

They Have Gone to Seek a "Dream Island"

M. F. Bramley, wealthy paving contractor of Cleveland, Ohio, and his party aboard the famous Arctic ship Peary on which they have sailed from Boston in search of a "dream island" off the western coast of Mexico. Mr. Bramley dreamed of this sunken island and later believed he located it from an airplane. In the photograph he is seen wearing a cape coat.

Winner in a Church Building Competition

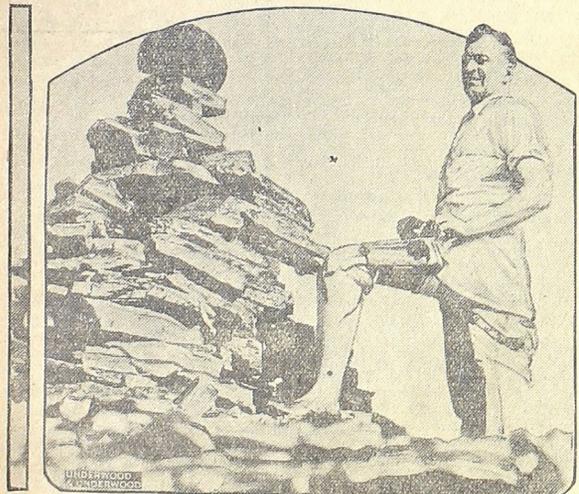

This Methodist Episcopal church at Trainer, Pa., was awarded the first prize of $1,000 in the nation-wide church building competition conducted by the Christian Herald for the most beautiful and adequate small church. It was designed by Thoralf Sundt and Bruce C. Wenner, young Philadelphia architects.

Henry Is Fairly Big for Thirteen

Henry Mullins of Atlanta, Ga., is nearly twice the height of the two boys who are trying to reach his outstretched arms; yet, he's the same age as those boys. Henry is thirteen years old and is seven feet tall. Despite his very unusual height he is well proportioned and doesn't feel the least bit conspicuous.

One-Legged Mountain Climber

Probably the world's greatest mountain climbing feat of 1928 was achieved by Clyde Cobb, middle-aged taxidermist of Kalispell, Mont., who, wearing an artificial leg, climbed Mt. Wilbur (9,283 feet) in the Rockies. This peak had been scaled by only three other men, all professional mountain climbers. Reaching the summit, where in 1923 Norman Clyde of the Sierra club of California erected a cairn of rocks, the Montana man bared his artificial leg and made a snapshot of himself standing beside the cairn as proof of his ascent.

LEGION'S CHAPLAIN

Rabbi Lee J. Levinger, Ph. D., of Columbus, Ohio, was elected national chaplain of the American Legion by the national executive committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rabbi Herman J. Beck. As an army chaplain, Doctor Levinger served with the Twenty-seventh division at the front, at the Battle of the Selle River.

HE WON A DOG DERBY

Fred Printz of Cascade, Idaho, being kissed by his wife and presented with the Marco Hellman silver trophy and a purse of $3,000 immediately after winning the first Sierra Dog derby between Truckee, Calif., and Tahoe Tavern—a three-day race run in daily laps of 32 miles each. Mr. Garnett, assistant passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific, is making the presentation.

LIGHTWEIGHT WOOLENS POPULAR; SUSPENDER DRESS IS NOBBY

FROCK OF PRINTED CHALLIS

FLOWERS, automobile, food, style and hundreds of equally as interesting "shows" staged in pomp and pageantry —thus modern art and industry "tells the world" of Twentieth century achievement in this line or that.

To those who would be fashion-wise the fates have been especially kind in the way of staging exhibits for their enlightenment as to style trends. The latest recruit to join the army of those who would tell a story of accomplishment is the woolen industry. An event which is history making in the fabric field is that presented in New York under the romantic caption, Golden Fleece Pageant. It reveals the fashion importance of woollens and worsteds down through the centuries. All the mills of the country have been invited to submit representative fabrics to a committee of stylists, numbered among which are editors of important fashion publications and leading authorities on dress throughout the country. Which means that woolen fabrics are playing an outstanding role on fashion's program.

