STUDENTS BRING HONOR TO T.C.H.S.

The team of ten students of the local high school that journeyed to Mt. Pleasant for the fourth annual state scholastic contest Friday, brought honor to themselves and to their school by winning first place in their class in the academic subjects. The team was composed of George Roach, Stewart Roach, William Leslie, Irving Burtzloff, Harold Hartmann, Viola Burtzloff, Elsie Mueller, Marcella Low, Alvera Goedecke and Elvera Kasischke.

The high schools of the state were divided into three classes, that is, those with an enrollment of more than 300, those with an enrollment of between 100 and 300, and those with an enrollment of less than 100. A total of 102 schools and 1632 students took part. The schools of each class contested separately.

The subjects of each of these three classes were divided into two groups; that is, vocational and academic. The vocational subjects consisted of manual arts, shorthand, typewriting, clothing and home economics. The academic subjects consisted of English, Latin, algebra, civics, botany, agriculture, geometry, French, biology, American history, European history and physics.

Each first place obtained by a student counted five points, each second place counted three points, and each third place counted one point. Each contestant who won a first place received a gold pin, and each one who won a second place received a silver pin. The school in each of the three groups which obtained the most points in the academic subjects was presented with an engraved shield, and the same was done in regard to the vocational subjects.

The Tawas City high school, having an enrollment of less than 100, was placed in the third class. This caused our students to compete directly with representatives from fifty-two high schools, and about 700 students.

Elvera Kasischke was our only entrant in the vocational division, and she immediately started the good work Friday morning by taking highest honors in first year typewriting. This gave us five points in the vocational division.

The following places were won in the academic division: Viola Burtzloff, first place in ninth grade English; Elsie Mueller, second place in ninth grade English; Marcella Low, first place in tenth grade English; Elsie Mueller, first place in general science; William Leslie, second place in botany.

The above record gave us a total of 21 points in the academic division, and also caused our high school to easily win first place. Remus was second with 15 points, and Howard City and Sacred Heart of Mt. Pleasant were tied for third, with each having 14 points.

In addition, we desire again to call attention to the fact that the young people of our high school won first place in a scholastic contest with about 700 students coming from 52 high schools of the state. This surely is a record of which the community in general should feel justly proud. We should all observe the engraved shield which now hangs in the assembly room of our high school, and the gold and silver pins which are the property of several of our students.

CHAS. W. FORCE DIES TUESDAY

Charles W. Force, pioneer Isoco county farmer, died Tuesday at the home of his son, Lee W. Force, at Detroit. Mr. Force had been in failing health since the death of Mrs. Force which occurred February 18 of this year.

For the past few years Mr. and Mrs. Force spent the winters with their son, Lee, at Detroit, maintaining their residence in this city as a summer home. For 43 years Mr. Force was engaged in farming on the Hemlock road.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at the Tawas City Baptist church. Rev. Frank Metcalf will officiate.

HILARIOUS ROMANCE IN BUSTER KEATON FILM

Buster Keaton, in his first "dressed up" comedy role of the screen, will be the attraction at the State Theatre Sunday and Monday. In his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle "Spite Marriage" it is an hilarious romance of back-stage theatrical life. Buster plays a tall, thin fellow who poses as a millionaire by wearing the clothes his customers leave with him to be pressed, and then his troubles wax fast and furious. Dorothy Sebastian plays the actress in the case and Leila Hyams, Edward Earle, William Betchel, John Byron, and others of note are in the cast.

HALE CHAPTER, O. E. S., INSTALLS OFFICERS

Hale Chapter No. 482, O. E. S., held its installation of officers on Thursday evening of last week. Members of the F. & A. M. and their families had been invited and a goodly crowd of the members and their guests were assembled for the ceremonies. The meeting was called to order by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Sarah Johnson, who introduced the guests from other chapters and the installing officer, Mrs. Sarah Brown, who then took charge of the meeting. Other officers appointed for the ceremonies were Miss Bess McKenzie, Past Matron of Grace Chapter, Omer, Marshall; Mrs. Teresa Tober of South Branch, Chaplain; and Mrs. Jennie Henry, a Past Matron of Grace chapter, organist, who took their places, and the following officers were installed:

Worthy Matron—Mrs. Sarah Johnson.
Worthy Patron—Elmer Streeter.
Associate Matron—Mrs. Muriel Greve.

