A WAIST WITH NOVEL FICHU

Leg-of-mutton sleeves promise to be very popular this season, and are seen in the bodies here depicted.

The principal feature of this waist is the novel fichu which extends well out to the shoulder and meets in a point just above the waist line. Tucks also add to its decoration, and are used to good effect in the upper part of the sleeves.

Elbow sleeve, bradelets, and mitts fine meshes. These are embroidered been found that will prevent that by hand after they are made.

State Fair Promises to Be Bet ter Than Ever Before.

The Michigan state fair, at Pontiac Sept. 7 to 11 next, says Secretary Butterfield, will exceed in interest and variety of features any previous exhibition. The facilities for the comfort and entertainment of visitors have been greatly improved. The demands for space far exceed any previous record, thus insuring the most complete general exhibition of Michigan products ever seen. The Northwest Territory fruit display is again entered. Several fine attractions have been provided giving with the races a three hour's entertainment every afternoon. Among these are: The thrilling bicycle plunge and dive; the Rexos' graceful exhibition in hoop rolling and on roller skates; Musliner's educated pigs and sheep; foot races on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday; ladies' driving, farmers' race and fire department

With such an attractive show and ow rates on the railroads, Secretary Butterfield expects a record-breaking attendance, in which he hope all lovers of grand old Michigan will sincerely join him. We hope to see the fair fully patronized from start to finish.

Nothing less is due to the enterprize and energy of the management in providing such a highly attractive exhib-

Hard Law for Hubbies.

The law making deliberate desertion of wives a felony will in about a month become effective. It was enacted by the late legislature and makes the offense named extraditable, so that deserters from the matrimonial ranks may be brought back from other states or countries, and courtmartialed as it were. In other words no state affords safe refuge for a desertion from the state of matrimony. Of course this does not molest those who go for good and sufficient cause and remember their allegiance and its duties when away. It is a salutary law. It will lessen; the number of those who marry any nice girl they can delude, and then glide away from her and all the responsibilities thus incurred.

When one of the elusive kind tries the little dodge he will find that no state or territory stands ready to aid and abet him to victimize a woman.

He must either stand up to the rack and escape by the divorce courts, or show that he did his duty without avail. Artful dodgers, slippery slips, professional mashers and the flash gang generally find another obstacle in their path. The law seems to be in the line of protection to home industry .- Bay City Tribune.

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a are coming into vogue. Of mitts preventive of suicide has been discovthere are many kinds shown, but the | cred will interest many. A run down most ourable and beautiful are of system, or despondency, invariably very fine hard twisted silk in very precede suicide and something has condition. At the first thought of self destruction take Elertric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine, will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great liver, kidney and stomach regulator. Only 50c. Guaranteed by G. S. Darling or J. E. Dillon, druggists.

Advertising Cities.

In going over the question of advertising cities, Newspaperdom says too few municipalities take advantage of the publicity which they can gain through the colums of the local paper.

Many cities expect the newspapers to give them all kinds of spare gratis, and as a rule they are dissapointed because the paper doesn't whoop and hurrah continually over their advantages. It is only natural for a newspaper which receives proper support from a city to boom that city as much as possible, ant there is a limit to giving away space just as there is to forbearance. As a rule, it is the municipality of which the business men give the local paper rank support, that feels entitled to a vast amount of free publicity. Theoe is nothing like good newspapaper advertising to help build up a town or city, yet, while the fact is appreciated, few municipalities avail themselves of the opportunity the newspaper offers them.

In some instances it is the fault of | 3 the newspaper for not getting the good hard cast for the advertising they give the city. In other instances, if newspapers properly set forth the values of their columns to the city they might be accorded a certain appropriation each year to pay for publicity. Newspaper advertising is as beneficial to a city's progress as it is to any business in the city.

While there may be is safe to conclude that all Northern many good reasons for this western Michigan needs is the real farmer inmovement, neverless, the time is not far off if not already here, when North | highest ambition is to haul off sufficiern Michigan will afford just as good agricultural opportunities as the west, for as agriculture becomes more intense Michigan will even rival many western localities, not so much because of better transportation facilities, but because of better rainfall, and because its soil and climate are adapted to growing a greater variety of crops

There are several reasons for this western movement and the passing by of this region. Much of the west especially the southwest, has a more equable climate. Michigan land must be cleared of stumps, hence cannot be so soon broken up and cropped into large acres. But at the present time this need be no great drawback.

In many localities within several miles of transportatin the wood on the result of unbearable pain from over land if properly handled will leave a margin of profit sufficient to more liver complaint, and constipation. than pay for the land. A wrong conception of Northern Michigan prevails. It is thought to be a sandy region throughout and hence it is believed that farm crops cannot be profitably produced. This is true in part, for the plains land or as frequently termed the pine barrens are of little consequence to the general farmer. Many have been deceived concerning this land and through alluring stories told by oily-tongued very warm place. My feeling of land sharks have been swindled. It is probably due to this fact more than anything else that this region is in so much disrepute. But as agriculture becomes more intense throughout the Union these plairs will be utilized for some profitable cause for these lands will undoudtedly be discovered. At monstrated last summer. Two hundred Texas-raised steers were pastured on the plains from early last spring until the latter part of August, when they were shipped to the Chicago market, As to the profit of this undermade good gains and one could not out the aid of fixings of any kind. expect cattle to come from grass in better condition. It is quite evident that in the future large acres of this plains will be used for grazing. The sandy soil coupled with the dry elevated nature of the plains also makes very favorable conditions for the raising of sheep In this connection it might be mentioned that the native grasses of the plains are not favorable to the horse. This is the general conclusion of those who have had considerable experience with these lands.

