Monday he pleaded guilty before Justice Tait of East Tawas, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs or serve 60 days in the Detroit house of correction. Sheriff Curry took him to Detroit yesterday.

The Yacht Races.
The annual meeting of the Tawas Bay Yachting Association opened under most favorable conditions Wednesday. The day has been full of yachts, motor boats and steam yachts. Among the sailing yachts in attendance are the famous Spray, the St. Elmo, Wave, Cleveland, Borealis, and others.
Commodore Fletcher's handsome steam yacht Winyah is on hand as usual. Another beautiful steam yacht is the Manzanita, owned by Commodore Price, of the Chicago Yacht Club. Commodore Price is the owner of the yacht Spray.
The first race, sailed Wednesday afternoon was the 16-foot class, with six entries, the Iole, of AuSable, and the Theta II, Slab Pile, Big Stick, Wilhelmina, and Marlinspike, all of Bay City. The Iole, owned by Caleb Loud, of AuSable, proved the sensation of the day by sailing away from the field and winning by a margin of 26 minutes, and this notwithstanding the fact that she made two false starts.
The D. & M. cup race for 21-footers was sailed yesterday afternoon and was one of the prettiest ever sailed on the bay. Seven boats made the course, and the unbeaten Spray won. The remaining boats finished in the following order: Ste. Clair, Cleveland, Borealis, Otsiketa, St. Elmo Pastime. This gives the cup to the Borealis, the other boats not being eligible. The disappointment of this race was the showing made by the St. Elmo, which had won the the cup for the past two years, and being sailed in this race by Commodore Schmidt, former owner of the Spray, was expected to give that flyer a run for first honors.

Cahill's Position.

Ex-Supreme Court Justice Edward Cahill, in accepting a formal request from a number of his Lansing fellow-citizens to be a candidate for the constitutional convention writes a letter that sounds different from what a good many other candidates are saying, says the Detroit News. In part it reads:

"Political partisanship has no place in a constitutional convention. I should not be willing to go there, feeling that I was under obligation to consider the interests of any political party as such, or to shape any course by the judgement of others as to what would help or hurt the party. I refer to this, not because I regard myself as peculiar in entertaining such views, I am persuaded that a majority of the electors of this state entertain the same view. But I refer to it because I am, and for several years have been, avowedly independent in politics. I am told by one of your number that my attitude in this respect was understood and discussed by each of you before you signed the letter, to which this is a reply, but I want to make it clear to all of the electors of the district, so that no one can say that he voted for me under a misapprehension."

Juvenile Court Law is No Good.

The new juvenile court law, passed by the last legislature, and just beginning to go into effect throughout the state, is declared by Attorney-General Bird to be invalid. The law created a new court of record, the probate judges of the counties being made presiding judges.

Mr. Bird there has been imperturbed by probate judges all over state to make a statement. Replying to such an inquiry from Probate Judge Anderson, of Paw Paw, Van Buren county, Mr. Bird says:

"The law is invalid because it establishes a new court not provided for in the constitution of the state. It also provides for a jury of six persons, whereas the constitutional number for a court of record is 12.

"Another defect in the law is the provision raising the salaries of judges of probate without specifying that intent in the title of the act. The law also excludes from its operations such children as may be sent to the Coldwater state orphanage, and then proceeds to legislate in relation to those children."

The Destruction of Human Life.

The destruction of human life by so-called accident is steadily on the increase, as shown by the records kept by the Chicago Tribune, which makes a specialty of gathering statistics of crime and casualties, and the number of persons accidentally injured in the five months of 1907 exceed those of the entire previous year. There were 273 deaths and 925 injured by railroad accidents; 902 lives lost in steamship disasters; 355 in mine accidents; 2,240 killed by tidal waves; 5,100 by earthquakes and 530 by hurricanes. Eliminating the fatal casualties caused by tidal waves, earthquakes and hurricanes as due to "the acts of God," there are left 1,530 deaths and 925 injuries due to accidents, the majority of which were preventable by the exercise of proper precautions. The record of the railroads is a fearful one to charge up against negligence and indifference, as is also that made by the mines. The more these so-called accidents are investigated, the clearer it becomes that negligence and careless indifference are responsible for the greater part of them. If railroad managers, mine and steamship owners were as intent upon preserving the lives of those over whom they have jurisdiction as they are in making dividends upon their bonds, there would be far less of this killing and maiming.—The Spectator.