The lightweight woollens for spring and summer frocks are enchanting. Their lovely shades and vivid colorings, their artful patternings and sheer textures bespeak for them an unprecedented vogue. The daintiest types seem to have captured the delicate green of spring foliage, the elusive blue of summer skies or perhaps the golden glow of a radiant sunset. Some are flowered, some are bordered, while still others are in delectable solid tones.

Printed challis is among the loveliest of these lovely new woollens. The ers, yes, really and truly bona fide suspenders, form a threesome the result is a very attractive sports costume. The picture proves just that. It's a bit dapperish, to be sure, which, no doubt, enhances it all the more in the eyes of the younger set.

It seems that the suspender dress comes to us via Hollywood way, where it is extremely popular among the younger screen actresses, Barbara Kent, who posed for this photograph, being one of the first to take up the Granting that it is the suspenders which give the thrill of novelty, yet for smartness and up-to-dateness the skirt and the blouse are sufficient unto themselves. In fact, they furnish a clew to two of fashion's latest trends. The plaited wool skirt, for instance, belongs in the wardrobe of the modern young girl. Not only for sports but for school wear, a skirt such as this is quite essential from a practical as well as a fashionable point of view.

Of course a separate skirt calls for any number of blouses, and it is the tuck-in versions over which such an ado is made this season. The very latest ensembles, whether of tweed or knitted, whether with long coat or jacket, feature the tuck-in blouse. There is an exaggerated simplicity about the new tuck-in blouse which is really quite fetching.

Among the many versions of the "tuck-in" there are none more attractive than those of white jersey which lace at the front opening with a colorful cord. White washable silk naive frock in the picture is made of this charming lightsoave and it is typical of the beguiling models which will grace the forthcoming exhibition of woolen fashions.

Other of the novelty weaves shown include knitted woolen goods into which is spun a thread of metal. Chiffon flannel in adorable shades is delightfully wearable, while striped woollens for sports express ultra chic.

A notice in the legislative news, that Hon. Fred C. Holbeck has introduced a bill that the state's power to influence internal improvements be extended to an improvement to river basins. The measure, which would require a constitutional amendment, would permit the state to deepen river beds to prevent annual floods. It is sponsored by the Health, Conservation and Agricultural Departments. We believe it a move in the right direction so far as the Au Gres river valley flood situation is concerned.

Our feed grinder is running every day. Bring in your feed—we grind while you wait.

At a small station in the South the daily passenger train was getting ready to leave.

"All right back there?" bawled the conductor.

"Hol' on! Hol' on!" shrilled a feminine voice from inside the waiting room, "Jess wait till I gets mah clothes on."

And then, as the occupants of the train craned their necks expectantly, appeared with a basket of laundry.

A Scotchman, not feeling so well as usually, called on his family doctor, who looked him over and gave him some pills to be taken at bedtime. Whiskey was also prescribed for his stomach's sake, a small glass to be taken after each meal.

Four days later Sandy again called on the doctor, stating he was feeling no better.

"Have you taken the medicine exactly as I instructed?" the doctor inquired.

"Weel, doctor," replied the patient, "I may be a wee bit behindt wi' the pills, but I'm six weeks ahead wi' the whusky."

THE CHALLENGER

Twice now .. in 30 days .. production has had to be increased

Essex the Challenger sweeps aside the barriers of price class. It challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other car gives you back so much for every dollar you put in.

A glance at its 76 advanced features reveals at once why Essex exceeds no car in its challenge. For point after point in fine car construction, performance and detail, brings you directly to costliest cars to find comparison.

