board of pension examiners. The funeral was held from his late residence at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Rev. F. A. Saylor, of Christ's Episcopal church, officiating, and the remains were laid at rest in the G. A. R. cemetery.

A Fatal Dive.

Will Flint, a well-known young man, of East Tawas, who was employed as a brakeman on the D. & M. Ry., went to Linwood Park Wednesday to spend his day off. While there he went in bathing and took a dive off the end of the dock. The water was only about four foot deep and he struck his head on the hard bottom. Not coming up at once, those present made an investigation and found him unconscious on the bottom of the bay. He was taken out of the water and the usual methods in cases of drowning were applied, but without result. Dr. Kerr, of Bay City, who was at the Park, was called and upon examination, found he was suffering with concussion of the brain. The unfortunate young man was brought to his home at East Tawas on the evening train, but only lived until 5:30 Thursday morning.

The deceased was about 26 years of age, and leaves a mother and four brothers—Joseph, Bert, John and Gus—besides a large circle of friends, to mourn his untimely death.

The funeral will be held from St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Rev. Fr. Kinney officiating.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, lagrippe, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free at G. S. Darling's or J. E. Dillon's.

For the Oddfellows' picnic at Harrisville, Thursday July 30, the D. & M. will run a special train from Bay City. The train leaves Tawas City at 8:53 and East Tawas at 9 a. m. Fare for round trip 50 cents. Children half fare.

The Alpena Echo states that a number of horses from that city will be brought here for the races September 15-17. Alpena has some fast horses and will add much interest to the races, which promise to be the best ever held here.

The D. & M. Ry. will sell round trip tickets from this station to San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal., on account of the National G. A. R. Encampment, at $57.15. Tickets on sale July 31 to Aug. 13, and good for return to October 10, 1903.

The new bicycle ordinance goes into effect next Tuesday, and if you ride on the sidewalk on the westerly side of Lake street between Prescott's store and Friedman's or between Friedman's corner and the Mathew street bridge, you are liable under its provisions.

Michigan has a railroad mileage of 9,000 miles. The Pere Marquette has the greatest mileage, 1,746, and the M. C. the next largest, 1,149. It is believed that railroad building has about reached its limit in this state, but that the roads will continue to increase in value every year.

Emery, the photographer, has a fine line of hand cameras, prices $4.00 and up to $25.00. Call and see them. Instructions in working them free to purchasers. Everything up-to-date in photo mounts. A. G. EMERY, Agent for Rochester Optical and Camera Co., East Tawas.

The Sugar Company began weeding their beets on the Prescott farm last Monday, and each morning from 100 to 150 women and children from the Tawas go down on the morning train, and return in the evening, to work in the beet fields. Wages range from 50c to $1.00 per day and their transportation is furnished.

Myers Brothers, who have been making their delivery of atlases in the counties of Alpena and Presque Isle for the past few weeks, returned this week and are again engaged on the work of completing the Ioseo County atlas.

Mrs. Wm. Blumenthal returned to her home at Howell yesterday, after a couple of weeks visit with relatives here. She was accompanied home by her niece, Miss Stella Friedman, who will make a short visit there and at other points.

The huckleberry crop this year is one of the largest ever known in this locality. Yet the prospects are that shipments will be light, owing to the fact that so many people who usually pick berries, are engaged in sugar beet weeding.

Mr. and Mrs. John Graham have been the guests of friends in this city the past week. Mr. Graham has resigned his position at Boyne City, and we understand, has accepted one with Haak Brothers, who are erecting a large plant near Gaylord.

Barney Blust had on exhibition yesterday a sugar beet fifteen inches in circumference, 15 inches long, with 21 inch tops. It weighed four pounds and six ounces. This is a pretty good beet for this season of the year, and Barney says it is an average of his ten acres.

