What is the use of worrying and fretting over some trivial matter? It not only makes a person unhappy but has a tendency to make your friends and acquaintances become weary of your company. Don't cause them to regard you as a "chronic kicker," but look at the bright side of life and be cheerful.

The Detroit Journal devotes a half column of space, with a 'scare heads' to record the fact that some skaters in a Detroit suburb caught a muskrat. And yet these metropolitan papers poke fun at the county papers who devote three lines to the fact that John Smith has lost a $250 horse.

During the year just closed the American Shipbuilding Co., which operates plants for building steel ships at Cleveland, Lorain, Buffalo, Detroit, Bay City, South Chicago and West Superior, made a wonderful record. During the twelve months the company turned out forty-two modern freight steamers, which is at the rate of three and a half boats a month.

During last Saturday night's terrible storm three boys were frozen to death on the bay at Bayport. The boys were fishermen's sons and had gone out to their parents' fish shanties and became lost in the blinding snow. They were missed at supper time and search was made, they boys were not discovered until next morning. The boys were 9 and 11 years old.

Theaters throughout the country are being most carefully inspected, since the Iroquois horror at Chicago last week. If the officials engaged in this work will at the same time do a little investigation as to the condition of the hotels, another "hotel horror," may be averted. If theaters fail to comply with the law in these matters, it is safe to believe that other public buildings are in no better condition.

He told his son to milk the cows, feed the horses, slop the pigs, hunt the eggs, catch the colt and put him in the stable, split some kindling, get in the wood, stir the cream, put some fresh water in the creamery after supper, and be sure to study his lesson before he went to bed; then he went to the Farmers' club to discuss the question, "How to keep the boys on the farm."—Lapeer Clarion.

When a woman appears in a handsome new outfit, including hat and shoes, she is so radiantly happy that she fairly beams; but the average man feels miserable in a complete new outfit; he feels that he looks like a graven image or a tailor's dummy and he goes around with a fishy, apologetic smile that would rend a heart of stone. After he has worn the clothes a few days and has some wrinkles judiciously distributed, and some cigar ashes grained into the fabric, he feels more comfortable and begins to take pride in his appearance.

The weather bureau's meteorological summary for last month discloses a few odd things. For instance, the month was only exceeded in coldness twice in the past 33 years. These years were 1872 and 1876. The mean temperatures for the month was 22 degrees above zero. The last 15 days were remarkable in the changes in temperatures, it being high one day and with an extreme drop the next. The highest temperature was 39 above zero on Dec. 23, and the lowest was 1 above Dec. 14.—Detroit Tribune.

Fire broke out in the Alpena county jail last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and it was soon burned to the ground. It was one of the finest buildings in the county, of brick, and cost $7,000. It was built in 1879. The loss is partially covered by insurance. The west wind saved the court house and adjoining buildings by carrying the sparks down streets. Conklin's hardware store was ignited, but was soon extinguished. The fire was supposed to have been caused by a defective chimney. A new steam heater had been put in the jail last fall at the cost of $1,000.

C. V. Hicks, Pianos and Organs.

If anyone doubts the fact that the D. & M. railway officials are anxious to reach Cheboygan with their line let them go up along the line of the road where the work is going on. Even in this coldest weather the men are at work regularly on the grade and pushing things on towards the city. It is understood that the track is now laid to within about four miles of town and that the heaviest cuts are being taken out with a steam shovel.—Cheboygan Democrat.

Why is it that a great many merchants think that business will be dull after the holidays? Of course, business may not be quite so brisk after as it was before, but that is all the more reason why they should get their goods before the public. People may not buy the small goods they did before; but they must live and in order to do so they must have the necessities of life. It is just as essential to advertise now as it was before the holidays, if not more so.

Ever since the Alger-Smith river went out of business at Black River the town has been growing into one of the "has beens." There are many houses here that have not had an occupant for years, and recently the owners of some of the best buildings are having them moved to neighboring towns which have managed to keep pace with the times. It is predicted that everything worth moving will have been taken away within two or three years.

The Berthold restaurant in the Henry building, East Tawas, is the best place for a good, quick meal. Oysters are served in every style. We never close. Come in.

