Percy Jones and daughter, Miss Maude, of the Soo, have been visiting friends here this week. The young lady is a student at the Laurel Academy of that city. This is her first visit to Tawas since removing to that city nine years ago.

The Senatorial Scrap.

Lansing, Jan. 3.—The opening of the legislative session this week has been a lively affair, and the city is full of politicians, great and small.

Governor Warner is ill at his home in Farmington, and was unable to be present and take the oath of office with the other state officials, and it is doubtful if he will be able to come here for a week or ten days.

The absence does not prevent his influence in the senatorial fight being felt, and when it was announced Tuesday that T. W. Atwood had declared in favor of Arthur Hill for United States senator, the governor, who is credited with being favorable to McMillan, came back with a signed statement which caused the senatorial caucus called for Wednesday night to be adjourned for one week.

The senatorial situation is now most completed. Gov. Warner's charges, which intimate very strongly that "boodle" is being used to advance the interests of at least one candidate, have caused a sensation, and an investigation is liable to be had. It now looks as if the chances for Secretary of State Prescott, or some other "dark horse" were excellent. Arthur Hill and T. W. Atwood both declare that they are both ready to meet any charges of wrong doing in connection with the senatorial contest that may be brought against them. It now looks as though a "deadlock" was certain, as the forces of the various candidates are forming combinations, and the prospects are for a long fight.

Sunday School Election.

The Presbyterian Sunday school held its annual election of officers last Sunday and the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

Superintendent—James E. Ballard. Secretary—Neil Shivas. Treasurer—Ethel Whittemore. Organist—Lois Taylor.

At the organization of the East Tawas Baptist Sunday school last Sunday the following officers and teachers were elected.

Superintendent—Mr. John Hamilton. Secretary-treasurer—Miss Lucinda Nash.

Organist—Miss Ina Dease. Teacher of Bible class—J. W. Tait. Young peoples' class—Rev. J. B. Brown.

Children's class—Miss Silvia Flint-off. Infant class—Miss Luella Tait.

A Word on Advertising.

Do your own advertising. Make it a study. Study the wants of your trade. When you get something they want let them know it. Do what you say you will, and a fortune is yours. Advertising is a study, and if a man waits until he has purchased a stock of goods and gets them placed on the shelves, and then thinks about talking to the people, a school boy could predict his cavernous failure. You can not succeed on your reputation as a good writer. You can not succeed on your reputation as a good book-keeper. You must have other essentials, and the chief of these is to be able to get near the buyer and to inspire that confidence which will induce long continued mutual good feeling, and to this end the newspaper is yours.

An Enjoyable Home Gathering.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert St. Martin, of East Tawas, was the scene of a most enjoyable home-coming New Year's day, when the ten children, of this venerable couple, with their wives, husbands and children gathered at the parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. St. Martin, who are 76 and 74 years of age, have been married 55 years, and for 34 of these years have been residents of East Tawas. Fifteen children have been born to them; ten of whom are living and were present to partake of the 6 o'clock dinner on this occasion.

Those present were Andrew St. Martin and wife, of Lorain, O., Peter St. Martin and wife, of Grand Marais, Thos. Vigrass, jr. and wife of Rose City, Alfred St. Martin and wife, of Styles Lake, Thomas St. Martin, of Cheboygan, James LaBerge and wife, Henry Abair and wife, Alex Marontate and wife, Simon St. Martin and wife and Albert St. Martin jr. and wife, of East Tawas, thirty grand children, five great grand children, and Joseph Jollie, a cousin. This was the first time in seven years that the family have all been at home at one time, and the aged parents have just cause to remember the Happy New Year of 1907.

C. E. Officers.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church held their regular monthly business meeting and semi-annual election of officers at the church last Monday evening.

The following officers were chosen: President—James E. Ballard. Vice-President—Mrs. C. B. Chaffee. Secretary—Miss Jessie Robinson. Treasurer—Miss Margaret McRae. Organist—Miss Lois Taylor.

The society has prospered well in the past year, having had a substantial increase in membership and good interest taken in the meetings, and the prospects for the future are very bright.

Farmers' Institute Next Week.

The 11th annual meeting of the Iosco County Farmers' Institute society will be held at the court house on Friday and Saturday of next week, January 11th and 12th. A very strong program has been arranged and several speakers of state reputation will be in attendance. The topics for discussion are of great importance to every farmer of Iosco county as they are of practical and local nature, and every farmer of the county should be in attendance and take part in the discussions. The benefits derived will show in the increased revenues of their farms next year.

The woman's section will be held in the basement of the court house, Friday afternoon.

One day institutes will be held at Alabaster, Thursday, January 17, and at Whittemore, Friday, January 18.

Large Estate Awaits Her.

