TAWAS CITY

SAYS FISHING SHOULD STOP IN SPAWNING TIME

Edward A. Trudell, secretary of Trudell Fisheries Co., Inc., of this city, has at all times urged more efficient laws to protect commercial fish in the Great Lakes, particularly the closing of waters to the taking of fish during the spawning season.

At the conference of commercial fishermen and the department of conservation held at Bay City a short time ago, Mr. Trudell was one of a very few fishermen who were favorable to the closed seasons recommended by the conservation commission at this meeting. On Mr. Trudell's return, he said:

"I have been in the fishing business for the past twenty years. During that time I have seen the Great Lakes gradually depleted of fish. I think the time is now ripe for our legislature to enact laws that will stop the taking of fish during spawning time. If such laws are enacted, in a few years the lakes will again have an abundance of fish.

"The present conservation commission has done more for conservation than had been accomplished in a long time before, and now is the time to regulate the taking of fish during the spawning season.

"We know what the closing of Tawas bay has done for perch.

After three years of closed water perch are more plentiful than ever before. You all know what the one buck law has done. You all know what the closed season on muskrat, partridge and pheasant has done. Now give the fish a chance to spawn naturally and you will see an increase in the number of fish. I don't believe in hatcheries for commercial fish. If the commercial fish could be taken care of in a manner similar to the way Conservation Officer R. Ellsworth took care of the trout at Silver creek, hatcheries would be all right, but this would be almost impossible, with the millions of eggs that are hatched each season.

We have noticed our herring being depleted more rapidly than other fish, although our catches of white fish and yellow pike are gradually dropping off. I would recommend a closed season on yellow pike or wall-eyes from January 1st to May 1st, inclusive; white fish from November 1st to January 1st, inclusive; herring from November 10th to January 1st, inclusive; trout from October 1st to November 10th, inclusive; perch and mullets are now protected by a closed season. Herring under 10 inches long should be protected.

"You mention these closed seasons to the so-called fishermen's associations of Michigan and they will make the statement that they would all have to quit the business if laws closing these seasons were enacted, but I say we will if they are not enacted. Unfortunately if these closed seasons are asked for by the department of conservation the fishermen's associations of Michigan with their high power lobbyists will be at Lansing and try to defeat the measure.

"I trust the representatives and senator from our district will make careful investigation before they vote against any closed season bill that the Department of Conservation may offer."

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB
The Twentieth Century Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Burley Wilson Saturday, January 19. Program as follows: Roll Call, A Favorite Picture; American Artists Miss Graham; Book Review, "Silver Slippers," Miss Crosby.
On account of so much sickness, this is our first meeting this year. Each member should make a special effort to be present.

COLLEEN MOORE HAS DRAMATIC ROLE IN 'LILAC TIME'
Acclaimed everywhere as one of the greatest film epics ever produced, "Lilac Time," First National's Colleen Moore—George Fitzmaurice special production, based on the stage play by Jane Cowl and Jane Murnin, has been booked for a featured run at the Family Theatre, East Tawas.
"Lilac Time" is by all odds a great special and the most pretentious in which Colleen Moore has appeared to date. Already known as the screen's foremost comedienne, her role in this production establishes her on the topmost pinnacle as a dramatic actress. The tenderness, pathos and realism of her characterization of the little French girl makes "Lilac Time" one of the most discussed pictures of the year and the Family is indeed fortunate in obtaining such an early booking.
Words aren't big enough to describe it—you must see it! Showing three days, January 20, 21, 22.

NOTICE
I will be out of town until Tuesday, January 29. Lenore Brabant.

SCHOOL NOTES

High School

The High School Athletic Association is planning an indoor carnival for the last week of February or the first week of March.

The semester examinations in the high school begin Tuesday morning of next week and continue until Friday noon.

"A teacher should be a man of great and varied qualifications. He should be actuated with the loftiest purposes and the purest aims, and have no other motive in pursuing his calling than the desire to be useful. He should possess the authority of a general in commanding, the sagacity of a statesman in legislation, and the impartiality of a judge in awarding justice. He should be as patient as Job in trouble, as meek as Moses under provocation and as zealous as Paul in the discharge of his duty. He should be a perfect gentleman in his manners, as neat as wax, as punctual as a clock, and as orderly as the solar system. He should have the eye of a hawk to detect delinquencies, the wisdom of a serpent to avoid giving offense, the firmness of a rock in maintaining the right, and the gentleness of a dove to all around him. He should be always pleasant, and ever wear a smile upon his face, even upon a rainy day and when afflicted with the toothache. He should have a great fondness for children, and love all children equally well. He should be a religious man without any sectarian bias, and have a thorough acquaintance with political affairs, without any leaning to any particular party. Those children, whom individually their parents are unable to control, he should be able to awe collectively with the glance of an eye and the movement of a finger. He should be able to govern all boys without force, and to attend to all things at once without distraction. He should be equally interested in all subjects, and capable of exciting an interest in all. He should understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and be able to answer, without a moment's consideration, all questions, grammatical, geographical, historical, chemical, botanical, mathematical, ethical, theological, political, astronomical, geological, chronological, meteorological and mythological. He should be a complete model of all virtues moral, intellectual, and physical; how can he make models of his pupils unless he is a model himself? In fact, he should combine in his single person all of the excellencies and none of the faults of a Washington and a Franklin, a Howard and Martyn, a Crichton and a Magliabechi.

A man possessing all these qualifications, and who can do all these things, and be alone, is fitted to become an instructor of youth, and can count upon being rewarded by a generous and enlightened community.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS BRAVE ZERO WEATHER

Like the undaunted religious pioneers of old who braved wind and weather in the carrying on of their work, groups from Hale, Whittemore and East Tawas gathered at the Whittemore M. E. church for a Sunday School rally the afternoon and evening of January 13.

Mrs. W. C. Davidson of Tawas City conducted a Worship Service designed to replace the former opening exercises of our Sunday Schools and especially suited to the needs of the one-room school. The children as well as the adults present were interested and reverent throughout.

At the evening session the Whittemore M. E. choir sang two fine selections, Mrs. Helen Shattuck gave an account of the activities of the County Council during 1928 as well as the proposed program for 1929. Then Mrs. C. E. Edinger in her attractive and convincing manner, presented the responsibility of the adult toward the Sunday School. It was a message of vital and practical helpfulness, as well as a challenge to deeper consecrated service.

Although the inclement weather made the rally small in numbers, the spirit of Christ made the meeting large in vision.

SPECIAL FOX PICTURE FOR TUESDAY-WEDNESDAY MERCHANT NIGHTS

The Tawas City merchants, co-operating with the State Theatre present a special Fox picture, "Riley the Cop," for Tuesday and Wednesday merchant nights of next week. "Riley the Cop" is one of the best comedy-dramas which have been shown, starring Farrell MacDonald and Louise Fazenda as the chief comedians. Nancy Drexel and David Rollins play the leading romantic roles.

MacDonald, rated as the best-natured cop in New York, seldom makes a "pinch." Known as the station house philosopher, he quells minor difficulties with a wave of the hand and a bland smile. He is sent abroad for a prisoner, where he becomes hilariously "loaded" and meets the fair Lena, Miss Fazenda. It is then that young Rollins, the prisoner, finds his job cut out for him—he must escort the "copper" back to America. It is from this unique point that some of the most engaging comedy arises which has been seen on the screen for years.

