LOCAL BOYS WIN FROM EAST TAWAS; SCORE 4-5

Oscoda Wins from Alabaster and Omer Wallops the Standish Team

LEAGUE STANDINGS
	W	L	Pct.
Omer	3	0	1.000
Oscoda	2	1	.667
Standish	1	1	.500
Alabaster	1	2	.333
Tawas City	1	2	.333
East Tawas	0	2	.000

LAST SUNDAY RESULTS
Oscoda 6; Alabaster 4
Tawas City 5; East Tawas 4
Omer 12; Standish 4

Games Next Sunday
Oscoda at Tawas City
East Tawas at Omer
Alabaster, at Standish

Tawas City was the guest of East Tawas last Sunday on the joint diamond at the fair grounds but unlike real courteous guests they took a game away from their hosts and climbed out of the cellar, leaving that honor to the East Tawas boys.

Eleven hits for a total of seventeen bases, coupled with some bases on balls at the wrong time for Oxel Johnson garnered one more run than East Tawas was able to gather, on six hits for a total of eight bases and four walks. The East Tawas hits were more opportune than those of Tawas City but so were their errors, which spells the result.

The team looks much better, and a couple of changes next Sunday should give Oscoda a good battle. The boys will be fighting every minute to bring home the bacon and you fans can help wonderfully by coming out to root. If they make a good play, make a noise to show that you appreciate it. It helps to win games. Score by Innings

After giving Alabaster a four run lead in the first inning Sunday, the Ioscos settled down and gave the Kalsamine Kids eight nice round goose eggs the remainder of the game while at the same time they helped themselves to six scores. Tate yielded only five hits during the entire game, three of which were bunched in the initial frame.

Oscoda 0 0 3 0 2 0 1—6
Alabaster 4 0 0 0 0 0 0—4
Batteries—Oscoda, Tate and Winters
Alabaster—Benson and Beck.

OMER WINS FROM STANDISH

The Omer base ball team, leaders of the Northeastern Michigan league deliberately trampled over the Standish hopes last Sunday, and made them like it by cramming a 12 to 4 defeat down their throat.

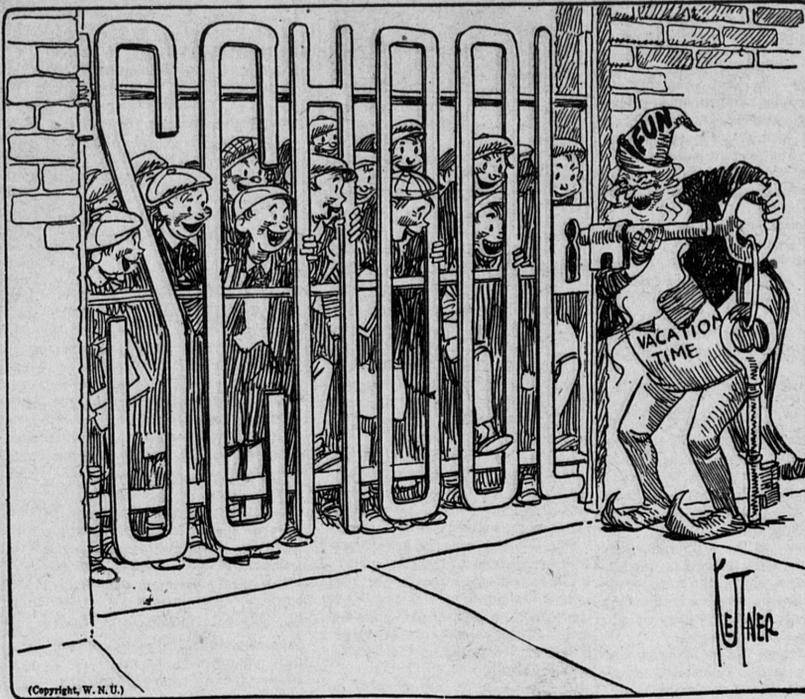

Of course, it is a known fact that these teams each delight in putting it over on the other. Omer's cup was filled to overflowing Sunday if the proportion of the score is taken into consideration. Although the tattered Standish team was beaten, quite soundly too, still they are not down and out. They realize that Clayton was in extra good form, also that Krueger, newly acquired pitcher for the Standish team, seemed anything but a puzzle to Omer, particularly to Warren, Briggs and Munro and that they themselves offered very little round support to back of Krueger. In addition to this the new team, badly disorganized by several members leaving it, is not hitting on all cylinders.

