Some Tusco County Farm Products

Photograph by EMERY, of East Tawas.

The above photo is of grain grown on the Bernhart Blust farm, on the Meadow Road, one mile west of this city. The oats are six feet three inches high, and the straw is of the finest quality being entirely free from rust and smut. There are ten acres of these oats and there is no doubt that they will yield better than 125 bushel to the acre. The rye and barley are of equal high quality. All three of these grains are known as the "Champions of Russia," and appear to be peculiarly adapted to this section. Mr. Blust secured a small quantity of the seed a few years ago, and has continued the growing each year until this season there will be several hundred bushels.

Michigan Hardwood.

Since the white pine of the lower peninsula has become largely depleted there is a general impression that the state is an exhausted timber section. Such is far from the case. The forest products hauled over the railroads so far this season exceed the shipments for the same period last year.

While perhaps the best white pine of the upper peninsula is gone the immense productions of hardwoods, hemlock and cedar is taking its place.

Michigan hardwoods seem to be growing in favor with the consuming trade. The current year's output is larger than ever before and commands materially higher values.

There is no overstock in any variety and shipments are rearer the green stock than ever before. Gray elm and basswood are the two Michigan woods that have shown the greatest increase in value. The demand is stiff at an advance of fully $5 over one year ago. It goes without saying that the stock in first hands is very light.

In hard maple there is no overstock and price conditions are excellent. At value of from $1 to $2 higher than a year ago the demand is stiff. The only menace to Michigan maple values is the ridiculously low price at which maple flooring is being put on market.

Birch has followed the trend of maple values, and is about $2 higher than a year ago. There seems to be a fair stock of birch in sight, but the demand is good. Black ash has become so limited in supply that it cuts comparatively little figure among the hardwoods of the state at present.

The substitution of other woods is taking place, and it will never again be a standard product of the state.

Beech has also followed the fortunes of maple and birch to the extent that is in very fair demand at values from $2 to $3 higher than a year ago.

On the whole Michigan hardwood conditions are in most excellent shade and the future for these standard woods are very bright.—Detroit Tribune.

Beware of the Tattler.

"He who tells everything he knows often tells more than he knows."

Beware of those who come to you with the gossip of another's affairs for they are more than likely to go away with at least as much as they bring, even if they have to manufacture it out of whole cloth. There are no more despicable persons on the face of God's green earth than those who go about speaking ill of others and meddling with that which is no business of theirs. They are cowardly sneaks and a fester on decent society.

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide has been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency, invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nerve, will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great liver, kidney and stomach regulator. Only 50c. Guaranteed by G. S. Darling or J. E. Dillon, druggists.

Paint it Now

If your house needs painting, paint it now—this fall—with THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT. Here are some of the reasons why you should do so.

1. The weather is settled and you don't have to contend with the spring rains.
2. You will protect it against the winter's snows and storms.
3. You will avoid the annoyance of gnats, flies, and other insects sticking to the surface.
4. There is likely to be less moisture in it now than any other time; moisture is what often causes blistering, cracking, and
5. S. W. P. costs less by the job than any other paint because it wears longest, covers most, looks best, and is most economical.
6. S. W. P. is best because it's made from best materials—pure lead, pure zinc, and pure linseed oil. It always satisfies; never goes wrong if rightly used.

A Narrow Escape.

What came near being the fatal termination of a pleasure party, occurred at Tawas Beach about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Misses Getta McCarron, Flossie LaBerge and Zella Hanson, three young girls of East Tawas, were in bathing, when Zella fell into a deep hole near the end of the dock. Flossie and Getta went to her assistance when all went down. Ground Keeper Henry Hewson was at the boat house and hearing their cries for help, went to their assistance and succeeded in rescuing all three.

Zella and Getta were in an exhausted condition, but soon recovered. Flossie was unconscious and only prompt and efficient work of Mr. Hewson succeeded in reviving her.

It was a narrow escape and the prompt and intelligent action of Mr. Hewson, who succeeded in reviving the girls before medical aid arrived, save the Tawasites from mourning for three bright young lives.

News has just reached the city of the marriage of George H. Belanger, formerly of Saginaw, to Miss Minnie S. Sawyer, a popular young lady of Tawas, Mich. The wedding occurred Thursday, Aug. 6, at Standish.—Bay City Times.