The following merchants are the supporters of your weekly merchant show. These business men make it possible for you to receive first class entertainment at 5-10c admission. Obtain your merchant tickets when you make your purchases with them.

IOSCO COUNTY STATE BANK HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Isosco County State Bank of Tawas City was held Friday, January 11, 1929. The report of the cashier for the past year showed the bank to be in excellent financial condition.

The following officers were elected for the year 1929: C. W. McPhail, President; C. H. Macomber, N. C. Harting, and C. H. Ridgley, Vice-Presidents; J. A. Murphy, Cashier, and G. C. Lovejoy, Assistant Cashier.

STATE THEATRE ARRANGES SPECIAL PICTURES FOR FOX ANNIVERSARY WEEK

State Theatre has arranged special pictures for Fox Anniversary Week, January 20-26, beginning with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "The Street Angel," the picture that Wm. Fox chose to open his new, magnificent Fox Theatre in Detroit. This is followed by a special booking of "Riley the Cop" for Tuesday and Wednesday, merchant nights. Thursday and Friday another big Fox super production, "The River Pirate," with Victor McLaglen. See the large display advertisement on last page of this issue.

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, fast rising screen stars, come to the State Theatre Sunday and Monday in their new Fox Film offering, "Street Angel." It has been proven to be a masterpiece of beauty, charmingly acted and perfectly directed by Frank Borzage, who also made that other memorable Gaynor-Farrell picture, "7th Heaven."

The story is laid against the colorful background of Naples and the beautiful, soft-toned photographic treatment of the many picturesque scenes is a conspicuous contribution to the art of the motion picture.

Miss Gaynor, as a little waif of the Neapolitan waterfront, and Farrell as a vagabond artist who meets and falls in love with her, handle their roles with superb skill, and their many love scenes together holds the audience enraptured.

It recounts the story of Angelina's desperate attempt to raise funds for her dying mother by taking to the streets, for which she is arrested and sentenced to prison. She escapes from the police and joins a small, traveling circus in which she becomes a ballet performer. Here she meets Gino, the wandering painter, but their romance is shattered by the police, who track her down and take her away to prison. However, they are finally reunited and made happy again.
"STREET ANGEL" is a picture that ranks with the best of all time.

The Choice of Kitchen Utensils

By MARION HARRIS NEIL

SOME one said not so many years ago and with much apparent reason that, as far as women's work was concerned, we were still living in the Iron Age. The speaker meant that the average woman was doing her work with the same crude utensils as did the woman of prehistoric times. The reason given for this state of things was that woman is not naturally inventive and that man was too busy devising labor-saving contrivances for himself to devote any of his time to lightening the burdens of the weaker sex. But either woman must have developed a new gift or man must have grown chivalrous, for certainly nowadays there is no lack of useful and attractive devices to make the work of the housewife easy and pleasant. As long as health, enjoyment and hospitality are so closely associated with food as they are at present, the kitchen will continue to be the heart of the home establishment, for it is the culinary laboratory. This idea has taken strong hold of architects and builders, and so convenient, comfortable and attractive is the modern kitchen that the up-to-date housekeeper considers it the climax of her domain. Is it any wonder that she selects its utensils and furnishings with enthusiasm?

The whole success of a meal depends on good and sufficient kitchen equipment. It is so easy to do a thing well with the aid of proper tools, and so difficult to accomplish it fittingly without. By the outlay of a little money every up-to-date kitchen convenience can be obtained. Whatever is purchased should be good of its kind, and as simple in construction as possible. Well-made cooking utensils will last a lifetime, while an inferior class of goods is never cheap. When acquiring a new utensil one should consider how it will wash. Are there seams and grooves to catch strong flavors and grease, to be passed on to the next article of food prepared essential, since much time is often wasted in emptying and washing utensils that are needed for immediate use.

A set of measuring spoons from one-fourth teaspoonful up to one tablespoonful is essential, and does away with the difficulty of attempting divisions of the tablespoon. They assure uniform good results in mixtures of various kinds as well as careful seasoning. Remember that half the secret of good cooking lies in accurate measurement.

The folding aluminum omelet pan is a clever device that insures a perfectly shaped omelet. This utensil combines all the advantages of the usual stove and oven pan. It cooks two kinds of food over one burner, thus saving time and half the fuel. It is ideal for baking fish, for no taste nor smell remains in the pan and no grease splatters on the range. When it is full it can be closed nicely and the food browned. It can be used as a covered baking pan, or utilized in many other ways.

Larding needles of all sizes come in cases, strawberry hullers, pineapple snips, orange and grapefruit knives and peelers, knives with fancy edges for peeling vegetables and scalloping them, potato corers, slicers, curlers, cutters and ball scoops, are some of the small labor-saving aids. Cookie and sandwich cutters of all kinds make individual service easy and most dainty. Pastry and frosting bags come with no end of tubes for decorating and garnishing cakes, puddings, meats and fish.

The various grinders and choppers for all purposes have become almost a necessity to the modern cook. The meat grinder has many other uses besides that of cutting tough meat.

Bread mixers and cake mixers are wonderful helps. The steam cooker and the fireless cooker are helpful, especially if the range is small in proportion to the size and needs of the family. A steam-pressure cooker saves considerable fuel, labor and time. Because of the higher temperature which the steam under pressure reaches in the cooker and the consequent cutting down of the time of cooking, this device is of great advantage, especially when the cook's time is limited. For steamed puddings, cereals, the toughest cuts of meats, poultry and for canning, such a utensil is unsurpassed. A good cooking range is as essen-

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys If Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Nothing sounds so delightful in the winter and so cool as singing "The Good Old Summer Time."

"The first goes wild and kills nineteen others."

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who need it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. B, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

A Forgotten Hero of the Revolution

GEORGE WASHINGTON

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
 AFTER more than a century of neglect of his unmarked grave, tardy honors have at last been paid to a forgotten hero of the American Revolution, whose services were of inestimable value to the cause of liberty, a man who was one of George Washington's closest personal friends and to whose lot it fell to close the dying eyes of the Father of His Country.

This man was Dr. James Craik, chief physician and surgeon of the Continental army. After Doctor Craik's death in 1814, he was buried in the churchyard of the old Presbyterian meeting house in Alexandria, Va. With the passage of years the old burying ground was neglected; weeds covered it and finally all trace of Doctor Craik's grave was lost. Several years ago a movement was started to locate the grave of this patriot and erect a suitable marker. This was done and a small brass tablet was provided by the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce. Through an error, however, this tablet was placed in the wrong spot.

But last year the project was taken up by the Presbyterian Meeting House Restoration committee of Alexandria, and as a result an imposing granite monument, paid for by his descendants, was recently unveiled over Doctor Craik's grave.

Doctor Craik had had a distinguished career even before he became chief medical officer of the patriot army in the Revolution. What that career was is shown by the following sketch of his life, provided by the restoration committee:

Upon the organization of the Virginia Provisional regiment in 1754, Craik was appointed surgeon. The command was at the same time tendered to Maj. George Washington who modestly declined but accepted the lieutenant colonelcy, the command going to Col. Joshua Fry. The regiment was not brought together until, upon the death of Fry at Wills Creek, Washington succeeded to the leadership and the headquarters joined him at Fort Necessity. Here was begun that lifelong intimacy between Washington and Craik, so much treasured by both.

