Announcement

We take pleasure in presenting in another column a report of our financial condition at the close of business, Aug. 22, 1907, being the date of State and National Bank reports. We realize that this is a new departure for Private Bankers but we propose to do this in the future that the public may know just where we stand.

We include in this statement the condition of the three banks conducted by us under the same management, for strength and security to depositors we invite comparison with the published statements of banks anywhere.

Deadman Bros. use the latest and most approved methods and make a specialty of horse dentistry. Bring your horse in and have it examined free of charge. Remember that all examinations are free.

The attention of our readers is directed to the financial report of McPhail & Macomber, bankers, with banks at Omer, Whittemore and Auburn. It is not usual for private banks to make a quarterly statement of their financial conditions, as is required by state and national banks, but this reliable firm is anxious that their patrons know the condition of affairs in their banks, hence this new departure, which is to be commended.

The Business Men's Association of East Tawas has secured the location of Dodge & Akerman, manufacturers of canoes, paddles, decoy ducks and other articles of a like nature, now of Detroit, for that city. The factory will be located on the old Holland & Emery site, occupying the brick boiler house. The plant will use cedar and other small timber and employ from ten to twenty hands. Let the good work continue as nothing will add more to the prosperity of the Tawasians than these small industries.

County Game Warden Johnson, accompanied by Sheriff Curry, made a trip to the AuSable river last Sunday to investigate the report that deer were being hunted with dogs.

They were successful in finding a party of three from Plainfield with their dog and rifles, and while they had no deer the evidence against them seems to be sufficient to warrant their arrest and a warrant will undoubtedly be issued. Reports are to the effect that the practice of rounding deer in that locality is a regular practice during the closed season, and Game Warden Johnson proposes to stop it and make an example of some of the guilty parties. He should have all possible assistance from law abiding citizens to the extent of being furnished with all possible evidence to secure convictions. Unless every possible effort is made to enforce the law the deer in this county will be exterminated within a very short time.

Rev. and Mrs. B. Gibson, of East Tawas, left Monday for the annual M. E. conference at Detroit. They will also spend a couple of weeks visiting friends in Monroe county.

At the Baptist church next Sunday the pastor, Rev. C. L. Berry, will preach from the theme, "A Vision of Christ." In the evening his theme will be "The Christian's Wealth." Bible school at 11:30. Everybody is most cordially invited. Preaching at the Hemlock road church at 3 p. m.

County Truant Officer William McMurray is busy looking after the children who are not in school. He informs us that he has a large list. Parents should remember that the new truancy law is much more severe than previously and govern themselves accordingly. Under the new law all children between the ages of seven and sixteen years must attend school. Parents notified to send their children to school must comply within 24 hours or they are liable to arrest and upon conviction are liable to a fine of from $5 to $50 or imprisonment of from two to 90 days, and the justice cannot suspend the sentence.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., SEPT. 13, 1907

Tom Lawson, the Boston speculator, advertises to buy stocks. Henry Clews, the Wall Street banker, advises great caution. As long as the frenzied financiers cannot agree it may be wise to let them fight it out without your assistance.

Attorney General Bird in a letter to Gov. Warner, begging him to include the subject of taxation in his call for an extra session, points out the fact that the telegraph companies pay from $2.10 to $2.70 per $1,000, the common people pay in state taxes alone, $16.46 per thousand, good times or bad, and that one woman with a little property has been sent to the poor house because she could not pay her taxes and live. The state will have to take care of her, which will cost more than her taxes come to. The attorney general thinks it time for the people to wake up and choke the legislature into doing its duty and passing honest tax laws.

At this writing it looks very much as though Judge Landis had locked horns with the Department of Justice at Washington, and incidentally with the President. There seems no doubt that a deal was made with the knowledge of the President by the terms of which the Alton road was to expose the standard oil rebating iniquity without laying itself liable to punishment. Judge Landis knew nothing of this, and appears to have refused to allow it to be carried out so far as his court is concerned. He has denied the railroad the immunity it claims. The "common" people will watch the outcome with interest second only to that of the officials of the railroad themselves.—Woman's National Daily.