A. Patron—Glenn Healey.
Sec.—Mrs. Sarah J. Brown.
Treas.—Mrs. Minnie Lucas.

After remarks by Mr. and Mrs. Seth Thompson, W. M. and W. P. of Whittemore chapter, other guests and the Worthy Patron, Miss McKenzie was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers by the installing officer, and Mrs. Sarah Brown was also presented with flowers by Mrs. Edith Dorcy on behalf of the chapter. The guests were then served with refreshments in the dining room, followed by a social hour.

SUBMITS BRIDGE PLANS TO WAR DEPARTMENT

Plans of the proposed bridge at the mouth of Tawas river were submitted by the state highway department last week to engineers of the war department for approval. The following communication was received by Mayor L. H. Braddock: May 20, 1929

Mayor of Tawas City
Tawas, Michigan
Dear Sir:

The Michigan State Highway Department has filed an application for approval of plans for a fixed bridge over the Tawas river, located about 1,000 feet from its mouth, at Tawas City, Michigan.

The plans submitted show that the proposed bridge will consist of a single fixed span, with a horizontal clearance of 59 feet, 5 inches, and vertical clearances as follows: From high water 3 feet 5 inches, from mean water 6 feet 11 inches, and from extreme low water 10 feet 8 inches, all measured to the underclearance of the proposed structure.

You are hereby notified of the pending application. If, in your judgment, the proposed bridge will interfere with present or prospective navigation, or should have an adverse effect on flood stages, kindly advise this office and state your views in this matter. All communications should reach this office not later than June 1, 1929.

Very truly,
D. McCooch, Jr.,
Major, Corps of Engineers,
District Engineer, War Department

BILLINGS & SCHNEIDER PURCHASE NATIONAL CITY GROCERY

The partnership of Billings & Schneider has purchased the J. C. Munroe store at National City, taking possession Monday of this week. The firm consists of Calvin Billings and Frank Schneider, two well known Sherman township men. Mr. Billings had previously operated the store, selling to Mr. Munroe.

Mr. Munroe has not decided where he will locate again, but his many friends wish him success.

TAWAS CITY WILL FITTINGLY OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day will be fittingly observed at Tawas City with services at the Tawas City Cemetery Memorial mound next Thursday.

Rev. J. W. LeVan of the Methodist Episcopal church, will be speaker for the occasion. Exercises will be given by pupils of the public schools and the Boy Scouts. Memorial military rites will be performed by Jesse C. Hodder Post, American Legion, of this city.

Taps will be sounded at the several cemeteries of the city. Following is an outline of the program: Reveille—7:00; Assembly at 8:00; Exercises at cemetery—10:00; Decoration of Graves—11:00. (Eastern Standard time.)

PLAN BIG 3-DAY CELEBRATION

Details of the program for the Tawas Bay Water Carnival to be held July 4, 5 and 6, are being rapidly worked out by the various committees and will be published within a short time. It is planned by the people of the two cities to make this one of the greatest events ever held here.

Present plans call for Water Sports and Boat Races to be held on Tawas Bay. In addition to this main feature of the celebration there will be ball games on each day. Plans are also being made for a real fireworks display. There will be dancing on each night. The committee also expects to arrange for a band, and everything points to an old time celebration.

Everyone making his plans for those dates would do well to keep this in mind and the several committees will appreciate any publicity that the residents of each city will give this celebration by notifying their out of town relatives and friends as well as those closer at hand.

A good time is promised for all and it will be a real get-together.

The following are members of the executive committee: Mayors Evans and Braddock, Eugene Hanson, W. H. Price, Arvid Carlson, Charles Moeller, Hugo Keiser, Frank R. Dease and L. J. Patterson.

The following are on the sub-committees:

Finance—Charles Moeller, M. H. Barnes, Albert Buch, A. J. Berube, Eugene Hanson and Arvid Carlson.
Advertising—Nathan Barkman, Eugene Ferguson and Victor Marzanski.

Fireworks—Hugo Keiser and Elmer Kuzne.

Land Sports—M. C. Musolf and Arthur Dillon.

The yacht races were placed in charge of the Tawas Yacht Club.

Wilbur C. Roach was named to arrange for a trap shoot.