M. E. Announcements.

Talk about what is necessary for a surprise, just ask Uncle David Love and wife. On new years' ocured the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, and they were not thinking anything about the event, till in the evening, a rap at the door aroused Uncle David from his slumbers, and upon opening it, in rushed 33 of his friends heavily laden with those edibles so palatable at this time of the year. According to the annual report of the state railroad commissioner, Michigan railroads did fifty million dollars worth of business last year, which is the largest volume of business ever known.

The directors of the D. & M. have recently declared a 2½ per cent semi-annual dividend, which with the heavy expense for new equipment would indicate that its business was most satisfactory.

Investigations as to the cause of the large list of death in the Iroquois theater fire at Chicago last week indicate that the city officials of that city are guilty of tributary carelessness by failure to see that laws regulating fire protection in such cases were properly enforced. The total number of lives lost was 590, all but four of which have been identified.

Those Awful Bills.

The board of supervisors spent considerable time during their session this week in the consideration of contagious disease bills. The liberal manner in which many boards of health allow bills for the care of these cases makes it a serious question to the county. It has always been the policy of the board to pay all reasonable bills, and especially in cases of people whose financial condition was questioned. Notwithstanding these facts, some boards of health are most extravagant in their expenditures. At the meeting this week the board adopted regulations which it is believed will stop to a large degree this constant drain on county funds. Under these provisions no bills will be allowed by the board unless they show that they have been ordered by the board of health and were necessary for the proper care of parties quarantined. The financial condition of the party must also be shown, thus enabling the board to bring action to recover all amounts thus paid where parties are collectable.

It is really surprising the number of people who are willing to appear as paupers for the sake of securing a few dollars worth of goods and medical attendance at the expense of the county.

THE CUTTER IS WINNER.

When winter comes in white array
The boys get out their brand new sleigh.
At once the ladies see the point
And rig out in their warmest dress.
When all is ready you may guess
The auto's nose is out of joint.

In storied good old summer time,
When streets and country roads are prime,
The devil wagon rules the way,
But when the air is crisp and bright,
The roadway glistens crisp and white,
It must sit back and watch the sleigh.

The odor rank of gasoline
Is all right when the fields are green—
The buzz cart whir is music fine;
But when the snow lies on the ground
The sleigh bells make the sweetest sound
As far they jingle down the line.

All bundled up in winter clothes
A fellow's tempted to propose
And ask the girl to name the day,
Who, riding in an auto cart,
Would never even make a start.
No wonder girls prefer the sleigh.

Unless my gasoline runs low.

Even then I'll burn to make the score
This package of excelsior."

THE GRANGE RITUAL.

Its Beautiful Teaching Unappreciated by Most Patrons.

The American Grange Bulletin touches upon a very important matter in the following article. It says: As members of the grange we frequently boast of the teachings of our ritual. What is the best thing in it? Don't answer without thinking. Perhaps you hadn't thought. Possibly you know very little about the ritual—and you are an officer, a teacher in the grange! And if you, with your opportunities and responsibilities, must hesitate and confess to yourself that you know very little about the matter, how do you suppose your new members would be able to answer the question?

Here is a suggestion, not for this week or next, but for a suitable time this month or next, or some other month. Plan a ritual programme. Ask a dozen members to select the best sentence from the ritual and be prepared to repeat it and give reasons for thinking it the best. Ask three others to read the ritual for the purpose of being able to judge which of the dozen answers is best. The decision may be based on the selection alone, on the selection and the explanation, or on the explanation alone.

The important thing is to get your members interested in searching for the choice things in the grange ritual. Mere memorizing without regard to thought will amount to little, but the good things are worth committing, even if the lessons they should teach are not appreciated at the time. The getting by heart with the idea of understanding the meaning as well as the order of the words will do good, besides being an interesting exercise and a valuable discipline.

TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION.

Some Suggestions For the Worthy Lecturer's Programmes.

Sometimes it happens that lecturers of subordinate granges are at a loss to know what subject to suggest for discussion at grange meetings. We submit a few that will be found interesting and profitable.

Is the local telephone an advantage to the farmer?

What is the best for the average farmer, special or mixed farming?

From what may the farmer receive the most education in his calling today?

Have men or women exercised the greatest influence on civilization and happiness?

Which is the best for a young man—a college education or an eighty acre farm?

What is the cheapest and best way of building a road?

Is it right to exempt life insurance companies, saving banks and loan associations from taxation?

Are farmers receiving a reasonable return for the capital and labor invested in their farms?