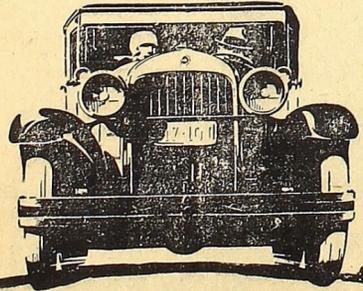

With above 70 miles an hour top speed, Essex the Challenger, in thousands of demonstrations, is proving the endurance and ability to do 60 miles an hour all day long.

It is the finest, largest, roomiest, most brilliantly performing Essex ever built, and the price the lowest for which Essex ever sold—but little above the lowest priced car on the market.

That is why the acceptance of Essex the Challenger is the talk of motordom. Join the van of 1,000,000 Super-Six owners who are demonstrating its right and ability to challenge the best that motordom offers.

Takes Lonely Position

Southampton, England.—An adventurous clergyman, Rev. Augustus Partridge, has sailed from here for his new station in "the world's loneliest island," Tristan da Cunha.

The dauntless padre—a bachelor—already has suffered the perils and hardships of frontier posts in distant South Africa and South American fields.

With his Bible and "vest pocket" organ, as inspiration and aids to his labors, Mr. Partridge is taking with him to Tristan a huge supply of rat poison. For rats are the fiercest creatures in this lonely ocean oasis.

The traveling preacher—still on the sunny side of middle age—has a vigorous frame and trim figure. It was just recently that he returned home to London from his ministry in Brazil. But when he heard that the chaplain at Tristan da Cunha was sick and must be relieved he volunteered at once for the uninviting task.

After serving during the war in the British Red Cross, Mr. Partridge entered the Anglican ministry and soon responded to the call for foreign service in the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. He went out to South Africa and in the Johannesburg mining districts—rough and unruly as mining countries are—he took charge of three churches, one of these for natives.

"I had to rush about from one church to another on my motor bike," he said, in relating his adventures, "and they called me 'the Flying Parson.'"

"One day a native woman came running to me, her face streaming with blood. She had been attacked by some superstitious persons, both Christian and non-Christian, who charged that she had buried a charm in front of the church and caused the death of a native deacon.

"I put on all my canonical vestments to overawe the crowd. Then I went out and dug up the ground myself to show them there was no charm there. I had to excommunicate the church members who had attacked the poor woman."

After other like trials, Mr. Partridge was transferred across the Atlantic to Santos, the great Brazilian coffee port. The young clergyman found this city a strenuous field. Carousing sailors, reckless beachcombers, and down-and-outers of many nationalities destroyed the peace of the place and made his life one fight after another.

But in this new island station the preacher no longer will have to struggle with violent men and worse women. Tristan's population is not much more than 100. Its farmers and fishermen are described as moral and religious, industrious and hospitable; they have no alcoholic liquors, and they have no crime among them.

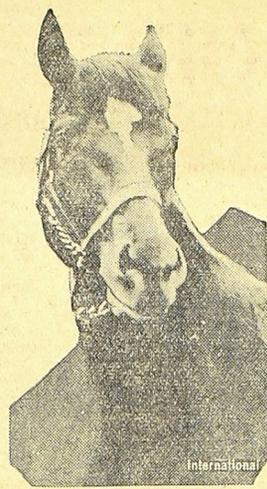

The new chaplain will have charge of the education of the children of the island, who are contented prisoners on the little area of 16 square miles.

Runaway Building Nearly Wrecks Railroad Train

Red Wing, Minn.—A railway wreck was narrowly averted here when an engineer brought his train to a stop just a few feet short of a "runaway building" which blocked the tracks. The building, it may be explained, got away from workmen who were moving it from one location to another. The Chicago Great Western railway engineer saw the obstruction in time to halt his train. Workmen hacked away one corner of the building and the train continued its journey.

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real anilines. That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market! Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

Novel History of the World War Assembled

History of the World war in 400 volumes of newspaper clippings has been acquired by the New York Historical society with funds provided by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The clippings were assembled by Otto Spengler of a New York press clipping office, says a writer in the Evening Standard.

