FORCED TO MOVE.

Owing to our constantly increasing business we have been forced to seek more room for our Drug Store. For this reason we have leased the building recently vacated by F. W. Marzinski, two doors East of our present location, and the same is now being thoroughly renovated, remodeled and redecorated for our use.

On Or About November 1st.

We will be located in our new Store, and will have one of the neatest and most up-to-date Drug Stores in this section. We began business in this City, May 20, 1903, and desire at this time to extend to the people our thanks for the most liberal patronage which we have received. In the future as in the past, it will be our constant endeavor to have at all times a full and complete stock of Fresh Drugs and Medicines which will be supplied at the lowest prices, and in our new location we will be in a position to give our patrons the most prompt service.

Realizing that the Gentlemen of our City have no suitable place to pass away the long winter evenings, we have decided to retain our present location for that purpose, which we will furnish and supply with various kinds of games and reading matter. For want of a better name we will call it "THE GENTLEMEN'S HANG OUT" it will cost nothing to enjoy the privileges of this "Hang Out." Everybody will be welcome. All we ask, and what we will insist on, is Gentlemanly conduct at all times.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Cousin of the Czar.

Grand Duke Boris, who was reprimanded by General Kuropatkin for his escapades and subsequently recalled from the seat of war by order of the czar, is the second son of Grand Duke Michael, uncle of Nicholas II. of Russia. Boris, who is noted as a daredevil fighter, went to the front with his splendid regiment, known as the Golden Hussars, in which he holds the rank of lieutenant, but his conduct has been highly displeasing to his commanding officer.

GRAND DUKE BORIS.

Grand Duke Boris, who visited this country in 1902, stirred up quite a tempest in a teapot at Newport by leaving the dinner table at which he was being entertained because his hostess' butler served her before giving the grand duke his soup. He is about twenty-six years old.

Quay and Smith.

Charles Emory Smith, editor, diplomat and man of affairs, was a political enemy of the late Senator Quay. After Quay had successfully conducted the Harrison campaign he was consulted by President Harrison when the latter began to think of appointments for the diplomatic service. He wanted to give Smith a post, so he had Secretary Blaine sound Quay for his opinion in the matter.

"Senator," said the secretary, "you know Charles Emory Smith?"
"Yes," was the reply, "very well."
"Would you care if he received a foreign appointment?"
"No," was the quick answer; "the foreigner the better."
So Mr. Smith went to St. Petersburg.

He Had the Heavy One.

F. L. Colver, president of Frank Leslie's publishing house, tells the following as an illustration of the quick wit of an Irishman who was sent to take some furniture to the storage warehouse preparatory to the family going to their summer home.

Colver, who was in the library, heard sounds of unusual puffing and blowing as one of the men was staggering downstairs under a weighty piece of furniture.

"What are you taking down," he called out, "the light oak dresser?"
"No, sor," panted Pat; "sure O'm takin' down the heavy mahogany one."
—New York Times.

Miss Johnson's Ambition.

Miss Bessie Johnson, daughter of Tom L. Johnson, the millionaire mayor of Cleveland, who has just signed with Charles Frohman, is to take a leading role in "Brother Jack," the play in which Annie Russell will star this season.

Miss Johnson has always wanted to go on the stage and has caused her parents much uneasiness by her ambitions. On two occasions she came to New York to study for the stage, and each time she was taken home as soon as it was discovered by Mayor Johnson that the interest of his daughter in the work was becoming strictly professional. Apparently, however, her father's consent has at last been won, and Miss Johnson is to be allowed to pursue her ambition of becoming a great actress. She is about twenty-one years old.

Roosevelt and Ferris is the combination noticeable among independent republicans in this neck of the woods. FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Pepper Stew.

Remove the seeds from a dozen green peppers and boil half an hour in lightly salted water. When tender, take up and set one side. Put into saucepan a half dozen fresh tomatoes, a sliced onion, a sprig of parsley, a couple of cloves and a teaspoonful of salt. Add cold water, and bring to a boil. Simmer until the tomatoes are pulpy, then strain. Put a tablespoonful each of butter and flour into a frying pan, and as soon as melted and "bubbly" add the strained tomatoes. As soon as thickened and creamy put in the peppers. Simmer five minutes, taking care not to crush the peppers, and serve.

Pictures in the Kitchen.