Public Safeguard.

"I am here to receive sentence at your hands and not to be humiliated by a lecture which the newspapers can repeat and print."

The words, used in the remarkable interruption of Mayor Schmitz, of San Francisco, while standing up for sentence before Judge Dunne, point a moral if they do not adorn a tale, says an exchange.

The particular sore spot that made Schmitz finch was the publicity of his punishment.

More than the penitentiary sentence he felt the humiliation that was coming to him through the newspapers. If only he could be condemned in a corner and quietly put behind the prison doors—this he could bear with equanimity.

But to be pilloried in the press, to have his crime characterized in public with the reporters at their tables taking it all down ready to blazon his infamy to every quarter of the globe—this was the refinement of cruelty to this public man.

The moral of it, then?

The deterrent power of publicity. More than all else the average man dreads the punishment that comes with publication. He instinctively draws back from standing in the full focus of the newspaper limelight.

And that dread keeps many a one from wrongdoing. The newspapers do not always live up to their ideals, but every day they render a great service by standing as a mirror to reflect the doings, good and bad, of all the people.

Schmitz did not care for the judge's lecture. He cared only because it was a "lecture which the newspaper can repeat and print."

Sons of Their Fathers.

There is always something to commend in the fact that the son of a great man seeks to follow in the footsteps of his father. He may not accomplish what he sets out to do, but the effort counts for something. Not all ambitious sons of men who have stamped their impress on the world's advancement become history makers; in fact, the reverse may almost be said to be the rule. It is none the less an evidence of laudable desire when they show the world that they appreciate the obligation laid upon them by the examples of their fathers. If for no other reason, such aspiration is praiseworthy as an evidence of filial respect and high regard.

Just now there are before this country two notable examples of this proof of worthy ambition, in widely different walks of life.

Jesse R. Grant, the youngest son of the great warrior and former President U. S. Grant, is "mixing" with the people of the South and West with the avowed purpose of getting in touch with the people and of letting the people get acquainted with him. He says frankly that he wants the democratic nomination for president of the United States. True, his fitness for the high offices, and his availability remains to be demonstrated, but he is none the less entitled to a hearing.

The other case is that of the son of Francis Murphy, the great apostle of temperance, who recently died in California, full of years and honors.

He has announced his purpose of taking up the work which his father laid it down, and that he may meet with success is certainly the wish of every one. Both these sons of their fathers may fall short of their ambitions, but they will neither of them lose in the respect of those who know them nor in the administration of those who, who bravely making an effort.—Lansing Journal.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its durations, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 30 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by J. M. Wuggazer & Co's and G. S. Darling's druggists. Price 50c.

"Regular as the Sun"

is an expression as old as the race. No doubt the rising and setting of the sun is the most regular performance in the universe, unless it is the action of the liver and bowels when regulated with Dr. King's New Life Pills. Guaranteed by G. S. Darling and J. M. Wuggazer & Co., druggists. 25c.

Republican Convention.

The republican convention of the 28th senatorial district of Michigan, is hereby called to meet at the court house in the city of Gladwin, Gladwin county, Michigan, on Tuesday, August 13, A. D. 1907, at 10 a. m., for the purpose of nominating three (3) delegates to the state constitutional convention to be held at Lansing, Michigan, commencing October 22, 1907.

Michigan C. E. at Grand Rapids.

Announcement of the annual convention of the Michigan State Christian Endeavor societies has just been made. It is to be held in Grand Rapids on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 21, 22, 23 and 24, next. After some consideration of the claims of other cities it was finally decided to go to the "Furniture City" for what is the event of the year for Michigan Endeavorers, and it is believed this decision will meet with favor throughout the state. The late fall dates are the best for the purposes of the great majority of the delegates who attend these gatherings and consequently a large attendance is looked for.