Clayton pitched four hitless innings in the beginning of the game. He was being "nicked" and charged by his opposing batters as "not having anything" but he managed to keep the hit column low. Errors assisted in putting over runs in the third, fourth and fifth rounds, though the local boys broke up any hopes, Emerald may have been nursing along for a no-hit game when Klenk slammed one out in the fifth. Clayton pitched good ball and was deserving of his victory.

All that Warren, Briggs and Munro did was step up to the plate, swing their bats and register a hit. These boys divided ten hits, two sacrifice and eight runs. Their efforts won the game.

Score by Innings
Omer 2 0 2 0 2 1 2 2 1—12
Standish 0 0 1 1 0 0 1 0—4
Batteries—Clayton and Briggs—Krueger and Doyle.

COL. BLAIR DROWNS WHEN TENDER OF McHARG YACHT OVERTURNS

When the yacht tender belonging to H. K. McHarg, Jr., overturned last Sunday night at Sandwich, Colonel R. W. Blair was drowned, although efforts were made to rescue him.

Colonel and Mrs. Blair were to have been guests of Henry K. McHarg, Jr., of East Tawas, on a cruise to Cleveland, where the party was to attend the Republican Convention. The colonel had recently received reservations direct from President Collidge.

The McHarg yacht, the Sirion, was standing off the dock and the Blairs left shore in the tender when it capsized. Mr. McHarg succeeded in rescuing Mrs. Blair and swimming with her to the yacht.

Mr. and Mrs. McHarg returned to East Tawas Thursday.

Howdy Folks—Windy Wolf returned from the county seat today, where he went to see the circus and show. Windy says he not only saw the bearded lady, but he also had the pleasure of meeting said lady's wife and children.

A WOMAN IN THE HOUSE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A WOMAN in the house, to me, Is like the sunlight on the sea, Is like the roses by the road, Is like the laughter with the load.

As stars make beautiful the night, And flowers, gardens give delight, Yes, all that beauty does for you A woman in the house will do.

A woman in the house will make An altar there for hearts that ache, Will build a shrine amid life's sin To worship God, and ask Him in.

For you who wander, you who weep, A woman in the house will keep A candle burning evermore— She is a lighthouse on the shore.

A woman in the house is like The sun's declining rays that strike Your windows when the day is old And turn your window panes to gold.

A man may build a house of h's; A woman in the house it is, Through joy and sorrow, dawn and gloam, That takes his house and makes it home.

MUMMIES FOUND IN KENTUCKY CAVE

Catacomb Discovered Under Ruins of Old City.

To students of American antiquities it is probably of general knowledge that the city of Lexington, Ky., stands nearly on the site of an ancient town, which, if one may judge by the wide range of its circumvallatory works and the quantity of ground it must have occupied, was one of great extent and magnificence.

It may, however, well be doubted if many of even such students are aware that in the year 1775 there was discovered there a catacomb containing a number of mummies, preserved by the art of embalming to as great a state of perfection as was known among the ancient Egyptians, 1,800 years before the Christian era.

This extraordinary find was made by some of the early settlers, whose curiosity being excited by something unusual in the character of certain large stones, seeming to cover the entrance to a cavern of some sort, removed the same, coming to others whose singular appearance for stones in a natural state caused them to push their investigations further. These obstructions being taken away, the mouth of an apparently deep and gloomy cave was discovered to their gaze. This proved to be a catacomb, formed in the bowels of the limestone rock, about 15 feet below the surface of the earth.

