If it pays an individual to advertise it pays a village, city or community. A good newspaper is an advertisement for any village, provided it is filled with live advertisements of live business men. We sometimes wonder if newspaper men generally appreciate the old subscriber at its true value. We mean the old standby who takes the home paper year after year, through evil as well as through good report and pays his subscription regularly just the same as he would any other honest debt. As a general thing the old subscriber is patient and slow to wrath. He will overlook many little slights from the editor, slights which the man who borrows his reading, would not stand for a minute.—Milington Gazette.

He Had No Objection.

"We—we want you to marry us!" said the blushing young man, indicating a young woman with downcast eyes and smiling face who stood a step behind him.

"Come in!" said the minister, and he endeavored to ease their embarrassment for a moment; but he soon decided that it was useless to try.

"Will you be married with a ring?" he inquired.

The young man turned a helpless gaze on his companion, and then looked at the minister.

"If you've got one to spare and it can come out of the two dollars, I guess she'd like it," he said at last.—Youth's Companion.

Effective Repartes.

About three o'clock one morning, according to Toby, M. P., T. P. O'Connor was orating in the house of commons to 12 or 15 members lying about in various stages of drowsiness. Sir Patrick O'Brien was among them, and now and then rescuing himself with a start from falling asleep, audibly engaged in conversation. "I protest against this disorderly conduct," exclaimed Mr. O'Connor at length; "the honorable baronet is constantly interrupting me." "Sir," replied Sir Patrick, with a graceful bow, "the honorable gentleman misinterprets my motive. I interrupted, it is true. But it was with the intention of waking the honorable gentleman's audience."

TAWAS CITY, MICH., MAY 1, 1905

It is estimated that 251 saloons were put out of business today by the recent local option elections in ten counties of the state.

It is announced that Representative John J. McCarthy, of Standish, will be a candidate for the third time as a member of the legislature.

Gov. Warner says he will make it his personal business to see that the local option law is strictly enforced in the counties in which it was recently adopted. Now if he will see that the liquor laws are enforced in other counties of this state he will be performing another much appreciated duty.

Crime is rapidly increasing in New York city. There were more complaints, more indictments, more charges preferred and more cases tried during the last half year than in any six months in the history of the city, and the increase has been in much larger proportion than the increase in population, which is estimated at 65,000.

Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, and a candidate for the democratic nomination for the presidency, has been touring Michigan this week. While Gov. Johnson has been greeted with large audiences the enthusiasm which greeted William J. Bryan on his recent visit was lacking. Michigan democracy is for Bryan, and that he can pole more votes here than in either of his previous campaigns is self evident.

That excessive smoking is the cause of many red noses is the conclusion of "The British Medical Journal," which cites the case of a young college man. The youth, it appears, was much annoyed by a "headlight" that might have illuminated the face of an old toper. He consulted his physician, explaining that he smoked cigarettes to excess and had a habit of blowing the smoke through his nostrils. The only advice the doctor gave him was to moderate his smoking and to discontinue the habit of passing the smoke through his nose. The advice was taken, and a great improvement was soon apparent.

Neither President Roosevelt nor William Jennings Bryan are favorites with the men who control the republican and democratic parties, while both are prime favorites with the people. The president cannot force through congress legislation that the people think they want, though his party has an overwhelming majority that could enact any legislation it wanted to without asking leave of the democrats, so there is no excuse for not doing something for the people. There is also a dead set against Bryan as a presidential candidate by the same class of leaders as are working against Roosevelt in his party, not the people. The candidacy of Taft is but one of manufactured enthusiasm, forced by the vast army of federal office-holders, assisted by various state office-holders who dare not oppose federal machine backed by such an audacious chief as the president who will not even let a republican postmaster be re-appointed if he can help it who does not favor Taft. As against any man the republicans can nominate Bryan as the favorite of the people and compared with Roosevelt is a conservative, and should have the united support of the democratic party this time, for we don't believe the people can be stampeded again as they were in 1896 by threats of a panic and loss of work.—Cheboygan Democrat.

Something of a Stand-off.

In the campaign for the republican nomination for governor there is one subject that is likely to be tabooed by both Governor Warner and Auditor General Bradley, and that is the Glazier failure and the probable loss of a portion of the state's money deposited in the Chelsea savings bank. Both Bradley and the governor were in high official positions when Glazier was making his numerous deposits of state funds in his own bank. The auditor general was the officer to whom a report was made of the banks in which state money was deposited and the amount of such deposits; the governor was a director in a bank which had received money without authority of law and with bonds insufficient for its protection. If Gov. Warner shall say that Bradley was derelict in his duty in regard to seeing that ample security for state deposits were given, the auditor general may answer that the governor himself profited indirectly through Glazier's disregard of the law. So we say here is one subject on which silence will likely be maintained by both candidates for the governorship, as their connection with the matter is not creditable to either. If one of the other shall be placed in nomination, it no doubt will be a matter for discussion later in the campaign.—Lansing Journal.