The collection includes cuttings from newspapers published in all parts of the United States and a considerable number of foreign newspapers. Completeness in such an undertaking could never be obtained, but it is believed that the collection, the largest of its kind known to be in existence, will be invaluable to students in studying the history of the war as reflected in the minds of the people. Arranging this collection of clippings in chronological order was a stupendous task.

Need for New Calendar

"The year has 365 days. If you sleep eight hours a day, you sleep 122 days. That leaves you 243 days. "If you rest eight hours a day, that equals another 122 days, and leaves you out of your year 121 days. "If you deduct 52 Sundays you have 69 days left. "Then come 52 Saturday half holidays, equaling 26 days, leaving only 43 days. An hour and a half for lunch every days totals 23 days, leaving you with 20 days. "Two weeks of vacation will leave you six days. You will need these for New Year's day, Decoration day, Fourth of July, Labor day, Thanksgiving and Christmas."—The Laugh Book.

Young Lady's Elbows No Longer A Hat Rack

"I just couldn't resist any longer telling you of your wonderful medicine, Milks Emulsion. I have been constipated as long as I can remember. Had typhoid fever when I was eight years old and since then my bowels haven't moved freely. Doctors have given me bowel medicine and I have taken pills, salts, castor oil, and everything a person could think of. They didn't do me any good whatever. "Now, whenever I hear anyone say they are constipated, I immediately tell them of Milks Emulsion. I have taken about 12 large bottles, not all of them regular. Now I keep Milks Emulsion in the house and take it regular. I have taken so much medicine that I thought it was all alike. "I had a sallow complexion, no color, and felt miserable all the time; but now I have the color of health, and health is something I wouldn't exchange with anyone for a fortune. I wouldn't take ten times the price I paid for Milks Emulsion for the results I have obtained. "I am 19 years old and weigh 105 pounds. Have gained 5 pounds since taking your medicine and am still gaining. My face is round and my arms are getting round. Before, people used to hang their hats on my elbows, thinking they were hatracks. Now I am going to keep on with Milks Emulsion until I weigh 125 pounds. "I mentioned your Emulsion to two doctors. They both admitted it was good, and no one knows better than I that it is not only good, but wonderful. "You may publish this letter if you wish and anyone that wants to ask me about your medicine may do so. I promise to answer every letter. In fact, I couldn't do enough for Milks Emulsion to repay them for what their medicine has done for me. I remain, very respectfully yours, ROSEMOND BOWER, Frontenac, Kan."

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It is wise, we say, for a man to realize his limitations. By so doing he does not rush into things for which he has no fitness; he does not attempt that which is beyond his powers of accomplishment. I know, for instance, that I am not musical. I am neither a performer nor have I musical appreciation sufficient intelligently to criticize a performance to which I listen. For that reason I say nothing, and I am convinced that many of my friends whom I hear making wise comments upon this or that musical performance might better follow my example.

Ball has little or no sense of humor, and he has the judgment to realize his lack. He can never see the point of a joke even when it is explained to him in detail. If he laughs when some one tells a funny story it is to be polite, and not to put himself outside the circle, rather than because he is amused by the recital or understands what it is all about. But Ball never cracks a joke. He never launches out, as many people do into a narrative intended to amuse and then forget the point and ends his tale without a climax. He knows his limitations and he wisely never goes beyond them. "Wisely," I said, but I am not always sure that it is wise too acutely to realize one's weaknesses. Too keen a realization takes the energy out of one, robs him of initiative and makes one afraid at times to try anything.

We all thought Clancy less than ordinary when he was in college. He was handicapped in two ways. He did not have any money and so was forced to earn his living by acting as a sort of chore boy in one of the local stores at twenty cents an hour—a job which brought him only a meager subsistence—and in addition to this handicap he had a dull brain. Even his best friends admitted that Clancy was very ordinary. But somehow he himself never realized this fact. He stumbled along in his stupid way, insisting on being a leader. He had neither tact nor social finesse, but whenever anything political or social was under way Clancy was always on hand pushing himself to the front and insisting in a crude illiterate way on being heard. No one thought he would make a success of his profession. He was too crude, too stupid, too lacking in the qualities which enable one to get on with men, but Clancy never recognized these limitations of his, and he has got on. It has never occurred to him that he is commonplace. He has put a good estimate upon his own abilities and with that in mind has forged ahead. In some way he has apparently fooled people and they have taken him at his own estimate. He is really quite the literary critic; his friends are among the best people in the city in which he lives. He has risen above his limitations.