Should country schoolhouses be used as centers for social neighborhood meetings?

How many pounds of butter should a good dairy cow make in a year and what should she be fed?

Should the government or state aid in defraying the cost of constructing highways built according to standard requirements?

Would the importation of farm laborers through the department of agriculture at Washington be desirable?

Farmers Should Join the Grange.

While the grange is making rapid strides in membership this year, there are still a great many farmers who are not members of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry. More than 30,000,000 people of the United States are engaged in agriculture. The moral, social, educational and financial status of so large a number of our people is a matter of interest to every good citizen. The primary purpose of the grange is to educate and elevate the American farmer. Every patriotic farmer should join the grange and help the good work along, and every other good citizen, as opportunity may offer, should speak a word of encouragement.

A Rotten State of Things.

The good people of the state of Michigan little realize the rottenness of the machine rule which has fastened itself upon the commonwealth. If there could only be a grand jury investigation of our state affairs the honest citizens would be as shocked at the developments as they would be disgraced.

It might be brought to light what the relations were between the railroad companies of the state and high officials. Whether the former contributed money to secure the election of certain men, and what the consideration was. Also how the Detroit United Railway Co. was able to exercise such predominant influence in the last legislature as to secure the tying of the hands of the city of Detroit just at the time that its franchises are about to expire; who, if any of the members of the legislature were in the pay of the company; and wherein, if its employees sat and voted in the legislature on matters affecting its interests, it differs at all from common bribery?

The true facts lying back of Frank C. Andrews's parole might be discovered. There must be some reason for such an extraordinary step more than the very shallow ones that have been given.

It might be found out how an apparently packed jury panel came to be drawn just when Andrews's trial was expected to come on, necessitating the dismissal of the entire panel by the honest judge who had the perception to detect the outrage upon justice. The character of the recent jury in the same court, which was expected to try Moreland, also brought condemnation from the same judge, and is worthy of an inquiry.

The outrageous tax levy of $7,000,000 imposed by the last legislature might be analyzed and much shameful waste of public moneys exposed. The circumstances attending the creation of two additional costly and utterly unnecessary state institutions might be brought under the lime light. The governor had set his heart on getting a state institution for his home city. There was really nothing needed, but a home for epileptics was proposed. There was no more demand for one than there would be for a second state prison in Jackson county, and when this was thoroughly shown up, suddenly the scheme was changed to an additional blind asylum. One hundred and ten thousand dollars was appropriated as a starter for the millions which the state will have to put up eventually to gratify simply a little personal pride. It should be the first duty of the next legislature to retrace its steps and abolish the institution, or rather remove it to Lansing where the rest of the machinery for the education of the blind is located.

These are only a few of the wrongful or suspicious things that will bear investigation. There are a thousand more. The people have trusted their public servants so implicitly that advantage has been taken of it. Bad men have bought themselves into office and the government of a great state has been made the sport of reckless adventurers.

The republicans of the state cannot countenance this, and will certainly take steps to purge their respectable old party of the unworthy class who now so largely dominate it.—Detroit News.

For Young Men.

The Michigan Agricultural College offers six special courses this winter to the young men of the state whether on the farms or not. Of these short courses those relating to creamery management, cheese making and beet sugar production already have many applicants. The course in general farming and those along fruit and floricultural lines have not received the patronage that the business welfare of the state demands.

The M. A. C. courses are intensely practical, and are helpful to every student who attends. Moreover they are cheap and within the reach of the laboring man upon the farm. There are many young men in Isosco county perhaps that have not the slightest acquaintance with the courses in general farming as taught by our state college. To them the Herald would suggest that they look into the matter and learn for themselves just what advantages are offered.

The more thorough the acquaintance with the present ideas of agricultural progress that citizens can have, the more money they will make, the better citizens they will be and the more rapidly the community will progress and because of these facts many would do well to inquire into the ideas of agricultural progress as taught at the Michigan Agricultural College.

Victory for Supreme Hive.

Lansing, Jan. 5.—From an opinion handed down by a majority of the supreme court today it is apparent that if the great hive, Ladies of the Modern Maccabees, wishes to continue its work of expansion in other states than Michigan, it will have to adopt a new ritual, and secret work, and badges, etc.