Craik, as medical officer of his regiment, was present at the battle of Great Meadows in 1754 and rendered surgical aid to the wounded in that action. His service extended also over the period of the ill-fated expedition of Braddock toward Fort Duquesne, and he participated in the battle of the Monongahela, where he dressed the wounds of the commander of the British forces and many others of the injured upon that bloody field. Here he witnessed the singular impunity which attended his youthful chief as he performed his duties first as aide and later as commander of the disheartened remnants of the British troops.

When, then, on August 14, 1755, some six weeks after the operations on the Monongahela, Washington was appointed to the command of the Virginia provincial army and assigned to the duty of protecting the Virginia and Maryland frontier from the French and Indians, Doctor Craik still remained as his chief medical officer. The operations thus begun continued for more than three years, during which all the hardships and privations of the hardy frontier troops were shared by the young surgeon, whose service ceased only upon the disbandment of the little army after the capture of Fort Pitt on November 25, 1758.

Upon his retirement from the Virginia provincial service, Craik purchased an extensive plantation at Port Tobacco, in Charles county, Maryland, and erected upon it a spacious mansion which was described by his grandson, Daniel Jenifer, in 1849 as even then one of the "largest, most comfortable and agreeable residences in the country." Here on the 13th of November, 1760, he brought his young bride, nee Marianne Ewell of Belle Air, in Prince William county, Va., and here he passed in active medical practice the years which elapsed until he again followed his friend at his country's call. During this time the Craiks and the Washingtons never relinquished their intimacy, and the interchange of visits between Port Tobacco and Mount Vernon were the source of the sincerest pleasure to both.

When the occurrences arose which culminated in the War for Independence, Doctor Craik was an active patriot. As early as 1774, he was conspicuous in a meeting of the citizens of his county at Port Tobacco, at which were adopted a series of resolutions in which the people pledged themselves that if the act of parliament to blockade the port of Boston was not promptly repealed the inhabitants of the county would join with the several counties of Maryland and the principal colonies of America to break off all commercial communication with Great Britain and the West Indies. Craik was a member of the committee of correspondence selected to carry out these resolutions.

So valuable to the cause was the presence of Craik in Maryland and so deeply were planted the roots of his social and professional relations that Washington hesitated a considerable time after assuming command of the American forces to ask his old friend to again place his medico-military experience at the disposal of his country. But in April, 1777, in a most cordial letter he tendered to him his choice between the positions of "senior physician and surgeon of the hospital with pay of $4 and six rations per day and forage for one horse" and "assistant director general, with pay of $3 and six rations per day and two horses and traveling expenses found" in the middle department.

The latter position the doctor accepted and soon entered upon his duties. On the arrival of Count Rochambeau and his forces Craik was ordered to join them at Newport, R. I., and to organize their hospital department, a task which he accomplished with the most complete success.

On the reorganization of the medical department, October 6, 1780, Doctor Craik was appointed the senior of the four "chief hospital physicians and surgeons," being the third officer in rank in the Medical corps, and upon the resignation of Director General Shippen and the promotion of Dr. John Cochran, "chief physician and surgeon of the army," he was advanced to the second place under the latter title. This position he held un-halt, and demanded of its driver, "Did you hit this man?" "Oj did," was the shameless reply. "What for?" "Alienation of affections," replied the iceman, "He sold Bridget Nolan's missus wan av thim electric ice-boxes."

Crocodile's Dinner-Call

In Njunga, a village on the shores of Lake Victoria, Uganda, an African by the use of a peculiar call can summon an 11-foot crocodile from the depths of the lake and make it eat fish from his hand! On Saturdays and Sundays, when hundreds of natives arrive at the little village from the surrounding territory, the African exercises his peculiar power, making the crocodile eat scores of fish supplied by the admiring crowd.

This sale of fish is making the native a rich man, and so strange is the sight that motor buses are now making special runs to Njunga.

Trust not him that seems a saint.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

RODENTS HARMFUL IN ANY ORCHARD

Rabbits or Mice Can Kill Trees in Short Time.

Fruit trees of all kinds are subject to injury each year by rabbits and mice, particularly during the winter season. The injury is usually great enough to warrant the protection of young trees for at least the first six or eight years after transplanting, says T. J. Talbert of the University of Missouri. Such injury should be anticipated and guarded against.

The only safe way to prevent rabbits from gnawing young fruit trees is to wrap the trunks from the ground to a height of about 18 to 20 inches, or between the ground and the lowest branches. Where the branches are less than 18 inches above the soil, the wrappers should cover both trunk and branches to a height of about 18 to 20 inches. Various kinds of wrapping material may be used. Some of the most common are one-inch mesh poultry wire, galvanized window screen wire, galvanized wire netting having three or four meshes to the inch, old newspapers, gunny sacks torn in strips six to eight inches wide, and cornstalks. Wood-vener wrappers, patented wire wrappers, tarred paper and building paper may also be obtained on the markets.

The wire used ranges in height from 18 to 24 inches and is cut into strips from 12 to 20 inches wide. Experiments and observations at the Missouri station have shown that one-inch mesh poultry wire netting 18 inches high cut into strips 18 inches wide is usually best for protection from rabbit injury. The wire wraps are bent into cylinders placed around the tree trunks and pushed into the ground an inch or two. The laps of wire are then fastened by pushing the cut ends through meshes near the edge of the opposite side and the protruding ends are bent over, forming a loop or hook. When fastened in this manner at the top, middle and bottom, the wire cylinder is held firmly in place.

When the protectors are so prepared and placed, they are wide enough to accommodate the trunks without rubbing and peeling the bark. The only care required during the following eight or ten years is to observe the wire wrappers once or twice each year to see that they are properly in place and not pushed against the tree trunks, in which case the rabbits might be able to injure the trees through the wire meshes. The wire cylinders may usually be made to stand away from the tree trunks without the use of stakes as spreaders, although stakes are sometimes employed. Rarely, however, will the one-inch mesh poultry wire wrappers require any material expense for maintenance. Wire wrappers should be removed from eight to ten years to prevent girdling, and they are not likely to be needed so badly after the trees reach this age.

Raspberry Plantation Needs Much Attention
 If the raspberry plantation is in good shape, it will pay to lay down the canes and cover with soil. This is a very easy process. Simply gather up the canes in bunches, that is, all the shoots in one hill being clamped in the hand and bent over with a pulling, drawing motion. This will lay them down on the ground with very little breaking of canes. Cover them with earth. Fields thus treated have yielded a gross return of more than $500 per acre, while canes that were not so treated were killed back to the snow line. Next spring when the frost is out of the ground, and as soon as the soil can be worked, the canes should be uncovered and lifted.

Horticultural Notes
 Straw or pine needles—something light—is the best mulch in the "down-southest" parts of the South.
 Buy your apples by the bushel or the barrel and know what variety you are purchasing, fruit specialists urge.
 Injury by field mice is not as common as rabbit injury, but many trees are destroyed by mice without the grower knowing the cause.
 When trees lean badly toward the east and northeast as a result of the wind, the heaviest pruning should be done on the side opposite the prevailing winds.
 The peach should generally be pruned to a single stem by removing the side branches and shortening the main trunk to 2 or 3 feet in height.
 It is not necessary to put off overhauling the sprayer until spring. On rainy days it may be taken apart, oiled, and the worn parts replaced.

