He attended the district school fairly regular, until he was fourteen years old. Then he remained at home and engaged in farming during the summer, and working at odd jobs in the woods in the winter. However, he attended school two or three months of each year and cultivated a habit of reading books of biography and legal works. When he was eighteen years of age he secured a third grade teachers' certificate, followed later on by a second grade and then a first grade state endorsed certificate, and followed the pursuit of teaching gress will have in its membership no less than eight women members of the house of representatives, the largest number in its history.

In 1917 Jeannette Rankin of Montana attracted nationwide attention as the first woman to be elected to congress, as did Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma when she was sent to Washington by the voters of the Sooner state in 1921. But so accustomed have we become to the idea of women in high public office that the seating of eight women in congress this year will not cause as much comment as the seating of but one did twelve years ago.

To five of the congresswomen, an swering the roll call in the house of representatives will be no special novelty, for all of them served in the Seventieth congress. In fact that congress represented the second term for three of them-Mrs. Florence Prag Kahn of California, Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey. Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky was elected to the Seventieth congress and Mrs. William A. Oldfield of Arkansas was appointed to that body to fill the unexpired term of her husband who had died.

All five of these congresswomen were re-elected to the Seventy-first congress last November and the new congress will see the sisterhood in the house augmented by "the three Ruths" -Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida, was evidently something in the name Ruth, for all three were elected. Or if you prefer a Biblical figure to a Shakespearean, it might be said that these three modern Ruths were successful gleaners of votes in the political field of 1928.

state which he will name to complete that statement. For the new con-

Of the group of five congresswomen who have served previous terms, Mrs. Norton is the only one who may be said to have come to congress "in her own right." All of the others, in a fashion, inherited their congressional mantles from their husbands. Mrs. Kahn, Mrs. Rogers, and Mrs. Oldfield, are widows who were appointed or elected after the deaths of their husbands. Mrs Langley was elected by the people of her state as a "vindication" of her husband, formerly a representative, who had been convicted of violation of the prohibition laws.

Of the three new congresswomen. two may also be said to have "inherited" their mantles in a different fashion. Mrs. McCormick is the daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna of Ohio and the widow of the late Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, Mrs. Owen is the daughter of William Jennings Bryan, once a member of congress but more famous as a candidate for President in 1896, 1900 and 1908 and secretary of state under President Wilson. Mrs. Owen has another distinction-that of being the only former British subject, since the early days of the republic, to be elected to a seat in congress. She is the widow of Maj. Reginald Owen of the British army who died in 1927 from wounds received in campaigns against the Turks during the World war. Although Mrs. Pratt has no such political heritage as the other two Ruths, she had achieved distinction in her own state before she entered the national arena. As a member of the the Tammany Tiger" on many civic problems.

In fact, all of the congresswomen have had political experience which fits them for the roles they are to play in the new congress with its record number of women members. Mrs. McCormick's introduction to public life was as secretary to her father. Senator Mark Hanna, during the second McKinley campaign. As a helpmate for her husband during his career in Washington, her knowledge of politics increased. Although Mrs. Langley was her husband's successor in congress, she had had political experience of her own before that time. She was the first woman member of the Republican state central committee in Kentucky and served as vice chairman. She was the first chairman of the state organization of Republican women, an alternate to the national Republican convention in 1920 and a delegate in 1924.

Mrs. Norton's distinction lies in the fact that she was the first Democratic woman to be elected to congress. She has been a social service worker in the day nurseries in Jersey City, had served on the Democratic state committee, was delegate at large to the Democratic national committee and has been a member of the New Jersey state legislature.

Except as "congressional wives," Mrs. Kahn and Mrs. Rogers had had no political experience previous to their election to congress. Neither had Mrs. Oldfield, but as the wife of the Democratic "whip" in the house, who was always successful in lining up members of his party in critical measures, she always manifested a keen interest in the work of that body and thus was amply educated for her duties when she was elected to congress herself.