Hamilton, Ont.—Judge Elliot of Halton county has ruled that a nine-months-old child is of no cash value to its parents. This ruling was made known recently in the suit of John Ashwood of Toronto against Ross McPhail of this city, for damages for the death of their son, William, in August, 1927. The men were involved in an auto crash near Oakville, the baby dying of a fractured skull. The judge said a child was only a remote source of remuneration; that he was a liability, and that no allowance, but only sympathy, could go to the grief-stricken parents.

Ray Finds Radium

Pasadena, Calif.—When one of Dr. Robert A. Millikan's electroscopes, developed in connection with his cosmic ray experiments, was enlisted as a detective, a problem as difficult as "looking for a needle in a haystack" was solved within two hours.

Through the use of the delicate instrument $4,000 worth of radium which was accidentally thrown out with some ashes at the Pasadena hospital was recovered.

John Ransom, California Institute of Technology technician, was sent to the hospital with one of the cosmic ray machines and, after barrel after barrel of ashes had been brought in front of the electroscope the instrument indicated that radium was present in the last barrel.

While hospital officials anxiously watched the proceedings in the basement of the institution the barrel containing the capsule filled with fifty milligrams of the most precious substance in the world was emptied into small boxes. It was only when the observers were about to give up hope

Bees Buzz Busily for 800,000 in U. S.

Madison, Wis.—More than 800,000 people in the United States are keeping bees and the value of the honey crop runs from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 annually, figures compiled by H. F. Wilson of the agricultural staff of the University of Wisconsin reveal.

Wilson says beekeeping has splendid prospects for the future and great possibilities in almost every state. However, he insists, the industry lacks leadership and finance.

Is Broth of a Boy

Atlanta, Ga.—How would you like to be thirteen again—but seven feet two inches tall?

That is the age and height of Henry Mullins of Atlanta. He hopes to be a football star at Georgia Tech some day. Doctors say the trouble—if it can be called that—is caused by overactivity of the youth's pituitary gland, a ductless organ below the brain. Such overactivity causes the rise of most giants.

Henry Mullins is in the seventh grade in school. His report card is usually worth showing to his father and mother—A's and B's. On top of that he is a good golf player. He goes around in the 80s and some of his drives are 250 yards. Henry doesn't look toward golf for success, however. "All the club handles are too short, anyway. I want to be a boxer and a football player, but I can't find anybody to box with me," he said.

The radium which was recovered is the property of Dr. Paul Ferrier, and is one of the two largest supplies of the precious substance in this city.

Henry's shoes are size 14. The rest of his attire is in proportion. He plays end on the high school football team, center on the basketball team. He drops some baskets in without poking his hand over his head. He played first base in baseball and was utility man on the mound. Henry is a wow in sports!

C. E. Mullins, a six footer, brother of the young giant, claims his big brother eats only about as much as the average thirteen-year-old boy eats, "only it goes farther."

If Henry keeps on growing—and he doesn't want to—he will, by averages with normally sized humans—leap into something like ten feet of humanity—a world's record. However, doctors are going to give some treatments to that little pituitary gland.

However, heat generally causes a thing to swell and it occupies more space. It is therefore lighter in proportion to the space it occupies. This relation of volume and weight causes warm air or hot water to rise.