Samuel Anker is having a plate glass front put in the north side of the Emery block, and the same fitted up to be occupied by a hardware store. The firm which will occupy the store is the Wrather-Rourke Co., of Detroit. Their stock is here and will be in place as soon as store room is ready.

Nels Pierson, an employee at the sugar factory, was badly injured Wednesday by being hit on the head by a heavy monkey wrench, which fell from the fourth story. He received a bad scalp wound, but fortunately the wrench struck him only glancing blow or the result might have been more serious.

G. T. Wood and B. H. Sanderson have been in Detroit this week, where Tom went to buy a steam launch to replace the one he recently sold to parties at Turner. He wants a larger and better boat than the old one. Frank Oakes has had charge of the jewelry store during Mr. Wood's absence.

The question of bonding the city to build a water works and electric light plant has received a pretty thorough discussion during the past week, and while, as was expected, a few oppose, there seems to be no doubt but what a sufficient number of our citizens are favorable to the proposition to carry it when submitted. The board of public works are at work on the estimates, and as soon as submitted to the council, a special election will be called.

The committee in charge of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Association, which is to meet at West Branch on September 9-10-11, announces that they have raised sufficient funds to assure the success of the reunion, and at a meeting held last week the working committees were appointed. In addition to the reunion the people of West Branch are making an effort to have a street fair to be held at the same time.

Tobacco Jobbers and Dealers Warned.

A circular of instructions to revenue officers and all others concerned has been issued by the commissioner of internal revenue, calling attention to the gross irregularities and violations of law that now exist in the handling and sale of manufactured tobacco, snuffs, cigars and cigarettes by jobbers and dealers. A practice generally prevails of exposing the taxable articles for sale separated from the packages bearing the stamps denoting the payment of the internal revenue tax.

This, it is said, is a serious violation of the law and regulations, which it is the purpose of the commissioner to remedy.

Jobbers and dealers are given until November 1, 1903, to get their stocks on hand in order, after which date all manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarettes found on the market exposed for sale not protected by the tax-paid stamps will be seized and the holders proceeded against in accordance with law.

TWO WAIFS

She, a timid little maiden, with slender, graceful limbs and a wealth of waving golden hair—just the kind of child a fond mother would love, to have nestling at her side and clothe in dainty, childish garments. But Nellie had no mother to caress her—no tender, loving hand to smooth her tangled curls. Her home was a garret in a slum, and her mother had died years ago, when Nellie was a tiny blue-eyed baby. And now her only friend was a roguish little Irish lad, who, with his merry dark eyes and laughing face, had won her heart more than a year ago, when one bleak November day some rough street boys had wantonly upset her basket of flowers, and Mike had sturdily come to the rescue, scattering the offenders left and right with a flourish of his muddy broom.

Ever since that memorable day Mike had been enshrined as a hero in Nellie's heart. They were always together in their leisure hours.

Mike never tired of listening to her stories and her songs and would beg again and again for "just one more," his dark eyes growing wide and radiant as Nellie sang of the streets of gold and of the joys which awaited the children in "the kingdom called home."

"How can we get there, Nellie?" he questioned eagerly one day. "Do you know the way?"

Nellie shook her head a little sadly. "We can't find out the way until we die. Then an angel with a golden crown will come and take our hand and show us the way."

Mike's saucy face grew grave. "I wish we could go, Nellie, you and me," he whispered. "You could sing there, Nellie, without policemen telling us to move on, couldn't you?" Then anxiously, as a new thought occurred, "There won't be no policemen there, Nellie, will there?"

Another shake of the golden head. "Of course not, Mike. There'll be no need of them. Everybody's good and happy up there. Oh, Mike, think of it!" clapping her thin little hands.

Mike watched his little comrade's shining eyes and radiant face and felt a strange sinking at his heart as he noticed how fragile the little arm had become and heard the short, quick cough which came from the pale lips ever and anon. Was Nellie going to die and leave him? he wondered vaguely. Ah, how dreary life would be without her! A quick sob rose in his throat, and he brushed his small, rough hand resolutely across his eyes.