It was a beautiful autumn evening. The river was looking at its best when Horace launched the canoe and took his place beside Margot in the stern. With a contented look on her face, the girl put one hand over the side and dangled it in the water. The canoe gave an unpleasant wobble. "Dearest," said Horace in alarm, 'you'll have us over! We must keep the boat well balanced.' She nodded, a little frightened. For some time they drifted along without stirring. Then Margot addressed her

Visitors to the coming Passion play will hop to the biblical Oberammergan scenes in the latest models of German planes. This is, however, merely one evidence of the modernizing of the little Bavarian town where, for 300 years, the local citizens have performed their drama of the Passion of the Savior. A structure of ultramodern technology is being imposed on the quaint, primitive character of Oberammergau. Although the next Passion play will not be staged until May 15, 1930 (there will be three performances), the Oberammergauers are busily starting preparations. The historic theater itself has been enlarged so as to seat 5,000 instead of 4,200 spectators. The property room has been moved from the wings and placed underneath the stage. Electric elevators will speedily carry all stage requisites to the Jerusalem scene. The stage floor has been mounted on rollers, so that the story of Judas, the disciples, and Martha will be enacted

The state of Bavaria and the municipality of Oberammergau are collaborating in improving the roads for motor cars. Roads from Munich, Ettal and Fuessen, leading to Oberammergau, are being bettered and provided with asphalt. Three parking places, each with a capacity of several hundred automobiles, are being built near the scene of the Passion play. Streets in Oberammergau itself are being asphalted and equipped with new street lamps. Special luxurious trains will also

THE TAWAS HERALD

Strangers visiting Oberammergau during coming weeks, on walking through the tranquil village streets of an evening, will already hear actors rehearsing their parts in almost every house. The visitors will also be struck by the bearded visages of the local inhabitants. For at least a year before the play begins every actor must foreswear razor and shears and let hair and beard grow in full abundance. In fact, there are many inhabitants, from birth destined to assume roles in the Passion play, whose hair is allowed to grow unshorn from childhood.

Nothing will betray the romantic origin of the Passion play, which dates back to 1634 when the hamlet of Oberammergau was swept by a deadly pestilence. The inhabitants then made a vow that, if the grim harvest of the plague were checked, they would each decade present a play describing the Passion of Christ. The pestilence was halted, and thus began the religious spectacle now known throughout the world.

Many relics of domestic use also were found. The cliff dwellings proper, the communal center, as it were, are located near the mouth of a box canyon on

WARM DRINKING WATER FOR COW

Milk cows should drink about four sufficient water if it is cold, or if they are compelled to go into the cold wind to get the water, advises John O. Toliver, deputy state dairy commissioner, at the Colorado Agricultural college. A tank heater to warm drinking water, and a windbreak to protect the tank and vicinity so the cow will not morning the surgeon removed one be exposed to the cold winds of winter Inch of two ribs in the back, forming while drinking, are recommended. Toliver states that a cow naturally drinks as little cold water as possible, and will not produce nearly as much milk as she would if the water were warm, about 15 to 20 degrees above freezing point. Cows will stand with rough and stands on end, due to the contraction of the skin.

To produce milk economically the cow's ration should consist largely of the more bulky, cheaper foods, the deputy commissioner states. These foods require considerable moisture in large quantities of water are essen-

Difference in Quality of Mixed Dairy Feeds (By A. R. MERRILL, Dairy Specialist, Connecticut Experiment Station.) Whether the dairyman shall mix his own feeds or buy ready mixed rations is still an important question. Before it is definitely decided the dairyman should ask himself these questions: 1. Are the feeds he can buy as good as are contained in the ready-mixed rations?

2. Is it possible to secure a continuous supply of a large variety of ingredients?

3. Can the ingredients be mixed as thoroughly as they are in the commercial mixtures?

Undoubtedly he may be able to mix a ton at less money than he will have to pay for a similar commercial mixture, but when all things are considered there may not be the advantage that formerly existed. The last few years have witnessed a wonderful change in the quality of mixed feeds offered for sale. This improvement of quality has removed one of the reasons for home mixing. It also means that better feeds are being used in our commercial rations.

Low-quality feeds are still on the market and many of these find their way, as separate ingredients, to ret.il dealers. When a dairyman buys feeds for home mixing, he should be sure of quality or his supposed savings on the ton price may prove a loss

The History of John J. Doherty's Case

"Three years ago I took a severe cold, putting me directly to bed. After a month's treatment for pleurisy my physician was baffled by the action of my fever or temperature, which was high one day and low the next, and while he tried different prescriptions, I didn't improve any, but slowly became weaker.