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE STORY

Edith Dinsmore inherits the architectural monstrosity known as "Dinsmore's Folly" from her grandfather. She visits the place and Fred James, newspaper reporter, appears in quest of a story. Mr. Paul, right hand man of Edith's father, proposes and is rejected. While riding with James, Edith's horse bolts and she is rescued by a stranger who does not give his name. With her sister, Josephine, and Fred James, Edith attends a prize fight. When police raid the place she is rescued by the same stranger. She learns his name is Braxton and allows him to think she is a poor relation of the Dinsmores. Telling her father she is in love with Fred James, the old gentleman arranges for Josephine and Edith to take a trip to Japan, with their Aunt Candice. On the pier the girls hear newsboys calling "All About the Dinsmore Indictment." Excited, they allow the vessel to sail without them, but with Aunt Candice. They find their home surrounded by a crowd denouncing Curtis Dinsmore as a thief. He has disappeared. Edith and Josephine take refuge at "Dinsmore's Folly." As the girls are entering the grounds an auto with a single occupant, a man, crashes into the wall and is thrown into the river. The victim of the accident is taken into the house, too badly injured to be moved. Edith recognizes him as Braxton.

"I think it must have been a banana peel," he said. "I wasn't going very fast, you know? (Oh, no, he wasn't going very fast! Not he!)—and there was no reason why my car should skid—unless somebody had strewn banana peels over the road, of course."

That settled it. A man who could joke like that when he had three broken ribs and a broken arm and was half drowned besides was all right. I just settled down to enjoy myself.

But after a while I noticed that Josephine was getting restive. Nobody but I could have noticed it, for Josephine's wildest excitement would have seemed a dead calm to anybody else. But I knew the signs; and every second I expected to see her get up and drag me away. Desperately I talked on, trying to prevent her from breaking in.

I didn't succeed for long, of course. Nothing can stop Josephine when she thinks she is doing her duty. Abruptly she stood up, right in the middle of one of my sentences. (I must admit that most of my sentences were middle and that very few of them had rear ends.) Josephine stood up.

"I must see about dinner, Mr. Braxton," she said. "I'm afraid I can't trust Perkins. You will dine with us, I hope? I'll have dinner served here—If there is anything to serve." She turned toward the door; then looked back. "Edith will entertain you while I am gone," she added.

I jumped. This was too good to be true. Later I wondered whether Josephine intended any sarcasm by saying I could entertain Mr. Braxton while she was gone. Of course I really had been monopolizing him dreadfully. But then—oh, well, it was good of her to let me stay, anyhow.

As she went out of the door I opened my mouth to speak. And then I found that I had nothing to say. My gift of gab had deserted me. I sat there tongue-tied, sizzling, as bashful and dumb as a child.

Mr. Braxton came to my rescue. He put out his hand. "It's good to see you again," he said. "We really seem fated to meet."

My spirits were coming back. And I remembered that he had never called. "Fated?" I snapped. "Yes! I guess that's the right word. It does seem to take 'fate' to force you into my presence."

Mr. Braxton flushed. They bit his lip and twinkled his eyes. "Forgive me, please," he said, humbly. "I couldn't call; really I couldn't. I've been crazy to, but I couldn't. I haven't had time to eat or sleep since I saw you last. I've been hoping for a breathing spell—and I expect I'll get one now. But I'll have to spend it in a hospital."

This brought me back to earth. "Oh, you poor man!" I cried, repentantly. "Forgive me. It was mean of me to talk that way. I—"

"Say! Can I come in?"

The voice came from the open door behind me. It was a strange voice, too.

I jumped up and faced about. Standing in the doorway was a wonderfully pretty woman. Yes, she was! I'm not going to deny it. She was pretty. Having admitted this I can add that she wasn't young and that her complexion—Well! It would have been lovely if God had made it. But He hadn't. It might fool a man, but it couldn't fool me.

Before I could speak, Mr. Braxton did so. "Yes, come in, Flo," he said. "Miss Dinsmore, let me present Miss Labert."

We both bowed, looking at each other curiously the while, like two strange cats taking each other's measure. Then I asked her to sit down and she did so.

"I hope I ain't intrudin'," she said. "I knocked at the door, but no one answered, and so I just butted right in. I was dead anxious about Mayo."