The program is already well in hand and is a most attractive one. The list of speakers is headed by Dr. Francis E. Clark, of Boston, the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, and president of the United Society and World's Union. Dr. Clark will appear several times as a speaker and leader of the society.

William Shaw, of Boston, secretary of the United society, will also be present to occupy a large place on the program. Mr. Shaw is the most popular Endeavor speaker of the day and is greatly in demand for such gatherings. The convention is particularly fortunate in securing both Dr. Clark and Mr. Shaw for this year's convention.

Among other speakers are Rev. F. P. Arthur, of Grand Rapids, formerly president of the Michigan Christian Endeavor union; Rev. W. H. Gelston of Kalamazoo, who will deliver the convention sermon; Rev. A. H. Barr, of Detroit, who will conduct the morning Bible studies; Melvin E. Trotter of the Grand Rapids City Rescue Mission and others.

"Over Grand Rapids Way" is this year's watchword and it is expected that the above named speakers, carrying out a good program, the fine city and the hearty host of entertaining Endeavorers will induce many to travel "over Grand Rapids way" next November.

On account of the removal from the state of former President Augustine of the Michigan union, Edward F. Lindsay, of Saginaw, has been elected to fill his place. Harold D. Spicer, of Paw Paw, has been chosen secretary. The other officers of the union are Rev. J. M. Rogers, Marquette, and Rev. Carl S. Jones, Detroit, vice president; Donald E. Bates, Lansing, treasurer; Mrs. C. A. Pinkerton, East Tawas, statistical secretary; Caroline Parson, Kalamazoo, junior superintendent, and Jennella A. Manley, Grand Rapids, missionary superintendent.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y., Press Correspondent New York State Grange

HOW THE FARMERS WON.

Past Master Aaron Jones' Great Personal Victory in Washington.

It may not be known to all readers of this paper that last January in Washington there was held a great commercial convention which was ostensibly called for the advancement of foreign commerce in the United States. It was really a plan for the advancement of the ship subsidy scheme which some of the most influential men, even those close to the president, were trying to put through congress. It was an assemblage of 400 voting delegates representing the shipping, mercantile, manufacturing and allied interests from all sections of the country. It happened that the national grange legislative and executive committees were in session at that time in Washington. They discovered that the farmers had no representation in the convention and asked that one of their number be appointed to a position on the committee on resolutions. Their request was granted, and Hon. Aaron Jones, past master of the national grange, was appointed on that committee. The ablest lawyers and experts were present to assist in insuring the success of the scheme, and men who were worth their millions were there. Secretary of State Root made a powerful speech, and the convention was to close in a grand climax at a ten dollar a plate banquet, which the president himself was to address. We give the rest of the story in the words of one present as printed in the Pennsylvania Grange News:

"But the schemers had reckoned without the grange delegates. Hardly had the tumultuous cheers which greeted the conclusion of Secretary Root's speech died away when the quiet, persistent work of the farmers' representatives began to show, and opposition to committing the convention to the endorsement of ship subsidy legislation gathered strength. This opposition rapidly increased as it became known throughout the convention that the resolutions committee could not agree and that Jones, the grange representative on the committee, was being a vigorous opposition and gathering to him a steadily increasing support. The friends of ship subsidy began to grow anxious to get the convention to act before the opposition could grow serious.

"Finally, in the middle of the afternoon session, the resolutions committee, unable to agree, reported both a majority and a minority report, the ship subsidy majority hoping to be able to carry their report through the convention. An attempt was made to rule out the minority report on a technicality, but this simply resulted in showing the entire convention that the ship subsidy advocates were in the wrong, could ride roughshod over all opposition. As the debate waxed hot it showed plainly that the resolution in favor of ship subsidy would be defeated, and defeat was only averted by having both reports referred back to the committee for further consideration.

