A BIG UNDERTAKING

It's a big thing to do—to undertake to make Fall or Winter suits and overcoats of all wool—genuinely all wool through and through—and sell them at from $10 to $25.

That is just what is done by the manufacturers of CLOTHCRAFT. No other manufacturers in the whole world even try to do it.

Believing that you ought to have a chance to get the Many distinctive patterns you find here now—and your size exactly.

The style is the latest, the fit is certain, the making—the tailoring—perfect.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., Nov. 13 1908

Gov. Warner and his gang denied, the night before election, that the state was bankrupt and would have to borrow money to meet its obligations, but on the second day after election negotiations were started to arrange for a loan of $750,000. Yet the people have apparently re-elected the same gang to run things at Lansing for another two years.

Prof. Henry E. Armstrong, of the London Central Technical college, in an address recently, sounded a warning against the wasteful methods now in use in connection with the consumption of coal. "No comment is provoked," he said, "by the fact that ocean giants such as the Lusitania and the Mauretania need feeding daily with some thousand or more tons of coal apiece on their voyages across the Atlantic. Such extravagance is gloried in as a great engineering achievement, and not anatomized as it should be if we were in any way mindful of the interests of posterity.

Constitution Calls For Raft of Bills.

Lansing, Nov. 11.—The state legislative reference department is getting together a large amount of information for the use of the state legislature, especially with reference to the bills to be enacted for the purpose of giving effect to the new state constitution. A list of 35 necessary bills has been placed in the hands of Attorney General Bird, who will prepare the measures, and additional laws will probably be suggested later.

A large number of provisions of the constitution are mandatory, and bills will be prepared to give effect to these provisions only. There are other numerous sections of the constitution which simply give permission to the legislature to enact laws, and these will be productive of a large grist of measures in all probability.

73 Were In Fatal Car.

A careful census and investigation shows that there were 79 people on the ill-fated train which jumped the track at Niswicks Crossing, Oct. 15.

In the goddola car there were packed 73 people mostly women and children. In this car 10 were cremated. In the engine cab were Mr. and Mrs. John Nowicki, Firemen Arthur Lee and Brakeman Wm. Barrette, all of whom perished, and Conductor Kinville and Engineer Foster were badly injured. It may be possible that one or two more were on the train, but if so they can be numbered with the unknown dead. Of the survivors all were more or less burned except a very few. That more did not meet death is considered a miracle.—Alpha Farmer.

An Explanation.

On the instruction ballots used in Iosco county, printed at The Press office, in the column for the county ticket of the office of the sheriff appeared first on the list. In the official ballot the office of Judge of Probate appeared first. The Press is informed that the change was made for a purpose.

At The Press printing office a ballot for another county was printed before the Iosco ballot; on the first ballot the office of sheriff came first. The same form was used in preparing the Iosco county ballot. A proof was made and filled with the proper authorities, who, in looking it over for correction, decided that the office of Judge of Probate should appear first. In the meantime it was up to the printer to print the unofficial instruction ballots or let his press remain idle and the instruction ballots were accordingly printed before the proof of the official ballot had been returned.

No republican candidate knew how the instruction ballots had been printed before they were delivered. The assertion that any deception was intended is as absurd as the idea that it could make any difference in the vote.—Oscoda Press.

Stray Notice.

There came to my farm five miles north of Hale one yearling heifer. This heifer has been straying around my place for about three months. Owner can have same by proving property and paying cost.

VISITS WITH UNCLE BY

The Harbingers.

The seed pods rattle in the breeze
Above the brittle grasses;
O'er every hill, in every dale,
The touch of Autumn passes.
The frost spreads low its hoary chill
Upon the zephyrs sleeping
And starts the vagrant, walling breeze
Across the valleys sweeping.

MORNING.

The dead leaves drift along the road
And nestle in the ditches;
The blackbird, high upon a limb,
His lusty cock-song pitches.
Athwart the melting maple tree
The morning sunlight shimmers,
While through the interstices deep
The flaming sunbeams shimmer.

NOON.

The frosted dahlia strives to lift
Her blackened head in gladness;
The aster droops his tousled plume
In most dejected sadness.
The grapevine, twining on the fence,
Has lost its umbered juices—
The wine of leafy life has ebbed
Adown its fibrous sluices!

SUNSET.

The sun, blood red, along the wood
Casts shadows ever longer;
The chill of evening rides the breeze
That waxes ever stronger.
Now sinks the disc behind the West
And leaves the day a-waning
When winds howl fiercely through the
In strident tones complaining!

L'ENVOI.

But what care we? Within our homes
Beside the embers glowing,
We drain the cup of thankfulness
From Plenty's horn o'erflowing.
Blow, Autumn's chill and Winter's cold,
Thy melancholy droning—
We drink to Happiness and Love
And sing to Joy's intoning!

For when the heart is tuned to sing,
Who cares for Winter's chill and sting?

Side Lights.