The term plains and pine barrens are both misleading. The first suggests a level stretch of country, while the term barren signifies withoutlife.

The first is a local term and misleading, for the greater part of the acres thus termed are hilly and rolling in nature. The second term is misleading, for there is no barreness; even the poorest and most typical of these lands is under natural conditions covered with vegetation. It is hard to find a fitting term, since the soil gradations occur, varying from the typical jack pine sand to the most desirable hardwood soil. To one familiar with the country the predominant timber is usually quite suggestive of the nature of the soil, though this is not wholly reliable. The plains as applied to Northern Michigan lands usually includes those which have produced jack pine to a greater or a lesser extent.

The hardwood lands have produced beech and maple in association with a part of this land has some time in the just the right positions. past been densely timbered, but today these regions are in many instances but a wreck of the past. From an agricultural standpoint it stead of the mongrel farmer whose ent ties and logs to provide subsistance for himself and family, while his farming operations are almost too limited to support his team. These men do not deserve the name farmer; they are more properly speaking woodsmen. And while it is not desired to simply establish the idea that this is an absolutely ideal country needing only a better class of people to develop it, the fact deserves emphasis that the new country is now open to genuine American settlers .-Chas. The Power of Imagination.

In opening his speech at a banquet in New York recently Robert G. Ogden indicated the mental strain under which he had been laboring until he was called upon to speak by relating this amusing instance of the power of the imagination: "When I came into this room it seemed to me I was getting into a discomfort was very much increased when I saw myself seated by your very courteous committee right next to a large steam radiator. As the perspiration began to form on me in drops I began to doubt the judgment of your committee. California Farm Irrigated With Water Drawn by Sun Power. Many attempts have been made at various times to use solar heat as source of power.

At last a practical solution of the problem seems to have been reached. There has been set up on Edwin Cawston's ostrich farm at Pasadena, Cal., a contrivance which performs its work regularly and with certainty. From one hour and a half after sunrise to half an hour before sunset it drives a ten horse power engine, raising 1,400 gallons of water twelve feet per minute. This is enough to irrigate about 500 acres of deciduous trees or 300 acres planted with orange trees.

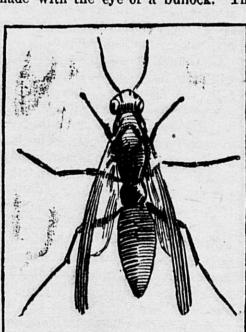

The solar motor is in shape like section of a huge umbrella of very substantial construction, having a diameter of thirty-three feet at its widest part and of fifteen feet at its narrowest. The whole inside surface is covered with mirrors, each 2 feet long by 31/2 inches wide. Nearly 2,000 of these long, narrow mirrors catch the sun's rays and reflect their heat upon a slim boiler just where the handle of the umbrella would be.

The boiler is thirteen and a half feet long and holds 100 gallons of water. When the concentrated heat from the mirrors is focused on it it soon becomes so hot that a stick held against it smokes and bursts into flame. In about an hour steam is generated and is conveyed from the head of the boiler through a flexible metal pipe to the cylinder of the steam engine, being thereafter used in the ordinary man-

The lenses which nature has made for giving sight to animals have been adapted to actual use in photography. This odd discovery has not been made of commercial value on account of the extreme delicacy and perishable nature of the crystalline lens and to find some method of preserving these natural lenses permanently.

The experiments have usually been made with the eye of a bullock. The Good photographic results have been obtained from the crystalline lens by protecting its surface from evaporation by thin glasses of suitable curvature. The photograph of the wasp shown herewith was made with the natural lens in this way. Two thin watch glasses of especial convexity were selected and the inner surfaces moistened with aqueous humor. The crystalline lens was taken from the eye and immediately transferred to the glasses. The edges were then sealed together with black gummed paper and the outside surfaces were covered with the paper except a small round diaphragm opening in the cen-

Takes Pictures Twenty Miles Away. John H. Heaton, M. P., who has returned to London from Italy, whither he accompanied Signor Marconi, says he saw at one observatory near Rome specimens of a new system of electric photography, by which clear pictures can be obtained of persons and scenes twenty miles distant. He thinks it conceivable that the system can be developed so as to enable the making of photographs of friends in distant lands while conversing with them by wireless telegraphy.

Photographing Heart Beats. A wonderful kodak gun which will photograph the wind or record in pictures the heart beat of a living animal is the latest contribution which science has made to the world. The new invention comes from France. Dr. J. Marey, a member of the Institute of France, is the man who has perfected it so that it will, accomplish what has up to the present time been thought to be impossible.

How Rattlesmakes Decoy Birds. That the rattlesnake uses his tail to decoy birds has been observed a number of times by a correspondent of the Scientific American, who says: "The snake hides himself in the tall grass and amitates the buzzing of a bee. The dinsectivorous birds, such as the photoe and kingbard, are attracted by the sound, and become an easy prey for his snakeship. I have seen rattle-

Mr. and Mrs. Googoobird were very economical and careful creatures, and it happened that in a few years they managed to lay by a nice little sum of money. One day they agreed to buy new clothes and begin to enjoy life.

So Mr. Googoobird purchased a pretty straw hat, and Mrs. Googoobird purchased a beautiful spring bonnet. Then they put on these fine things and flew out to the road, where they perched upon the milestone to wait for the other birds and animals to pass by and say nice things about them.

But all the time nobody came their way to admire them, and they wondered why that was so. They still waited,