Having added to their numbers and provided lights, they descended and entered, without further obstruction, a spacious apartment, where they were astounded to find that at the sides and extreme ends were formed niches and compartments occupied by figures representing men.

Their surprise was much greater when, on further research and inquiry, it was found that these figures were actual mummies in the condition before stated. Most unfortunately, the original discoverers were uneducated people and, it being at a period when a bloody and inveterate war was being carried on between the Indians and the whites, supposing, in their ignorance, that these were the remains of some tribe of Indians, a revengeful and vindictive spirit urged them to destruction.—Adventure Magazine.

Believed in Books

Even at an early age Andrew Carnegie believed in books. The impulse to found libraries—so we learn from Mr. A. B. Farquhar in the "First Million the Hardest"—came to him when he was only a messenger boy. Early one morning, says Mr. Farquhar, Carnegie was sent with a dispatch to Mr. Anderson, the steel master of Allegheny, with instructions to wait for an answer. Mr. Anderson had returned late the night before, and the butler said he could not wake him. Young Carnegie walked into the library, and became immersed in a volume on steel making and the tremendous advantages of steel over iron. When Mr. Anderson finally came down with his answer the boy turned and apologized for having taken the book. Mr. Anderson asked whether he was interested in steel. "Oh, yes, it is fascinating to me," Carnegie replied. "Take the book home and read it, and return it when you are through with it," said Mr. Anderson. Carnegie did so, and was told to take another; then Mr. Anderson said he might have access to the library. Carnegie then and there made up his mind that if he ever became wealthy he would found libraries, and give young men the same opportunity that he was enjoying.

Ripening

It is one of the charms of art that it is not to be completely understood. In an age in which so high a value is put upon facts, information, positive knowledge, it is a relief to have still reserved to us a place apart where it is not necessary to know all. . . . The truth of art . . . does not seem to be all known, finished and finally stated, but on the contrary to be ever growing, more rich in significance, more profound in substance, disclosing heaven over heaven and depth under depth. The greatest books share our lives, and grow old with us; we read them over and over, and at each decade it is a new book that we find there, so much as it gained in meaning from experience of life, from ripening judgment, from the change of seasons in the soul.—George E. Woodberry, Jr "The Heart of Man and Other Papers."

A Poor Substitute

The motorcar was bumping and jolting along the country road at a pace of about four miles an hour. The road seemed unworthy of the name—it was more like a cart-track. There were holes nearly everywhere, and where there weren't holes there were ruts.

The passenger in the back seat began to get very fed up after about an hour spent in traveling in this way. He leaned over the driver and said: "Are you sure we've taken the best road?"

"I'm sure we've not," replied the driver. "But I'm pretty sure that some one else has, and a nice thing they've left in its place."

Lost His Ca

"Gentlemen of the jury," said a blundering barrister in a suit about a lot of hogs, "there were just 86 hogs in that drove; please to remember that fact—86 hogs—just exactly three times as many as there are in the jury box."

A WOMAN IN THE HOUSE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A WOMAN in the house, to me, is like the sunlight on the sea, is like the roses by the road, is like the laughter with the load.
As stars make beautiful the night, and flowers, gardens give delight, yes, all that beauty does for you a woman in the house will do.
A woman in the house will make an altar there for hearts that ache, will build a shrine amid life's sin To worship God, and ask Him in.
For you who wander, you who weep, a woman in the house will keep A candle burning evermore— She is a lighthouse on the shore.
A woman in the house is like The sun's declining rays that strike Your windows when the day is old And turn your window panes to gold.
A man may build a house of his; A woman in the house it is, Through joy and sorrow, dawn and gloom, That takes his house and makes it home.

MUMMIES FOUND IN KENTUCKY CAVE

Catacomb Discovered Under Ruins of Old City.

