Persia's Real Name

Iran is the official designation of the kingdom of Persia at the present day. The name Iran was originally given to the great plateau in western Asia, comprising modern Persia, most of Afghanistan, and Beluchistan. It extends from the Elburz and Hindu Kush mountains on the north of the Persian gulf and Arabian sea on the south and from Kurdistan and the Tigris on the west to the Indus on the east.—Kansas City Star.

Simpler Names Wanted

Naturalists have started a movement to get simpler terminology for their branch of science. For instance they find themselves confronted with such names as "schedorhinotermes" and "neourhynchotrochips" which are examples of the use of prefixes with short rather well-known early genera. It is proposed to use codes which will be understood by all naturalists and shorten the prefixes greatly.

WHO WOULD HAVE GOLD?
By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

Who would have gold? It isn't hard to gain:
Go plant the seed, the Lord will send the rain
And fill the fertile fields with yellow grain.

Who gold desires? Then sow the rolling hills,
Or plant a little garden, if you will,
Or put a box upon a window-sill.

And plant a bulb, or give a root a hold,
And then some day observe a flower unfold,
It isn't hard to gain—who would have gold?

The summer sun will ripen all your wheat,
A yellow rose will make your garden sweet,
A yellow jonquil cheer your window-seat.

Upon your path the summer's petals fall,
And autumn's yellow leaves adorn the wall.

Who would have gold? It isn't hard at all!

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

BEAUTY AND EXPLORER

TRUESDALE ROVER, the famous explorer, traveler and hunter, never failed to dazzle and awe the young women who had the honor to be introduced to him at the social gatherings at which he was in such great demand. So now, sitting behind a potted palm with beautiful young Magazine Ootle at Mrs. Piggyback's reception, he prepared for an easy conquest as he launched into a description of the China sea snoutfish, which climbs aboard ships and bites sailors in half.

"Yes," she nodded brightly. "I've seen them. Aren't they exciting? But the sea oxen off the coast of Labrador are much more dangerous, because they hunt in flocks and butt holes into boats with their heads. Have you seen them?"

"Ber-no," admitted Rover. "Now, the flying weasel of southern Zanzibar is a curious animal. It flies revolving with its tail in its mouth, for great distances, and yet never has been known to grow dizzy."

"Oh, yes, I've seen them often," replied Magazine brightly. "But I prefer to watch the Hellespont camels of central Hindustan. They walk backwards, you know, on their front legs, yet never bump into a thing, somehow. You've seen them, of course?"

"Well—er—no," said Rover, reluctantly. "I must tell you of the Bulgarian goulash bug, which sings like a mouth organ and drinks through a straw. When I first—"

"Oh, yes!" she interrupted. "I've watched them often. Have you ever seen the Patagonian plumbog, which—"

"Stop!" cried Truesdale Rover hoarsely. "How on earth did you, at your age, get to see all of these things in all these places?"

"At the 'movies,' of course," replied Magazine, simply. "Shall we dance this one?"

But Rover had staggered off to phone in his resignation to the Geographical society.
