Oscoda Shuts Out East Tawas; Standish Wins Over Alabaster

League Standings
	W	L	Pct.
Omer	2	0	1.000
Standish	1	0	1.000
Oscoda	1	1	.500
Alabaster	1	1	.500
East Tawas	0	1	.000
Tawas City	0	2	.000

Clayton of Omer was too much for the Tawas City boys Sunday and our gang was taken into camp to the tune of 8 to 2.

Only five hits were garnered off the Omer gunner and the down county boys were fielding in such good shape that only bunched hits, two in the sixth and two in the ninth could score for them. Jackson was not very far behind Clayton in the box but errors at the wrong times paved the way for runs when Omer did hit. Bratt went in cold in the eighth with one down and a man on second. The first batter singled but he got the next two easily.

However, the boys looked a lot better, than a week before and are about ready to be called a well-knit ball team.

Don't forget practice nights boys, Wednesday and Friday at 5:00 o'clock sharp.

IOSCOS SHUT OUT EAST TAWAS

The Ioscoss, returned to form last Sunday and shut out the boys from the Iosco county metropolis on their own grounds 6 to 0.

Tate was in rare form allowing only three hits and fanning a dozen men. Johnson for East Tawas pitched well during the first five innings and received excellent support. Swales in left field made two sensational catches with Ioscoss on base and ready to score by robbing Killmaster, and C. Tate of what ordinarily would have gone for hits.

The Ioscoss scored in the first inning when Soucie crossed the plate and the lead was held by a single score until the sixth when the Ioscoss succeeded counting three more on three hits and two errors by East Tawas. There was no more scoring until the ninth when Killmaster singled and C. Tate scored him with a triple to left, Tate and Winters then put over the "squeeze" play for the last score of the day. Jack Tate led in hitting getting three singles in as many times up, wa'king on his first appearance.

Score by innings:
Oscoda 1 0 0 0 3 0 0 2—6
East Tawas 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Batteries—Oscoda, Tate and Winters
East Tawas—Johnson and Boldt.

ALABASTER vs. STANDISH

In reporting the Alabaster-Standish game, the Standish Independent said:

"It cannot be said that Standish has no fighting base ball club. Last Sunday the boys from the White City of Alabaster came down to our den determined to keep their lost column filled with zeros and at the end of the fourth round it appeared that they were going to succeed quite easily. At the time the score was 6 to 2 in favor of Alabaster. Benson was going good here and it looked as if Standish would be the second victim of the gypsum boys. The old saying in base ball is not to count your game won or lost until the last man is out, and Standish clung to the belief that they could win. They eventually overcame the big lead and won out in the tenth inning, 10 to 7.

"Alabaster scored two in the opening inning, missed the second and scored twice in the third and fourth. Altho Standish scored one in each of the first and second innings. Alabaster was confident that they had the old ball game sewed up.

"Alabaster added one to their total in the sixth after Standish had put over three in the fifth so the local clubbers got busy in the seventh and tied the count at seven all putting over two runs.

"After the sixth Alabaster got only five hits of H. Pagel. Standish failed to score in the eighth or ninth but in the tenth some bunched hitting with one error netted three runs and the game."

Alab' 2 0 2 2 0 1 0 0 0—7
Stan' 1 1 0 0 3 0 2 0 3—10

New Device Is Used to Restore Old Buildings

In England there is employed an interesting process, called grouting, whereby old buildings are restored. In its original sense grout means no more than gravel. In its building sense it is a mixture of sand, cement and water sufficiently thin to be poured. It is not a new thing, for it was probably used by the Romans, and has been employed very much since their time in engineering work. The comparatively new thing is the grouting machine, which enables the grout to be driven into places where it cannot be poured.

It is a simple machine, consisting of two parts, a cylinder of compressed air, the pressure being 100 pounds to the square inch, and a churn. A flexible hose connects them and another flexible hose with a nozzle leads out of the churn. The dust and decayed mortar are blown out of the cracks between the stones with a jet of compressed air; clean water is then blown in to dampen the masonry just enough to make the cement adhere. Meanwhile the cement is put into the churn or grouting pan and is beaten up until it is about the consistency of cream. The preparation of it must be made carefully or the cement will grow hard in the churn and the hose. The wall being ready, the nozzle is inserted into a crack, the cracks above and below it are covered with clay to prevent the cement from leaking out, the compressed air is turned on and, passing through the grouting pan, drives the cement deep in between the stones.