Mayo! What do you think of that? Who was she to call Mr. Craxton "Mayo" right out? Why, I didn't even know that his name was Mayo.

Miss Labert turned to the lounge. "Did you get it bad, Mayo?" she asked. "They tell me you got jarred up something fierce!"

While I was gasping over her mode of speech (slang sounds so different when somebody else uses it) I heard Mr. Braxton declaring that he wasn't really hurt at all. Isn't it funny about men? I can't understand why they always say they're not hurt when they are. It isn't unmanly to get hurt. Lots more men than women get hurt. Yet they seem to think there is some disgrace in owning up to an injury.

Miss Labert and Mr. Braxton talked on, while I sat silent. Somehow I felt out of it. And I felt, too, that Miss Labert had come to say something and that my presence prevented her saying it. So, as soon as I could I got out.

"I've got to telephone," I said. "Will you excuse me for a few minutes?"

Of course they said "yes," and I hurried away. If they really did have secrets to interchange I wanted them to do it and get done.

I really did want to telephone. I wanted to speak to Mr. Paul or to father's office and find out what had happened and to explain where Josephine and I had taken refuge.

As I took the receiver from the hook Josephine came up, and I stopped to tell her about Miss Labert. "I came away to give them a chance to talk privately if they wanted to," I explained. "Now I'm going to call up the office."

But Josephine shook her head. "I wouldn't," she said. "You don't know who might get your message. If the police have taken possession—"

Josephine was right, of course. Josephine was almost always right. That was one of her chief faults.

"Well, who can I call up, then?" I demanded. "Mr. Paul?"

Josephine pondered. "I don't think you can call up anybody," she suggested, mildly. "Didn't we have the service discontinued when we left here?"

Sure enough, we did. I remembered it now that Josephine had mentioned it. "Well," I snapped, "if I can get Central I'll have it reconnected right away." I took the receiver off the hook and clapped it to my ear.

Instantly I heard the murmurous sound that tells when a wire is alive. But before I could tell Josephine about it I heard Father's voice just as plainly as I ever heard it in all my life. "You do as I told you," he roared. "Buy! Buy! Buy! Did you get that?" Then a voice I didn't know said: "All right. Buy it is," and the phone clicked. Then I waked up and shrieked into it. "Father! Father!" I clamored. "Father!"

But Father didn't answer.

Josephine was staring as if she thought I had gone crazy; and after a while I hung up the phone without having had a cheep out of Central.

Then I told Josephine what I had heard. "Father's in town somewhere," I said. "I've just heard him talking. But where is he? How many million phones are there in New York? And how on earth can we find out which one Father is on?"

Josephine gave it up. In fact Josephine didn't believe that I had heard father at all. She didn't say so, but I could read her thoughts all right. She was sure that I had been misled by a resemblance in voice. I didn't argue the question; it's hard to argue with anyone who won't argue back. Anyway, I had found out that our line had been connected up, all right.

Having learned this I went back to Mr. Braxton's room, and Josephine went back to the dining room.

Miss Labert got up as I entered, evidently intending to go. She and I stood for a moment, exchanging platitudes.

Ambidexterity Not a Thing of Importance

For the last 30 years systematic attempts have been made to teach children to use both right and left hands indiscriminately. But the results have been amusingly unsatisfactory. The explanation apparently is that the power of the hand is intimately associated with the unfolding of the cerebral centers which regulate language and are located on the left side—that is to say, in relation to the centers which regulate the control of the right hand and arm. The examination of thousands of human skeletons has demonstrated that in all cases in which the right arm is better developed than the left there is evident a correspondingly satisfactory development of the left side of the brain. It follows that left-handed persons must have less linguistic ability than the right-handed and that children obliged to use both hands indiscriminately will have diminished power of ready speech and an ability markedly less in learning and retaining language.—Washington Star.