The three days teachers' institute closed Wednesday evening. The meeting was highly interesting and profitable to the nearly 50 progressive teachers who attended. J. F. Baker, of Washington, D. C., special representative of the U. S. Forestry commission, has been in this county during the past week inspecting the government lands. The Forestry commission is also making a special study of forest fires so as to furnish the state legislature recommendations for the framing of fire laws, based on a thorough knowledge of the actual condition.

A prominent young man of East Tawas took his girl out for a drive. She fell out of the buggy and he drove two miles before he discovered she was missing. When we used to go driving, the hind wheel might come off, the springs break or the horse fall out of the shafts without our knowing it, but the girl was always anchored.

Cracks in the floor around the skirting board or other parts of a room may be neatly and permanently filled up dy soaking newspapers in paste made of one pound of flour, three quarts of water and one tablespoonful of alum, thoroughly boiled and blended. The mixture will be as thick as putty, and may be forced into the cracks with a knife. It will harden like paper mache.

According to the August crop report, just issued by the secretary of state, the wheat crop of the state is fairly good. The condition of corn improved somewhat during July. The oat crop varies throughout the state, similar to corn. In some localities it made a large growth while in other counties the condition has not been up to the average. The season has been better than the average for potatoes. The condition of sugar beets is very favorable. Apples are fair and the peach crop is light.

According to the New York Times there is a billion of dollars expended yearly for advertising. This is three times the value of the total wheat crop, three times the value of the gold production of the United States, and ten times the value of the output of the iron industry. In the face of such a total, made up of sums spent by the shrewdest business men in the country, it cannot be said that advertising does not pay. It must bring big returns or so great a sum of money would not be spent to reach the buying public.

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

A BEAUTIFUL WAIST.

There are various devices by means of which the long-shouldered effect may be produced, one of which is by cutting the front of the waist and the upper part of the sleeve all in one piece, or by extending the yoke trimming out onto the shoulder. The latter method is the one employed in the model here shown. The yoke extends down the front of the waist in a novel fashion. The design on the yoke and sleeves is embroidered in white using one of the larger sizes of Corticelli mountmelick embroidery silk.

Among the popular fabrics for summer wear, foulards promise to be well in vogue. Some models made of this material are seen built in almost tail or fashion, with a simple skirt and with a sad coat, having a deep collar of cloth. The deep cape collar has sprung into prominence of late, one reason for its popularity probably being the absence of revers. This style of collar gives the desired width to the shoulder.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abscess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes, of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefits I received were striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all coughs, colds, throat and lung trouble. Guaranteed at G. S. Darling's or J. E. Dillon's drug store. Trial bottle free. Price 50c and $1.

Trick With a Bottle and Cork and a Lesson in Science.

Get an empty wine bottle and a cork that is, say, two sizes too small for it, so that if put in the ordinary way it will fall clear down into the bottle. Lay the bottle on its side and put the cork just within its mouth. Now ask the spectators, one at a time, to try to force the cork into the bottle by blowing on it.

It will amuse you to see the confidence with which the first person sets about the little task. He will step up with an air that says, "Why don't you ask me something hard?" Then he will stoop and blow his breath on the cork in a sharp spurt, expecting, of course, to make it disappear immediately.

But the obstinate cork, as if reversing the regular order of things, will come flying out of the bottle instead of disappearing in it.

The second person will approach the task with confidence, too, thinking that the first didn't go about it in the right way exactly; that he blew either too hard or too softly. But the cork is still obstinate, and out it comes again instead of going in.

So it will be with them all unless some one in the company knows the secret, and when you take a little quill or tube out of your pocket and blow through it right against the center of the cork, thereby driving it in at once, there will be a good laugh.

But still they will not understand, perhaps, why their blowing on it did not drive it in. The reason is that some of the air goes around the cork into the bottle, which has the effect of compressing the air already there, and the cork goes a little way in; but the compression ceases almost instantly and is followed by an expansion, which forces the cork out.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. A mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils, have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It is the best salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when burns, sores, ulcers and piles threaten. Only 25c at Darling's or Dillon's drug store.

Feels Like Velvet.

If experiments now being conducted at the bureau of engraving and printing prove satisfactory there will be no more "crisp bank notes" turned out by the government. Instead, the bills will be soft and velvety and much easier to handle. If the proposed process is successful it will take sixty days less time to manufacture a bank note than under the present method.

Besides rendering paper soft and velvety the new process also makes it non-shrinkable, an important accomplishment which has heretofore baffled the ingenuity of the paper manufacturer. This, when applied to the printing of postage stamps alone, will make a saving of just 20 per cent of stock and work. Because paper shrinks after it has received the impression of the head of George Washington on the one side, in the manufacture of postage stamps, and the coating of mucilage on the other and because no two sheets shrink alike, one fifth are ruined in the process of perforating. Experiments just made under the new process eliminate all of this loss.

