Their plan is to sell membership tickets and each member can secure an umbrella at any station in case he is caught in the rain, and returns it either to that or any other station. Death of Francis Chambers.
Francis Chambers, of Tawas township, who has been in very poor health for some time, was taken to St. Mary's hospital at Bay City last Monday, where he underwent a surgical operation at 5 o'clock that evening. He rallied nicely from the effects of the operation, but owing to the advance of the disease his constitution was so weakened that he survived only until 2 o'clock Thursday morning, when he died.
Mr. Chambers has been a resident of this county for more than 25 years and was highly respected. He leaves besides the bereaved widow, one son, James, and two daughters, Mrs. John McArdle and Mrs. L. P. Latham, to mourn his death.
The funeral will occur at the Hemlock Road Baptist church this afternoon at 1 o'clock, interment at the Tawas City cemetery. The funeral is in charge of the L. O. L., of which the deceased was a member. He was also a member of Baldwin Tent Modern Maccabees.
An Enthusiastic Meeting.

A temporary organization was had by the election of Dr. C. A. Wakeman as chairman, and Len J. Patterson as secretary. A general discussion of the advantages of a citizen's association was had and a committee to formulate a plan for a permanent organization was appointed, consisting of F. F. Taylor, Len J. Patterson and John A. Mark.
The meeting was adjourned to next Tuesday evening, May 29, at which time a permanent organization will be completed. Every citizen interested in the development and welfare of our city is urged to be present and take part in this meeting.
"Push, not knock" should be our motto, and a united, organized effort will bring results of which we may all be proud. Let the old city hall be packed at 8 o'clock next Thursday evening by citizens and business men, all ready to do their best for Tawas City.
Turn Out!
Decoration Day.
The program for the Decoration Day exercises in Tawas City has been completed by the committee in charge. The line of march will form at the postoffice at 9 o'clock a. m. and proceed to the cemetery, being joined by the school children at the high school building, under control of Supt. Ellsworth.

HOTEL HOLLAND

East Tawas

Tuesday and Wednesday, May 29 and 30

He has the finest instruments and appliances known to modern science for the detection and correct diagnosis of defects of vision from whatever cause, and a practical experience of more than thirty years in this business enables him to at once determine the trouble and adjust or make to order lenses scientifically calculated to overcome and correct the defects shown by examination.

Among those who are using glasses fitted by Mr. Gilch and who can testify to their superiority are the following:

H. T. Thomas	East Tawas	Sam'l Anker	East Tawas
Milo Eastman	" "	Henry Hanson	" "
James Sayles	" "	Dr. G. S. Darling	Tawas City
C. R. Jackson	" "	C. A. Jahraus	" "
Temple Emery	" "	John A. Mark	" "

Ex-Congressman T. E. Tarsney, of Detroit, says: "I take pleasure in saying that the glasses which you furnished me four years ago have given perfect satisfaction—the only ones, in fact, I was ever able to obtain which answered the purpose intended and at the same time strengthened the sight. I shall be pleased to have you call at any time when in the city."

F. W. Gilchrist, President of the Alpena National Bank, says: "I have been using your glasses about five years and always found them perfect in every respect."

The Following Advantages Are Claimed for the Special Lenses Used by Mr. Gilch:

FIRST—That the material from which these lenses are ground is manufactured expressly for optical purposes and is pure, hard, brilliant and not liable to become scratched.

SECOND—That they confer a brilliancy and distinctiveness of vision with an amount of ease and comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle wearers.

THIRD—That, from the peculiar construction of the glasses and frames, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

TAWAS CITY MICH., MAY 25, 1906

Time was not far back when the hoodler was called a statesman, or, at worst, a shrewd politician. It is to the great advantage of this country that he is now known by his right name.

The boy who saves his money becomes the banker, the merchant, the professional man. The boy who never saves a cent makes the man who "earns his bread by the sweat of his brow," who never owns a home or enjoys the luxuries of life.

While we beautify our gardens and premises we should not forget our relatives and friends who are at peaceful rest. There are more little mounds in our cemetery than there are residents in our city and it is fitting that our Silent City should be kept in order. None of us are too poor to plant a rose above the resting place of a relative or friend.

The next step in the troublous passage of the rate bill toward final enactment into a law will be the arrival of the bill in the conference committee of the two branches of congress. There is such a wide divergence between the original Hepburn bill passed by the house and the patched-up bill passed by the senate that it will take a series of conferences to whip the matter into shape.

The weekly country paper has a definite excuse for being in the world as can be furnished by the city dailies. Such a publication is not only a business guide, but a pulpit of morals; it is a kind of a public forum where the affairs of the state are considered; it is a supervisor of streets and roads; it is a social friend, a promoter of friendship and good will. Edited by a broad and just man, such a publication so treats the different sects that they realize their brotherhood and become in reality what they are pictured in print. The town weekly dare not be Presbyterian, or Methodist, or Baptist, but it must select the valuable in each church, and thus it becomes the harmonizer of discord. It binds those whom theology would often separate. Even the so-called small matters of a village or incorporate town are small only to those whose hearts are too full of personal interest. It is very important if some school boy reads a good essay, or speaks well a piece, or sings well a song, or stands high in the class room, that kindly mention should be made publicly of such success, for more young minds are injured by the want of cheering words than are made vain by an excess of such praise.

Early Education of Children.