Difficult Music

Opinions differ as to which piano selection is the most difficult. One musician says that "Campanella," arranged by Franz Liszt, and his "Hungarian Rhapsodies" are certainly among the extremely difficult ones.

Paper Money Wears

Out in Short Time

The life of a dollar bill is much shorter than it was a few years ago, and the difference is said to be due to its frequent passage through the hands of the individuals at the roadside filling station. This was determined by government officials, by circulating 50 $1 bills, with a request attached that each spender indorse on the slip what he spent it for, and that the person holding the bill after the tenth indorsement should return it to the American Motorists' association headquarters at Washington. The 50 bills were circulated in 10 cities with the result that out of 36 bills returned containing 371 indorsements, 53 of the indorsements indicated that the bill had been spent by a motorist for gas or oil. The size of the new bills about to be issued will tend to lengthen their life and also the fact that the paper used will be oil proof to a certain extent.

Electric Cable Will

Guide Ship in Fog

A device that would enable a blindfolded helmsman to steer a ship safely into harbor was described at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers by Robert H. Marriott, consulting engineer of the federal radio commission.

An electric cable lying on the sea bottom is the guide. Two coils of wire are hung over each side of the vessel. They pick up electric impulses in the cable by induction and transmit them as sound through headphones worn by the helmsman.

When the keel is over the cable the intensity of sound is equal in each ear. But when the sound volume begins to diminish in one ear it is an indication that the ship is slipping off its course in the direction of the faint sound side. Fog does not affect the operation of the cable.

Actors Resent Caricatures

French actors who take themselves too seriously are aroused over their caricatures being given by Rap, a Parisian revue artist, who is creating quite a furor by his mimicry of the personalities of the hour in Paris.

Mistinguette, the idol of the dancing world, had a bad time of it when she recently visited the theater to see a cartoon of herself on the stage. When she was leaving the box office, it is said, the manager asked her if she would like to meet Rap, and she exclaimed, "Oh, No! No!" and hurried from the theater.

At a recent showing of "Robinson Hood" at an East side moving picture show, a five-year-old boy who was unable to read, kept asking questions of his older brother. ### PROPOSES PLAN TO ASSIST DRAIN CONSTRUCTION expenditure of grants to the State or other property."

It will be necessary to amend the above article so as to include the rivers and streams of the State.

The Attorney General was asked to prepare an amendment to the Constitution, covering the above point, in the shape of a Joint Resolution. This Joint Resolution I have introduced in the House. It will be known as Joint Resolution No. 10.

I feel sure that this legislation will be acted on favorably and the matter placed before the people at the next election.

I am sorry that something could not have been done to give more immediate relief, but under the circumstances this is the best and only way the matter could be handled, and I am very hopeful that in a few years our big problem will be solved and the expense met, as it should be, by the State, with the Federal Government assisting in the same manner as at the present in the building of State Trunk lines.

I might add that it is the opinion of those interested that when this amendment becomes effective, that the State could construct or assist in the construction of trunk line drains, in much the same manner as it now constructs or assists in the construction of trunk line highways.

Yours faithfully,
FRED C. HOLBECK.

Eclipses

Before their nature was fully understood eclipses were regarded with superstitious dread, and many legends of dreadful occurrences are connected with this wonderful spectacle. In some parts of New Guinea they are regarded as portents of good seasons or success in battle, while in the Solomon Islands eclipses are credited to the machinations of sorcerers.

Not Sure

Little Paul was visiting a neighbor. It was cherry time and his mother had cautioned him about swallowing cherry seeds. Paul was eating cherries, when he suddenly stopped and looked up so scared, and exclaimed: "Oh! I swallowed a seed; it didn't kill me, did it?"

The Screen's Greatest Show

Here at last is the picture the whole country's been talking about.

Positively more talent than has ever been packed before into one film.

What a mighty entertainment trio—Davies and Haines and Vidor! And this is their best effort to date. Hollywood from the inside—with studio scenes actually showing Chaplin, Fairbanks Bill Hart and a score of others. It's a wow!