Hang at least one picture in your kitchen in such a place that it will meet your eye a score of times daily. Let it be a landscape or a figure or a picture "that tells a story," only be sure that it is not a scene that reproduces something of the daily routine. If practicable change the picture for another once a week or month. Good prints of the best pictures can be had as low as a cent each. Take a look at the picture often, seeing what it means or rather realizing each time what it says to you personally. This will break up the monotony, which is the deadliest thing about housework.

Uses of Coal Oil.

A few drops on your dusting cloth will brighten your furniture as well as prevent dust from flying from the cloth.

One tablespoonful added to each boilerful of water will lessen labor as well as whiten your clothes when washing. A few drops added to your boiled starch will make ironing easier.

A few drops on a hinge or roller which formed a bad habit of squeaking will insure a speedy cure.

A few drops added to the water with which windows are to be washed will save time and labor.

Eliminates Danger.

There is always a certain amount of danger attached to the washing of the outside of the windows, especially in the upper stories, as the narrow width of the window sills allows but scant space on which to sit, and many a housewife, even if she has plenty of nerve, is afraid of slipping. For this reason the cleaning cannot be done thoroughly and seldom looks as nice as if the cleaning could be very easily and thoroughly accomplished and danger of accident eliminated. In this frame the sash is hung on trunnions and hinged at the middle, so that it may be readily swung horizontally entirely around to bring the exterior of the glass in the inside of the room and as readily reversed. The sashes carrying the glass balance each other, so that the raising or lowering of one produces the opposite movement in the other.

To Mend Kid Slippers.

White or colored kid slippers often become shabby in appearance because the kid has been peeled off the heels. If the slippers are otherwise in good condition the heels can be made to look like new by cutting from the top of an old glove of the same color a piece of kid large enough to stretch and paste about the heel. The upper edge can be securely pushed under the sole of the shoe and neatly trimmed at the bottom. If not worn until perfectly dry the result is most satisfactory.

Air the Bedclothes.

Teach the boys as well as the girls the proper way to put the bedclothes to air over two chairs in the morning and also occasionally give the boys a lesson in simple cooking by having them help prepare breakfast. The lad who can make a good cup of coffee, broil a steak and serve them will use nothing of manliness, but may find the knowledge useful in after life.—Pitt-gram.

The Useful Onion.

All white meats gain in flavor from a delicate onion admixture with the gravy. The onion is to be grated and put over the meat before it has just finished roasting and then blended by basting. In this way one avoids the burned onion slices which sometimes result from other methods and which have, in a way, caused the addition of onion to be regarded with disfavor.

Cleaning Water Bottles.

To clean water bottles and decanters mix together half a gill of vinegar and a handful of salt. Shake well in the decanters to be cleaned, and no matter how discolored this treatment has been tried and found successful.

Stain For Pine Wood.

To stain pine wood the color of black walnut use a mixture of one-fourth of a pound of asphaltum, one-half pound of beeswax and one gallon of spirits of turpentine. If not thick enough to spread well, add more wax.

Clothcraft Overcoats are as different from ordinary overcoats as day is from night.
 It seems as if the majority of overcoats were made simply to cover the body without any thought of HOW they cover it.
 That's just where Clothcraft Overcoats are different.
 Their first purpose is to protect the body from exposure.
 They accomplish that purpose admirably because the fabrics are all wool, and at the same time they have a style, grace and individuality that are distinctly theirs.
 Look at the illustration of the Harvard and Yale models and you will see how Clothcraft Overcoats are tailored.
 Note how neatly the collar fits, see how gracefully the coat hangs from the shoulders, giving ample room at the knee.
 The whole garment seems a part of the man.
 Only faultless clothing fits that way.
 Wear a Clothcraft Overcoat and you'll be properly attired.
 We will supply you at $10 to $35.

M. E. FRIEDMAN,

WHY DO SO MANY PEOPLE RIDE CRESCENTS

Twice as many Crescent bicycles as any other have been bought annually for the last six years.

WHY DOES THE NUMBER OF CRESCENT RIDERS INCREASE EACH YEAR

Crescent sales have increased steadily year after year.

You can answer these questions yourself if you will come to our store and see a Crescent. Probably then we will not need to ask.

WHY DON'T YOU RIDE A CRESCENT

GEO. W. MOUNT,

M. E. FRIEDMAN.

E. V. Esmond returned Tuesday from a trip to Buffalo, where he took another lot of stock. It is very evident that Iose county and vicinity is an excellent grazing locality, judging from the amount of fine cattle and sheep being shipped from here almost daily.