A Democrat Who Does Things.

Among those who are being discussed as likely to be considered for the democratic nomination for president is Robert Broadnax Glen, governor of North Carolina, who has become prominently before the country within the past month or two by reason of his controversy with Judge Pitchard over the enforcement of the North Carolina railroad rate laws. He was born on a farm in Rockingham county, N. C., in August 1854, and is a member of a distinguished family, and received a classical education. Having spent three years at Davison College, and two years at the University of Virginia, he began the study of law in 1875, under Judge Richard Pearson. In 1877 he was admitted to the bar, and soon afterwards married and settled at Danbury, in Stokes county, where he practiced his profession for seven years. He then moved to Winston, and formed a partnership with Clement Manly. In 1881, he was sent to the state legislature. In 1885 he was elected solicitor of the ninth judicial district of North Carolina; and in 1891, he was appointed by President Cleveland to the office of district attorney for the western district of North Carolina. In 1894 he was elected governor of the state. He was a Cleveland elector in 1884, 1888 and 1892. He is regarded as a great lawyer, and is devoted to his profession. He has never been a candidate for congress.

As Governor Glenn succeeded in compelling the southern railroad to obey the laws of North Carolina, in spite of the interference of the former attorney of that corporation who is now a federal circuit judge, he has won the plaudits of all men who favor a stricter regulation of railroads, and that alone would make him an available democratic candidate for any position that his countrymen may select him for.

Health in the Canal Zone.

The high wages paid make it a mighty temptation to our young artisans to join the force of skilled workmen needed to construct the Panama Canal. Many are restrained however by the fear of fevers and malaria. It is the knowing ones—those who have used Electric Bitters, who go there without this fear, well knowing they are safe from malarious influence with Electric Bitters on hand. Cures blood poison, biliousness, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Guaranteed by G. S. Darling and J. M. Wuggazer & Co. druggists, 50c.

Future of Farming.

Fifty years from now our most advanced farming methods will be considered crude and our most scientific farmers slipshod. A hundred years from now our population will be so enormous, running up into the hundreds of millions, that it will be a great problem to feed them. It can not be done by the system of agriculture now prevailing. Only by an immense improvement all along the line will it be possible to provide food for say 500,000,000 human beings. It will be necessary to cultivate every farm as gardens are now cultivated. The corn belt was thought to have done remarkably well last year and gives almost equal promise at present, but it will almost have to double its productivity to meet the demands of the twenty-first century. Fields which now excite pride with an average of seventy-five bushels to the acre will have to show a hundred or a hundred and twenty-five to be regarded at their best. This can only be accomplished by scientific agriculture of the highest order—improvement in the soil and its preparation, more skill in selecting seed, better methods of planting and cultivation. There will be no weeds in the twenty-first century cornfield, no room for them, no sustenance to spare for their support. The corn-seed bed will resemble that now prepared for lettuce or onions. Every foot, every inch, will have to count and at its best. We already see something of this in France and other advanced countries with crowding populations, but we are far from it here, being comparatively raw and wild. The wheat fields fifty and a hundred years later must not be content with a beggarly average of sixteen bushels to the acre, or even twenty-five or thirty. They will have to show up in the forties if the hundreds of millions of that day are to eat wheat bread.

Old Malthus frightened the world over a hundred years ago by his alarmist articles going to prove that the population would soon pass the means of subsistence. There was no danger of this then and there will be no danger of it for a long time to come, but there are reasons why the problem will intensify as the decades roll by. For thousands of years the population of the world remained practically stationary, owing to constantly recurring plagues and pestilences due to ignorance. Civilization will eventually banish wars and the advance of sanitary science will make pestilences and all kinds of contagious diseases impossible. There will be no more scourges of smallpox, cholera, scarlet fever, yellow fever, or wide-spreading plagues. Thus the population of the world will be enabled to increase and decrease normally with the result that instead of the sixteen hundred million now estimated, there will be many billions and the feeding of these will be the gigantic task of scientific agriculture.