"The doctor finally decided to tap me by running a needle-like instru-ment into the left side of my back and between the ribs, to ascertain if pus was forming in my left lung. The tapping resulted in the withdrawal of a small quantity of pus and the doc-gallons of water for each gallon of tor said it was forming so fast that milk produced, but they will not drink I must have an operation to extract and draw out the pus. At the time my heart pained me terribly because it was three inches out of place, due to the pressure of the fast-accumulating pus. " "I was ordered to the hospital for an immediate operation or I would be a dead man in 36 hours. The next a square cavity to remove the pus, which squirted eight feet from the table. About two quarts was removed. A rubber tube was then inserted in the cavity to the lung for a drain, which took about three weeks to perfectly drain and heal the cavity.

"The doctors told me that I had to their backs humped and shiver after take all precautions possible, as I was drinking ice' water. Their hair is subject to easily capturing tubercular germs, due to the weakness of my lungs. For one whole year I used several kinds of tonic and lung medicines and didn't improve much from weakness.

"Then I began the use of Milks Emulsion and after a month's trial I found myself with increasing appetite the process of digestion, and therefore and gaining strength, and today I have regained my natural weight and strength and feel completely myself. And the joy of it is, after using all of the Milks Emulsion that I did it didn't form a habit. I haven't used any for a month now and I feel at my best. I am 48 years of age and weigh 180 pounds.

Should the boy who has no money and who must make his own living go immediately to college on graduation from the high school? Usually it would be better not. It is unsafe for anyone to begin his college course without having made pretty definite plans as to how the project is to ne financed. The readjustment between high school and college is not always easy to make and the student who is at the beginning of his course harassed as to where he is to sleep and how he is to get his next meal is not likely to make a good start. "Alley Kid" Genius Chicago. - The conversion of a 'worthless alley kid" into a budding. genius amazed art critics as they surveyed the paintings of eleven-year-old Dominic Randazzo.

Dominic is a prodigy of Hull house, Jane Addams' famous social welfare center on the edge of the Chicago Ghetto. Twelve months ago he was classed by his teachers as "subnormal," a year behind in school, lazy. sulky and wizened.

Today Dominic has sold four paintings and his eldest brother, formerly his severest critic, says he "always knew the kid was the only one in the family with brains." Formerly the brother had considered Dominic to be just a good-for-nothing little boy who was destined to grow up to be a worthless citizen. His mother was dead and he lived with his father, two brothers, a sister and a sister-in law in two rooms of a dark artist.

tenement building on the West side. One day he wandered into the art school at Hull house and watched a group of boys and girls no older than himself painting white ships on blue water. The sight entranced him and he asked if he could "play with the paints like the other kids."

Hull house instructors soon discovered Dominic's aptitude with colors and clay. His laziness and sulkiness disappeared. His wizened face brightened up. Dominic was on the way to linding himself.

When he took the profits home after a lady from the gold coast had bought one of his first paintings, Dominic's father accused him of sterling the money.

Critics predict now that Dominic, "the worthless alley kid," will make much more money. They see in his early work the beginnings of a real

Unclean Utensils Traced to Filthy Dish Cloths

The dish cloth may be justly charged with being responsible for a lot of the unclean utensils now being used to handle milk and cream. Dish cloths fail to reach the cracks and crevices where dirt and bacteria are prone to lodge; they fail to cut grease and dirt, and it is almost impossible to keep them in a sweet, sanitary condition. If you are a dish-cloth user, throw it away and wash your dairy utensils the modern way, with a good stiff brush.

Soy Beans Favored

The comparatively high prices which are being asked for cottonseed meal and linseed oilmeal and the large acreage of soy beans are leading dairymen to consider the use of soy beans as a protein supplement in the dairy ration during the winter. Experiments conducted at the Purdue experiment station in which ground soy beans were compared with linseed oilmeal showed that the ground beans produced from 2 to 4 per cent more milk than an equal weight of oilmeal

DelMonte WEE ESTABLISHED The world's choicest canned WHERE ECONOMY RULES foods sold this week

Because of this purpose, the price is low and great care has been taken to insure economy of operation and up-keep. Few features are of greater importance to millions of motorists.