The people of Hale have been honored by the nomination of one of our leading citizens, H. E. Nunn, as a candidate for an important county office, and we propose to show our appreciation on election day by giving him a big vote. He has been a resident of this village for 42 years and has been closely identified with its growth and progress, always being among the first to aid in all public enterprises. He has held the position of highway commissioner three terms and treasurer two, and has given the best of satisfaction. He started in as a farmer, and today he is one of our most successful business men.

It is said that a bear has been seen in the hollow by the school house, so George takes a companion with him when he goes to see his girl.

Broke into His House.

S. LeQuinn, of Cavendish, Vt., was robbed of his customary health by invasion of Chronic constipation. When Dr. King's New Life Pills broke into his house, his trouble was arrested and now he is entirely cured. They're guaranteed to cure, 25 cents at G. S. Darling's and J. E. Dillon's drug stores.

The Charm of Victoria Falls.

How the Victoria falls impress a visitor is recorded in Miss C. W. Mackintosh's journal of a tour in South Africa. Miss Mackintosh says: "We perceived no hint of the falls, only seeing before us a screen of rocky basins, bright green forest, apparently closing in the river, like a lake. Ten minutes' walk brought us to the camp, on a cliff which literally overhung the gorge, and we saw the cataract thundering down into the boiling pot at our feet. The walls of the chasm, 400 feet high, were spanned by a rainbow. The charm of these falls lies not in the one overwhelming crash as at Niagara, but in the cumulative effect of various glimpses, the matchless beauty of the surroundings and the strangeness of the whole setting, but chiefly in the columns of spray, called the "thundering smoke" and in the ever changing rainbows. The mile wide river suddenly drops into a yawning crack in the ground, stretching right across the stream at right angles to the banks, a foaming trough, quite narrow, of which the walls rose 400 feet above the surface of the water."

Three Well Placed Rubles.

The method of introducing forbidden documents into the czar's country is described by Carl Joubert, author of "Russia as it Really is." The purveyor of undesirable literature, having arrived on the frontier, at a point some distance from the railway, approaches the rittmeister and arranges matters with him. The rittmeister sees him and his cart load of books safely across the border and directs him to some small town near the frontier. Then the rittmeister raises the alarm and calls his men to horse, and they start off in pursuit of an imaginary smuggler in another direction, firing into the air to show their zeal in the discharge of their duties. "A ruble on either eye and ruble across the mouth," says Mr. Joubert, "will effectually prevent the Russian official from seeing or speaking."

How They Say Goodby.

"When I left Manila," said a sailor, "a Filipino lady saw me off. Do you know how she said goodby? Why, she rubbed my face with her hand. "In Fiji they say goodby by crossing two red feathers under your nose. "The Burmese crouch down and shout 'Hib nib?' "The south sea islanders wear farewell necklaces when goodbys are to be said. These necklaces are made of whales' teeth. To say goodby each islander rattles with his fingers the teeth of the other's necklace. "The Sioux Indian digs his spear in the ground as a sign of farewell. "In Otaheite they twist an end of your garment and then shake their own hands three times."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Swans For Food.

In this country swans are but little seen, except in public parks, but they are coming into increasing favor on private estates, as they give the finishing touch to an ornamental sheet of water. In England swans have been raised ever since the time of Richard the Lion Hearted for eating purposes. The largest swannery was maintained by Lord Ilchester in Dorset, where from seven to twelve hundred birds were kept. In the early days all swans were raised at one place and brands issued to members of the nobility.—Country Life in America.

Lawyers and Newspapers.

It has been the joke of ages, and is the joke today, that lawyers and the newspaper men of the day are doing as much, at least, as people in other professions or trades in searching for facts and in making them public, and in so doing they are doing their part toward uprooting error and toward purifying the moral atmosphere.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Knew His Place.

"These cards is wore out," complained the old bos'n in Snug Harbor. "Why don't ye get a new deck? Ye kin buy a good one fur a quarter." "We're only plain sailors," replied the gunner's mate, "so the quarter deck's too rich fur our blood."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Not Deceived.

Ethel—He acts this way: He gazes at me tenderly, is buoyant when I am near him, pines when I neglect him. Now, what does that signify? Her Mother—That he's a mighty good actor, Ethel.—Puck.

A Sly Dig.

Ethel—What foolish things a young man will do when he is in love! Edith (breathlessly)—Oh, Ethel, has Jack proposed?

An Old Russian Proverb.