D. C. Ashmun, formerly publisher of a newspaper at St. Charles, Mich., is now publishing the News at Neck City, Mo. He informs the Herald that a large estate is waiting to be claimed by Jane Knowlton, daughter of John Knowlton, who at one time lived at St. Charles, Saginaw county. Jane Knowlton married a man named Mehan, but later he either died or she was separated from him and her last known address was Bay City, Mich. Mr. Ashmun is anxious to get into communication with the lady.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., JAN. 4, 1907

An advance may be looked for in the price of oil. John D. made a new year donation of $3,000,000 to the Chicago University.

The total number of students at the University of Michigan last year was 4,571. Of this number 1,569 were in the literary departments, 1,165 in the engineering, 902 in the law and 369 in the medical departments.

February 14 is the date set, and Grand Rapids the place, for holding the republican judicial convention. Candidates will be nominated for two justices of the supreme court, two regents of the University and a member of the state board of education.

William H. Taft announced last Saturday that he was not a candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency next year, but said that should it come to him he would not decline. Now Bill's friends can get busy.

Several of the courts have decided that trusts cannot collect debts due them because, being organized to restrict trade, they are illegal combinations without standing before the law. This seems to hit the fraud "right where they live." It will force them to either quit entirely or do business on a strictly cash basis. Perhaps these judges have found the real solution of the trust problem. They should be treated as outlaws.

Much of the so-called friendship of the day is but pretense. It exists only in name and as soon as it ceases to be advantageous it is dropped. The friendship that continues the same in prosperity and adversity is to be prized, but all other kinds are worthless. It matters not how hard a man may struggle to do right and make a success of life there is always some loathsome reptile, some worthless wretch who is ready to drag him down, to blight his hopes and blast his fondest ambitions. The loss of money and property is not the greatest loss a man can sustain in the business world; far better to lose your money than to lose hope and ambition.

The man who pays his debts and his taxes may be a blessing or a curse to the community. It depends on what else he does. In making this statement it is to be understood that by the word "debt" is meant the ordinary cash obligation which a man incurs in the transaction of his business. There are men who appear to believe that so long as they are not indebted to their neighbors for goods purchased, or the state for the last tax levy they have discharged their whole duty and nothing more can be asked of them. But in reality a man's duty to his neighbor is limited only by his power to do his neighbor good, and his duty to the community by his ability to be of service to it. The community in which the prevailing statement is "what do I get out of it?" is one which does not and cannot prosper.

Legislation by the People.

The State Federation of Direct Legislation forces which was organized last August, at a meeting at Detroit last Friday presided over by President George B. Horton, of Fruit Ridge, framed a proposed constitutional amendment providing for direct legislation which will be presented to the legislature. About fifty members of the federation from different parts of the state attended the meeting.

One or more members of this legislative committee will be in Lansing constantly throughout the session. The amendment drafted by the federation adds a new article to the state constitution, enabling the voters of the state to originate and adopt laws and constitutional amendments, to approve and to recall officers and elect their successors by direct vote, and to secure such vote at their option by petition.

The amendments provide for the submission of the approval or vote of a law to the people upon a sworn petition with 30,000 signatures and the submission to the people of the recall of an official upon the presentation of a sworn petition with 10,000 signatures.

The five organizations composing the federation are as follows: State Federation of Labor, State Grange, Association of Farmers' clubs, Progressive Voters' league, of Detroit, and V. I. V. R. league, of Grand Rapids.

At the session of the federation the following publicity committee was appointed to take charge of the proposed constitutional committee before the legislature: J. B. North, of Detroit, representing the Progressive Voters' league; C. B. Cook, of Owosso, representing the Associated Farmers' clubs; T. M. McNaughton, Ada, representing the state grange; S. T. Penna, of Detroit, representing the state Federation of Labor, and C. D. Shorrow, of Grand Rapids, representing the V. I. V. R. league.

Good Roads in Michigan.

The first annual report of the highway department of Michigan, which will be presented to the legislature of 1907, contains some interesting figures. Although the department has been established but 17 months the work done in that time has been enormous. The good roads agitation has become a fixture, and the more good roads there are made the more there are to be made. During the time of the department's existence the expenses, including $1,500 for maps, have been $13,436.51. The total number of miles of road built in that time have been: Stone 52 miles; gravel, 33 miles; gravel and clay, 90 miles. At present applications for state rewards on 87 miles of stone road to be built in 1907 are on file. Considering that the New York highway department built only five miles of road during the first year of its existence, Michigan has a right to be proud of its own department. The state highway commissioner in his report estimates the value of the roads constructed under the direction of the department at $163,177. The state has paid rewards $61,626, and on the completion of the roads now in course of construction will pay $77,082 additional.

