THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

BABY ON THE TABLE

SOME old-fashioned nurses strongly object to having anyone pick up the baby and lay him on the table in their sportive moods. The old-fashioned nurse regards it as an omen of death. This superstition is merely one arising from the sympathetic magic of association coupled with the fact—the folk-lore fact—that a young child has its soul as yet very loosely embodied in its body and is, therefore, extremely liable to the operation of all sorts of magical influences; which idea appears in hundreds of superstitions. The baby laid out on the table suggests the baby laid out in death and, as we know, in a sympathetic magic an association of ideas is liable to bring about an association fact.

It is a very simple thing to pick up the baby and playfully lay him on the table and such an act ought not to be considered ominous; but to the really superstitious the most ordinary action may become a portent of evil and this superstition well illustrates the saying of Addison: "We suffer as much from trifling accidents as from real evils." A screech-owl at midnight has alarmed a family more than a band of robbers; nay the voice of a cricket has struck more terrors than a roaring lion. There is nothing so inconceivable which may not appear dreadful to a mind that is filled with omens and prognostics. A rusty nail or a crooked pin shoot up into prodigies.

TWO IN STATE AWARDED VAIL MEDAL FOR 1925

CASSOPOLIS 'PHONE OPERATOR AND POWERS LINEMAN ARE HONORED

OUTSTANDING ACTS NOTED

Cadillac, Holly, Benton Harbor and Ironwood Employees of Bell Commended.

Award of the Theodore N. Vail memorial medal of bronze to two Michigan telephone people, an operator and a lineman, for particularly outstanding deeds of public service during 1925, is announced by President Franz C. Kuhn of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

The operator is Mrs. Josephine L. August, an employee of the Dowagiac Telephone Company, at Cassopolis, Mich., who, the night of November 23, last, frustrated an attempt by bandits to burglarize the First National Bank of Cassopolis, over which the telephone central office is located.

George Lofblad, a lineman at Powers, Mich., was awarded the medal for saving a life, that of a companion who had been drawn beneath the waters of a whirlpool in the Cedar river, in the Northern Peninsula.

Mrs. August, hearing the bandits at work in the bank offices below her switchboard, attempted to call the sheriff and the fire department at Cassopolis, but found that the lines had been cut. After several attempts she aroused a residential subscriber of the telephone service and asked him to carry the alarm to the sheriff's office, which he did.

Bandit's Attempt Foiled

Hearing shots fired at the alarm messenger, Mrs. August threw a switch, provided by the city, which turned on a number of red lights in the streets and alleys, designed to attract the attention of the night patrolman in emergencies, and then attempted to notify surrounding towns of the bandit raid for the purpose of asking for help. The toll circuits, excepting one to Dowagiac, had been cut, also, evidently by the bandits, but she notified the telephone manager at Dowagiac, who aroused the countryside, villages and towns.

Meanwhile, through Mrs. August's activities, Cassopolis residents had been aroused thoroughly and the thugs were interrupted at their work and fled, escaping in an automobile. They failed to obtain any of the funds of the bank.

While bathing in the Cedar river, on June 7, 1925, a companion of Mr. Lofblad, unable to swim, ventured beyond his depth and was drawn into the vortex of a whirlpool. He was disappearing the third time when the telephone lineman plunged into the swirl of waters and brought the drowning man safely to shore.

Public presentation of the medals, the twenty-third and twenty-fourth given in Michigan in six years, will be made on dates later to be announced. The award to Mrs. August is of particular significance in that it is the first made to a person not an employee of a Bell company. The

Little Cochineal Used

Cochineal as a coloring is still used to some extent. Formerly it was much employed for coloring wool or silk a scarlet or crimson; but owing to the cost of its production and to the fact that the colors, although brilliant, are not very enduring, this dye has been greatly replaced by cheaper coal-tar products, and for this reason the cochineal industry has been rapidly declining.

WHO SAID

"Serrvility is to devotion
What thy:oorisly is to virtue."

The author of this condemnation of the fawning serrvility of the times, was a woman—Delphine Gay Girardin, famous novelist of France, the daughter of a novelist, and the wife of a journalist and politician of France, Emile de Girardin.

The mother of Madame Girardin was Madame Sophie Gay, a French authoress who was born in Paris the same year as the signing of the American Declaration of Independence, 1776. She was at first married to a financier, but six years later divorced him to marry Monsieur Gay, who was the receiver general under the French empire. The salon of this noted woman of letters was the resort of the leading literary people of the period. Madame Gay died in Paris in 1852.