Are you boarding mice this winter? If so, clean the sod away from your trees and replace it with cinders. Poison bait traps in the orchard also help.

NEW HAT LINES SEE CHANGE: NEWEST IN MIDSEASON MODES

THERE'S no doubt about it; milliners are styling the new hats along distinctly different "lines." There's a movement of brims which bespeaks a changing sentiment in regard to the fashionable silhouette.

Brimms are perceptibly lifting off the face, at the same time that they are dipping lower at the sides. Across the back they achieve a "perfect fit." In some instances not so much as a thin sheet of paper could be wedged between neckline and brimline. The first hat in this picture demonstrates the idea. Now all this is resulting in a face-framing aspect, which is decidedly interesting.

One cannot go far in describing the new shapes without growing eloquent on the subject of plaits. When it comes to extreme modishness, plaits are the thing! Especially do plaits flourish in connection with the new felt shapes for midseason wear. These plaittings are apt to occur at any point on the brim. They range across the back close to the neck, they break out over one ear or they do both, as in the instance of the shape shown in the center at the top of this group.

Five out of the eight shapes sketched here flaunt plaits. Note how adroitly they pose at one side of the little cloche centered to the left in the picture. Just below is one of the wider-brim hats, which confines its plaits to across the back in such a way as to accomplish the desired close-to-neck effect. To the right is

A GROUP OF THE LATEST HATS

Many of the most successful modes combine velvet with chiffon. In most instances the velvet and the sheer fabric are of identical color. The contrast is nevertheless striking because of the materials differing so completely.

Satin with velvet is also proving a very happy combination. The gown in the picture allies silver gray rayon satin with black transparent velvet. Not only in this instance is color contrasted, but materials as well.

An unusual sheer treatment marks the styling of this dress. While it is extreme it bespeaks a trend which is observed, though not always to such a striking degree, in the fashioning of spring modes. That is, entire sections of contrasting fabrics are seamed together in novel ways, giving a half-in-half effect.

The idea works out pleasingly with yokes, which are often very deep and are seamed to a fabric of a different sort. This vogue especially manifests itself in evening and dinner gowns of a charming shape which gains distinction in that the front brim is plaited horizontally away from the forehead. The hat at the bottom of the group uses plaits also, smartly developing a desired effect at one side.

Another theme of interest is bows. Pearly bows of self-felt or fabric add piquancy to many an incoming midseason and early spring model. Note the long-at-one-side hat at the top right corner with its saucy bow. The bonnet just below adopts a bow for its side trim.

Hats of satin or straw with tiny bows of felt are appearing upon the scene for midseason wear. These seldom use a contrasting color, the chic and charm depending upon accurately matched colorings. The popular French tricotee also features in new millinery, often interplaid with felt.

Frocks made of contrasting materials are rated among those most fashionable. The contrast is not always in color, but the very nature of the fabrics strike a widely different note.

velvet, the upper blouse portion being either of self-color all-over lace or of flesh-tinted chiffon when transparency is wanted.

There is considerable practicality in the idea of using two materials together, especially if one makes over one's dresses, it is possible at this time of the year to pick up handsome remnants at greatly reduced prices. The thought that there may not be enough for a blouse or frock need not enter into the case, since fashion so enthusiastically encourages the working of two or more materials together.

The plan of using contrasting materials is also manifesting itself in regard to washable fabrics. The advanced spring styles as indicated even now among northern winter resort modes advocate the use of sheer handkerchief linen with linen of a heavier weave. Many gay ginghamas too, are collared and cuffed and otherwise trimmed with either pique or organdie.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Will Cold Worry You This Winter?

Some men throw-off a cold within a few hours of contracting it. Anyone can do it with the aid of a simple compound which comes in tablet form, and is no trouble to take or to always have about you. Don't "dope" yourself when you catch cold; use Paper's Cold Compound. Men and women everywhere rely on this amazing little tablet.—Adv.

Affluence is the dream of every one who is in the employ of others.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

MICHIGAN BELL CO. PLANS $26,500,000 PROGRAM FOR 1929

The five-year program contemplates that new central office equipment and new telephones will be installed at 28 points, nine exchanges to be converted to dial systems. Ten dial central office units are planned to replace manual offices at Detroit, together with 15 new dial offices to care for growth. Eighteen new buildings or major additions to existing buildings will be required to house the new units.

Complete replacement of the Detroit long distance switchboard equipment is planned, the new apparatus to be installed in the recently enlarged Bell Telephone building at 1365 Cass avenue.

Outside plant work to provide additional facilities will be done at many points throughout the state, at a cost of several million dollars.

Enormous Long Distance Program
During the year, the Michigan Bell plans completion of several large long distance cable projects, designed to further speed and protect the service against possible interruptions. Notable advances in that direction were made during 1928. It is proposed to complete a second cable next year from Detroit to Ann Arbor, and a spur to Chelsea from the Ann Arbor-Jackson section of the trans-Michigan cable.

A cable now is being built between Kalamazoo and South Bend, Indiana, a distance of 61 miles, to connect with the New York-Chicago-St. Louis cable, with which Michigan also has connection at Toledo. Improvements will be made on the Grand Rapids-Kalamazoo cable to provide additional facilities to Grand Rapids from Detroit and others points east and south.

It is planned to place in service, during 1929 and the four years following, several new installations of long distance cable, including extensions between Jackson and Lansing, 38 miles, to connect with the trans-Michigan cable and Chicago route; extension of the Niles-Benton Harbor cable to South Haven, 35 miles; Grand Rapids to Holland cable, 32 miles, which will complete the long distance cable span of the state, now reaching Grand Rapids from Saginaw, Bay City, Port Huron and Detroit; Marne to Grand Haven, 23 miles; a second Pontiac-Flint cable; Grand Rapids to Reed City, 82 miles; a third Detroit to Ann Arbor cable, 40 miles; a second Ann Arbor to Jackson cable, 35 miles; Grand Rapids to Lansing, 65 miles; Flint to Owosso, 25 miles; Saginaw to Reese, 16 miles, and second and third Detroit to Toledo cables, 53 miles each.

The 1929 long distance wire program will be approximately 50 per cent higher than was that for 1928, due to increasing use for both business and social purposes and to provide greater speed and otherwise improved service. Projects include additional circuits from Bay City to Petoskey, Grand Rapids to Mackinaw City and upper peninsula points, Grand Rapids to Grand Haven, Kalamazoo to Three Rivers, Jackson to Hillsdale, Adrian to Ann Arbor, St. Ignace to Marquette, Lansing to Owosso to Flint, Pellston to Cheboygan to Onaway, Traverse City to Petoskey, Saginaw to Reed City to Manistee, Pontiac to Lapeer, Bad Axe to Detroit, Bad Axe to Saginaw, and others.

Home Convenience Promoted
The five-year long distance cable and wire program is expected to call for an expenditure in excess of $8,600,000, of which that for 1929 will be nearly $2,000,000.

