

A Christmas Gif

of an Edison Phonograph fur nishes entertainment and a merry Christmas for the whole family. After trying one for a month in your home you would not get along without it for twice the original price. Mr. Edison says he would like to see one in every home. Why is it that you can't buy a second hand phonograph? The reason is, because people will not part with them. Get one demonstrated in your home. The joy of one is the pleasure of all with the Edison phonograph.

A Real Wonderland.

South Dakota, with its rich silver mines, bonanza farms, wide ranges and strange natural formations, is a veritable wonderland. At Mound City, in the home of Mrs. E. D. Clapp, a wonderful case of healing has lately occurred. Her son seemed near death with lung and throat trouble. "Exhausting coughing spells occurred every five minutes," writes Mrs. Clapp, "when I began giving Dr. King's New Discovery, the great medicine that saved his life and com pletely cured him." Guaranteed for coughs and colds, throat and lung troubles, by G. S. Darling and J. E. Dillon, druggists. 50e. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Michigan And The Cement Industry.

This week there was held in Chiago a national convention of the cement manufacturers of the United States. Few persons are aware of the importance of this industry or the wonderful development it has undergone within recent years. In 1904 the production of Portland cement in the United States was 26,505,881 barrels. The year following it had increased to 36,038,012 barrels, and in 906 the total production of cement of all kinds was 51,000,445 barrels of pounds each. The amount of cement produced in the country was more than four times as much as in 1897 and its value nearly seven times as great. This remarkable increase has placed cement eighth in value among the mineral products of the United States.

The cement business in Michigan is in a flourishing condition, ranking as one of the state's most important industries. Its output forms a large proportion of the total for the country. In 1905 there were 12 plants in operation and they produced 2,505,310 barrels and the next year there were 15 plants operating and they produced 4,032,418 barrels, an increase in 12 months of more than a million and a half of barrels. Today there are 17 plants running representing combined investment of sepresenting combined investment of $8,300,000. On an average these factories have been operating but a little more than five years, which represents practically the life of the industry in Michigan. Of the factories operating in 1906 eight used marl, six linestone and the other both materials combined as a basis marl, six linestone and the other both materials combined as a basis for cement. The aggregate daily capacity of the fifteen plants was upwards of 19,000 barrels. Every one of the fifteen plants increased its output that year, and every one of the seventeen now built expect to do the same the coming year. In 1906 the same the coming year. In 1906 the factories paid in wages $1,397,000. It is the concensus of opinion of Michigan manufacturers that the cost of producing cement will decrease, the output steadily increase and that there is enough material within the state to run the plants 100 years state to run the plants 100 years.

While the past decade or two have been an age of steel in the world of construction, there are evidences that the age of cement for building purposes is near at hand. Cement is today successfully used for practically every form of construction, including buildings, foundations, floors, roofs, bridges, conduits, sidewalks, crossties, and scores of others. Great skyscrapers and entire houses are being built of it. Its architectural possibilities are unlimited and it is put to the most elaborate of artistic uses. The demand is tremendous. And yet the industry is in its infancy. In five or ten years from now it is safe to predict that it will reach the very front rank as construction material, probably distancing both wood and steel.

Mail Order House Indicted.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., the great Chicago mail order house, must stand trial in the federal court at Des Moines, says the leader of that city, on charges of using the United States mails to defraud. An indictment containing three counts was returned against the firm by the federal grand jury. The penalty upon conviction will be a fine of $500 on each count.

The indictment is based upon three cases in which it is alleged the company misrepresented articles listed for sale in its catalogues, which were sent out through the mails. Besides the catalogues, it is claimed that the concern used letters, circulars, pamphlets, order blanks and letter heads to deceive and defraud its cus-