William Jennings Bryan.

Mr. Bryan's trip through Michigan last week, from a democratic standpoint, was a success. For Mr. Bryan it was a series of ovations all along the line. Crowds of men and women of every occupation and walk of life, were assembled to cheer him at every station, as if they had never seen or heard of him before. And on the arrival of Mr. Bryan and party at Grand Rapids, they were greeted by the welcome shouts of an admiring throng. The streets and thoroughfares leading to the depot were so crowded with people jostling one another, at the risk of great bodily harm, to get a good look at the eloquent commoner, that it was with considerable difficulty the committee, aided by the police, escorted Mr. Bryan and party to the carriages awaiting to hurry them away to the Morton House.

Daniel O'Connell, in his palmy days, on Tara's Hill, could not have aroused greater enthusiasm among his devoted followers, than does this wonderful American, a twice defeated candidate for the presidency of the United States, William Jennings Bryan.

Regardless of what his opponents may think of his political principles and theories of government, Mr. Bryan must be an extraordinary man. Regardless of his two defeats for the presidency, circumstances that would have relegated any ordinary statesman to permanent obscurity, notwithstanding the fact that he has been continuously before the American people for twelve years, during which time he has written and talked more on economic and political questions, than any other man of his time, (not excepting President Roosevelt) of which writings and speeches Mr. Bryan has never retracted one statement that he ever made, he seems to be gaining in popularity as the idol of millions of America's best citizens.

And his popularity is not confined to America alone. On his tour around the world, two years ago, people gathered to hear him in "Far away India" as enthusiastically as they did a few days ago in Grand Rapids. The same was true in Japan and elsewhere.

And in London, England, in the metropolis of the world, the city of scholars, statesmen and orators for a thousand years, the Peace Congress was in session when Mr. Bryan and party arrived. The assemblage was made up of accredited representatives of every nation in the world.

In response to a very complimentary invitation, Mr. Bryan appeared before the congress and delivered an address. He never addressed a grander or more critical audience, an audience that was worthy of his best effort. After many of their orators had spoken, Mr. Bryan was called to the platform, and on his appearance before that magnificent assemblage, he received an ovation almost equal to the one he received in the Chicago convention, of 1896. According to the accounts of the incident, published in the London papers the following day, Mr. Bryan delivered the address of the congress, and was described as the most logical, persuasive and magnetic orator that had been heard in London, since the days of John Bright.

There were no adverse criticisms of Mr. Bryan's address; nothing but praises and expressions of admiration for the great American. Nor was it his musical voice, faultless delivery and elocutionary gifts that were considered the "paramount issue" of his address; it was the good things that he said during his address that attracted the special attention of the Journalists and scholars of London.

No private citizen living in any country on the globe is so well known as a citizen of the world, as is Mr. Bryan. Whether he shall ever be president of the United States, is of small consequence, compared with the honors he has already received. He will be remembered in the history of his country, long after many presidents of the United States are forgotten.

It may be that Mr. Bryan, like Daniel Webster and Henry Clay, is too great a man to be president—too big to be controlled by the political vermin that determine democratic nominations for the presidency of this country. Yellow democrats say Mr. Bryan cannot be elected, because they do not want him elected. Those same democrats, prior to the election of 1901, predicted that Judge Parker could be elected; their judgment, therefore, cannot be relied upon as political prophecy. They forget that Mr. Bryan polled more votes in the campaign of 1896 and 1900, than was ever polled for a democratic candidate for the presidency, in the history of this country.—Alpena Argus.

How Your Weight Varies in a Day.

Don't get worried every time you notice a slight decrease in your weight. Of course, there may be something wrong, but don't jump to conclusions too quickly. Just take into consideration the fact that the weight varies throughout the day.

Scientific investigations show that the average healthy man is always gaining or losing throughout a day. Before breakfast he weighs, say, 150 pounds 8 ounces. An hour later, after breakfast, he has gained 1 pound 12 ounces, but by noon he loses 14 ounces of this, only immediately to make it up and add 2 ounces by lunch, which brings his weight to 157 pounds 6 ounces. Then the fall begins and slowly continues until dinner time, though the chief meal of the day puts on 2 pounds 2 ounces, fetching him up to his maximum weight.