At the beginning of 1928, there were 709,000 telephones in Michigan, including those of the Michigan Bell and all connecting companies, which is expected to increase to 959,000 by the end of 1933. In 1922 there were 13.1 telephones per 100 inhabitants, which had increased to 16.1, January 1, 1928. It is anticipated that there will be 20 telephones per 100 population, or one for every five persons, by January 1, 1934.

The company has developed plans for increasingly adequate and convenient residence telephone arrangement. Equipment which it is estimated the Michigan Bell Company must purchase to meet its 1929 requirements for replacements and additions to plant in service, includes 49,900 bell boxes, 4,176 wall telephones, 47,700 desk stand telephones, 27,300 hand telephones, 1,300 coin telephones, 50,000 poles, 1,642,000 pounds of bare copper wire, 931,300 pounds of galvanized iron wire, 5,000,000 feet of strand wire, 79,000,000 feet of insulated wire, 2,734,000 duct feet of conduit and 60,000 cross-arms.

Archeological Find
Removing a stone to widen the entrance to one of his fields, a man of Holystone, County Antrim, Ireland, discovered that it formed the entrance to an underground dwelling. The dwelling consists of two chambers, with a passage leading to a third, or possibly more chambers. This passage is blocked. It is believed these underground dwellings were constructed about the Fourth century A. D.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodburn of Valparaiso, Ind., are visiting at her parental home and calling on their friends here and in Whittemore. Mrs. Woodburn was formerly Miss Elizabeth Busick, and was united in marriage about two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Robinson were business visitors at Tawas last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Harrell were at Tawas one day last week getting dental work done.

Samuel George spent the week end at his home in Harrisville. Mr. Sherman returned to Flint recently where he has employment.

Mrs. Alex Robinson spent last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Emily Robinson.

Carl Bueschen has been busy since the storm plowing the roads out.

Miss Eliza Shortt, who has been suffering from hemorrhages, is some better at this writing.

30 adults and several children gathered at the church last Friday for a farewell party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, who are leaving to make their home in Virginia. A pot luck dinner was served. The three ministers present, Rev. Roberts, Rev. Larson and Rev. Metcalf, gave short talks referring to Mr. Roberts' pioneer days when he drove to his various places of appointment with a horse and cart. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts have many friends here who will sadly miss them, and who wish them success in their new home.

Mr. Roberts was presented with $5.00 and Mrs. Roberts with a handmade bedspread.

Mr. and Mrs. John White, Mr. and Mrs. John Schaum, Misses Erma and Thelma White of Flint visited Mr. and Mrs. Will White Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrell spent last Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. White.

Miss Sadie Busick, who spent the holidays here, returned to Valparaiso one day last week.

Telephone Progress

General Headquarters Building Michigan Bell Telephone Company Detroit

The year 1928 has been one of outstanding telephone development and progress. During the past year expansion of telephone facilities of Michigan commanded the expenditure of more than $25,000,000. During 1929 it is planned to expend upwards of $26,500,000.

The expansion program for the five years ending December 31, 1933, contemplates the expenditure of approximately $136,000,000.

This program is in line with our policy which is:

To continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety

SUCH IS LIFE—Ideal—By Charles Sughrue

Throwing Stones Into an Ant Heap

Man began his philosophizing very early in his development in civilization. He saw centuries ago the fatal results of hasty, unpremeditated action, and he felt the pain which comes from impulsive yielding to temptation.

Washington Belle

A welcome addition to the younger set in the national capital is Miss Marie Larrazo, daughter of the new senator from New Mexico, A. Larrazo.

vernacular "Stir up a hornet's nest," which connotes about the same thing. The hornet's nest was a very interesting looking object as it hung on the bough of a tree above our heads. It was made of dark gray paper, sometimes it was as big as one's head, and there were little holes in the under side of it through which the little innocent insects went in and out in attending upon their daily duties. I used to wonder what was really going on inside, and what sort of domestic or business affairs could possibly keep the hornets in such a constant state of agitation.

"You'd better keep away from it," mother used to warn us when we told her that we had discovered a hornet's nest in a tree down on the south pasture. "You'll get stung the first thing you know, and then you won't think it so funny."

We wondered; and one day Gene McGinnis decided he'd take a chance. It was a very foolish conclusion on his part. The whole family of hornets rushed out and began work on him, and when they were through Gene's own mother would not have recognized him.

We are constantly throwing stones into ant heaps or stirring up hornet's nests, and the consequences are too often far more disastrous than we anticipated. It takes a long time to learn judgment; sometimes we never learn it, and there is a hornet's nest stirred up about us most of the time.

I had pointed out to me a few weeks ago as I was passing through a town in a neighboring state the home of a former governor of the state. The house in which he was living had been pretentious in its day but it was run down now and ill kept. The owner had been prominent, prosperous and respected. He was looked upon as a man to be taken as an example for young men to follow. But he threw a stone into an ant heap. He grew ambitious; he began speculating with money that was not his, he finally became criminally involved in the use of funds which were placed in his hands and was tried and sent to the penitentiary. He has served his term, but he is broken, his reputation gone, and

Nothing jolts a young man harder than to go to the theater alone and see his best girl come in with another fellow.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

The Moon and Prehistoric Progress.

The greatest factor in the progress of life was undoubtedly when the prehistoric sea creatures left water for future existence on land. The moon assisted in this transformation because its control of the tides provided them with water at intervals so that they gradually acclimated their breathing and other habits.

Schools for Flyers

New York.—A chain of aviation schools, with fields and instructors in strategically located cities in all parts of the country, is one of the major developments in American aerial progress to be expected in 1929, according to Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic, and now aviation editor of Cosmopolitan.

The schools, which will offer complete courses in flying to sportsmen and women as well as those training for commercial flying, will be sponsored by one of the principal companies now operating commercial air lines, she says.

The price of learning to handle a plane already has dropped to an average of $250 in the established flying schools, as a result of the increased interest in flying among people in all walks of life and the development of a large body of competent instructors within the past two years, Miss Earhart finds, surveying the rapid changes in aviation in the current issue of the magazine. At the end of the World war no air training could be obtained for less than $1,000, but recently the fee has twice been cut in half. Today the cost is hardly more than the fee of a first-class dancing instructor, since the $250 covers 10 to 12 hours of actual flying, spread over 20 to 25 lessons.

Miss Earhart, however, warns prospective amateur flyers against the "barnstorming" flying instructor and the poorly equipped and inefficiently operated school.

"There are excellent flying schools and excellent private instructors in the country, but it still is difficult to distinguish the good from the bad," says her Cosmopolitan article. "It is the opinion of many flyers that the Department of Commerce should make a classification similar to that of the American Medical association, which gives its approval after inspection to hospitals which maintain certain standards. Given time, flying schools will acquire reputations, but it might be easier for students if there were a published rating now. One distinguishing mark, however, is already available. You can be sure the planes used are licensed by the Department of Commerce. And be sure that they are inspected frequently."

"The student also should have a physical examination, paying special attention to the eyesight, by a Department of Commerce physician."

Stick to the Pinto

Dallas, Texas.—Railroad development in Texas has kept step in recent years with the state's march of progress in an agricultural and mineral way, yet so vast has been a last frontier of southwestern border counties that eight still await the steel rails that will bring to the region a fast and uninterrupted transportation it has never known.