Conservative figures show that the new Ford averages 20 miles per gallon of gasoline, with many Flord owners reporting greater mileage on long trips. Oil consumption is also low per hundred miles. There is a considerable saving on tires due to the balance of the car, ease of steering and perfected wheel design.

All tires used on new Ford cars and recommended for replacement are specially built by leading tire manufacturers according to specifications laid down by the Ford Motor Company. Mechanical upkeep is low because of simplicity of design and the enduring quality that has been built into every part.

Proven Ford Economy in Transportation

Definite evidence of the economy of the new Ford is shown in the repeated and growing purchases by Federal and city governments, by police departments and by large industrial companies which keep day by day cost records.

The new Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests covering every feature of automobile value and performance -from the time of purchase to the final trade-in. Here the Ford policy of not making yearly changes serves to protect and manitain the investment of every Ford owner. All improvements in the new Ford owners may take advantage of them quickly and at a low cost.

for the economy of the new Ford.

It has always been our belief that a sale does not complete the transaction between us and the buyer but establishes a new obligation on us to see that his car gives him service. We are interested in his economical operation of the car as he is in our economical manufacture of it.

For that reason we have established a system of controlled service to take care of all Ford car needs in an economical and improved manner. We wish all Ford owners to know hat they are entitled to in this respect so that they may avail themselves of the service.

Service More Important than Sales

This service begins with proper instruction when you buy the car and includes a free ir mection at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles-It commues as long as you are a Ford owner.

No matter where you live or where you go, you will never be very far from a Ford dealer who has been specially trained and equipp d to give you courteous, intelligent and economical service. The cost of the new parts is low because of the established Ford policy of doing business at a small margin of profit.

The purpose of Ford service is identical with that for which the car itself was built -to help you get many thousands of miles of pleasant, enjoyable motoring at a minimum of trouble and expense. "Good performance with economy" is the reason for the unusual value that is brought to you in the new Ford.

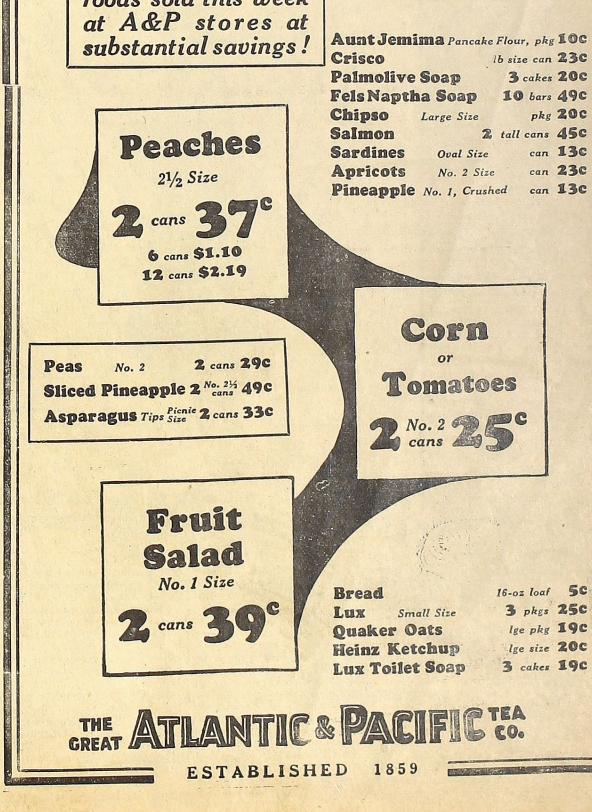

We Have a number of Dependable Used Cars. If you need a low priced car, see us at once.

Greeks Got Alphabet From the Phoenicians

The Phoenicians are generally believed to have produced the first alphabet and from their group of sound symbols have grown all of the alphabets in existence today. The Greeks, It is known, composed their alphabet from the Phoenician as a result of their trade with the first sailors. The Romans took their alphabet from the Greek and the English alphabet comes directly from the Latin.

Only minor changes have come down in the English alphabet from that of the Romans. The English added the letter "j" for which "i" was used in the Latin and added "w" to the Latin "UV.