All that night Nellie's little wan face haunted him, banishing sleep from his eyes. At length, as he lay tossing on the heap of straw which formed his bed, a brilliant idea entered his curly head. Nellie must go to the sea. He had heard of wonderful cures which a change of air had wrought. There was Tim, the lame boy, at the end of the court—why, he had not been like the same child since that three weeks' visit to Margate. And old Joe, the shoemaker, was never tired of telling how the fresh, pure air had "made a new man" of him. Yes, Nellie must certainly go to the sea, and he, Mike, must find the money. This settled, he fell asleep.

Early and late the little fellow toiled, carefully hoarding every halfpenny he could save, running errands, sweeping crossings, selling papers, counting no labor too much which brought an addition to his treasured hoard.

Meanwhile the bright summer days melted into autumn, the sunshine faded, to give place to chilling winds and damp mists. All this did not tend to improve Nellie's cough. A bright spot of vivid color burned on the white face, and the blue eyes shone with unnatural brilliancy.

Mike noted the change with great satisfaction. "You're getting such a rosy face, Nellie!" he exclaimed gladly. "And your eyes shine like two big stars. There'll be no need of street lamps soon," he added, with true Irish gallantry.

Nellie smiled the sweet, patient smile which Mike loved so dearly. She would not pain him by telling of the sleepless nights and torturing cough, of the strange, chilly feeling at her heart and the weary aching of her wasted limbs.

With that divine unselfishness which characterizes some natures she bravely strove to hide from him the true state of affairs and would still try to tell, night after night, in faint, weak tones, the story they both loved so well.

One cold winter night, when the snow was softly falling, covering the muddy streets with a pure white mantle, Mike crept to the old familiar corner to hear yet once again "the old sweet tale."

Clear and bright were Nellie's blue eyes, and softly her low voice rose and fell as she told in tender accents of the fadeless flowers and the golden threshold where "children were always at play." And eagerly Mike listened, taking the little chilled hands in both his own, but soon "her voice began to falter, her face grew wan and pale," the golden head drooped wearily, and over the bright eyes a thick mist seemed to fall. Mike grew frightened.

"Nellie, Nellie!" he cried breathlessly. "Are you ill? Oh, Nellie, me own darlin', speak to me!"

The old sweet smile flickered for an instant around the pale lips.

"Kiss me, Mike," she whispered faintly, and he knew that she was dying.

Inscriptions on Rugs.

Not all persons who use Turkish and Persian rugs realize that there are often cunningly interwoven in their meshes characters that are not only legible, but are capable of translation by those familiar with the Arabic tongue. These inscriptions, also called cartouches, are usually worked around the borders of the rugs in such a manner as to make them easily distinguishable to the expert.

A CLEVER USE OF CROCHET

Letters for Marking Linen—The Patterns Resemble Old Point.

Embroidered letters for marking linen are no new device, but now that the crocheted work is so popular again the clever idea has occurred to one worker to utilize it in the making of these letters. The letters are done in what is known as Irish crochet, which is so pretty and lacelike that it bears a great resemblance to Venetian rose and Spanish point. On account of variety in the patterns and less labor the Irish crochet may be done in pieces and sewed together. In these letters it has been necessary to have recourse to the needle occasionally, but not to any great extent. A stitch here and there has been employed to give the correct expression to the leaves, and the ornaments are all made separately and sewed on.

The skillful worker should be able to construct her own designs for such letters, those sketched here being only intended as suggestions.

The round ornaments of various sizes are all made on the same plan, either with or without an edge. The cotton is wound round a knitting pin until the required thickness has been attained and single treble then worked all round. They are all made round and pinched into the shape required.

The Figure of Today.