He is at his lightest just before breakfast, and at his heaviest immediately after dinner.

There is a big drop during the night. It amounts on the average to 3 pounds 6 ounces, but the loss varies from 2 pounds to 4 pounds, according to idiosyncrasy and the season of the year. In making deductions from the results of the experiments touching variations in weight, allowance must be made for special exertion, whether bodily or mental.

That mental strain quickly tells on the frame, has been established in connection with examinations. Comparative tests show that students in the high classes, where the effort is necessarily the greatest, lose several pounds more than those in the lower classes.

The loss of weight, due to physical exertion is sometimes a little surprising, even to those who have devoted attention to the matter. For instance, Burgess, the swimmer, in trying to cross the English channel, notwithstanding the large amount of food which he took while in the water, lost nearly one pound per hour.

Even a degree of exertion within the capacity of well-nigh everybody is an important factor in reducing weight. It is easy to lose about two pounds by taking a turn at a home exercise while a brisk walk may involve a loss of three pounds or four pounds.—Exchange.

COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

Teachers, School Officers and Parents are Invited to Contribute Items of Interest Hereto

TAWAS CITY SCHOOL.

Beryl Hews returned to school Monday.

Senith Boomer has been absent because of sickness.

The second primary room is enjoying the reading of "Only an Irish Boy."

The intermediate room has been reading parts of "Tom Brown's" school days.

The fourth grade reading class has been studying something of the dikes in Holland.

The fourth grade is taking a general review of the work that they have covered in geography this year.

Friday, the 23rd of April, the high school pupils experienced quite a shock, or rather, several of them. All joined hands and the ends connected with the electric machine. Other experiments were tried and all voted it a most pleasant Friday.

A. A. NOTES.

We play East Tawas tomorrow, and Oscoda the 9th.

Saturday, the 9th of May, we play Oscoda on our grounds. A good crowd is expected. Please turn out in goodly numbers.

Well, we got "L. K. E." Saturday, 16 to 6, but clean case ball would have made a close score. We are reformed on our school's score—

... of case and interlocking of base lines were the winning side. Of course, taking short cuts make it easier, but is it fair or just to the other side?

Tomorrow we play East Tawas at the D. & M. grounds. This is the first game of the league. Persons wishing to go with us may do so. Bus leaves Waguzer's and Preseort's stores at 2 o'clock, local time. Fare 15 cents.

Second baseman J. Mark, has been lame most of this week, as a result of being jumped upon the first inning of Saturday's game, thereby lowering his chances of a good game. The same was tried upon first baseman, Redhead, but when the runner jumped Redhead "wasn't there."

A county school base ball league has been organized by the four schools of the county, viz: Au Sable, East Tawas, Oscoda and Tawas City. Only school boys are eligible and it is thought that it will stimulate the boys not now attending, to attend, thereby helping this project most necessarily be helped along by subscriptions made by citizens of our town. Tawas has almost enough pledged, but a few dollars more will be needed. Following is the schedule:

COUNTY NORMAL DIXIES.

Miss Moore was absent Monday and Tuesday.

We enjoyed a written lesson in Michigan history, Monday.

The school ground is very large when you measure it with a yard stick. We enjoy the outdoor work.

The Tawas City teachers and some of the normal students will attend the institute at Oscoda Friday and Saturday.

The high school sang a new song Tuesday morning about the East Tawas ball boys. The tune was to "Good-bye My Blue Bell," but the words were "Good-bye East Tawas."

The normal class has planned a program for Arbor Day, May 1st. Misses Murphy, Grant and Green have selected several appropriate songs which the class is practicing with much enthusiasm. Misses Davey Kinney and McCully will give a suggestive Arbor Day program for rural schools. Miss Bristol will have a paper on possibilities of rural schools on Arbor Day. Miss Moore a talk on beautifying school grounds, and Miss Cadorette a paper on the influence of school environment on the pupil. After the program a vine will be planted somewhere in the region of the school building. The committee on selecting the location of the vine has not as yet reported, but from the careful study and consideration it is giving the matter the location will surely be of the best.

UPPER TOWNLINE.

The following pupils ranked first in their respective grades for the month of April: 1st grade, Anna Kopp; 2nd grade, Hazel Proper; 3rd grade, Ada Webb; 4th grade, Dora Marks; 5th grade, Edna Webb; 6th grade, Gertie Proper; 7th grade, Arthur Freely; 8th grade, Etta Mills.