Since the contracts for the labor of convicts in the state penal institutions probably will not be renewed, the convicts may have a chance to aid in the improving of the roads. The finest road in the state at present, according to the report, is the two mile stretch from the city of Lansing to the agricultural college, which is of macadam, 22 feet wide, and cost $13,485, of which the state paid $2,000.

Pure Food and Drug Law.

The new pure food and drug act went into effect Jan. 1 and probably not half a dozen druggists fully understand what they should do to protect themselves and their patrons under the new law.

The law reads: Sec. 6—That the term "drug," as in this act, shall include all medicines and preparations recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary for internal or external use and any substance or mixture of substances intended to be used for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease of either man or other animals. The term "food," as used herein, shall include all articles used for food, drink, confectionery or condiment by man or other animal, whether simple, mixed or compounded.

Many druggists suppose because their trade is only local that new legislation does not include them. The retailer is responsible for the goods he handles, and goods made outside his state and shipped in come under the definition of "interstate commerce" and may not violate the provisions of the recently enacted legislation under that head. The druggist is responsible for the quality and purity of such goods unless he obtains a guarantee on every package from the manufacturer. Some druggists are laboring under the false idea that the law covers only those containing alcohol or narcotics, but the law is more far-reaching than this. It makes requirements for examinations, adulterations, imitations, labelling and mis-branding. Special provisions are made for wines and liquors and all soda fountain drinks. The law provides that no dealer shall be subject to prosecution where he can prove that he purchased the goods under a guarantee of purity. To protect himself and patrons the retailer should stamp all his stock "On hand Dec. 31, 1906," and after that date not buy anything that comes under the law unless the manufacturer's or jobber's guarantee is attached.

A Free Press.

Last year congress appropriated $183,067,581.78 for the maintenance of the army and navy, for forts and fortification and the military academy, charged directly to the work of maintaining peace by a preparation for war. What we get in return for this vast expenditure is a greater assurance of tranquility. We take pride in saying that the man behind the gun is our real defense, but the man behind the gun is the restless force of public opinion, which shapes the destiny of the nation, and back of these more powerful than ever, is the press, which moulds and solidifies public opinion. This guardian of the people which never sleeps, never relaxes its vigilance, and never betrays its trust is the soul of the government, bringing to its support in every crisis, a power greater than that of armies and battleships. The press performs this essential service absolutely without charge to the government, asking nothing in return save a square deal. True state-manship therefore depends that there be no interference of any kind with the normal development of the press, and that no onerous tax be placed upon publishers for the sake of a few paltry dollars.—Wilmer Atkinson.

The Law School of the University of Michigan.

According to the calendar of the University of Michigan for 1905-06 there were 956 students in the Department of Law for that year. Although, in common with all the law schools in the country, the attendance has fallen off materially, Michigan still maintains her place in the head of all the schools in the country. Harvard holds second place, Minnesota third and Columbia is fourth in the rank.

Twenty-five years ago all men were made lawyers in two terms of six months each at the University. If a man had been made a member of the bar, on motion perhaps in some states, one term of six months was supposed to make him a lawyer. Today the course covers three terms of nine months each, and the number of students has more than doubled. The regular faculty numbers about seventeen, besides the special lecturers. While the teachers of today may, perhaps, not hope to surpass such predecessors as Judge Cooley, Judge Kent, Judge Campbell and Judge Walker, they have some reason to believe that on account of changed methods the student of today is better fitted for the work before him than was the student of twenty-five years ago.

The National Government and Child Labor.

In November Senator Beveridge announced that he would introduce a bill in congress which would have the effect of regulating the employment of children through an application of the interstate commerce power. The suggestion was rather startling in its novelty, and at first many of the leading members of the national child labor committee were inclined to oppose the Beveridge bill as lacking feasibility. They soon came around, however, to a unanimous adoption of the measure, and thus, however congress may decide, the subject has been by the president's message and the Beveridge bill, lifted into the highest national prominence. The Beveridge bill does not directly prohibit the employment of children in mines and factories. What it does is to direct railroads and other public carriers that the products of factories and mines employing children under 14 must not be accepted for shipment into other states. The shipper must make affidavit to the railroad that children are not employed. The bill does not attempt to deal exhaustively with the subject of child labor, but it may be expected to reach coal mines, cotton mills, glass factories, and various other large industries whose output is a matter of general rather than of local commerce.

The passage of such a national measure would not relieve the states of an imperative duty as respects the employment of children in many pursuits and callings which have no relation to interstate commerce. But if the nation standardizes the 14-year limit and at one stroke takes the children out of the great mills and factories, it would seem probable that the states would be much more likely to adopt the standard and apply it for local purposes than if the general government had not exercised its own power. The subject is likely to be discussed both in congress and elsewhere from the theoretical standpoint of states' rights versus the extension of national functions. In a general way the education and protection of child life must continue to belong to the states. There is no danger that they will not have left to them a sufficient authority to do far more than they are at present wise enough to attempt for the welfare of the rising generation.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for January.