A matter that should be of great interest to parents was the discussion at the Philadelphia conference on charities and corrections of the relative value of the child's life in and out of school. Discussing the topic, "Education Before Literature," one of the speakers said: "What is essential in education or development of the growing child in his early years is fresh air, wholesome food, abundance of sleep, plenty of play, opportunity to use his senses upon things he wants to know, and intercourse with other children and with adults whose personal influence is uplifting and wholesome. Reading, writing and arithmetic become of greater importance with advancing years, but they must not occupy the dominant places in the early education of the child, where many persons of conservative type would assign them."

This adoption, we think, is worth the widest dissemination among parents. Too generally the tendency is to over-emphasize the importance of school work in the early period of the child's education. Parents seem to forget that the health of their offspring is of far greater consideration than their schooling. They also lose sight of the fact that the major portion of the child's education up to and through the intermediate grades is obtained outside of their books and not in the school room. The first impression of nature and humanity and the initial moral conceptions that are to leave a lasting stamp on the mind and character begin to take root at this period. They are nearly all gained in hours of recreation—at play, in games, trips to the woods, gathering flowers, listening to human interest stories and in the daily lessons of home life and association. Birds, cats, dogs, horses and animals generally; dolls, dishes and toys; trees, flowers, grass and the endless mysteries of nature teach the boy or girl just starting to school more in a day than is gathered from books and school room drudgery in a month.

The moral is obvious: Keep the child in school of course. Do everything possible to make this phase of its life a pleasant duty, but see that when the school hour ends, its work ends with it. Encourage outdoor recreation and play, help the pupil in his investigations into nature rather than into mastery of spelling and reading. Remember that in the eager desire to advance the child the tendency is to sacrifice health and nature's greater lessons to the meager returns from the reader and speller. Your child will master these in due time and with greater understanding if the young blood in his veins is kept flowing with invigorating play and his natural curiosity concerning the world about him is fed and satisfied. It is the rigid, harsh, bookish experience of early youth that deprives it of sweetness and fullness, and once the equilibrium is destroyed it is difficult to regain.—Saginaw News.

I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as the most wonderful medicine in existence." Surest cough and cold cure and throat and lung healer. Guaranteed by G. S. Darling and J. M. Wuggrazer & Co. After reading this issue, send it to your friend in the distance; or better yet, call at the office and send it to your friend or relative for six months or a year, for you can expect just such a paper as this for fifty-two weeks during the next year. Throw in your mite toward placing our city and county where they belong upon the map. This paper will do its part; you do yours.

One of our exchanges advertises a cow for sale as follows: "Full-blooded cow for sale, giving milk, three tons of hay, a lot of chickens and several stoves." While we have always had the greatest respect for meek-eyed gentle bossy, we never suspected for a moment that she would branch out into the junk-shop business. And she full-blooded, too! No "yallar" dog or posthole in her make up. Too bad.

The Telephone on the Farm.

He sits by his hearth and sells his cotton when it reaches 11 cents because his samples are stored in the town, even though at that time his cotton is under the cow-lot shed. He learns when he comes from the field at noontide that the carload of seed potatoes ordered by him and his neighbors has arrived and he goes to town immediately for his own share, and by phone agreement hauls home the portion belonging to two neighbors for enough money to pay for his phone service last year. With a telephone in his home, the farmer has the world where the wool is short. He has a down-hill pull. On the next day he is too busy to send a horse to town, four miles away, for a bushel of seed corn he must have for immediate planting, as he has been advised by telephone of its arrival by express, so he pays a thriftless neighbor who is going to town to buy bacon to bring the seed corn out with him. That is better than stopping a three-horse plow for a half day. At night he inquires of a neighbor over the phone, how he is pleased with the improved double-row corn planter, and he learns that it is the correct thing, so he orders one to be delivered the next day from his nearest implement house. It arrives and saves 50 cents a day in labor for ten days of the planting season. His wife calls up her cousin who lives in town and has a pleasant chat about all the doings of the last two days; finds out who was present at the last social, which she was unable to attend, and she is satisfied. The phone is a veritable money maker and social satisfier in the rural home. It is a builder of society; an insurance against violence and an ever present help in case of sickness.—Ex.

Prompt settlement on the part of customers has much to do with the ability of our merchants to swing their business in so able a manner. On the other hand, too liberal a credit without regard to whom, has been known to put many an honest merchant out of business.

There are 800,000 miles of telegraph and telephone lines in this country at the present time which requires 32,000,000 poles. A pole lasts on an average, twelve years and is made from a tree sixty years old. To maintain a continuous supply five times as many trees must be growing in the forest as there are poles in use. Experiments are being made which if successful will very materially add to the length of the life of a pole.

The republican canning factory has turned out a volatile product in reply to a democratic suggestion made somewhere by somebody for one-cent passenger rates. "A declaration favoring immediate confiscation of all railroad property" toots the factory "and imprisonment of railroad managers would better meet the purpose in view, etc., etc., etc." There are some wise people who think that confiscation, with adequate compensation, will be the logical development of railroading.—Detroit News.

The editor of this paper would be the last man on earth to knowingly say a word to hurt the feelings of any of its subscribers or citizens, especially at a time when the dark winged messenger of death has brought sorrow to the home, but from the best of motives we desire to call the attention of our readers to the custom of publishing "cards of thanks." It is a custom that has outgrown its purpose, if it ever had one. When sickness and death comes to your home it is only natural that your friends and neighbors should do what they could to assist you. They would be heathens if they did not. They know from the expression on your face that you are thankful and deeply appreciate all they do, and it is not necessary to rush into print and tell the world that your neighbors were kind when you were in trouble. The reading public are becoming tired of the old stereotyped "card of thanks." You can express to your friends, by a look or word your thankfulness in a more impressive manner than you can in a column of cold type.