Tall, slender women have it all their own way. The perfect figure has been discussed of late, and the flat seems to be that slenderness combined with good lines is essential. But it is no good being thin unless you are willowy and graceful. The taller, the more slender, the better; the shoulders broad, the arms long, the waist line at the front long, the hips well shaped, neither flat nor hollow. The line must be straight from under the arms to the ankle. There must be a slight outward curve at the back of the waist. It is the greatest mistake to pad over the hips. One of the artifices of a fashionable corsetiere is to lace the hips into a flat line. Stays grow longer and consequently far less comfortable, but while they lengthen below the waist they become shorter above.

A Good Batter Pudding.

A good batter pudding is made by beating two eggs, adding one cupful of milk, three and a half cupfuls of sifted flour, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one-half of a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one scant cupful of canned cherries or any small fruit. Turn this into a well greased mold, cover and place in a steamer or pot of boiling water for two and a half hours. Serve with it a creamy sauce.

A Short Coffee Coat.

The original coffee coat, which did not attain to much favor, has grown shorter and shorter, so that smart models are now practically boleros as regards their length and shape, and as such are useful and attractive little affairs. One here sketched is of lace mounted over a Breton net slip, the sleeves being of this net also, with short oversleeves of the lace. The collar is vandyked and strapped with pink crepe de chine embroidered in fancy stitch here and there lightly.

An Animal Story For Little Folks
The Bear Catches Fish

There was an Eskimo lad who was fond of fishing, as boys generally are. One day he went out with his rod and line and plenty of bait to see if he could not make a good catch of fish. He pitched in his hook and threw himself on the ground and, lazy boy, went fast asleep.

But it was doubtless the best thing for him that he did go to sleep, for in a few minutes along came Mr. White

STROLLED AWAY WITH A BIG FISH.

Bear, who had left home without his breakfast and was just now looking for something to eat.

"Ah," cried Mr. Bear, "here is a boy! I'll eat him!"

And with that he walked up near to where the boy was asleep. But when he got within a short distance Mr. Bear noticed the fishing pole. Now, as much as the white bear likes nice little boys, he likes nice, fat fish better. So Mr. Bear said to himself:

"I'll pull that line in and see if there is anything on the hook."

He did so, and there was a good fat fish there. Mr. Bear was much pleased and sat down and ate the fish. Then, he threw the line in again, and lo and behold, he pulled out another fish. He also ate this fish and a third which he caught by tossing the line in again.

His hunger having been relieved, the bear did not, of course, have any further desire to eat the Eskimo lad, but turned on his heel and strolled away with a big fish.—Chicago Tribune.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Musical Boy.

Young Mozart came of musical stock and when eight summers had played over him he was a delicate, serious child, with so wondrous an addiction for music that his fame had far passed the town gates. As early as three years of age his love for the harpsichord and violin could not be restrained, while at five he had composed a concerto, and a story goes that he was found one day arguing with his father that his composition was a veritable concerto, because people "must practice it until they could play it perfectly."

But besides his powers as an executant when a boy of eight and the fact that he had composed several pianoforte sonatas there was evidence that he was no ordinary child in the respect which his words commanded from his elders, musical and otherwise. All looked up to him, as it were, many revered, some even worshipped him. He was thoughtful and full of intelligence far beyond his years.

"As a boy," wrote his father to him in after years, "you were too serious to be childish. For children's games and amusements you had no delight—in fact, they were distasteful to you." So grave indeed was his demeanor that, to quote his father's words, "many people feared you would not live to grow up." Such a child might well use the text "Next after God comes papa" as his guiding principle in all that he did while under the parental roof.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Large Colored Soap Bubbles.