Starting at the base of the building and working upward, the grouting machines will fill the whole of its walls with a new cement that reaches every crack and hole, so that when it has grown hard the building is as firm as if it were cut out of one stone. And it does this without breaking the weather-crumbled surface of its masonry or even rubbing off the mosses and lichens that have grown there.

Memory

"I am certain that in the academic world we always have put too much stress upon memory and not enough upon reasoning," Dr. Herbert S. Langfeld of Harvard said recently.

"Memory is the storehouse of information and one of the best assets of the high-powered brain. But memory under another guise is harmful. There is the student, for instance, who easily memorizes lessons, using his mind as a kind of photographic plate, without any real mental activity.

"Memories of that sort often are the most fertile for the time being; they will easily absorb and supply on demand almost any information required. But the mind as a whole does not get the instruction required, and this information later on slips from the photographic memory plate without any special benefit to the student, no matter how high he may have stood in classes."—New York Times.

First Sound Over Phone

The first sound was transmitted by telephone in Boston June 2, 1875. The first words were transmitted in the same city March 10, 1876, over a line less than 100 feet long, when Thomas A. Watson heard Alexander Graham Bell say: "Mr. Watson, please come here; I want you." At the time Bell was standing in a little attic at 5 Exeter place and talked over a crude telephone of his own invention to his associate. The first real telephone conversation took place October 3, 1876, over a line two miles long, between Boston and Cambridge. Professor Bell and his associate doing the talking. The first newspaper report transmitted by telephone was sent from Salem, Mass., to the Boston Globe February 12, 1877.

To Stop Shoe Squeaks

Shoes squeak because the pieces of leather forming the soles do not lie close together, and rub and bend with the movement of the feet.

A good plan to stop squeaking is to put a little sweet oil in a pan or dish and place the shoes to soak overnight. They will take up enough oil to deaden the squeak and it is also good for the leather.

Another method is to remove a few rivets along the side of the shoe and insert powdered graphite or chalk or thin pieces of felt rubbed with chalk, and rivet up again. Three or four more small nails or pegs may be driven into the center of the sole, but this reduces the flexibility of the shoes.—London Tit-Bits.

Leaves 50 Feet Long

The Inaja palm, growing in South America, has leaves reaching a length of fifty feet and are often ten feet wide. Another palm, a native of Ceylon, has leaves twenty feet long and eighteen feet broad, from which the natives make tents and shelters.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

LORETTA

LORETTA should, by right of origin, be spelled Lauretta. Its present accepted form is due to the Italian influence which destroys the French "au" and supplies the letter equivalent to its pronunciation.

Loretta signifies "laurel," but there is considerable difference of opinion in regard to her source. Some etymologists believe that it is taken from the masculine Laurus, and the ladies so called should consider St. Laurence as their patron. Others contend that it is taken from the Greek word laura, meaning avenue, and applied to the clusters of hermitages which eventually formed the nucleus of monasteries. A religious interpretation is that the name Lauretta was evolved to commemorate the laurel grove, or loreto, to which the Italians believe the angels transported the holy house of Nazareth during the conquest of Palestine.

But whatever theory is correct, Lauretta made her debut as a feminine name among the Flemish in 1162. Her next appearance was in the time of King John, when a daughter of William de Braose, lord of Bramber, was so called. After that, the name became popular in usage throughout England and France. In the latter country, it is called Laurette.

The emerald is Loretta's talismanic gem. It is the jewel of youth and springtime for Loretta, and will bring her the charm that comes from quickened intelligence, and the admiration of others. Wednesday is her lucky day and 3 her lucky number.

BIG GAMBLING HOUSE WRECKED BY TROOPERS

NEW CHESTERFIELD INN, NOTED GAMING RESORT, RAIDED BY STATE POLICE

Place Had Reputation As Hangout for Bandits and Criminals.