The group where the automobile and pinto pony are still the only means of conveyance embrace an area fifteen times as large as Rhode Island, but the population in this undeveloped section is only one-seventh of that of Providence, capital of that state. So great are distances from some of the cattle ranches that it is necessary to drive stock more than eighty miles to a railroad for shipment to packing houses or the feed lots of the corn belt.

Although much of the region still is largely in a pastoral state, due to the scarcity of rainfall and ownership of land in tracts too large for development, it is the center of the country's best wool and mohair area and the breeding ground for thousands of cattle each year. Oil resources have been developed in Crane county only, but land prices and bank deposits have risen rapidly since the World war.

Live stock values in Crockett county exceed those of any other county in Texas, and Edward county, one of the group, leads the country in the number of goats raised annually.

Transportation companies have watched with interest, this domain and plans have been discussed for an extension that will connect at least four counties—Mason, Kimble, Sutton and Crockett—with the outside world. A road also has been proposed for Edwards county, but for several years Glascock, Crane and Bandera probably will not witness what would be the novel sight of a locomotive rumbling across the region.

America Leads World in Making Timepieces

New York.—Watches and clocks produced in the United States this year will have a value in excess of $80,000,000, almost equal to the combined output of Switzerland and Germany, the closest competitors.

Production of timepieces in this country, jewelers say, has more than doubled in the last ten years. After meeting its own domestic demand, the United States last year exported watches and clocks to the value of 4 per cent of the total output, an increase of 6 per cent over the previous year.

GOES TO BROCKLYN

Walter Hoover, former national sculling champion, who has moved from Philadelphia to Brooklyn, N. Y., and who, in the future, is expected to row under the colors of a New York club, possibly the New York A. C. Hoover has represented the Undine Barge club of Philadelphia for many years.

Burned Their Dead

Minneapolis, Minn.—Evidence that prehistoric dwellers on the North American continent were the first of mankind to cremate the dead has been unearthed by an expedition of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

The evidence is based chiefly upon a crumbly material found in the sands of the Mimbres valley in New Mexico, thought to have been pulverized corn, which an analysis showed was bone ash.

The culture of the Mimbres valley is believed to have flourished 2,000 years ago.

Objects and materials found certainly are the first evidence of cremation in that valley, and possibly any where, says Dr. Albert E. Jenks, leader of the expedition. Doctor Jenks believes Mimbres culture ceased to exist about 600 or 700 A. D.

Near Hurley, N. M., the searchers unearthed a village of 150 rooms, or huts. Some yielded sitting, or full-length skeletons with bowls over their heads. But in one was found a jar of an unrecognized material.

"We tasted it," said Doctor Jenks. "One member of the party declared the material was pulverized blue corn, common in that vicinity." Laboratory tests revealed it to be bone ash. Another had deemed important was a copper bell, use of which previously had not been known. A bracelet of 13 shells was found on the arm of the skeleton of a female.

There were fireplaces and wall bases of adobe and stone. Some huts were constructed of wood.

The culture, according to anthropologists, disappeared when Mimbres villages were destroyed, although how they were destroyed has not been learned. So far as is known the culture never took root elsewhere.

A newly-imported disease known as the European larch canker is a menace to the valuable Douglas fir timber.

Deity in Knickers Resented at Theater

Frankfurt-Am-Main, Germany.—Public objection to representation of the Deity on the stage took a drastic form at the Municipal theater recently when a production of Walter Hasenclever's comedy, "Marriages Are Made in Heaven," provoked a bombardment of vile-smelling bombs and tear-gas grenades.

The company finished the play to an empty house. Police ejected several disturbers. This caused free-for-all fighting in the street outside. The play, in which the Deity was represented as wearing golf clothes and knickerbockers, had previously caused a scandal in Berlin, Hamburg and other German cities.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

"I know that man—that is exactly the way he talks"

SHE was listening to a demonstration of an Atwater Kent. Turning the FULL-VISION Dial from one station to another, suddenly she heard the voice of a friend she had not seen for years. She listened eagerly. It was "exactly the way he talked."

"I'll take the set," she said. "This radio tells the truth."

Anyone can convince himself that Atwater Kent receivers and speakers do give faithful reproduction. Listen to an orchestra and pick out the individual instruments. Each has its own character—its own identity.

Turn to a male quartet, a piano solo, a radio drama with all the varying voices and inflections—or to the President when he speaks. Every sound is true to the original. That is the standard of Atwater Kent performance.

Atwater Kent gives it to you for less money. Less money because Atwater Kent Radio is manufactured in great quantities, making economies of production possible. Yet this huge output does not affect quality in the slightest. For every set, besides being made of the finest materials, has to pass 222 tests or inspections in the course of manufacture.

Turn the FULL-VISION Dial and listen to "the radio that tells the truth."

SYNOPSIS

That her grandfather left her the architectural masterpiece known as "Dinsmore's Folly" is, for esthetic reasons, by no means pleasing to Ethel Dinsmore, modern "flapper." She would refuse the bequest, but her father, millionaire head of Consolidated Trust, will not allow it. Edith visits the place. Perkins, the caretaker, is the victim of a matrimonial mishap, his wife having left him. Fred James, newspaper reporter, comes. Mr. Paul, Dinsmore's right-hand man, proposes to Edith and is rejected. He takes the rejection in a melodramatic manner. Edith sees a connection between Perkins' runaway wife and Mr. Paul. Riding with Fred James, Edith's horse bolts. The runaway is stopped by a stranger who does not give his name. Edith hereafter calls him M. P. (My Preserver). With her sister, Josephine, and Fred James, Edith attends a prize fight.

I am not going to describe the fight. I don't know how to describe it, for one thing; and it didn't last long, for another. Besides, you probably read about it in the papers. It was very secret, of course, until the second round, and then the police broke in and tried to arrest everybody. They didn't succeed, of course. The place was arranged with plenty of exits for escape in case of a raid—Fred called it a raid—and as soon as the police began to hammer down the doors the crowd began to run. They swept right over the place where we were sitting and carried us away with them just as an extra big wave carries away bathers at the seashore. Fred and Josephine simply disappeared and I was left all alone in the midst of a crowd of "tired" business men who were crazy to keep their names out of the papers.

Of course, I was scared to death, but luckily I didn't lose my head. Probably I would have lost it if the crowd hadn't flung me up against a big, fine, tall man who promptly tucked me behind him and prevented the crowd from crushing me until the first rush was over. By that time the police had broken in at the door and about half the audience had vanished out of the windows. The other half was rounded up under guard.

Some of the men protested strenuously, but it didn't seem to do them any good. I heard some one say that the chief had passed the word not to let anyone go and that the officers didn't dare take a chance, no matter how hard a man begged or how important he was.

But imagine my feelings! I know what Father would say if I were arrested for being at a prize fight. But somehow I didn't feel as much frightened as I might have been. I was still behind the man who had saved me and I took a lot of comfort in the set of his broad shoulders. Every minute I expected him to turn around but he didn't. And he didn't say a word.

So I plucked him by the shoulder. Time was flying and I had none to lose. "Can't you get me out of this?" I implored. "My father doesn't know I'm here and he'll go crazy if I'm arrested. Please get me out."