Try to think of the United States when it has a billion of people within its borders. Texas alone will have to support fully a hundred million, but it could not do it with the system of farming now in vogue. An immense advance must be made in its corn raising, its live stock industry, its rice production and all of its agricultural methods, or its hundred million will get hungry, turn into goths and vandals and repeat in the thirtieth century the ravages inflicted on the Roman empire in the fifth. Illinois must soon begin to make preparations for 150,000,000 people, and Indiana must set her house in order to entertain something like 75,000,000. The other states will be similarly pressed and the emergency can only be met by converting the Mississippi valley into one vast garden.

Now, as always, the chief problem before the human race is to get enough to eat. Civilization does not eliminate but intensifies this problem, but fortunately science helps to solve it by teaching man how to increase his food supplies. What scientists call the "struggle for existence" is always with us and tends to intensify with increasing population. With no wars or pestilences or other "visitations of Providence," to kill them off, the time is going to come when it will make this old world hump itself to see that its countless progeny is not sent supperless to bed. Thus it will be seen that the farmer has the big end of the contract. We must eat before we read, before we sleep, before we study, before we indulge in any sort of mental or moral cultivation. And only the farmer has the food. He has enough now for all purposes, plenty for home consumption and much to export, but how will it be when he has a billion mouths to feed? Science and knowledge are our only hope. We can't live on ignorance and superstition; China's hundreds of millions have been mostly starving for centuries on this kind of diet. We will in time have their multitudes and we will also have their miseries unless scientific agriculture keeps pace with the rapidly increasing population which has its figures set far up into the hundreds of millions, long before the United States has become an old country.—American Farmer.

For Good Roads.

At a recent good road celebration Commissioner Earle summarizes the good things done for the roads by the last legislature as follows:

"If the legislature had not done anything but pass the road laws that they have, they would have merited praise instead of curses.

"Here are some of the changes:
"Repealed the wide tire rebate law, it is supposed that at this stage of enlightenment everybody knows better than to buy a narrow tired wagon anyway, and only few were tight enough to want a rebate, but the law was passed just to guard against that few.

"Amended the township bond law, so that now a township can bond for roads or bridges if sixty per cent of the voters vote to do so.

"Amended the law pertaining to duties of township highway commissioners.

"Amended county road law, so that it is now constitutional and so that the back townships can build roads in their townships provided the county road commissioner does not build, and can collect county aid as well as state aid, also amended it so that the county board of supervisors say how many road commissioners there shall be and what they shall build.

"Passed a good roads district law, which allows less than the whole county to work under the county road law. Levying a tax on all the property for the purpose of building the leading roads of gravel or stone.

"Cash road tax law, which does away with road districts in a township and does away with pathmasters and the statute labor work plan. All taxes must be collected in cash by the township treasurer. Two road taxes neither to be over one-half of one per cent, one a road repair tax, which fund must be expended on the roads, benefitting the property taxed which fund may be used in building a bridge or road anywhere in the township.

"Pole law, which prohibits poles being set within twenty-five feet of the center of the road unless permission is obtained from the township board; and under no circumstances can they be placed within 15 feet of the road.

"Appropriations for state rewards for roads, $115,000 each year and $10,000 a year for expenses.

Bad Cooking Causes Crimes

"Ninety per cent of the crime of the United States is due to bad cooking," declared Dr. C. H. Irion, state health officer of New Orleans, in a lecture.

"Proper food," he said, "is needed by the human body in developing the brain. A well fed man or animal is generally happy and is not given to criminal tendencies.

"Every woman before she contracts an alliance should be asked if she understands how to feed children. Half decayed fruit is the curse of the infant and the alarming mortality can be traced to the cause."—Exchange.