Probably the best explanation of the Phoenician alphabet's origin lies in the roving disposition of that people. Stopping at various ports along the Mediterranean they adopted certain characters of the cuneiform languages of all the countries and adapted them to their own usage .- Detroit News.

The newest lines stress a molded princess basque effect, which takes on extreme fullness at a point much lower on the hipline than heretofore. Also, skirts grow longer and longer for the evening mode. However, their lines are so exquisitely modulated with sheerness and unevenness one feels in no sense that they are too long.

The evening taffetas, for which youth shows such a fondness, revel in "delicious" colorings. The gown in which Dorothy Gulliver, a rising Hollywood star if you please, poses for this picture is an exquisite nile green.

It seems that green is an outstanding favorite this season among the fashionable pastel shades. By the way, pal. delicate green is as becoming to brunettes as blondes, which may account for its popularity.

The bouffant skirt is twice scalloped, once around its taffeta edge and again about the hemline of self-colored transparent net. In selecting the new party frock do not forget that flowered taffeta is also coming into flattering notice.

In fashion's vocabulary "crisp" is a word which is acquiring considerable usage. We hear repeatedly about crisp taffeta, crisp nets, likewise stiff metal cloths. It is a fact nets and tulles are actually being processed to stand out "crisp" and lively in the making. To further the effect, fashionists style these dainty crisp silks and transparencies with flaring flounces and peplum flanges at the waistline and otherwise do they em

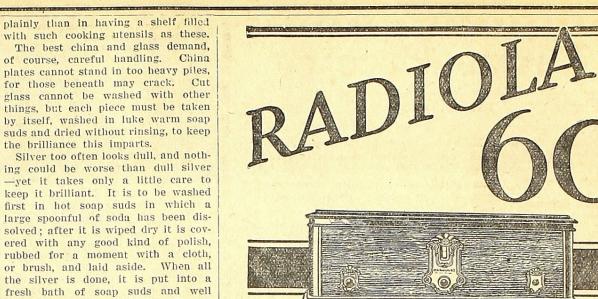

THE care of the kitchen range is something most housekeepers dread. It seems such a heavy, unwieldly thing, and one so full of mysteries! And yet it is absurdly simple. All it needs is to be kept clean to produce the miracle of perfect cooking. The old fashioned idea that the range must be blacked with polish is a bygone thing. Today we paint it all over with a shiny black stove enamel and it remains bright for a year at a time; merely a brushing off of the dust is all that is necessary. So much for the outside, but inside it needs a daily brushing of the tops of the oven with a narrow whiskbroom, after all the covers are taken off. The coal must be shaken down, too, and once a week the fire box emptied and the whole inside of the range brushed out thoroughly; otherwise the dampers will become clogged and the range fail to heat the ovens. The coal hod, that unsightly affair, should be kept on a square of heavy paper so that it may not scratch or soil the linoleum; all the dust which collects around it must be brushed up daily. The wood stove is easier to handle than the coal range, but it needs quite as careful watch-The ashes are light and fluffy ing. and may blow all over the kitchen. They must be brushed away, inside and outside of the range, every morning, and the fire box kept free from them. A kerosene stove must be wiped off daily to keep it free from grease, and the wicks rubbed down with a cloth. A gas stove should have a little brush for the gas rings, as they clog easily, and the pan under the flame must be taken out, washed and wiped. The ovens too, need brushing out, and the outside of the stove kept blacked, like a range.

Photograph Whist

Photograph whist is a new parlor game that has recently been introduced by collectors and holders of old photographs. However, it can be played by all those who have a wellstocked family album, providing the pictures can be removed without damaging them. The old photographs are shuffled and dealt out like cards to four players who play one each time. The homeliest picture takes the trick, and the one taking the most tricks wins the game. So now you can make use of those hundreds of old family photographs if you do not regard them as too sacred a treasure to use for such a purpose .- Pathfinder Magazine.

Decidedly, the waiting people were argry-very angry. They were humming like bees. I could not understand it at first. "What the matter?" I asked a woman in a shawl who stood waiting.

She glared at me. "What's the matter?" she echoed. What's the matter, is it? It's ruin and destruction, that's the matter, so it is. That thafe of the world Dinsmore has stolen every cent I had laid up for me old age, that's what's the matter." "Mr. Dinsmore? Stolen? It's not true," I gasped.