"Once again the fight was on in the resolutions committee, and from 8 until 11:30 p. m. the debate raged. The doors of the committee room were locked, and no one but the forty odd members of the committee was allowed in the room. How Jones handled our end was shown, however, by the fact that the vote was not only a narrow one but the fight which resulted in the utter rout of the ship subsidy forces. The resolution finally adopted by the committee was a noncommittal one to the effect that the convention favors such legislation as would most effectively build up our merchant marine, the understanding being plainly that this did not mean ship subsidies. The grange and its friends had won a great victory.

"On the floor the next morning, the last of the convention, the battle raged again more fiercely than ever. Bitterly smarting under defeat, the advocates of ship subsidies denounced the resolutions submitted by the resolutions committee and fought hard to get the original ship subsidy resolution adopted instead. The five minute rule of debate was rigidly enforced, and the speeches for and against were hot and exciting. Excitement was intense. From all parts of the hall as many as twenty would clamor for recognition by the chair at one time. And so the fight went on. So far the grange representatives had been allowed to tell the opposition that had been stirred up show that it was not only the farmers who were opposing. Then suddenly about the din the clarion voice of Aaron Jones compelled the instant recognition of his chair, and a dead hush settled on the great assemblage while it anxiously watched what was felt to be the farmers' ultimatum.

"And it came! Wasting no time in preliminaries, in a few forceful words that struck the assembled delegates like an electric shock, in the name of the American farmer and in the name of the great Order he was there to represent, Jones registered his protest against the endorsement of ship subsidy legislation by that convention. It was the beginning of the end. Ship subsidy endorsement was plainly doomed. The least of the ship subsidy forces made a desperate effort to ward off defeat in an impressive speech, but whatever effect it might have had was completely nullified by the brief speech of State Master Dethrick, who followed.

"This ended the debate. And on a standing vote the ship subsidy advocates who had planned the convention with such great hopes could muster only forty-one votes in a meeting of over 400 delegates. Dethrick's speech was magnificent, and, though less than five minutes long, it was spoken by many prominent people present as one of the great speeches of the convention.

Why do some granges refuse admission to village people, while others receive them?
If village people have no interest antagonistic to the grange and desire membership most granges admit them. Although in a way it is unconstitutional, it is practiced by many granges, with no evil results. The grange should be kept a strictly farmers' organization.

Who is to pay a county deputy's expenses when he visits a grange to install its officers?
If a deputy goes by order of the state master to install officers he draws pay from the state grange, but if on invitation of subordinate granges the visiting grange would be courteous if it paid him expenses at the least, but it is not obliged to.

Chinese Stewards on Pacific Liners.

We sailed from San Francisco, bound for Honolulu, on a ship whose stewards and sailors are Chinese. Even if all does not go well with the boat's motion in days of storm, one cannot fail to be entertained by these spry sons of the orient.

The costume worn by the stewards is quite remarkable. For ordinary, everyday wear they don white garments that resemble American pajamas in their style of cut and fit. For dinner each evening and on Sundays the white suits are exchanged for light blue garments of the same description—rather an odd livery to our prosaic minds! Of course, every Chinaman preserves a habitual, solemn silence. If, owing to an interesting conversation, the passenger fails to notice the dish with which the table steward is trying to serve him the patient Chinaman stands immovable, with outstretched hand and splotchlike countenance, until attention is drawn to him, after which, his duty done, he slips in silence on his way. Plooding, silently, the sailors attended to their duties with mournful faces that strongly appealed to me. They ate with chop sticks, sitting on their heels the while, and were, in fact, eminently satisfactory specimens in every way.—Travel Magazine.

A Hopeless Case.

A Scottish paper tells a story of an old Scottish woman who was "uncle" drouthie," without the money to buy "a drappie," "Lassie," she said to her little granddaughter, "gang round to Donald McCallum and bring me a gill. Tell him I'll pay him 'f the morning."

"Back came the child with a refusal. Donald declined to part with his whisky without the cash. Eager and irritated, the old woman cast about for some means of "raising the wind," and here she fell upon the family Bible. "Here, lassie," she said, "give him this and tell him to keep it until I bring him the siller." Off went the little girl, but she soon returned, still carrying the Bible. Donald was obturate. "He says he maun hae the baubees first, granny."