To Dr. Klump was assigned the duty of investigating the possibilities of a sea plane, and Charles Conklin was named to have charge of the sale of concessions.

SCHOOL NOTES

High School

The Achievement Day for the Sew-So Sewing Club was held in the English room of the high school Wednesday afternoon, May 15. Miss Sylvia Wixson, State Club Leader, gave a short talk to the girls and announced the club champions. Viola Burtzloff was given first place in first year sewing. Elsie Mueller second place and Rose Watts third. Bessie Metcalf was given first place in second year club work. Evelyn Frank was chosen Style Show champion. Miss Wixson complimented the girls on the quality of work done this year and the successful completion of it. She hoped we might have a larger club next year and that they might improve as much as during the past year. Thirteen girls were granted certificates, three failing to carry the work to completion. Miss Worden, Mrs. Watts, Mrs. Frank, Mrs. W. J. Leslie and Mrs. Metcalf were guests of the club. After the program, light refreshments were served.

The following students, having received no mark lower than a 'B', are placed on our Honor Roll for the month of April: Seniors, Theodora Look; Juniors, Harold Hartmann and Elvera Kasischke; Sophomores, Alvera Goedecke; Freshmen, Viola Burtzloff, Elsie Mueller and Leona Ulman.

Viola Burtzloff, Harold Hartmann, Elvera Kasischke and William Leslie have been neither absent nor tardy during the first nine school months.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

Report cards were given out on Wednesday.

Our enrollment for the seventh grade has decreased from twenty-eight to twenty-six. Robert Lickfelt and Arthur Koepke have quit school.

The eighth grade is reviewing in all subjects and the seventh grade is reviewing in all except geography.

The eighth grade was victorious in a spell-down against the seventh grade.

Primary

Report cards were given out this week.

Roy White of Holland visited our room Tuesday afternoon.

We were vaccinated for small pox again Monday.

Eugene Wagner, Dick Burr, Kathleen Davis, Anna Louise Burr, Richard Zollweg, Keith Lovejoy, Richard Holdberg, Beatrice Stark, Orval Stark, Junior Fowler, June Hill and Janette Koepke have been neither absent nor tardy this month.

Our perfect spellers this week were Keith Lovejoy and Anna Louise Burr.

MRS. OLIVER YACKS

Mrs. Oliver E. Yacks, a well-known and esteemed resident of Tawas township for more than 50 years, died at University hospital, Ann Arbor, Saturday, May 11.

Mrs. Yacks had been failing in health for the past two years. She had been at Saginaw and Detroit for medical attention, then in July of last year was taken to University hospital and had since been under the care of Drs. Peterson and Campbell. She seemed to be improving for a time and came home March 16, apparently in good health. She suddenly took worse and was removed to the hospital March 23, where she failed rapidly. Her husband and children were called to her side April 6, when her condition became extreme. All that was known to medical science and that loving care could do, was done but to no avail. The husband and two children, Mrs. Margaret Ruel and Malvin Yacks, were at her bedside when she died.

Anna Katherine Marzinski was born at Essen, Germany, May 24, 1869. She came to Tawas with her parents when a small child. On May 12th, 1886, she was united in marriage to Oliver Ezra Yacks at Tawas City. In November of the same year they purchased and moved onto the farm they cleared, and later built the present home, where they have since resided.

Fourteen children blessed this union, six dying in infancy. Those left to mourn a devoted wife and mother are the husband and eight children. They are: Alfred W. of Mayville, Wisconsin, Leonidas M. of Saginaw, Michael M. of St. Joseph, Mich., Mrs. Henry Fahselt of Tawas township, Mrs. Margaret Ruel, Orville and Malvin of Detroit and Mrs. Carl Etheridge of Tawas City; also 22 grandchildren, one brother, and a host of other relatives and friends.

The remains were brought to her home here Monday, accompanied by the husband and children from Detroit. The funeral was held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from the St. Joseph church, East Tawas, Rev. Fr. Brogger officiating. Burial in the family lot in St. Joseph cemetery.

The pall bearers were Stephen Klisch, Louis Gauthier, Frank Fisher, Paul Bouchard, Jos. Ruel and J. Bearnard.