By the application of a chemical mixture to a Japanese napkin that article became as soft and pliable as a tissue of silk. The preparation acts as an antiseptic and a preservative.

When applied to old documents it seems to knit the fiber together and prevent further decay. Under the present process of printing paper money the paper has to be thoroughly soaked in water. While it is in this soaked condition one side of the bill is printed. The sheet is then placed in a steam room and kept under a high temperature for thirty days, the time necessary for the ink to dry.

The sheet is again soaked as in the first instance, and the reverse side of the bill printed. The thirty-day drying process then has to be repeated.

In cases where an impression of the bill is necessary, which is required when the printing is done in two colors, the wetting and drying process has to be repeated a third time and another month is thus consumed in its production. Besides the delay of this process the wetting and drying rots the fiber of the paper and, although it is "starched" to give it the crisp appearance, the starch soon wears out and the bill becomes limp and worn.

In printing bills on paper which has been treated by the new process no wetting is necessary. The ink loses none of its lustre when applied to the paper, as under the old process, and is thoroughly dry within forty-eight hours after the printing is done.

Not only is the appearance of the bill much better than under the old method, but its wearing qualities are believed to be greater. Further experiments are to be made with the process, and it may develop that the bills can be put through the starching process the same as heretofore, and their first crisp appearance given if that is desired, although the soft and velvety texture would seem to be more attractive. The new process has been perfected by E. H. Fowler and O. N. Hoover, of the geological survey.

The Diplomatic Conductor.

Once in awhile—a great while—you come in contact with a Talleyrand in the guise of a street car conductor. The other day a motor-man passed by a Grand Army veteran who had signaled at the corner, then, thinking better of it, stopped about the middle of the block. The warrior hobbled along like a man with locomotor ataxia, and when he reached the platform he was panting, red and fierce. Things in the neighborhood began to hum like another Antietam, but before an explosion occurred the conductor, jerking the bell strap, remarked cheerfully, "The motor-man thought you looked so young and spry that he didn't suppose you wanted him to stop, sir." That simple expression, with its little flattery, was as oil on troubled waters.—New York Press.

A Fable Brought Down to Date.

Once there was a little girl who was always saying naughty things, and a wise fairy cast an enchantment upon her, so that each time she spoke noxious lizards, snakes, toads and other reptiles seemed to leap from her mouth.

And there was another little girl who was always saying nice things, and the same wise fairy so wove her spells that diamonds and rubies and money fell from the girl's mouth when she would talk.

And what became of these girls? The first one was engaged by an astute dime museum manager and became fabulously rich.

The second was gobbled up by a trust that made her talk herself to death.—Judge.

CURE OF INSOMNIA.

Some Simple Plans to Rid Oneself of Sleeplessness.

Cultivate regular hours of sleep, says a writer in the Philadelphia Press. Go to bed at the same time each night and let that time be fairly early. Divest the mind as far as possible of care so as to fall asleep at once. The habit of rising at the instant of awakening in the morning should be cultivated also.

The bedclothes should be warm and light and the temperature of the room about 55 degrees. Either a very cold room or a very hot one is very disturbing to sleep, although thorough ventilation is of great importance, as a close atmosphere will awaken one, and if he is troubled with insomnia he will find it almost impossible to return to the condition of sleep. The window should be opened from the top, taking care by means of curtains and other devices to protect the body from drafts.

All plants should be removed from a sleeping room, for not only will their own vitality be destroyed, but also the air of their owner to a certain limited extent. Those who live in the city have the irritating noises of the city streets to contend with. Place cotton in your ears if they annoy or try to sleep as far from the street as possible. Light should be excluded by means of dark shades which can be lowered, tied to a chair and removed a short space from the windows, thus allowing of ventilation. The bed should be yielding without being too soft, the pillows moderately firm and either high or low, according to the taste of the sleeper.

A certain amount of bodily fatigue induced by healthy exercise, especially in brain workers, is very important.

In regard to the meal taken at night, the following should be observed: If a heavy meal, it should be partaken of three or four hours before going to bed. If food is taken at a later hour, it should be such as is easily digested. Sometimes an empty stomach will cause insomnia, and frequently a glass of hot milk taken just before bedtime will cause sleep.