To students of American antiquities it is probably of general knowledge that the city of Lexington, Ky., stands nearly on the site of an ancient town, which, if one may judge by the wide range of its circumvallatory works and the quantity of ground it must have occupied, was one of great extent and magnificence.
It may, however, well be doubted if many of even such students are aware that in the year 1775 there was discovered there a catacomb containing a number of mummies, preserved by the art of embalming to as great a state of perfection as was known among the ancient Egyptians, 1,800 years before the Christian era.
This extraordinary find was made by some of the early settlers, whose curiosity being excited by something unusual in the character of certain large stones, seeming to cover the entrance to a cavern of some sort, removed the same, coming to others whose singular appearance caused them to push their investigations further. These obstructions being taken away, the mouth of an apparently deep and gloomy cave was disclosed to their gaze. This proved to be a catacomb, formed in the bowels of the limestone rock, about 15 feet below the surface of the earth.
Having added to their numbers and provided lights, they descended and entered, without further obstruction, a spacious apartment, where they were astounded to find that at the sides and extreme ends were formed niches and compartments occupied by figures representing men.
Their surprise was much greater when, on further research and inquiry, it was found that these figures were actual mummies in the condition before stated. Most unfortunately, the original discoverers were uneducated people and, it being at a period when a bloody and inveterate war was being carried on between the Indians and the whites, supposing, in their ignorance, that these were the remains of some tribe of Indians, a revengeful and vindictive spirit urged them to destruction.—Adventure Magazine.
Believed in Books
Even at an early age Andrew Carnegie believed in books. The impulse to found libraries—so we learn from Mr. A. B. Farquhar in the "First Million the Hardest"—came to him when he was only a messenger boy. Early one morning, says Mr. Farquhar, Carnegie was sent with a dispatch to Mr. Anderson, the steel master of Allegheny, with instructions to wait for an answer. Mr. Anderson had returned late the night before, and the butler said he could not wake him. Young Carnegie walked into the library, and became immersed in a volume on steel making and the tremendous advantages of steel over iron. When Mr. Anderson finally came down with his answer the boy turned and apologized for having taken the book. Mr. Anderson asked whether he was interested in steel. "Oh, yes, it is fascinating to me," Carnegie replied. "Take the book home and read it, and return it when you are through with it," said Mr. Anderson. Carnegie did so, and was told to take another; then Mr. Anderson said he might have access to the library. Carnegie then and there made up his mind that if he ever became wealthy he would found libraries, and give young men the same opportunity that he was enjoying.

Ripening

It is one of the charms of art that it is not to be completely understood. In an age in which so high a value is put upon facts, information, positive knowledge, it is a relief to have still reserved to us a place apart where it is not necessary to know all. . . . The truth of art . . . does not seem to be all known, finished and finally stated, but on the contrary to be ever growing, more rich in significance, more profound in substance, disclosing heaven over heaven and depth under depth. The greatest books share our lives, and grow old with us; we read them over and over, and at each decade it is a new book that we find there, so much has it gained in meaning from experience of life, from ripening judgment, from the change of seasons in the soul.—George E. Woodberry, in "The Heart of Man and Other Papers."

Carnauba Wax.

Scales of wax form on the under side of the young leaves of the Carnauba palm of South America. This wax drops off when shaken. Being collected in this way, the wax is melted into masses and is often used to adulterate beeswax. It is exported and used in the manufacture of candles.

Make Your Own Gas for Cooking

The Albert Lea Kitchenkook makes its own gas from common gasoline and produces a clear blue flame, entirely free from smoke, soot and odor. Saves hours of time in the kitchen every week because it is 50 to 100 per cent faster and hotter than other oil or gas-line stoves.

The Kitchenkook has no wicks; no chimneys to waste the heat by radiation, and the burners do not clog. Very reasonable prices.

The above illustration is a reproduction of an actual photograph made while the stove was burning and demonstrates its unusual safety. Let us show you this faster, better, safer stove.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You use perfume?

