ALABASTER GIRL MEETS TRAGIC END IN DETROIT

Hilma Lake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lake of Alabaster, who had been living in Detroit, and Jay Daubenspeck, of the Sterling Detective agency of Detroit, were killed early Sunday morning, near Seven-Mile and Meyers roads. The girl and her companion had attended a dance at the Rumanian hall that evening and were driving homeward.

The body of Daubenspeck was found 300 feet from the car. Twelve bullets had been fired at him, some from the front and some from the rear. The girl was found a short distance on Rhodes Avenue. She had been wounded several times. Apparently both had fled from the car under a rain of bullets.

Robbery was not the motive for the slaying, as money, watch and ring were untouched in Daubenspeck's pockets. Circumstantial evidence points to Samuel Pace, an acquaintance of Miss Lake. Pace is alleged to have waved a revolver and threatened her in a jealous rage a few days before. He is being held by the police.

The body of Miss Lake was brought to Alabaster Tuesday and funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Community church at Alabaster. Rev. J. J. Strike of the East Tawas Methodist Episcopal church officiated.

A PIONEER OF IOSCO COUNTY

Written by Mrs. Jas. Charters in response to the roll call for the Literary club at Whittemore, January 23.

There are at least two sides in every pioneer's life—First, the grand, the wonderful, the heroic, the beautiful. Second, the pathetic. Third the sordid, which is the one we all see the most of because it is nearest to us; the hard, hard constant toil, the ill-paid, never ending struggle with penury and want; the ever-losing battle against debt and disease and advancing age, when weary and toil-worn, our battle scarred pioneers will lay down their worn out tools, and folding their crippled hands over their stilled hearts, will go to the better land where their homes are already built.

The pathetic side is the one that appeals to me; where so much is done for those coming after; and the doer is forgotten and his work is unappreciated, or misunderstood, and where so many fall out of the running all along the way.

The wonderful glorious, epic side, the heroic, beautiful side, is seen best at a distance with the lenses of sympathy and love and understanding, for the pioneer himself is too pathetically weary to see the glory

FRED BURNELL CONKLIN

Fred Burnell Conklin, well known Tawas township farmer, died Saturday, January 30, after a lingering illness of 14 months. Paralysis was the cause of death.

Fred Burnell Conklin was born in East Tawas, Michigan on June 7, 1876, and died in his home last Saturday at the age of 49 years, 7 months and 23 days.

He was married to Miss Johanna Timreck on November 29, 1906. To this union two children were born, Albert and Donald. His wife preceded him in death about five months ago, which makes this event particularly sad.

The deceased was brought up in East Tawas and spent most of his life here, excepting a few years which he spent out West. He was a devoted father and husband and considered no sacrifice to great for his loved ones. He was taken sick in November 1924 with creeping paralysis of which he was a patient sufferer.

He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, Albert and Donald, and two brothers, Charles Conklin of East Tawas and Raymond Conklin of St. Louis, Mo., besides a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Feb. 2, from the farm home, Rev. John J. Strike, officiating, and was laid to rest in the family lot in the Tawas City cemetery.

"IRON HORSE"

While the first transcontinental railroad was under construction in 1865, General Sherman, back from his march through Atlanta to the seas, remarked of the railway: "It should be unwilling to buy a ticket over it for my grandchildren." In five years, he rode over the line with General Grenville M. Dodge who was construction engineer of the Union Pacific.

In the William Fox picture of this stirring period in American history "The Iron Horse," at the State Theatre, Walter Rodgers plays the role of General Dodge, the friend of track layers and the enemy of bad Indians. The picture presents the colorful life with vivid realism, most of its incidents being based on actual facts of history.

Fox research workers found in their work of gathering data, the statement of William M. Thayer, in his "Marvels of the New West," to the effect that: "The construction of the Union Pacific across the continent was the greatest marvel of our age. The consummation of the enterprise settled the high destiny of the New West. From that moment old things began to be new. Progress was wonderful, and now it sweeps on more grandly than ever."

"The Iron Horse" will play a limited engagement at the State Theatre, Sunday and Monday, Feb. 7 and 8. Matinee Sunday, 10 and 20c. Evening 20 and 40c.

Radio fans are wondering what the static will be when all those Ford planes finally take to the air.

BASEBALL MEETING CALLED FOR SUNDAY

President Finet has called a meeting of the Northeastern Michigan Base Ball League for Sunday afternoon, Feb. 7, at 3:00 p. m., Standard time, at the Holland hotel.

Important matter for the coming season will be discussed, such as getting in on the Bay City schedule of the Mint league for a game at Tawas and also the Flint Mint league for a game at Twining.