An invention that has caused much favorable comment from officers of the life saving service has been submitted to them by Professor William Libbey of Princeton university. It consists of an automatic system of receiving and transmitting signals by means of wireless telegraph apparatus and is intended to warn vessels of their approach toward shoals or a rocky coast.

The device consists of an apparatus to be established at all dangerous points on the coast line, from which soundings will be sent out automatically. It is so arranged that these warnings will go out over three distinct zones—one with a radius of ten miles, another with a radius of five miles and a third with a radius of two miles.

Vessels are supposed to be equipped with the receiving apparatus. Such a vessel coming within the ten mile zone of the danger spot will receive a warning in the shape of a stroke on the bell in the pilot house. The five mile zone, which covers the edge of the breakers, will be covered in the same manner, and when the vessel enters the two mile zone this will be announced in the same way also.

The apparatus will be regulated so that warning signals will be given twice at the commencement of each minute within the five mile zone and three times at the commencement of each minute in the two mile zone.

The officers of the life saving service say that if this invention works out in practice as it is explained on paper it will prove of great value in warning ships of the approach to shoals and rock bound coasts at times when fog signals and lightships and lighthouses are useless.

To Show When Life Begins.

An electrical test at first proposed as a means of determining whether life is extinct has been used to show when life begins. No reaction is produced if the matter is lifeless. Applying this method to hens' eggs, Augustus Waller has found that signs of life begin in twenty-four to sixty-two hours after the beginning of incubation, and that only when development fails or is arrested does the reaction continue to be absent.

Weaving Silk by Electricity.

In the plain of Lombardy, near a village called Merate, works have been established by Messrs. Gavazzi for the spinning and weaving of silk. Some five hundred workpeople, principally women and girls, are employed, and no fewer than 300 weaving machines assist in creating the deafening noise to which the visitor is subjected. Each of these weaving machines is furnished with a small electric motor having a simple starting and stopping gear placed within easy reach of the person in charge of the machine. To the women operating these machines there is much less danger than where a lot of driving belts are in use. To the proprietor of the mill there is the advantage that all possible risk of oil being dropped from any overhead shafting on to the valuable material on the machines is avoided.

Electric Death.

A Spindler of Stussburg, Germany, has invented an electrical cannon which, instead of hurling a great steel projectile at a foe, will charge upon him a box of electricity of such great power as to cause death to any number of men, and which will make a modern warship only a dead cage for its occupants, to be destroyed at will.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Bears' Good Fortune

The bears had a nice house which they rented from Mr. Camel, and they wished to remain there the rest of their days, for they were getting along in years and did not relish the idea of moving.

But you know we are not always able to have everything our own way in this world, and so it proved to be with the bears. One day Mr. Camel decided that he would like to live in BIG TEARS STREAMED OUT OF THEIR EYES. That house himself, and he sent word to the bears that they would have to move out.

Mr. and Mrs. Bear were almost broken hearted. They did not know what to do, for, look as hard as they could, they were unable to find another house into which to move.

When the day came for the bears to get out they did not know where to go. But go they had to, and go they did. Down the road they marched side by side, while great big tears streamed out of their eyes.

When they reached the top of a hill about a mile from the house they had just left they turned to take a farewell look at it. And what do you think? The house had disappeared! They had no more than got out of it when a big gust of wind came along and blew it down in a mass of planks and boards upon the ground. Not one piece remained attached to another.

"What a lucky thing for us!" exclaimed Mr. Bear joyfully. "If we had not got out when we did we would have been crushed to pieces."

And, indeed, they would have been. They were certainly fortunate, for a little farther on down the road they found the tiger family moving out of a real nice house, and the bears secured that one and lived there until the end of their days.—Chicago Tribune.

A Little Gentleman.

I know a well bred little boy who never says "I can't." He never says "Don't want" or "You've got to" or "You shan't." He never says "I'll tell mamma" or calls his playmates "mean."

A lad more careful of his speech I'm sure was never seen!

He's never ungrammatical; he never mentions "ain't." A single word of slang from him would make his mother faint!

And now I'll tell you why it is, lest this should seem absurd: He's now exactly six months old and cannot speak a word! —St. Nicholas.

A Gallant Little Culprit.

Bobby was kept after school for some misdemeanor. It was at kindergarten and his first punishment.

The teacher inquired, "Aren't you sorry, Bobby, to have to stay after school when the others go?"

"Oh, no," replied Bobby. "It was just what I wanted, so as to have you all to myself." —Little Chronicle.