In anger the disappointed grand-mother threw up her hands and exclaimed: "Losh, did onybody ever hear the like o' that! The man will neither tak my word nor the word o' God for a gill o' whusky!"

A Canine Shirker.

Rex, a thoroughbred Spitz, must perform the painful duty of escorting a certain neighbor home when she has been calling at our house. However, it is not without a show of reluctance that he does it. Recently our friend missed her escort, and no amount of whistling proved equal to recalling him. This occurred several times and it was always in about the same place that Rex disappeared. One night our friend determined to discover Rex's little game. After whistling and calling she made a pretense of going on. She stopped in a deep shadow. Around the corner of the nearest house appeared a slinking figure. Stealthily quitting the shadows Rex crept out and peered long and anxiously up the street, whither, as he well knew, he should have continued to conduct the lady. After this he turned shamelessly around and lit out for home.—Chicago Tribune.

Baby's Share of Blame.

She had been fitted for two gowns, the total cost of which was nearly $600.

"Now," she said to the saleswoman, "I want you to do me a favor."

"Certainly," was the prompt response.

The customer colored deeply. "I want you to make out the bill partly for gowns for me and partly for baby dresses and a baby's cloak."

The saleswoman was used to the whims of fashionable women, but this was something she was a little slow in comprehending. The customer explained.

"You see," she said, "my husband is very fond of our baby, and if he sees that the bill is partly for dresses for her—well, he won't mind so much."

Exchange.

Takes His Own Medicine.

In Baluchistan when the physician gives a dose he is expected to partake of a similar one himself as a guarantee of his good faith. Should the patient die under his hands the relatives, though they rarely exercise it, have the right of putting him to death unless a special agreement has been made freeing him from all responsibility as to consequences, while if they should decide upon immolating him he is fully expected to yield to his fate like a man.

Man's Ruling Wish.

There is one wish ruling over mankind, and it is a wish which is never in a single instance granted—each man wishes to be his own master. It is a boy's beatific vision, and it remains the grown-up man's ruler; passion to the last. But the fact is life is a service. The only question is, Whom shall we serve?—W. F. Faber.

The Returns.

Magistrate—What! Do you mean to say your husband struck you, and he that physical wreck? Mrs. Maloney—Yes, your honor, but he's only been a physical wreck since he struck me.—Independent.

Discontent is the want of self reliance; it is the infirmity of will.—Emerson.

The Land of Noises.

"In China night is as alive as the day and is filled with whoops, noisy conversations, the singsong accompanying work, bolsters repartee and every other unmusical sound," says a writer in the Montreal Standard. "In addition, the darkness is one long howl of dogs, cackle of geese, baying of donkeys, croaking of frogs, the squealing of pigs, the drumbeats of the policeman and even, as some one has said, the singing of the stars." Individually the people are full of varieties of unsuppressed violent demonstration, and collectively they are only a terrific tribal turbulence. One most appropriate name for China has never been given it. It has been called the Yellow Kingdom, the Middle Kingdom, the Celestial Empire, the Pigeon Kingdom, the Sleepy Giant and others. No one of these is more applicable than the name of "Noises." Noise is seemingly the first element of Chinese life and has been cultivated for centuries by Chinese talent and in conception, development and execution presents not only new varieties, but scores of new species."

The Bright Butler.

A few days ago one of Philadelphia's prominent society women told her butler to tell all visitors that she was not at home. At night, when enumerating the persons who had called during the day, he mentioned the lady's sister, when his mistress exclaimed: "I told you, man, that I was always at home for my sister! You ought to have shown her in."

Next day the lady went out to make a few calls, and during her absence her sister came to the house.

"Is your mistress at home?" she asked the butler.

"Yes, madam," was the reply.

The lady went upstairs and looked everywhere for her sister. On coming downstairs she said to the butler, "My sister must have gone out, for I cannot find her."

"Yes, madam, she has gone out, but she told me last night that she was always at home to you."—Philadelphia Record.

Her Choice Tea.