It will be recalled that a couple of years ago the great hive instituted proceedings in the Washtenaw circuit court to restrain the supreme hive from setting up in Michigan or any other state as a defense against the invasion of other states by the great hive, the fact that the supreme hive was using the same ritual, secret work and other paraphernalia as the great hive, thus giving force to the contention of the supreme hive that it had the exclusive use of these adjuncts outside of Michigan and their use by the great hive in those states would lead to confusion, deceive the public, etc. Judge Kinne issued the injunction asked for by the great hive and the case was appealed to the supreme court.

In an opinion written by Justice Carpenter and concurred in by Chief Justice Moore and Justice Montgomery the court holds that, by virtue of an arrangement between the two bodies, the supreme hive is entitled to the exclusive use of the secret work outside of Michigan. The decree of the Washtenaw circuit court is therefore reversed, and a decree entered here adjoining the great hive from competing with the supreme hive in the field now occupied by the latter by using the same or substantially the same ritual, secret work, badges and paraphernalia as those used by the supreme hive.

"The decision," the majority opinion says "does not result in giving the supreme hive a monopoly which would be condemned by the courts. No one would think of characterizing the right which every organization has to the exhaustive use of its ritual and secret work as an illegal monopoly; nor would anyone deny that the supreme hive has this right against all the world except complainant. If this exclusive right was not an illegal monopoly and it surely was not, we do not make it one by deciding, as we do, that by virtue of the principle of estoppel it is also exclusive as against the great hive."

Justices Grant and Hooker filed a dissenting opinion, written by the former.—News.

Not Aliens.

Washington, Jan. 4.—In an opinion by Chief Justice Fuller the supreme court of the United States today decided that citizens of Porto Rico are not aliens of the United States and that they are entitled to enter this country without instruction. The opinion was delivered in the case of the Porto Rico woman, Gonzales, who in 1902 was refused admission to the port of New York on the ground that she was likely to become a public charge. The decision was based entirely on the immigrant act of 1891 and took the ground that the Porto Ricans owe allegiance to the United States and to no other government.

In his opinion the chief justice referring to the act of 1900, creating a civil government for Porto Rico, said that the woman was a citizen of Porto Rico under that act, and added that "there was nothing expressed in the act nor reasonably to be implied therefrom, to indicate the intention of congress that citizens of Porto Rico should be considered as aliens and the right of free access denied to them."

A Very Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did before in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by G. S. Darling and J. E. Dillon. Price 50 cents.

The Boy Who Killed a Chicken.

The boy was covered with mud to the top of his kilt skirt, there were mud patches on his face and hair, and he had lost his hat, but in his hand he grasped a chicken—a limp, wet and muddy chicken. It was the cause of his trouble, for he had thrown stones in the yard that afternoon and had accidentally killed the chicken. His sister had declared that she could not love such a cruel boy. Then he had disappeared and had been found stuck in the swamp.

When he saw his mother his feelings overcame him, and he burst into a loud wail:

"My sister doesn't love me! My sister doesn't love me! I want to get lost in the woods and let the bears eat me!"

"But," said his mother, "you cried when you pinched your finger with the clothespin, and it would hurt you far more if the bears should eat you."

The boy was interested and dried his tears.

"I mean a kind, tame bear," he said, choking a sob.

"But a tame bear has sharp teeth."

The boy rubbed his eyes with his muddy hand and was lost in thought for awhile. Then he raised his head. His countenance was cheerful, there was not a trace of sorrow in his tone and he cried, "I mean—I mean a nice little curly dog without any teeth."

How Young Chinese Are Educated.

The Chinese school children have instilled into them at an early age habits of hard, steady study.

At the age of five a boy begins his schooling. At daylight he rises, and after dressing as quickly as possible he starts breakfastless to school.

He is given a task, and after it is completed he is allowed an hour for breakfast. Again later he has an hour for luncheon, but he is at his study nearly twelve hours a day seven days a week. All this time when he is not reciting his lessons he is studying aloud at the top of his voice. He is under the eye of his master, both in school and on his way to and from school.

The lad is taught rudimentary astronomy, physics and natural history, but greater stress is put upon writing and his literary studies.

"A Thousand Letters," a poem, is the study that forms the backbone of his literary education. In it are taught the duties of children to parents and all such matters.

Whatever the study may be—history, classics or science—every lesson is learned and repeated word for word.—Chicago Inter Ocean.