"Not true, is it? It's me that wishes to God it wasn't true! He's stolen all me savings and run away with them." She thrust a newspaper beneath my nose.

It was another and apparently, a later paper than the one I had bought on the steamer. That had been chiefly headlines and text that repeated the headlines; this I saw at a glance contained columns of detail. I snatched it from the woman's hands and ran my eye down it. It was awful. The paper seemed to have thrown restraint to the winds. According to it, Father had done everything-wrecked railroads, robbed banks, gambled in stocks, ruined thousands of widows and children-and had then disappeared. But he would be found soon; the railroads and fer ries were all watched and-

'That-that-' I didn't know what she meant. But the woman was speaking and I turned back to her. "Father-" I began again. But she did not allow me to finish. 'An' what does your father know?" she broke in. "It is himself that knows more than the grand jury that indicted Dinsmore? It is himself that knows where Dinsmore got the money to build the foine house yonder all for second one climbed in he turned and spoke to a man who questioned him. "Naw !" he said gruffly. "There won't be nothin' doin'. Dinsmore ain't here; and it's a safe bet he won't be. His daughters have sailed for somewhere; and there's nobody here but a caretaker. There's no use waitin'." He spoke to the one man, but his big voice boomed over the street so that everybody heard it. Then he jumped into the wagon and it clattered away.

The crowd seemed satisfied, for it began to disperse, drifting away by ones and twos till no one was left except Josephine and me and an officer, whom I had not noticed before, who stood watching at the corner of the alley just beyond the house. As soon as I saw him I guessed that he had been stationed there to arrest or follow anybody who came to the house, and I made up my mind that he should not see Josephine or me. If the papers and the police thought that Josephine and I had sailed for Japan I would not undeceive them. We could hide and wait till Father turned up. Ferhaps I-even I-could do something toward clearing away the cloud that rested on Father's name.

I turned to Josephine. "Come!" I said, turning away from the house.

Josephine stared at me. "Come where?" she asked. "Aren't you going home?" "No!" I said, "We can't." I explained why we couldn't, "We can't go home. We've got to go to Dinsmore's Folly.'

Josephine looked so amazed that I did not wait for her to speak. "I don't wonder you're surprised," I said. "But we've got to go there. We've nowhere else to go. Perhaps you've forgotten"-I had forgotten, too, and the fact made me a little sarcastic-"perhaps you have forgotten that Aunt Candice carried the money and that you and I are nearly busted—unless we go to the office and give ourselves dead away." Josephine considered this for a moment. "Then," she said, "we can't afford to take a taxi out to Dinsmore." "That's nothing." I wasn't going to admit that I had forgotten anything. We don't need any taxi. We'll go in the subway. Come on."

I started and Josephine followed. For three blocks she followed in sllence. Then just at the subway entrance she halted. "I've been thinking," she began.

I stopped and faced her. I had great respect for the result of Josephine's thoughts-when she reached them. She was slow but she was sure-often painfully so. "Well?" I questioned. Josephine opened her big eyes wider. "I believe Father is on board the steamer," she said. "I believe that was why he sent us on her. I believe he expected to meet us on her after she got to sea."

"Good Lord !" My eyes popped wide and my mouth fell open. "If-" But there was no time for "ifs" just them. "Come along," I cried, clutching Josephine's arm. "We'll talk all that over at Dinsmore."

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. But-if not at the beginning of a story, why not at the beginning of a chapter? Not that there is any duchess in this chapter or even in this story. But the state of mind that the quotation connotes certainly does portray the feelings of pretty nearly everybody that appears in this chapter and of a lot of people who do not appear. At least, it portrays their feelings a little later when they heard of the events that took place in this chapter. And if eventually, why not now?

Anyway, it goes double for me! Josephine and I started for Ding. more's Folly on the subway; anon we took a trolley car; some more anon we walked; and finally we arrived, after traveling for two hours without stopping, except for ten minutes that Josephine insisted on spending in a drug store at the end of the subway, while I stood beside a trolley car and begged the conductor not to start till my sister could join me. It is hard to say just when newspapers began, for the first papers, or pamphlets, publishing news did not ap pear with any regularity. They appeared when there was something im portant to tell.