There is a true story told of a wealthy American lady who was in China and one of the court officials, wishing to do her great honor, promised to send her a casket containing some extraordinary tea. In due time an exquisitely packed box arrived containing tea. She had many of her society friends to a series of afternoons, at which this tea was served, its delicious qualities expatiated upon and all seemingly enjoyed the beverage. At the end of the season when the casket was almost empty she found a very small beautifully decorated box, which on opening contained the price-less tea. What she had used was the dried tea leaves that had been used previously and again by coolies. It seems that rare and costly tea is packed in tea to preserve the aroma and flavor. It was such a rich joke upon herself that the hostess told the story, and the society set had a good laugh.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Literal Mind.

All orders to native servants in India must be literally given, for in that manner they will be received. A missionary once took a country lad as a servant when going out on a boating journey. As there are no lavatories on board the country boats, one's ablutions have to be performed in a very simple manner, an ordinary bucket serving as a wash bowl. The boy was told to bring some water and in doing so happened to spill a little on the floor. "Why don't you throw it all over me?" asked the missionary innocently. "Aha," said the lad, and immediately, to his master's astonishment, took up the pail and emptied it over his employer's head.

Free Medical Advice.

A well known London physician at a dinner party one evening was much worried by one who was seeking gratuitous advice. "Do you know, doctor," said his questioner, "I know a man who suffers so terribly with indigestion that at times he can do nothing but howl with pain. What would you do in that case?"

"Well, I suppose," responded the medical man, "I should howl with pain too."—Westminster Gazette.

Flabbergasted Pa.

"Ah, pater, I am no glad to be home from college."

"What's that?"

"I am jolly well pleased, y'know."

"Hank, clean out the old stall! There's a new critter on the place."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Thorough Sport.

The Deacon—Young man, don't you know that there's a rainy day coming? Spendthrift—Mebby there is, but I've got $5 that says the weather man won't call the turn. Come, now, if you've got any nerve, show your money.

A Good Imitation.

The other day an amateur artist was producing some rapid sketches to amuse his children. He drew a sketch of a hen so naturally that when it was afterwards thrown in the waste paper basket it laid there.

A Little Different.

"I suppose," she said with fine sarcasm, "you were sitting up with a friend?" "No, m'dear," replied he truthfully. "I was settin' 'em up with a friend."—Houston Post.

Confusion at These Dinners.
 In his dining room Sir Joshua Reynolds constantly entertained all the best known men of his time, including Dr. Johnson, Goldsmith, Garrick, Burke, Sterne, Hogarth, Wilkes, Allan Ramsay and a score of others, who formed the brilliant literary club of which the great painter was the founder. There doubtless, in the familiar lines of the author of "Retaliation,"
 When they talked of their Raphaels, Correggios and stuff,
 He shifted his trumpet and only took snuff.
 At these dinner parties, according to Malone, though the wine and the fishes were of the best, there seemed to be a tacit agreement that mind should predominate over body. The table, we are told, though set only for seven or eight, often had to accommodate double that number. There was usually a deficiency of knives, forks and glasses, and the guests had to hawl for more supplies, while the host calmly left every one to shift for himself, though he lost not a word, if he could help it, of the conversation.—London Spectator.

Gulf Stream Fruit.
 The superiority of certain English fruits has its origin in a cause little suspected. It is the blessed gulf stream which does it. Foreign growers are every bit as acute as the English, it may be, but they have not the right atmosphere. The gulf stream imparts a beneficent humidity to our atmosphere which results in our fruit having the thinnest and finest skins of any in the world. The English strawberry is without equal for flavor. The English grape, though it may not have the fine flavor of the Spanish, has the best skin. The French tomato is as thick skinned as the English field grown. The English apple eclipses its rivals because of its thin skin. Every fruit according to its climate. Grown in a different atmosphere, the English apple would shrivel in a day; here, helped by the moisture from the gulf stream, it ripens within the thinnest of jackets and is as much superior to the foreign or colonial apple as a peach is superior to a parsnip.—St. James' Gazette.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?
 Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.
 Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to year you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.
 If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.
 We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.
 If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.