Only one week before eighth grade examination.

Only five more weeks of school after next Friday.

Richard and Laura Wilson are now pupils in the primary room.

The fifth grade arithmetic class is working in denominate numbers.

The fifth grade is memorizing the poem, "The Bugle Song," by Tennyson.

Pupils in the second grade drew the national flag in colors on paper last Friday.

There were twelve boys and girls in the primary room who were neither absent nor tardy last week.

Grace White of the third grade is again in school after a long absence, having fully recovered from the accident of getting her left arm broken.

The pupils of the fourth grade have finished their April calendars on which the weather for each day has been marked and are anxious to make similar ones for May.

The third grade made blue and orange colored envelopes in which to put their letters last Friday. The best ones, stamped and addressed, were hung upon the line in the school room.

A New Industry.

The News has had considerable to say of the capabilities of the soil and climate of northern Michigan, and though it had a general knowledge of all that was being produced, but it was not quite prepared to believe that whiskey was being distilled, and could not believe it if the facts were not vouched for by an agent of the treasury department.

W. H. Cook, division deputy revenue collector, that a few days ago while traversing the thickets in the northern part of Oscoda county, he came upon a full fledged distillery, where a man and woman were engaged in making whiskey—a rather poor quality and but little of it—but probably supplying the demand, and an increase output if necessary. We confess that this is a crop we had not speculated upon. We know—at least we have understood—that more or less liquor must be consumed in this locality—for we have seen it shipped in here in barrels—but we did not suppose it was made so near by. We still shout for northern Michigan and everything in it, but we confess to being a little shy of knowledge on the qualities of Oscoda moonshine.—Alpena News.

Ganderbone's May Forecast.

Wake me early mother darling, When the east is growing gray, For I'm to be queen of the May, mother.

I'm to be queen of the May, Put the alarm clock close beside you, To announce the break of dawn, For I must rustle out, mother, And get my glad rags on.

Wake me early, mother darling, For I've business to be at, For I'm to be queen of the May, mother.

I have the biggest hat, The pass-word for the month will be, "What's the score?" Book instructions will be run on the 1st, Gas meters will be paid slower, and presidential candidates will run faster. Pride, which has been going before a fall, will go behind a go-cart. Strawberry measure will be:

Twelve-quarts make a crate, One pint makes a quart, Ten berries make a sale, Nobody makes a kick.

Mr. Taft will appear at Chicago, and engage quarters in the garage for one 40 horse power elephant, and one 90-horse power Teddy Bear. Mr. Bryan will start for Denver in a one-mile power runabout. Congress will adjourn about the 16th, and the members will go home and explain. The watchful tabbycat will get The helpers little flicker, And the prohibitionists will set A few more traps for liquor.

The sun will rise at 6 o'clock and go to bed at 7, and the sweet June bride will contemplate the near approach of Heaven. The breath of May will bring the fern, the rose and buttercup, and the farmer's wife will milk and churn before the men get up. The boys will skin the slippery-eem with Jimmie's barlow-knife, and the ice man will be out to skin the innocent housewife. The frog will sound a richer bass from rivers and ravines, and man will tone his system up with sassafras and greens.

And then the city border will Begin to whisper fondly, With some bucolic country place, Of which his wife is fond.

The host will promise country fare, That most revered of boons, And place his order up at town For seven tons of prunes.

The graduate will choose a theme for his great June oration, and plan to tell us what is good for this neglected nation; the music school will graduate Ophelia and Viola, and when they both come home they'll buy themselves a piano.

The thrasher will descend at eve Upon the passing day, The festive coat will fill his tum, With prophylactic hay;

The chicken-hawks will pounce upon The fat bull-cochin frier, And the horse will whirl his tail-piece at

The all-tarnation flies, The Saxons called the month Tri-Milki, because at this season the dairymen makes his milk of three parts—one part milk, one part water and one part formaldehyde.

May is the Latin Manus, just as June takes its name from Juniors. That is, this is a month when old heads are at their best, and young men like Bill Taft and Ted Roosevelt will have to look out for old tops like Uncle Joe Cannon and Uncle John Rockefeller. About the 25th, nobody much will care to bet that Uncle Joe will not be nominated for president, or that Uncle John will pay that thirty million dollar fine.

May is a bad month to wed in, because, we are told, it is said in Such cases the stork, as a custom, begins

The young husband's troubles, O horrors, with twins.

After the 23d, May will be under the influence of Gemini, the sign of the arms. They will be soldiers, and work for the government at $13 per month.