Protecting Eyes of the Young.
The human mother seems to possess less reason regarding the care of an infant's eyes than any other mother with young ones to care for. It is necessary for children to have their eyes protected, yet a babe only a few days old will be held near a bright light, gas illumination, and 16 to 100 candle power electric light. Wild animals seek dark, secluded places for their young. Some of them, possibly those having the best eyes, are blind for several days after birth. Birds seek shadowy places for their young, and even the ignorant Indian mother will protect her baby's eyes from the strong light. Nature and instinct teach the animals and savages to protect the eyes of their young; but civilized women neglect this duty and always, to the injury of the children.

How to Cure Chills.

"To enjoy freedom from chills," writes John Kemp, East Otisfield, Me., "I apply Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Have also used it for salt rheum with excellent results." Guaranteed to cure fever sores, indolent ulcers, piles, burns, wounds, frost bites and skin diseases. 25c at G. S. Darling's and J. M. Wuggazer's drug stores.

The Right Name.

Mr. August Sherpe, the popular overseer of the poor, at Fort Madison, Ia., says: "Dr. King's New Life Pills, are rightly named; they act more agreeably, do more good and make one feel better than any other laxative." Guaranteed to cure biliousness and constipation. 25c at G. S. Darling's and J. M. Wuggazer's drug stores.

Feeding Hogs Profitably.

The Wisconsin experiment station finds that where skim milk, shorts, oats and barley are fed the pork contains a much larger per cent of lean meats than when hogs are fed on corn exclusively. Numerous feeding experiments have shown that the hog, to do his best, should have a ration of about one of digestive protein to five of carbohydrates, and as corn contains a proportion of about one to nine it is not proper feed for the growing hog, and in order to make an economical and healthful development the corn must be supplemented with skim milk, shorts or some other feed of a nitrogenous character.

Clover and Eggs.

Clover has just the material in it to form eggshell and is an essential part of every ration for chickens, says a writer in Successful Farming. There are nearly thirty pounds of lime in each 1,000 pounds of clover. Hens fed daily on clover will prove better egg layers than those without. Clover hay should be fed in winter in ample quantities. To induce them to eat heavily it is sometimes desirable to prepare in various ways. Cook, chop and mix with meal or other food. Cut into short lengths and mix with mash and feed only as fast as the chickens will clean it up. That is the most economical way.

Growth of Young Animals.

There is no time when weight may be added to animals so cheaply as when they are young. Experiments have shown that a lamb may average a gain of a pound in weight for each six pounds of milk which it takes. In this case each pound of solids in the food would produce more than a pound of gain in the young animals. With older animals six to ten pounds of solids would be required for each pound of gain. The same is true of calves; hence the importance of the farmer having the benefit of the growth of the animal during the earliest period of its life.—Country Gentleman.

Building a Henhouse.

There is no better way than the King system. Build the walls eight inches thick in this way: On the outside of the 2 by 4, clapboard or drop side. Line the inside of the 2 by 4 with building paper. Spike a 2 by 2 on each 2 by 4 and over that another layer of building paper. Then spike on another 2 by 2; nail or lath and plaster over that. Thus you have three dead air chambers. Put in double windows. Then you can control all air currents.—Hoard's Dairyman.

A Poultry Fattening Mixture.

The milk feeding recipe claimed to be the one used by the large packing firms for fattening chickens is as follows: A hundred pounds of fine ground corn meal, with a hundred pounds of oat flour and oat siftings, with enough butter-milk or sour milk to make a medium dough, and melted tallow added, according to the condition of the birds.—American Cultivator.

Sod Bound Pastures.

If your pasture has become sod bound, go over it next spring with a disk drill as soon as the frost is out of the surface, sow about eight pounds of clover seed per acre with a little timothy, run a small harrow over it, and you will be agreeably surprised at the results.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

The Lawyer's Experience With a Man of His Own Profession.

"When I was younger than I am now," says a lawyer who is still somewhat this side of middle age, "I had a position in the office of a man who has a big reputation. Naturally I felt my responsibility. It was plain to me that the head of the firm had outlived his usefulness, and I used to feel sorry to think what would happen to him if I ever left him. Sheer magnanimity made me overlook a lot of things.

"I wasn't treated in that office with all the deference due me, but I stood it till one day somebody went too far. Then I marched into the old man's private office and laid down the law to him. I told him I wasn't going to endure such treatment another day. I was going to quit, that was what I was going to do, and I was going to quit right then and there. I unburdened my mind freely, and then I stopped to give him a chance to apologize and beg me not to ruin him by leaving. He didn't look up from his desk. He just said to me in a polite kind of a way:

"Please don't slam the door when you go out."—Washington Post.