This is the way to make soap bubbles as big as the biggest pumpkin you ever saw and so "tough" that they will roll about over the carpet for ever so many minutes before they think of breaking. Into a pint of warm water shave a piece of brown laundry soap about an inch square containing a good proportion of lye. When this is thoroughly dissolved add a tablespoonful of gum arabic and stir till melted. Then a teaspoonful of glycerin is necessary, and lastly a quart of cold water. If the bubble makers are not very little people and know how to keep the water out of their mouths, wonderfully colored bubbles can be made by separating this mixture into cups and adding a pinch of different diamond dyes to each. But for little people strawberry or currant juice for pink bubbles and orange juice for yellow are perhaps safer. The lye in the soap plus the glycerin increases the brilliancy of the bubbles and the gum gives them elasticity. Hot water is necessary to dissolve the various ingredients, but unless cold water is added they expand and break too rapidly in the blowing process. A curious pipe that will blow several bubbles at one time can be obtained from any kindergarten supply house.

Tobacco Jobbers and Dealers Warned.

A circular of instructions to revenue officers and all others concerned has been issued by the commissioner of internal revenue, calling attention to the gross irregularities and violations of law that now exist in the handling and sale of manufactured tobacco, snuffs, cigars and cigarettes by jobbers and dealers. A practice generally prevails of exposing the taxable articles for sale separated from the packages bearing the stamps denoting the payment of the internal revenue tax.

This, it is said, is a serious violation of the law and regulations, which it is the purpose of the commissioner to remedy.

Jobbers and dealers are given until November 1, 1903, to get their stocks on hand in order, after which date all manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarettes found on the market exposed for sale not protected by the tax-paid stamps will be seized and the holders proceeded against in accordance with law.

TWO WAIFS

She, a timid little maiden, with slender, graceful limbs and a wealth of wavy golden hair—just the kind of child a fond mother would love to have nestling at her side and clothe in dainty, childish garments. But Nellie had no mother to caress her—no tender, loving hand to smooth her tangled curls. Her home was a garret in a slum, and her mother had died years ago, when Nellie was a tiny blue-eyed baby. And now her only friend was a roguish little Irish lad, who, with his merry dark eyes and laughing face, had won her heart more than a year ago, when one bleak November day some rough street boys had wantonly upset her basket of flowers, and Mike had sturdily come to the rescue, scattering the offenders left and right with a flourish of his muddy broom.

Ever since that memorable day Mike had been enshrined as a hero in Nellie's heart. They were always together in their leisure hours.

Mike never tired of listening to her stories and her songs and would beg again and again for "just one more," his dark eyes growing wide and radiant as Nellie sang of the streets of gold and of the joys which awaited the children in "the kingdom called home."

"How can we get there, Nellie?" he questioned eagerly one day. "Do you know the way?"

Nellie shook her head a little sadly. "We can't find out the way until we die. Then an angel with a golden crown will come and take our hand and show us the way."

Mike's saucy face grew grave. "I wish we could go, Nellie—you and me," he whispered. "You could sing there, Nellie, without policemen telling us to move on, couldn't you?" Then anxiously, as a new thought occurred, "There won't be no policemen there, Nellie, will there?"

Another shake of the golden head. "Of course not, Mike. There'll be no need of them. Everybody's good and happy up there. Oh, Mike, think of it!" clapping her thin little hands.

Mike watched his little comrade's shining eyes and radiant face and felt a strange sinking at his heart as he noticed how fragile the little arm had become and heard the short, quick cough which came from the pale lips ever and anon. Was Nellie going to die and leave him? he wondered vaguely. Ah, how dreary life would be without her! A quick sob rose in his throat, and he brushed his small, rough hand resolutely across his eyes.

All that night Nellie's little wan face haunted him, banishing sleep from his eyes. At length, as he lay tossing on the heap of straw which formed his bed, a brilliant idea entered his curly head. Nellie must go to the sea. He had heard of wonderful cures which a change of air had wrought. There was Tim, the lame boy, at the end of the court—why, he had not been like the same child since that three weeks' visit to Margate. And old Joe, the shoemaker, was never tired of telling how the fresh, pure air had "made a new man" of him. Yes, Nellie must certainly go to the sea, and he, Mike, must find the money. This settled, he fell asleep.