The husband of Madame Girardin was born in Switzerland in the year 1802. He was connected politically and as a promoter with many different papers and periodicals in France. The most successful of these was a newspaper, La Presse, which voiced the conservative opinions of the day. So violent were the controversies fought out in the columns of this sheet that a duel was precipitated between Girardin and Armand Carrel which proved fatal to the latter.

In politics, Madame Girardin's husband played many parts and once he was fined 5,000 francs for an attack made on the imperial government in the newspaper, La Liberté.

Madame Girardin was born in 1804 and died in 1855. Her best known works are: "Le Lorgnon," "Le Marquis de Pantanges," "La Canne de M. Balzac," "Il ne faut pas Jouer avec Douleur," and "Margarite." In addition she contributed to her husband's newspaper, La Presse.—Wayne D. McMurray.

Harmless Viper
 Contrary to superstition regarding this reptile, the spreading viper is harmless. It is not poisonous and the teeth are too short to inflict a wound in case the snake did strike at a person. One of the peculiar habits of this snake is that of feigning death, which it accomplishes by rolling over on its back. When turned over it immediately resumes this absurd position.

FIRST PURSUIT GROUP GOES TO OSCODA, MAY 15
 Maneuvers of the First Pursuit group will commence at Oscoda about the middle of May and will continue until July 4th. The operation of the army planes will be similar to that of previous years, and will consist of gunnery practice and the war game.

Custom Started by King
 At the first performance of "The Messiah" in Westminster abbey, the effect produced upon George II was such that he started to his feet and remained standing until its conclusion. His example was followed by the entire congregation, and it has been customary ever since to stand during the performance of this chorus.

Caves of Elephanta
 Not far from Bombay, India, are the famous caves of Elephanta. Elephanta is an island long held as a sacred place by Orientals. The name was given by the Portuguese from a colossal sculpture of an elephant. A series of subterranean temples are hewn right out of the solid rock. Columns of the natural rock are left standing to support the roof, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mexico Oldest City
 The oldest city in the New world is Mexico City, which antedates St. Augustine by more than two centuries. Mexico City dates from about 1325 A. D., when the Aztecs, looking for a favorable site, saw perched on a cactus an eagle devouring a snake. The omen was interpreted to mean that this was to be the site of their city.

More Sweets, Less Sentiment
 Father (looking over bills)—Hello! Five dollars for a box of candy that boy of ours sent to his sweetheart. Good heavens, Jane, how things have changed since we were young. In those days all a young fellow had to do was to hand her a lozenge with "I love you" stamped upon it.—Boston Transcript.

In the JUNGLE
 With Cheerups and the Quixies
 by Grace Bliss Stewart

IT WAS A RAINY DAY
 IT WAS pouring. Not a ray of sunshine greeted Cheerups when he opened his eyes. All the world was gray, and nothing could be heard but the sound of great drops tinkling on his tiny roof.
 "I guess I shall have to stay at home today, sure enough," chuckled he, wagging his topknot; "and no visitors will come either, unless the ducks manage to get out. I feel a trifle moist, but it's worse for the Quixies out there on their spiderwebs in all this rain. Oh, Brighteyes, Quickear, Sofffoot, Sniffsniff, come here and get under as much cover as this summer house of mine offers!"
 The Quixies didn't take long in answering that call. They were all very

the great glossy leaves were fastened on two sides of the house in a twinkling, with strong grasses and bits of twisty vine, and the jolly little Quixies, all snug and warm, sat down in a circle about Cheerups, their eyes shining, and their ears pricked for a story.
 "Most stories begin 'Once upon a time,'" said Cheerups, beaming, for he was enjoying himself immensely. "but this one starts with just 'Yesterday.' Do you boys remember Mr. Hoopoe, who came for a singing lesson?"
 "Remember him? I should say so!" piped Quickear. "I was out on the edge of the desert eating prickly pears with Jacky Monk, and I heard him all that way. Goodness, but he made a noise, worse than Fourth of July back home."