Public gambling in Michigan was dealt a hard blow in the raiding and wrecking of the New Chesterfield Inn, in Macomb county, just over the line from Wayne county. It was reputed to be the fourth largest gambling place in the United States and had been notorious as the resort of bank bandits, holdup men, bootleggers and other criminals, as well as others who had come by money easily and who were there sought excitement at the green-covered tables.

Playing at the place was reputed to have gone to the extent of more than $100,000 a night and crowds as large as 1,100 people had been known to congregate there.

After the men of the Michigan Department of Public Safety had raided the place on the night of May 23, it was a wreck. The gambling tables were smashed, the windows broken the gambling paraphernalia confiscated and the operators were in the hands of the law. Its patrons had been scattered and given a fright from which they may not soon recover.

Elaborately Guarded.

George Weinbrenner, known as "St. Louis Dutch," was the owner of the place. He had long been known as a gambler by the Detroit police and had often been raided. Finally he built the New Chesterfield Inn out Gratiot avenue and opened the biggest game ever known in Michigan. Two busses were operated to Detroit and free transportation given to those desiring to risk their money. Lunch was also served free to gamblers.

The resort was elaborately guarded. Men were stationed outside at intervals along the private road leading to the place. The ground floor was occupied by a garage and entrance to the gaming rooms was through a passage requiring the passing of several guarded doors. Above the main hall, where the bigger games were played, there ran a gallery in which armed men were stationed to protect the place against holdup men.

Every precaution was taken to prevent surprise by officers of the law. When the sheriff of Macomb county and his deputies, who were known by sight to the lookouts, visited the place, they found it quiet and no gambling in progress. Immediately upon their departure the games started.

State Police Act.

Considerable time was necessary for the detectives of the Michigan State Police division of the Department of Public Safety to secure evidence upon which warrants could be obtained. The detectives had to become acquainted with frequenters of the place, visit it in the company of these habitués and be vouched for so that they could see the gambling actually going on. When this had been done, warrants were taken out and preparations made for the raid.

Commissioner Harry H. Jackson of the Department of Public Safety gave instructions to Captain I. H. Marmon to carry out the plans. State Police were assembled from East Lansing, South Rockwood, St. Clair, Ecorse, Hamtramck, Wayne and other posts. In command of these details were Captain C. J. Scavarda, Lieutenants H. Douglas Potter, E. S. Masters, Lawrence Lyons and George Karkeet. Altogether about 40 State Police were in the party. Accompanying them were Detroit and Hamtramck police officers who were alert for criminals who might be wanted in those cities.

The force assembled in Detroit and was carried rapidly to the scene in a fleet of automobiles. No one except Captain Marmon knew the destination of the raiding party.

Axes Are Employed.

Knowing that a number of gunmen were employed to protect the place, the State Police swept rapidly past the outside lookout stations and got into the lower floor of the building before any intimation had been given of their approach. One door was closed to them and they smashed that in order to reach the main gambling room. Play had been suspended and the 300 patrons stood about when the officers entered.

However, Captain Marmon has sent several troopers, in disguise, into the place in advance of the raid and they were there and could testify that gambling had been in progress. Weinbrenner and a number of his employees were placed under arrest. Guns, revolvers and ammunition were seized and gambling apparatus was confiscated. One safe was opened and another was carried away to be opened elsewhere under direction of a judge. The latter was the safe supposed to contain the greater part of the funds of the place. As a final touch, the State Police proceeded to wreck the place, destroying the tables and everything else which had been used in the gambling except such portion of the equipment as was required for evidence.

SHOW THE RIGHT

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I RECOLLECT Old Henry Smith, Remember Hiram Brown; No better folks to neighbor with There are in any town.

They hated sinners, hated sin, Idolatry, and doubt; When things were wrong they started in At once to point them out.

And yet there was a difference In Henry Smith and Hi: Both had uncommon common sense, And couldn't stand a lie; Old Henry hated good and strong Whatever wasn't white; But Hi not only saw the wrong But also saw the right.

Old Henry was the kind who pass Upon the other side; But, fallin' man or fallen lass, Old Hiram always tried Not only sinners to condemn - And scripture to repeat, But tried to lend a hand to them To help them to their feet.

Well, lots of us are Henrys, yes, And some are Hirams, too. Condemnin' sinners ain't, I guess, Not all there is to do, But lend a hand, and help along, And do your little mite— Not only try to show the wrong But try to show the right.