The gates of Russia are wide to those who enter, but narrow to those who would go out.

Common salt injected into timber will preserve it from decay.

Notes and Kisses.

In the letters of William Cowper, the poet, is an interesting description of some old fashioned political campaign tactics in England: "We were sitting yesterday after dinner, the two ladies and myself, very composedly and without the least apprehension of any such intrusion in our snug parlor, one lady knitting, the other netting, and the gentlemen winding worsted, when to our unspeakable surprise a mob appeared before the window, a smart rap was heard at the door, the boys hallooed and the maid announced Mr. Grenville. Puss—one of the tame hares—was unfortunately let out of her box, so that the candidate, with all his good friends at his heels, was refused admittance at the grand entry and referred to the back door as the only possible way of approach. In a minute the yard, the kitchen and the parlor were filled. Mr. Grenville, advancing toward me, shook me by the hand with a degree of cordiality that was extremely seducing. When the conference ended, Mr. Grenville squeezed my hand again, kissed the ladies and withdrew. He kissed likewise the maid in the kitchen and seemed upon the whole a most loving, kissing, kind hearted gentleman."

Likes a "Tosey" Clerk.

"That new salesman," remarked a floorwalker in a Broadway haberdashery's store to the proprietor, "seems to be an inquisitive sort of fellow. When business is slack he noses about, looking at everything on the shelves, examining tags and peeping into boxes that are not strictly in his department. I think I'll speak to him." "You will please do nothing of the sort," answered the proprietor. "Clerks who 'nose' about, as you express it, instead of posing by the door, are the young men who know exactly what goods we have in stock and where to find them. They do not keep a customer waiting while they run to you or me and risk losing a sale. There is nothing about my stock that I don't want my clerks to know. I would rather they find out for themselves than go running to you for information."—New York Press.

A Courageous Soldier.

Admiral Wilson of the British navy won his Victoria cross at the battle of El Teb in 1884. There was a gap in the square, and five or six of the enemy made a vicious rush forward, attempting to get inside. Captain Wilson, who was present with the naval brigade, advanced to meet them alone, but his sword broke in the endeavor to cut one of the intruders down. Hereupon the officer, instead of beating a hasty retreat, stood his ground and began bowling over the enemy with his fists. Either from the nature of the ground or, as the record puts it, "the surprising nature of his attack," Captain Wilson escaped with a few wounds and was rescued by the square closing up round him. Sir Redvers Buller described the act as the most courageous he ever witnessed.

The Human Neptune.

It is doubtful if there ever was a sturdier human Neptune than Captain Webb, whose memorable exploit in crossing the English channel will always be remembered. It was mere ill luck—a fatal chance—which tossed him against a rock in the Whirlpool rapids of the Niagara river and ended his life. Lord Byron was a marvel in the water! He equaled the feat of Leander in propelling himself across the Hellespont without aid or relief from any quarter, and before him beamed no beckoning signals, glances and smiles from an incomparably beautiful Hero. But even Byron never swam across the English channel. As the champion of the silver streak of sea Webb was the wonder of the ages.

Wire Fire Extinguishers.

In factories where inflammable materials are made small fires are very apt to break out, and unless their progress is at once stopped the results may be serious. In varnish factories the fire extinguisher consists of a mesh of very fine wires. Should a jar of varnish become ignited, a workman seizes the net, which is always kept ready at hand, and pops it over the vessel containing the burning liquid. The wires conduct off the heat so quickly that the flames have no time to spread and soon die out.

Churches on Bridges.

The custom of building churches on bridges was common a hundred years and more ago. Several of these quaint old buildings are still left in Europe. The Chapel of Our Lady still stands on the bridge which spans the Don at Rotterdam. The little chapel was built in the fifteenth century and was restored about a hundred years ago. For several years, however, it has been used as a tobacco shop.

Described.

A parent was examining his young first grade hopeful in geography. "What is land with water all around it called?" "An island." "Then what is water with land all around it?" After a pause, "A puddle."

A Misfit.

A correspondent sends us an interesting natural history note. On opening his wardrobe the other day he found a moth in his dress coat. The effect, he declares, was ludicrous, as the coat was, of course, much too big for the moth.—Punch.

In a Quandary.

Bessie—Oh, Mabel, I am in an awful dilemma! I've quarreled with Harry, and he wants me to send his ring back. Mabel—That is too bad. Bessie—That isn't the worst of it. I've forgotten which is his ring.
