One of those unreasonable men, who takes a newspaper a year or two and then sends it back "refused" was sued by an up state editor a short time ago, and the judge gave a verdict for the plaintiff of full amount and costs. After the business of the evening was finished all adjourned to the banquet hall where a sumptuous repast was partaken of, after which the toast, "Our Star" was responded to by C. B. Chaffee, and "Our Baby Stars" by W. J. Robinson. After a pleasant social time the members departed for their homes proclaiming it the best social evening ever enjoyed by the local chapter.

The most contemptible piece of vandalism that has ever come to our notice occurred at the cemetery in this city yesterday afternoon. In less than three hours after the close of the Memorial Day exercises nearly every flower that had been used in decoration of the graves of the soldier dead had been stolen and the wreaths torn to pieces. Anyone who will sink so low as to do an act of this kind should be made to suffer for it, and it is to be hoped that the officers will make a determined effort to find those guilty.

Land fraud investigations conducted by half a dozen district attorneys in as many western states are drawing to a close with a likelihood of sensational indictment. A former United States senator and several lumber barons are among those it is expected may be charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of hundreds of thousands of acres of valuable timber land. The cases being framed against these men ramify into Washington, Montana, Idaho, California, Colorado, Oregon, Minnesota, Utah and the Dakotas.

Memorial day was most fittingly observed in the Tawas yesterday by services in both cities. The exercises in this city were held at the cemetery, and participated in by the old soldiers, citizens and pupils of the schools. Several patriotic addresses were given and the graves of the soldier dead strewn with flowers.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam'l Anker, in East Tawas, on Wednesday afternoon occurred the ceremony which united in the holy bonds of matrimony their daughter Miss Helen Edna and Mr. Herbert A. Acton, of Saginaw, Rev. Stevens, of Christ Episcopal church officiating. The bride is one of the highly respected and popular young ladies of that city, and the Herald unites with her many friends in extending congratulations. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for a short wedding trip.

Barney and the Bear.

The following from the Outing, (Wash.) Oracle, will be of interest to the readers of the Herald.

Monday Charles Fries and Barney Long, of Michigan, who is visiting at Rose Lawn, shouldered their guns and went hunting down on the Puyallup river which runs on the west line of the Fries estate. What was the hunters surprise when a large black bear confronted them! However, they decided on a line of action and in a short time had bruin hors de combat. The bear is a big one and had presumably come down from the mountains on a visit to Mr. Fries strawberry patch.

Mr. Long will surely have a bear story to relate upon his return to Michigan, but if any doubts are entertained as to the truth of the bear story, reference can be made in perfect confidence to the Oracle.

The Editor Who Dassent.

A whole lot of people seem to imagine that an editor keeps certain things out of the paper because he "dassent" publish anything that concerns certain people. Mistake. No editor with backbone, and there are a few with much more backbone than people will give them credit for, will keep things out of the paper because he "dassent" publish them. No ties of race, creed, color, kinship or business will prevent the average sensible editor from publishing the news. No club that any lodge, church, clique or business interest may threaten to swing over him will keep him from publishing legitimate news if he is any man at all. But there are a few things that the average man does not consider when he is figuring out what, or more correctly, what not to put in his paper. Among those things are the innocent little children of the brutal husband who mercilessly beats his offensive wife, or the faithless wife who openly violates her marriage vows and exposes her shame to the pitiless scorn of the community. The rascal who practices dishonesty, beats his creditors with impunity and otherwise conducts himself in a manner that deserves criticism in the press, is often shielded from exposure because he has an aged honorable father and a good christian mother living in the community, who would read the truth should it be told about their son. And why should a newspaper humiliate that young brother by publishing the truth about his disreputable father merely to punish the old man? A thousand thoughts flash through a sensible editor's head before he allows anything of the kind to be published in his columns. He seeks to give news as plainly and truthfully as possible. He also shields many a home that the gossips of the town would gladly ruin; he often keeps quiet when the world wonders why he does but never play him as a man who "dassent." If you do he is likely to demonstrate very forcibly that he "dast."—Menominee Herald Leader.

Defects in Character Often Outweigh Mental Talents.