FRANK PRESTON JOHNSON, LECTURER, HERE TUESDAY

Frank Preston Johnson, who lectures here on the Lyceum course on Tuesday evening, presents a sane, common-sense discussion, void of all rant and prejudice, of the problems that confront the average community.

His community lecture is "different." It deals with the subject from an entirely new angle.

Mr. Johnson has built a lecture around the proposition that community spirit is the new basis of American liberty—that by becoming neighbors in reality and learning to understand each other we will solve all problems and maintain liberty.

Investigative newspaper work has given him a national viewpoint. It has taken him into the great steel and coal districts of Pittsburgh; the wheat city of Fargo, N. D.; leading corn centers such as Des Moines, Cedar Rapids and Sioux City, while a period spent in Atlanta, the cotton capital of the Old South, has yielded valuable information regarding that section as an agricultural factor.

In all sections of the agricultural states he found chambers of commerce working on the theory that the way to build prosperity is to attract factories and increase the population. Many such communities, he states, have become hospitals for sick industries, while the greatest factories in the world—the farms—have been neglected.

The Johnson lectures are constructive. They point the way to community prosperity. They are filled with illustrations of American communities that have surmounted the barriers and are going forward.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conklin, Sr. and family.

WHITTEMORE TO VOTE ON ELECTRIC FRANCHISE

On Thursday, February 25th the people of Whittemore will vote on an electric light franchise. The franchise to be voted on would grant McKenzie the right to bring electric power from a contemplated power plant on the AuGres river and distribute it in the city.

Mr. McKenzie owns the property for the power site and has acquired leases on land included in the flood basin. Preliminary surveys and soundings are being made and as soon as the franchise is accepted work will commence on the construction. The franchise calls for the delivery of electric power on or before August 31st, 1926.

The site of the proposed power plant is about two miles from the city. At that point a dam can be built with a 25 foot head, and the reservoir would extend about two and one-half miles up the river, providing ample water for continuous 24-hour power service.

If the franchise is accepted Mr. McKenzie has agreed to "white coal" at "such rates as grantee and the city council may from time to time agree upon." A schedule of rates similar to the one used by the Consumers Power Company has been written in the franchise.

How to Use Long Distance Economically

In your use of Long Distance, you can get better and cheaper service if you know the way in which Long Distance Messages have been classified for your convenience.

"ANYONE" CALLS—When you do not need to speak with a particular person but will talk with anyone who answers the call, tell your operator you wish to make an "Anyone" call. "Anyone" calls can be made quickly and cost less.

"PARTICULAR PERSON" CALLS—These are calls in which you tell the operator you wish to speak to a particular person. "Particular Person" calls cost more and take longer than "Anyone" calls because more time and expense are required to locate the person wanted.

On a "Particular Person" call, if you do not talk with your party, through no fault of the Telephone Company, a "Report" charge applies, providing you are given information concerning the person called.

APPOINTMENT CALLS and Messenger Service—You can arrange an appointment to talk at a definite time by telling the operator. You can have a messenger bring your party to the telephone by requesting "Messenger Service." Both of these calls cost more than "Anyone" or "Particular Person" calls.

TRACING ANCESTRY OF THOROUGHBRED

Famous Race Horses Go Back to Three Stallions.

The Darley Arabian, the Byerly Turk, and the Godolphin Barb are the progenitors of all the great thoroughbred families.

Each of these three stallions produced a line of breed. Incidentally it is interesting to know that the thoroughbred, as a separate breed of horse just as distinct from its Arabian ancestry as it is from a Clydesdale or a Percheron, was practically created in England, during the space of 100 years by careful breeding and a system of great race meetings, practically continuous throughout the year, which rigorously weeded out the unfit. A thoroughbred is a horse or mare whose pedigree is registered in the Stud Book started in 1791 by Messrs. Weatherby, the official agents of the English Jockey club. In its ancestries are traced back as far as 1689.

The Byerly Turk, a magnificent charger ridden in the Irish wars of King William III in 1689 by a Captain Byerly, after whom he was named, was the ancestor, among others, of a famous race horse named Herod, founder of a line of thoroughbreds. The Darley Arabian, a genuine Arab, was a bay stallion imported from Aleppo by a Mr. Darley of Yorkshire about ten years later. He was the sire of Flying Childers, an unbeaten race horse, and also the ancestor of Eclipse, one of the greatest race horses of all time—"Eclipse first and the rest nowhere." Eclipse, a tall chestnut, never beaten in 18 great races, had an enormous number of descendants, many of them derby winners, and his line is now scattered all over the racing world still bearing occasionally the distinctive black markings of their ancestor.