The man turned around and I saw that it was M. P. (My Preserver)—the man who had saved me when Gypsy ran away with me that day, and who had refused to tell his name I nearly dropped through the floor.

He didn't seem at all surprised, however. I guessed afterward that he had recognized me as the crowd swept me toward him.

"I'm trying to figure out some way to do that very thing," he said. "I'm acquainted with a good many policemen, and if you'll wait a minute I'll probably see one I can appeal to."

I waited, of course, but I didn't wait in silence. Why should I? I have never found that silence gets a girl any where. Besides, I was beginning to feel pretty safe. I felt somehow that M. P. would save me. He had done it once before. So I smiled up at him. "This is the second time you've rescued me," I began.

"I haven't rescued you yet, this time."

"No, but you will," I said. "And just to think that I don't know your name! Do please tell me what it is, before I die of curiosity."

He smiled again. "My name is Braxton," he said, "if you really care to know. I've been wondering ever since that day whether I should see you again. But I never guessed it would be here." He glanced around the hall.

"I didn't, either," I returned. "But then I don't know much about such places. Maybe meeting your friends at them is the regular thing. I wanted to see what it was like and I made Fred bring me and my sister. It was Fred who was with me that day, you know. They were with me when the police broke in, but I don't know what's become of them. I don't see them anywhere. If you—"

"I beg pardon," Mr. Braxton broke in. "There's a sergeant that I know held out his hand. "I will, thank you," he said. "Good night."

If he had been pretty nearly anybody else in all the wide world I would have known how to prevent his going. But somehow, with him, I was stupid. I couldn't think of a thing to say. I just shook hands dumbly and watched him fade away. And all the time I was just crazy to keep him.

Two minutes after Mr. Braxton had gone, Josephine and Fred turned up in a taxi, driving like mad. They had been released by an officer who knew Fred and they had searched and searched for me. They hadn't found me, of course, and equally of course they hadn't dared to tell anyone who I was. So, at last Fred had brought Josephine home, on the chance that I might have gotten there first somehow, intending to go back and hunt some more if I hadn't turned up. Josephine nearly fainted when she saw me. She must have been under an awful strain. And Fred had been, too, for the matter of that.

Anyhow, they both said "Never again" when they braced up at last. And never again it was. Even I was satisfied.

I didn't explain about Mr. Braxton. My meeting him was pure coincidence, of course. But it looked amazingly like pure fate; and I didn't dare to tell about it. I just said that a kind policeman had turned me loose and let it go at that.

But I thought about him a lot and kept hoping that he would call. But he didn't. The days dragged by without my seeing a sign of him. Come to think of it, so very many of them didn't drag by, after all; it was their dragginess and not their number that troubled me. I wanted to see Mr. Braxton so bad that a day seemed a week, especially as I couldn't help fearing that he had found me out—had found out that I wasn't a poor relation—and that he didn't intend to come back at all. As I had told Fred, this business of really worthwhile men fighting shy of rich girls is pretty hard on the girls. Look at the kind of chaps most of them have to put up with just because real men keep away.

And for the matter of that, there's a lot of nonsense in all that talk about rich men wanting other rich men for their daughters. They don't want sons-in-law who look on marriage as a lifeboat, or who can't make good in one way or another; but I never heard of a single father—and I've had mighty good chances to hear—who would have hesitated to welcome a would-be-son-in-law just because he was poor. I know Dad wouldn't.

Meanwhile, Mr. Paul was in and out, talking with dad, mostly about that missing one thousand shares, which he seemed unable to trace. He said very little to me; but what he did say was nice and friendly. It made me feel pretty mean. But goodness, I couldn't marry the man just because he was taking my refusal to marry him so nicely! At last, however, he got in bad with me, and after that I felt better. He came to the house one evening while Josephine and I were entertaining Fred in the parlor. I was looking in the big glass over the fireplace (which served as a very good periscope), and I saw him pass the door, on his way to Dad's room. An hour later, after he had gone, Dad sent for Josephine, and she left me and Fred in the parlor and went to the library. She was gone so long that Fred grew restless and wanted to leave. He thought, poor boy, that Father was keeping Josephine away as a hint that it was time to close up the house for the night; and I could scarcely persuade him to stay. I succeeded, however; and it was well that I did, for by and by Josephine came back and said that Father wanted to see Fred.

When Fred had gone to the library I put Josephine through the third degree; and, after a lot of hard work, I found out what it was all about. Father had told her not to tell me, but I got it out of her. That is, I got some of it out of her. I thought I got it all, but in that I was fooled. Josephine played it low down on me that time—and it wasn't the first time, either, as I discovered later.

No! Josephine did not tell me all that father had said but she told me enough to make me very angry. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Mr. Braxton drew a long breath. I could see that he was relieved. "I was afraid for a moment that I had told that sergeant the truth when I said your father was in the billion-dollar class," he said. "It would have relieved my conscience at the expense of my happiness. . . . Have you a latch key?"

"Yes," I nodded. "They allow me a lot of privileges. One is to receive my friends. You'll give me a chance to receive you, won't you?"

Mr. Braxton possessed himself of my key. "I'll be delighted," he said. "I'm not in town very often, but I'll call when I can—if I may."

"You surely may. Call soon!" I urged.

Mr. Braxton had gotten the door open now. He straightened up and entirely new angle to payment of bills

"In fact, then, you contend that it's our bill?"

"Of course it is!"

"Well, that suits me all right. If it's our bill, of course, we divide it. Just make out my half, will you? There's nothing like getting things straight."

"Very glad to hear it," said the proprietor. "But what is wrong with that?"

"Well, my friend says I ought to have said your bill. That's the point."

"Come to that, I suppose it is my bill."

"But you said it was my bill just now."

"So it is—your bill and my bill, too."

The smart young man approached the hotel proprietor.

"Look here," he said, "I want you to settle a little argument that has arisen between me and my friend here. I said I was coming to you to pay my bill."

"Very glad to hear it," said the proprietor. "But what is wrong with that?"

"Well, my friend says I ought to have said your bill. That's the point."

"Come to that, I suppose it is my bill."

"But you said it was my bill just now."

"So it is—your bill and my bill, too."

DAIRY FACTS

STANCHIONS ARE NEEDED FOR CALF

Turned Loose Too Soon, They Get Bad Habits.

If young calves are not given good attention during the first few months of their lives they will become undernourished, lack in size, and often become practically worthless for breeding animals. When fall and winter calves are given good attention they will generally grow into better cows than spring-dropped calves, as they will be old enough to go onto pasture in the spring and make satisfactory gains.

Milk is the food provided by nature for calves and man has never found a substitute that equals it. Whole milk is needed for the first month, or at least during the greater portion of it. After that time skim milk may be gradually substituted as the calves will commence eating grain and hay. The maximum amount of whole milk to feed is twelve pounds daily and sixteen pounds should be the maximum amount of skim milk used.

Individual stanchions are needed in feeding calves by hand. In this way each calf will get its own allowance of milk. Grain can be put in the pails after the milk is consumed and the calves will gradually learn to eat. If the calves are turned loose too soon after they are through drinking they will often acquire the habit of sucking ears, etc., which will result in poor gains. After two or three weeks the whole milk may be gradually substituted with part skim milk and the proportion of skim milk gradually increased as the calves gain in size and age. The milk from the calf's mother should be fed for the first few days as it is laxative in character and will help get the bowels properly cleaned.