Absolute honesty and a definite will often produce better results without unusual intellectual gift or opportunity than the keenest intellect can attain without these moral qualities. It would be an easy thing to quote cases of noted men and women in whom defects of character have practically nullified the most conspicuous intellectual gifts.

A philosophy of life is not what we think about life, but the convictions which govern our actions. It has well been called the "working hypothesis of life." Since well-directed power is the measure of success, it is within the reach of every human being.

Play your part well—be it great or small—and despair will disappear, like the morning mist before the sun. Your part is not to expend your nervous force in cynical criticism, but in the high obligation to build on whatever foundation of conviction you may possess.—Delineator.

Let's have State Timber Reserves.

The bill passed by both houses at Lansing Wednesday afternoon withdrawing from sale 40,000 acres of agricultural land in Iosco and Alcona counties, with the view of turning them into a state forest reserve. This action was taken, it is stated, to head off lumbermen who were about to purchase these timber lands for a song. It is stated that there were an average of but two trees to the acre on the 40,000 acres, the stumpage of one acre would pay for 10 acres at $1.25 per acre.

The action is good and the movement should not stop with the saving to the state of these 40,000. There are, no doubt, many thousands of acres of state land, valuable for timber still for sale for a song, and the reclamation movement should continue until these lands are properly valued for sale or placed in state forest reserves for the benefit of all the people of the state.

At the present time but one-fifth of the total forest area of the United States is in the national forest reserves. The remaining four-fifths have already passed or are most likely to pass into private hands. There is a healthy tendency to enlarge the forest reserves, a movement that should have the hearty support of every citizen.

The result of lumber-cutting at the present rate can be readily seen. We should now profit by the experience of the European countries. Our situation today is much as was that of Germany 150 years ago. During the past 150 years some of the German states, particularly Saxony and Prussia, have applied a policy of government control and regulation which has restored the forests, made timber production exceed timber consumption and given the governments a net revenue above all the expenses of forest management. There are many thousands of acres of land in Michigan more valuable for forestry than for general farming or stock range and it is timely for the state to study the foreign methods of forestry that have proven so successful, with a view of adopting such forest laws, methods and practices as appear adapted to our conditions and our needs, with the idea of conserving for all the people of the state, and for future requirements, the lingering remnants of our once splendid forest wealth.—Saginaw Courier Herald.

Save The Water.

Washington, May 27.—Two thirds of the inhabitants of Michigan depend upon private wells. This is the assertion of the report recently published by the geological survey on Michigan water supplies. The number using private wells is put at about 1,625,000. Of these not connected with public supplies, probably not more than 20,000 depend upon springs and surface waters. Thirty-two per cent of the people of Michigan secure water from public supplies. The greater part of these public systems are supplied from ground water, as is Grand Rapids, so that about 600,000 persons in Michigan are drinking water from sources which compare with the Grand, but none of which is worse than the Grand. Of these persons getting water from public systems, less than 200,000 secure well water. In the entire state about 250 cities and villages and at least 15 state institutions are provided with waterworks systems. About 50 of the villages use chiefly for fire protection, and some of them have no distribution system at all. State Geologist A. C. Lane, when in Washington recently, expressed great interest in the flowing wells of the state. "These wells ought to be developed as fast as possible," he said, "and they ought to be carefully conserved. I am afraid that Michigan people are not thoroughly familiar with a law which was enacted by the legislature two years ago, and which was intended to bear directly upon this very question. Its provisions are to the effect that no person owning a flowing well shall allow water to be wasted when the flow of another well in the vicinity is thus endangered. That law ought to have a pretty broad scope, because any waste from a flowing well decreases the head, and cannot help but effect the other flowing wells in the vicinity. The remedy for a man whose well is drying up because of another's waste is to seek an injunction from the courts. That remedy is specifically prescribed by the act of 1905.

Say! Do you believe for a second that any merchant loves you so that he is going to give you something for nothing? If you do you will find in the end that he is just fishing and you are the fish, and that you have got to be caught or he has got to quit or fail, and that is not what he went into business for. I imagine that you had better deal with a man who does not give premiums or compel you to buy five or ten dollar lots and work in goods on you with a big margin for him and which you could get along without. Watch your weights and don't spend your wool money for things you can get along without.