What we need in this country is an ashless winter and a lawn-mowerless summer.
The man who spends his money and doesn't wish it back, has had his money's worth.
A Mr. Thunderer married a Miss Cloud in Indian Territory. Looks like stormy weather ahead.
The time for campaign bets is here. Get your peanuts early—and get nice round ones that will roll easily.
"When the world comes to an end," says a Colorado editor, "there won't be any more coal bills." Which way are you going, brother?
When the troubles of a man and wife get as far as the quilling bee, they might as well call in the divorce lawyer and be done with it.
"Be kind to vermin and insects," says an exchange. "They are your friends." Sure, they're your friends. They'll stick to you even when you're broke.
A man doesn't always want to take too much for granted. The woman he loves may wear the flowers he sent, instead of the ones sent by her rival, simply because they match her gown.
"Can anybody count a half dozen marriages between American girls and the nobility (meaning, of course, the foreign nobility), that have been happy?" asks an Illinois newspaper. Of course not, and judging by the number of divorce cases, it would keep a fellow pretty busy to count that many right here at home. Ouch! I didn't see her coming or I would have dodged that!

Side Lights.

Squire Purdy has issued a writ of nunc pro tunc against the fellows that hang out in the back room of the drug store and says he is going to put an end to them tunk games if it takes all summer.
Hank Tumms has got a boil on his thumb and is not able at this writing to perform his usual work, which is whitening in front of Tibbitt's grocery.
A drummer from down to the Rapids put up at the Hotel Hoppertown one day this week. He put up 25 cents for breakfast and 25 cents for dinner.
The wringer broke while Mrs. Anson Judson's hired girl was doing the washing the other day and she had to run the clothes through the piano.

Miss Lulu Bibbins is saving up her money to go down to New York and take singing lessons. She ain't decided just where she will take 'em yet, but will probably take 'em right in the Singer building which is said to be the best.
Miss Bibbins has got so much sweet corn that her voice is quite husky at this writing.—Roy K. Moulton.

GAVE HIM FRIENDLY WARNING.

Janitor's Humorous Misunderstanding of Domestic Situation.

The janitor of a fashionable Boston flat opened his basement door in answer to a ring, and found there a tidy-looking young man who inquired if Mrs. Cleverington lived in the flat. The janitor answering in the affirmative, the visitor slipped him a welcome coin, and requested to be shown to that lady's apartments. Stimulated by the money, the mental readily led the way upstairs. At Mrs. Cleverington's door that lady, on beholding her long-absent college brother, flung her arms about his neck, and kissed him before the eyes of the astonished janitor.

A half-hour later the flat's handy man again hurried up the stairs and knocked at Mrs. Cleverington's door. When it was opened by a maid he stuck his head inside until his eyes came upon the loving couple chatting together on the sofa.

"Say, young fellow," was his advice to the college brother, "you'd better get out of this. Here comes Mr. Cleverington!"—Harper's Weekly.

HIRAM'S STROKE OF BUSINESS.

"Oil Fever" a Winfall for Lazy and Unscrupulous Texan.

During the "oil fever" in Texas some years ago the surprise of Hardtimes, a little town in the southwestern part of the state, was the discovery of oil on Hiram Strong's place. If ever there was a man misnamed it was Hiram, for he was the weakest, scrawniest, most pusillanimous mortal in the whole country. In addition, he had the reputation of being the laziest man for a radius of ten miles in all directions.

However, the oil on his place was of a good grade and after some dickering Hiram was enabled to sell his land outright for a good figure. Then he "sated" his pite somewhere, somehow, and proceeded to enjoy life.

The purchasers of the land, to their dismay, however, found that the well was exhausted after a few gallons of oil had been pumped out. They proceeded at once to hunt up Hiram. To him they told the startling fact and accused him of fraud.

"How many gallons did you get out?" he asked.

They told him at least six; no more, though.

"That's square," he answered, "for I know I poured in at least ten 'fore I sold that land to yer!" And that was all the satisfaction they ever got out of Hiram.—Exchange.

acknowledging a Gift of Mushrooms.

An honest fellow whom I once did a slight service wrote me the other day from his farm in the Mid: "With this letter I send you a basket of fine mushrooms which I gathered myself. You will notice how delicious they are. You can't get their like anywhere." I immediately wrote to my generous friend: "I don't know how to thank you for the gift. But to show how highly I appreciate it, I shall this very day make a formal complaint of attempted poisoning against you. I don't suppose you will get more than two years. You may be glad to know that in addition I shall begin civil suit for damages to the extent of 40,000 francs."—Henri Rochefort.

Wonderful European Formula

All Forms of Bronchial and Lung Troubles Disappear by Eagle Wherver Abbey Syrup, the Famous European Remedy, is Used.

The grim specter of death lurks in every neglected case of Asthma and Bronchitis. The delicate membrane lining of the air passages becomes irritated and inflamed with the continuous coughing spells, and forms the best breeding-place for consumption germs. Abbey Syrup, which is prepared from a formula handed down through the ages by the monks of Sancto Paulo in Spain, has proved its wonderful efficacy as a permanent cure for every form of lung trouble with a record that has made it famous throughout Europe.

It not only allays the irritation, diminishing and finally stopping the cough altogether, but builds up and strengthens the tissue and acts as a splendid tonic. Even a single bottle has been known to completely cure the disease, though in more stubborn cases and those of long duration, a longer treatment may be necessary.

This is the original remedy and is sold and personally recommended in Tawas City by C. H. Prescott & Sons and G. S. Darling.