Gemini people are restless. They move all the time, and you always have to ask them where they are living now. They have brilliant imaginations, and think Bryan will have a walk-over. They are foolish and think Taft won't get the colored vote. They are brutally honest, and generally tell the young mother that her baby is ugly.

The June announcements will be made, and Madam Gould will don her fighting cap and say that she will marry Prince Sagan; whether her Boni, whom she had to forcibly detach, will challenge Helio to come out and fight a spitting match. The Prince will buy some navy plug, and Boni buy the same, and both will hurry to the field of sudden death or COULDN'T DODGE THESE TAXES.

Births, Marriages and Deaths Once Source of English Revenue.

Pleased with his morning's work—he had sworn off no less than $30,000 in taxes—the capitalist leaned back in his chair, lighted a cigar and talked agreeably.

"In the past," he said, "governments were wiser. They levied taxes that could not be sworn off. There was, for instance, the English birth tax of the seventeenth century. A laborer paid two shillings as birth tax; a duke paid £20. You couldn't get round it. Burials were taxed, according to the station of the dead, from a shilling to £25. That, too, could not be dodged.

"Marriages were taxed. A duke, to marry, paid £50; a common person, like yourself, paid half a crown.

"In those days you paid a tax on every servant, on your dog, on every horse, on your carriage, your health, your windows, watches, clocks, your hair powder, plate, ribbons, coal, gauze and candles."

Bill Nye and Queen Victoria. Years ago the late Bill Nye wrote a cordial and complimentary letter to Queen Victoria, urging her to come to America and take part in certain authors' readings in aid of the international copyright movement. The letter was written primarily for publication, of course, and in all likelihood never reached the august eye for which it was intended. It filled a newspaper column, however, and served its purpose as an excellent bit of fooling. The writer assured her majesty of a hearty welcome from her fellow authors in the United States, all of whom, he said, had been greatly impressed, not only by the merit of her literary work, but by the fact that she produced it all at night—after reigning all day on a hard throne. Throughout the many years that she continued to "reign on a hard throne," she was an indefatigable worker herself and the inspirer of industry in others—Putnam's Magazine.

The Emblem of France. The origin of the fleur-de-lis is still an unsettled question. There are many theories, but no two of them agree. One makes the emblem originate with Clovis I, another with Louis VII, another with one of the German kings of the twelfth century and still another with the Romans. All that is definitely settled is the fact that since the twelfth century the fleur-de-lis has been employed as the emblem of French royalty. The nature of the emblem is also in dispute. An old tradition makes it the representation of the lily given by the angel to Clovis at his baptism. Another theory is that it was adopted by Louis VII in allusion to his name, Louis Florus.—New York American.

How She Kept Young. Some one once asked a woman how it was she kept her youth so wonderfully. Her hair was young white, she was 80 years old and her energy was waning, but she never impressed one with the idea of age, for her heart was still young in sympathy and interests. And this was her answer: "I know how to forget disagreeable things. I tried to master the art of saying pleasant things. I did not expect too much of my friends. I kept my nerves well in hand, and I did not allow them to bore other people. I tried to find any work that came to hand congenial."—Woman.

The Hearty Laugh. We have faith in the man who can laugh heartily. It is not only a sign of health and good nature, but an indication of the spirit of looking on the bright side of things, which contributes so much to success. The wisdom and sanctity of a man is no longer estimated by the length of his countenance, nor by his refusal to unbend his dignity so far as to laugh on occasion. The cheerful smile, the frank, open laugh, which are two of the most helpful influences which a man is able to bestow on comrade or friend, and few of us have been so unfortunate as to have failed to experience the benefits of both. Let us all wear a sunny countenance, therefore, not only for our own happiness but for our neighbors and friends.—Farm Life.

True Economy. Economy is generalship in little things. Some women by the magic of their habits can make a dime go further than others can make a dollar. These have a sense of fitness and nice arrangement. They can contrive to so manage that they always seem to be flourishing. These are the women who make simple homes beautiful and bright, giving a contentment not found in those of more pretentious claims.

Going for Good. "Well," said Mrs. Gumbel, "for once that piano going to-day, and I heard it was really pleased."

"Ah! The piano next door?" said her husband. "Some good music, eh?"

"It was sweetest music to me. I heard the installment dealer's men taking it away."—Philadelphia Press

Faith of Friends. Don't flatter yourselves that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. On the contrary, the nearer you come into relation with a person, the more necessary do tact and courtesy become. Except in cases of necessity, which are rare, leave your friend to his unpleasant truths from his enemies; they are ready enough to tell them.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.