Early and late the little fellow toiled, carefully hoarding every halfpenny he could save, running errands, sweeping crossings, selling papers, counting no labor too much which brought an addition to his treasured hoard.

Meanwhile the bright summer days melted into autumn, the sunshine faded, to give place to chilling winds and damp mists. All this did not tend to improve Nellie's cough. A bright spot of vivid color burned on the white face, and the blue eyes shone with unnatural brilliancy.

Mike noted the change with great satisfaction. "You're getting such a rosy face, Nellie!" he exclaimed gladly. "And your eyes shine like two big stars. There'll be no need of street lamps soon," he added, with true Irish gallantry.

Nellie smiled the sweet, patient smile which Mike loved so dearly. She would not pain him by telling of the sleepless nights and torturing cough, of the strange, chilly feeling at her heart and the weary aching of her wasted limbs.

With that divine unselfishness which characterizes some natures she bravely strove to hide from him the true state of affairs and would still try to tell, night after night, in faint, weak tones, the story they both loved so well.

One cold winter night, when the snow was softly falling, covering the muddy streets with a pure white mantle, Mike crept to the old familiar corner to hear yet once again "the old sweet tale."

Clear and bright were Nellie's blue eyes, and softly her low voice rose and fell as she told in tender accents of the fadeless flowers and the golden threshold where "children were always at play." And eagerly Mike listened, taking the little chilled hands in both his own, but soon "her voice began to falter, her face grew wan and pale," the golden head drooped wearily, and over the bright eyes a thick mist seemed to fall. Mike grew frightened.

"Nellie, Nellie!" he cried breathlessly. "Are you ill? Oh, Nellie, me own darlin', speak to me!"

The old sweet smile flickered for an instant around the pale lips.

"Kiss me, Mike," she whispered faintly, and he knew that she was dying.

Inscriptions on Rugs.

Not all persons who use Turkish and Persian rugs realize that there are often cunningly interwoven in their meshes characters that are not only legible, but are capable of translation by those familiar with the Arabic tongue. These inscriptions, also called cartouches, are usually worked around the borders of the rugs in such a manner as to make them easily distinguishable to the expert.

A CLEVER USE OF CROCHET

Letters for Marking Linen—The Patterns Resemble Old Point.

Embroidered letters for marking linen are no new device, but now that crochet work is so popular again the clever idea has occurred to one worker to utilize it in the making of these letters. The letters are done in what is known as Irish crochet, which is so pretty and lacelike that it bears a great resemblance to Venetian rose and Spanish point. On account of variety in the patterns and less labor the Irish crochet may be done in pieces and sewed together. In these letters it has been necessary to have recourse to the needle occasionally, but not to any great extent. A stitch here and there has been employed to give the correct expression to the leaves, and the ornaments are all made separately and sewed on.

The skillful worker should be able to construct her own designs for such letters, those sketched here being only intended as suggestions.

The round ornaments of various sizes are all made on the same plan, either with or without an edge. The cotton is wound round a knitting pin until the required thickness has been attained and single treble then worked all round. They are all made round and pinched into the shape required.

The Figure of Today.

Tall, slender women have it all their own way. The perfect figure has been discussed of late, and the flat seems to be that slenderness combined with good lines is essential. But it is no good being thin unless you are willowy and graceful. The taller, the more slender, the better; the shoulders broad, the arms long, the waist line at the front long, the hips well shaped, neither flat nor hollow. The line must be straight from under the arms to the ankle. There must be a slight outward curve at the back of the waist. It is the greatest mistake to pad over the hips. One of the artifices of a fashionable corsetiere is to lace the hips into a flat line. Stays grow longer and consequently far less comfortable, but while they lengthen below the waist they become shorter above.

A Good Batter Pudding.