Mother's Cook Book

They are such dear feet that go along the path with ours—feet fast or slow
And trying to keep pace; if they mistake,
Or tread upon some flower that we would take
Upon our breast, or bruise some reed,
Or crush poor hope until it bleed,
We must be mute,
Not turning quickly to impute
Grave fault; for they and we
Have such a little way to go—can be
Together such a little while along the way
We will be patient while we may.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

SPINACH is one of the greens which should often be found on our tables.

Stewed Dandelions.
Cut and wash a peck of fresh dandelions, drain and put in boiling water to cover. While they are cooking prepare a roux as follows: Melt a tablespoonful of butter and add one tablespoonful of flour, then add two cupfuls of milk with a pinch of soda. Stir to a smooth sauce, drain the dandelions and pour over the sauce, season well to taste and beat in a well-beaten egg. Remove from the fire and turn into a vegetable dish. This is sufficiently nourishing to take the place of meat. With cheese it makes a most substantial meal.

Potato Puff.
To two cupfuls of hot potato add a teaspoonful of melted butter, beat until light and creamy and add salt and pepper, one cupful of milk and two well-beaten eggs. Beat hard for a full minute and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake until brown and serve at once, before it has a chance to fall.

When Asquith Laighed

Mr. Asquith was addressing a political meeting one day when some one in the audience made a very personal remark concerning Mrs. Asquith.
 "Who said that?" demanded the speaker, angrily.
 There was a sudden silence. Then a man in the rear stood up and, pointing to a farmer wearing a dilapidated straw hat, shouted: "It was him w' the coo's breakfast on his head."
 The reply was altogether too much for Mr. Asquith, and he had to join in the general roar of laughter.—Boston Transcript.

Quite Frequently

Generous men have many friends and frequently need them more than an ungenerous man does.

Safety of Banks

National banks are chartered by the federal government and are subject to supervision by the comptroller of the currency, who has authority to close a bank if his examiner finds that it has impaired its capital. State banks and trust companies operate under the authority of the state and are subject to supervision by the state bank commissioner, just as national banks are supervised by the federal comptroller of the currency. Periodical examinations of both classes of banks are made. If undesirable securities are found or unsafe methods of business are disclosed, the bank commissioner or the comptroller, as the case may be, generally gives directors and stockholders an opportunity to correct abuses and make good on poor securities before taking the more drastic action of closing the bank. Generally speaking, there is no difference in the safety of state and national banks.

No Objections

"A man and his wife visited a seaside boarding-house to engage rooms for the holidays. Everything seemed satisfactory. Then the man said rather belligerently:
 "Of course you don't object to children?"
 "The boarding mistress laughed.
 "Object to children? Dear me, no!" she said. "Why, I've got nine of my own."
 "The man and his wife left at once.
 "If we decide—er—to take the rooms," they said, "we'll—er—we'll let you know!"

Wanted to Make Sure

Two Scotchmen were fishing about fifty yards apart when one of them hooked a fish and, in his excitement, fell overboard. He could not swim and quickly sank for the second time. The other Scotchman rowed toward him frantically and reached him just as he came up after that second submerging, and yelled at him:
 "Sandy, if ye dinna come up after the third time can I hae yer boat?"

Another Pane

"What's the matter?" asked Joe.
 "I've got toothache very badly," his friend replied.
 "Oh, that's nothing. I've got a good cure for that."
 "What is it?"
 "Oh, just throw a stone at the window opposite—"
 "Yes?"
 "Well, the pane will go!"

He Had the Plans

A woman visitor to a prison, in the course of a chat with a burglar, thought she detected signs of reform in him.
 "And now," she said, "have you any plans for the future, on the expiration of our sentence?"
 "Oh, yes, ma'am," replied the convict, hopefully. "I've got the plans of two banks and a post office."

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

You Always Promise to Write?
 And you usually do not. This laughter is kind and the light promiser often realizes little, how much he hurts. When you promise you really mean to fulfill it, but things come up to wean you: your work, your engagements, your fatigue, your hatred of letter writing. No doubt you want to write and yet you never get to it. It is because you have an idea your friends want a novel or serial. They don't—only a couple of lines would satisfy—you have too big ideas!