wet except Sniffsniff, who said he had found a big mushroom to crawl under.
 "Now, boys, Old Brother East Wind has just whispered to me that he's going to keep this rain up all day. What shall we do? Supposing we play games!"
 "Oh, please, Mr. Cheerups," begged Brighteyes, "tell us a story!"
 "Yes, yes, a story," chimed the others in chorus, clapping their hands and squealing with delight.
 "Oh, well, if it's a story you are wanting, you provoking young rascals, I suppose I can find one tucked away in my head somewhere," said Cheerups, smiling. "But I am getting decidedly damp on one side, and if you want a story, you will have to keep your story-teller dry in some way."
 "I know how," cried Quickear. "We'll get some big leaves and hang them like curtains on the side of the house where the rain comes in." Before Cheerups could suggest that they would get all wet while doing it, they were off and back again with the leaves; almost before he had time to put on his little red shoes and straighten up his topknot for the day. Then

"There's quite a remarkable story about Mr. Hoopoe," said Cheerups hastily, trying to change the subject. It made him a little homesick to think of the Fourth of July, and he saw a tear in Sofffoot's eye.
 "Well, in Arabia, which is a country lying beyond the Desert of Sahara and the Red sea, far away from our jungle the people have a legend about Mr. Hoopoe and King Solomon, who lived long, long ago. Once when King Solomon was travelling through the desert—for other lands have deserts, too you know—he grew very faint from the hot rays of big bright Mr. Sun. Then a flock of Hoopoes came and formed a screen just above his head to protect him. King Solomon was so delighted and thought it was so kind of the Hoopoes that he asked what he could do for them as a reward. What do you suppose the foolish things asked for? Why, crowns of gold upon their heads! Of course, the king granted their request and they were very happy and proud of themselves for a while, looking into all the pools and even the dewdrops to catch their reflections. But soon men began to trap them and hunt them to get their golden crowns. The Hoopoes were most dreadfully frightened then and some of them went back to King Solomon and begged that he would take away the horrid crowns. The kind king listened to their troubles of course, and gave them crowns of feathers instead of their golden ones. Ever since then these birds have worn brown crests with white and black tips. Didn't you notice Mr. Hoopoe's yesterday?"

"Oh, yes, Mr. Cheerups, we did," cried the Quixies in glee, "for we were peeking from behind the breadfruit tree all the time, except Quickear, who was away eating fruit. Thank you, sir; that was a lovely story."
 "But you see now, don't you," said Cheerups, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "that

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS
 By H. IRVING KING

THREE BROTHERS
 ASK any man totally ignorant of his ancestry for any distance back, and the chances are ten to one he will tell you: "There were three brothers came over, one settled in such a place" and then he gives the place of settlement of the three. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred this is not true and moreover the man has no actual reason to suppose it so. But he firmly believes it. The three brothers' ancestry is in fact a superstition which seems to be thoroughly ingrained in the human race—for what reason it is hard to say; probably its source lies in the old magic of arithmancy. Nations as well as individuals and families look to the "three brothers" as the source of their existence and have done so as far back as history and tradition can take us.
 Perhaps the Biblical story of the three brothers, sons of Noah, who continued the human race after the flood, may account in some measure for the persistence of the three brothers legend today. But it must be observed that Hesiod speaks of three brothers, the offspring of the union of earth and heaven, from whom the human race is descended; and the ancient Germans declared that their various tribes were all descended from three brothers. And so on illustrations might be multiplied. In fact from most ancient times men and nations when of untraced origin have been accustomed to begin the legend of their genesis with the words: "There were three brothers."

Ford Highest in Quality Lowest in Price
 Ford cars are built throughout of the finest materials that can be produced. The very best steels available are used in Ford manufacture. The plate glass for windshields and windows is as perfect as can be made. Upholstery material contains a larger percentage of wool than is ordinarily specified—even for much higher priced cars. The basic features of Ford design have never been improved upon by any manufacturer.
 No other car offers greater dependability. The Ford car has won the favor of millions of users under every conceivable motoring condition. Its convenience is known and appreciated the world over; its performance is taken for granted.
 Such quality is possible at Ford prices because every operation, from mining of ore to final assembly, is under direct control of the Ford Motor Company.
 Iron is taken from Ford mines in Michigan; coal from the Company's mines in Kentucky and West Virginia. Glass comes from Ford glass plants; wood from the Ford timber tracts in the North. Raw materials and finished products are carried over the Company's own transportation routes; coke ovens, blast furnaces, a steel mill, foundries and saw mills—all are part of this complete organization. There are even salvage plants, paper mill, cement plant, etc., to transform waste materials into useful by-products.
 In this way every possible economy is effected. Under no other circumstances could Ford quality be had at Ford prices.