You evidently don't use enough. Perfume is a lovely thing in moderation. The flowers profit by it, the world profits by it. Why shouldn't you add to the beauty of things too? Of course when perfume covers a deficiency of the sanitary code and when it annoys people, then it is the time to put on the stop code! Perfume is lovely when it is, but baleful when it "ain't."

So

Your get-away here is: That they only laugh and don't complain.

From Pumice Island

Pumice Island, near Salton sea, five miles northwest of California, in southern California, contributes thirty carloads of pumice to the commerce of the world each year. Pumice Island was once an island in Salton sea, but now, three miles inland, it is entirely surrounded by dry land. However, it retains its old name on local maps. Only a few years ago it was nothing more than a volcanic peak, rising above the waters of the inland sea, but the waters have been receding so rapidly that it now stands three miles back from the shore.

PROBATE NOTICE

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the county of Isosco

At a session of said court held at the Probate Office in the city of Tawas City in said County, on the 15th day of May A. D. 1924

Present: Hon. David Davison, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Mathias Schneider, deceased, Anthony Schneide, having filed in said court his petition praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described.

It is ordered, That the 7th day of June A. D. 1924, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause, why a license to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted;

It is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Tawas Herald a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

EAST TAWAS PUBLIC SCHOOLS FORGING AHEAD

Smith-Hughes Agricultural Man Heads New Department

The East Tawas Public Schools have taken another step toward the fulfillment of its aims to render definite service to the children and youth of this community. Last year commercial courses, short hand, bookkeeping, typewriting, etc., were introduced which have proven very popular and are now thoroughly established. One of the finest rooms in the building was also fitted out for manual training and some splendid work has been done in establishing a manual art department in these schools.

These improvements are but a part of the scheme being followed to connect these schools vitally with the industrial, commercial and agricultural life of this vicinity.

For the ensuing year another forward step has been taken. The laboratory is being remade and re-furnished to include agricultural, botany and economical zoology, soils as well as physics and chemistry.

This laboratory work shop for the teaching of the sciences will be in charge of a graduate of the Michigan Agricultural college, a Smith-Hughes man who will be "on the job" twelve months of the year. Farm projects, such as potato growing, poultry clubs, dairy inspection, orchard spraying, etc., will be started next year. It is expected that in time the influence of these courses and these projects will be felt in the entire agricultural district of Isosco county.

As the school is now organized, no pupil in the vicinity need incur the expense of going away to a business college for his commercial training. He can get this training here in the East Tawas high school. The same may be said of mechanical drawing and manual arts. The proof of it is at hand. An exhibit of pupils work is being made for the benefit of pupils and patrons during the closing week of the year at the high school building to which the public is invited.

The East Tawas high school has not sacrificed her academic work but strengthened it. As a result of inspection by the Michigan University committee, the East Tawas high school is approved for another term of two years. This is an assurance that pupils desiring to enter the University on completion of their high school course will make no mistake by selecting the East Tawas high school for their preparation.

A graduate of an approved high school may also find here a place for post graduate work. The Isosco county normal located here is giving the very same training that he would get in the first year at any state normal. One year in this county normal is accepted by any of the state normals as ten units of credit towards a life certificate. This one year in this institution also qualifies the student under the new law which requires at least one year of professional training to continue teaching or to enter the profession.

Any student desiring gilt edge opportunity in high school or in teacher training beyond the high school will do well to enter the East Tawas high school or the Isosco County normal.

Circulars or further information may be had for the asking from G. A. Pollard, secretary of the board of education of J. K. Osgerby, superintendent.

Hugo's Precocity.
Victor Hugo, the celebrated French writer, wrote his first tragedy, "Irtamene," when he was only fourteen years old; and when only seventeen he founded a fortnightly review called "The Literary Conservative." The promise of literary greatness which Hugo gave as a youth was entirely fulfilled as he grew older and took first rank among his contemporaries.

Popular Praise.
Money rewards, no matter how large, do not seem to get public duties half so well performed as popular praise.