A good batter pudding is made by beating two eggs, adding one cupful of milk, three and a half cupfuls of sifted flour, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one-half of a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one scant cupful of canned cherries or any small fruit. Turn this into a well greased mold, cover and place in a steamer or pot of boiling water for two and a half hours. Serve with it a creamy sauce.

A Short Coffee Coat.

The original coffee coat, which did not attain to much favor, has grown shorter and shorter, so that smart models are now practically boleros as regards their length and shape, and as such are useful and attractive little affairs. One here sketched is of lace mounted over a Breton net slip, the sleeves being of this net also, with short oversleeves of the lace. The collar is lacy and edged and strapped with pink crepe de chine embroidered in fancy stitch here and there lightly.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Bear Catches Fish

There was an Eskimo lad who was fond of fishing, as boys generally are. One day he went out with his rod and line and plenty of bait to see if he could not make a good catch of fish. He pitched in his hook and threw himself on the ground and, lazy boy, went fast asleep.

But it was doubtless the best thing for him that he did go to sleep, for in a few minutes along came Mr. White

STROLLED AWAY WITH A BIG FISH.

Bear, who had left home without his breakfast and was just now looking for something to eat.

"Ah," cried Mr. Bear, "here is a boy! I'll eat him!"

And with that he walked up near to where the boy was asleep. But when he got within a short distance Mr. Bear noticed the fishing pole. Now, as much as the white bear likes nice little boys, he likes nice, fat fish better. So Mr. Bear said to himself:

"I'll pull that line in and see if there is anything on the hook."

He did so, and there was a good fat fish there. Mr. Bear was much pleased and sat down and ate the fish. Then, he threw the line in again, and, lo and behold, he pulled out another fish. He also ate this fish and a third which he caught by tossing the line in again.

His hunger having been relieved, the bear did not, of course, have any further desire to eat the Eskimo lad, but turned on his heel and strolled away with a big fish.—Chicago Tribune.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Musical Boy.

Young Mozart came of musical stock and when eight summers had played over him he was a delicate, serious child, with so wondrous an addiction for music that his fame had far passed the town gates. As early as three years of age his love for the harpsichord and violin could not be restrained, while at five he had composed a concerto, and a story goes that he was found one day arguing with his father that his composition was a veritable concerto, because people "must practice it until they could play it perfectly."

But besides his powers as an executant when a boy of eight and the fact that he had composed several pianoforte sonatas there was evidence that he was no ordinary child in the respect which his words commanded from his elders, musical and otherwise. All looked up to him, as it were, many revered, some even worshiped him. He was thoughtful and full of intelligence far beyond his years. "As a boy," wrote his father to him in after years, "you were too serious to be childish. For children's games and amusements you had no delight—in fact, they were distasteful to you." So grave indeed was his demeanor that, to quote his father's words, "many people feared you would not live to grow up." Such a child might well use the text "Next after God comes papa" as his guiding principle in all that he did while under the parental roof.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Large Colored Soap Bubbles.

This is the way to make soap bubbles as big as the biggest pumpkin you ever saw and so "tough" that they will roll about over the carpet for ever so many minutes before they think of breaking. Into a pint of warm water shave a piece of brown laundry soap about an inch square containing a good proportion of lye. When this is thoroughly dissolved add a tablespoonful of gum arabic and stir till melted. Then a teaspoonful of glycerin is necessary, and lastly a quart of cold water. If the bubble makers are not very little people and know how to keep the water out of their mouths; wonderfully colored bubbles can be made by separating this mixture into cups and adding a pinch of different diamond dyes to each. But for little people strawberry or currant juice for pink bubbles and orange juice for yellow are perhaps safer. The lye in the soap plus the glycerin increases the brilliancy of the bubbles and the gum gives them elasticity. Hot water is necessary to dissolve the various ingredients, but unless cold water is added they expand and break too rapidly in the blowing process. A curious pipe that will blow several bubbles at one time can be obtained from any kindergarten supply house.