The third of these founders of the thoroughbred was the Godolphin Barb, a brown bay of 15 hands with an unusually high chest, whom a breeder discovered dragging a cart in the streets of Paris and sold to Lord Godolphin. He had been foaled on the Barbary coast about 1742 and was another ancestor of Eclipse as well as of Matchem, the founder of another line of thoroughbreds. All race horses on the turf today trace their ancestry in the direct male line to the Byerly Turk, the Darley Arabian or the Godolphin Barb.—Everybody's Magazine.

Birds Flock to England

Winter birds have been flying over the British isles in great numbers recently, replacing the birds of summer, which have flown long since to southern Europe or Africa.

Starlings, thrushes, red wings and field fares are the most numerous among the birds that seek a winter home in England and Scotland. During mild winters they live on insects, and so are of great service to farmers and fruit growers, and when the winter is severe, as this one has started out to be, they feed on the berries from England's numerous hedges. Farmers are complaining of a falling off recently of the number of lapwings in England, since this bird is one of their greatest aids in the battle against insect life. Most of the lapwings go to southwestern Europe during the winter, and there it is reported they are being killed in great numbers by hunters.

Movement for New Era

Italy's Mazzinian league, which, despite the radicalism and republicanism of its namesake, is pro-fascist and pro-monarchical, has made an interesting proposal to Sig. Mussolini. It suggests that the premier summon from all parts of the world representatives of the Italian race, and from the Capitoline hill, the hearthstone of the ancient Roman empire, proclaim the "charter of the new era, the duties of man." The "rights of man," proclaimed by the French revolution, "was only half of what the modern world needs, according to the Mazzinians, and the French revolution, whose work was continued by Mazzini, has been completed and made perfect by the Fascist revolution. Discipline, obedience and absolute loyalty to the nation and the state are among the duties the league wishes to have proclaimed.

Canary Honored in Death

Moses and the Bulrushes

The bulrushes in the story of Moses were probably papyrus. This plant is a kind of perennial rush which grows in swampy places, has a small triangular stem and reaches a height of 6 to 10 feet. It was formerly found on the banks of the Nile and still is found in Syria.

NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED WHILE FILMING "IRON HORSE"

Included as part of the civilization of Dodge, Nevada, during the filming of "The Iron Horse" there, the William Fox cast directed by John Ford, had a daily newspaper. The sheet was printed on a multi-graph machine and edited by Frank Murray and Colin Chase, members of the cast. The are department was in charge of J. Farrell MacDonald, the "Corporal Casey" of the picture, who is an accomplished artist, with paintings now on display in Hollywood.

The life of the little newspaper was eleven months, during which its news columns carried the stories of two births, one of them a papoose, two deaths, two weddings and numerous accidents. But for the most part, the columns were devoted to humor and contributions from members of the cast, many of which were illustrated by Mr. MacDonald.

The concluding editorial is characteristic of the strenuous life of the publishers. "The roof of the building fell in with a sickening thud just as the 'head pressman' was bringing out the final edition." It reads: "The moving of the gigantic presses and other miscellaneous equipment used in publishing this great metropolitan daily was accomplished in record time. Never before in the history of journalism, from Greeley to Hearst, has such a monumental feat been accomplished." Frank Murray superintended the moving of the editorial rooms and Colin Chase moved the aforementioned gigantic presses.

An Explanation

Women learn to swim sooner than men because the men have to teach.

A PIONEER OF IOSCO COUNTY of it himself. Three generations ago they came here, he and his wife, for without her, he is nothing; they built their home nest, begot their children and labored with the strength of their youth to rear them in comfort and in the hope that the children would begin where the parents left off. They have cleared the farms, conquered the forest; made the roads and the bridges, that we may travel in comfort; set the orchards that we may have luscious fruits; planted shade trees that posterity may enjoy them; filled the broad fields that pasture and feed innumerable herds of cattle; cleaned stables and separated lakes of milk and cream that the little children and the people of the great cities may have pure wholesome milk and other luxuries. Do you see the school houses and the little white churches that dot our land? Our pioneers built them--by their own hands they have built them, for the benefit of the community and the nation at large; and they have performed all the duties that good citizenship requires of them.

Ladies, I know all the pioneers of Ogemaw county, and a few here, but one I know--a little better every day James Charters, Sr., most of you have known him longer than I have.

He has done all these things, aided by his wife, who, worn out by the too strenuous life, at last went to her reward. May her soul rest in peace. And they may not look at all poetic to you, nor to themselves. But I, his wife, can see much that is praise worthy and beautiful in their brave lives. Joys and sorrows, of birth and life and death they have known; many mistakes they have made, and many successes they have had, and through it all, Mr. Charters has kept his integrity, laboring early and late, going manfully and uncomplainingly every demand on his strength and always doing his best. And what more can a man do?