Cleanliness is essential in preventing scours and other similar troubles. Sunlight is necessary if the calves make the best gains. Fresh water should also be supplied as the calves will drink a considerable amount. A sunny, protected lot, where the calves may run during warm days will not only give them exercise but will help to keep their stables in better condition and furnish them sunshine.

Calves Need Some Whole Milk to Get Good Start

Calves which are only one week old need some whole milk if they are to get the best start. However, some people follow the practice of buying calves from dairymen and raising them on substitute rations.

The United States bureau of dairying recommends the following formula which has been used with considerable success by many dairymen: Fifty pounds corn meal, finely ground; 50 pounds linseed meal; 15 pounds oats, finely ground and rolled; 10 pounds of dried blood flour; 10 pounds skim milk powder; one-half pound salt.

The above combination of feeds are carefully mixed together. One-half pound of the mixture stirred into four and one-half pints of boiling water and fed when sufficiently cool makes a feed for a calf which is one month old. Two feeds are necessary daily. The amount may be doubled by the time calves are two months old. Calves may gradually be shifted to a ration that is less complicated at that time.

Dairy Notes

It does not pay to feed good cows rations that are not well balanced.

Drinking water for the calves should have the chill removed.

The proper cleaning of the separator after each separation is of great importance.

Some cows are slow to "give down" and for them the massaging or manipulation of the udder that is inevitable in the process of washing is especially useful.

Every dairy farmer should provide himself with a milkhouse to be used exclusively for the handling of milk and milk products. In building a milkhouse, do not place it too near the stable.

Pumpkins are a good feed for dairy cows. One ton of pumpkins is equal in feeding value to about 400 pounds of mixed hay or 800 pounds of corn silage. This includes the seeds with the pumpkins.

The bureau of dairy industry says that milk produced by sterile cows that are otherwise in good health is just as good as milk produced by other cows as long as it is normal in appearance and flavor.

One of the greatest sources of sour milk and low-grade dairy products is the unsterilized utensil. The tiny bacteria that cause souring, off flavors, and sometimes sickness, grow very fast on the moist surfaces of unsterilized pails, strainers, cans, etc.

Pay Roll Simple in

Italian Rice Fields

A customary preliminary to harvest time, which begins in early September in Italy's rice-growing center surrounding the city of Alessandria, in the Piedmont, is that the farmers and peasants arrange for wages and other labor matters. Last year the respective syndicates of workers and growers reached an agreement based on "compensation by nature" or emolument in kind. No money to the worker; he shall be paid with rice.

Thus peasant lads from fourteen to fifteen years of age receive 17½ pounds of rice a day, those from fifteen to sixteen earn 23 pounds a day, and boys from sixteen to seventeen years get 35 pounds. Girls from fifteen to sixteen earn 20 pounds of rice for the eight-hour day, while the women's stipend is 20½ pounds.

Should a laborer insist on cold cash, the grower will be troubled with the necessity of utilizing his arithmetic. For he must take the number of pounds the worker is entitled to and multiply it by the current market price, which is about 3 cents a pound.

Mrs. Bell Tells Her Friends of Her Narrow Escape

"Something over a year ago I had the flu, which left me with a very bad cough which kept getting worse all the time, until I could not lie down at night. If I attempted to lie down I would cough all night and choke up so I would have to sit up in bed. This continued until I got so weak I could not walk across the floor, and every night I thought would be my last. I became so thin that my hands would meet around my legs. My doctor said that my lungs were affected and I was in a desperate condition."

"Finally I read about Milks Emulsion and started to use it. I have now taken it about three months and I am entirely recovered. My cough is gone and I have taken on flesh and strength, and I thank God that I found Milks Emulsion.

"I have spread the good news among all my friends and there are five of my immediate neighbors taking it, and they all say it has done them so much good. Yours truly, MRS. K. BELL, 1640 Bergen St., Brooklyn, N. Y."

The National Gypsum company laid off 57 men at their plant Monday on account of the cold weather.

"Pan-American"

"Pan" was originally a combining form used in Greek words. It means all. For instance, Pan-Hellenic means embracing all the Greeks. The form is used as a prefix before proper adjectives. Pan-American means embracing all Americans, or all the Americas—North, South, and Central. A Pan-American conference is a conference composed of delegates from the various republics in the New world.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

The seventh and eighth grades had perfect attendance on Wednesday.

Our room lost the picture that we received last month from the Parent-Teachers Association. The third grade had more parents present, so they received it.

Fred Cooper and Bessie Rouiller are back to school again.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Albertina and Vera Herman entered the Fifth grade Tuesday.

Our picture of Col. Charles Lindbergh has arrived.

We are reviewing for final examinations which will be given the last week of the month.

We added eleven stars to our Parent-Teachers Association chart this month.

Those neither absent nor tardy during the month of December are: George Cholger, Ray Cox, Norma Kasichke, Marvin Mallon, Nyda Moore, Nelda Mueller, Albert and Mildred Quick, Mildred Rempert, Agnes Roach, Robert Sholtz, Otilia Ziehl, Doris Brugger, Lawrence Daley, Hugo Keiser, George Laidlaw, Bobby Mark, Gordon Myles, Jean Robinson, George Tuttle, Murrel and Norton Ulman, Walter Wegner and Arthur Ziehl.

Third and Fourth Grades

We have a new pupil in the third grade. Thelma Herman, who has been attending school in Oscoda, entered here Tuesday.

Our room succeeded in winning the P.T.A. picture for this month.

Everyone except Effie Prescott has returned to school. We hope Effie will be back Monday.

Primary

Martha Herman entered the first grade this week. That gives us a membership of 32.

Kathleen Davis, Fidalis Groff, June Smith and R. B. Cooper are back in school after being ill.

We have been hearing Eskimo stories and making Eskimo posters this week.

Our P.T.A. chart received nine stars this month for attendance. We hope to have more next month.

Irene Ulman and Eugene Wegner had perfect in spelling this week. They had thirteen stars on their spelling booklets.

The beginners have finished their Winston primer and are reading in the Companion Primer.

The second grade is enjoying its Silent Reading Seat Work.

Ward School

David and William Sims returned to school Monday, after being absent since vacation.

Roland Boomer of Saginaw visited our room during the week.

Robert Fitzhugh won the second grade number contest last week. Junior Gustafson was second and Herbert Cox third.

Our perfect spellers last week were Norma Jean Musolf, Emma McCormick, Lucille DePotty, Junior Gustafson, Ellen Malcolm and Florence McDonald.

"Pickup" for Collector

After reposing for many weeks in the window of a shop in Bristol, England, an old blue-and-white ginger jar, which many collectors examined and refused to buy, was finally sold by the dealer, for 31. The purchaser is posed of it to Louis Huth, at the sale of whose collection it brought $29,500. It is one of the "rarest Hawthorne jars in existence."

"Ha-wy-ee"

This proper name, Hawaii, is correctly pronounced "Ha-wy-ee," with the accent on the second syllable. The "a" in the first syllable is sounded as in "ah" and "father." Hawaii is the name of the largest island of the group formerly known as the Sandwich Islands, but now known as the Hawaiian Islands.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Theory Upheld