Those from out of town who came to attend the funeral were, Alfred W. Yacks of Mayville, Wis., Mr. and Mrs. Oney Yacks and family of Saginaw, Michael Yacks and D. J. Downell of St. Joseph, Mrs. Margaret Ruel, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Yacks and Malvin Yacks of Detroit, Edward L. Watson of Grosse Point, Edward Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yacks of Bay City.

MAKE PARK OF UNION SQUARE

When Tawas City was platted in 1867 the founders dedicated Union Square at Ninth Avenue and Fourth Street as a public market. It was of ample proportions for the city which they envisioned should grow on the beautiful bay.

The signatures appearing on the plat as recorded in the register of deed's office are: James O. Whittemore, Chas. H. Whittemore, Charles Harris, George B. Mathews and Fanny Mathews.

Years passed, but the city never saw the need of a public market and in time the purpose to which Union Square was dedicated was nearly forgotten, to be recalled only when someone sought to purchase the land.

This spring members of the local Boy Scout troop saw the possibilities of the vacant common as a playground and park. The project was placed Monday evening before the Common Council. Here it met with endorsement. The sum of fifty dollars was appropriated to help prepare the ground. The greater portion of the work necessary has been volunteered by the Boy Scout troop and interested citizens. The ground will be leveled, brush cut and trees planted. A miniature ball diamond will be laid out for the small boys and other improvements added from time to time.

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends for their kind offerings, for the flowers and cars rendered at the death of our mother, Mrs. Oliver Yacks.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Etheridge.

SPORTSMEN MEET NEXT FRIDAY

With the great annual gathering of the sportsmen of the counties of Isoco, Alcona and Oscoda only approximately one week away, everything points now to the meeting for this year being the greatest in every respect of any previous meeting.

Judge W. W. Potter of the Supreme Court is to be the principal speaker of the evening, and Charles Haensel, secretary and manager of the Saginaw Chamber of Commerce, is to be the toastmaster. Other speakers will be Director of Conservation George R. Hogarth, former Postmaster General Harry S. New, and W. B. Mershon of Saginaw.

The committees have almost completed their plans on entertainment, banquet, tickets and reception and the entertainment committee reports a most varied line of interesting stunts that will go to make up the program. Whitney's eight-piece orchestra from Rose City will furnish the music during the banquet. Immediately following the banquet the fun of the evening will begin and will intersperse the intervals between the main speeches of the evening.

More tickets are being sold this year in the outlying districts of the three counties than ever before. In the community of Fairview and Mio, the home of Charles Lewis, President of the organization, the quota has already been over-subscribed and indications point to at least 450 sportsmen at the meeting in East Tawas at the Community House on the evening of May 31.

Airplane Aid to Big Business

Industrial organizations have learned by experience that the ownership of passenger airplanes for the use of their executives is of immense benefit, especially in the way of saving time on business trips. One of the pioneers in this line was the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which put its first plane into operation two years ago. According to announcement by Allan Jackson, vice president, speaking for the directors, that corporation has now replaced the plane with a larger and faster machine supplied by the Stout division of the Ford Motor company. It is an all-metal, tri-motored plane carrying nine passengers; has a total of 1,230 horse power and a high speed of 140 miles. Stanolind II, as it is called, acted as flagship of the St. Paul Association of Commerce's "good will tour" to Winnipeg, carrying members of the city council.

The Man Who Drank Up a Town

"JOHN DROULLARD. John Droullard! John Droullard!" For more than fifty years now, every little while, a bailiff in the Circuit court in Quincy, Ill., has been crying the name of John Droullard. But John Droullard never answers. John has been dead now for more than eighty years.

Yet in these eighty years no man, probably, has been "hailed into court" as many times as John. It's John's drinking that is to blame. Drinking done 'way back in the 1840s.

This is the story: John Droullard was a French Canadian. Boot making was his trade. Somehow he drifted into the Mississippi valley when the white man's civilization was young. Quincy is one of the oldest cities in Illinois.

Quincy was established as a county seat the day John Quincy Adams was inaugurated President. The county is called Adams. The park in the center of the city is John's park. That's how old Quincy is.

John Droullard was there before that. When he came to where Quincy stands, he found only two settlers. John Wood and Willard Keyes alone had preceded him. They lived in log cabins. John Droullard was the third.

John was a bootmaker and Wood and Keyes both wore moccasins. Other settlers, for a long time, wore moccasins. But finally the town grew and John Droullard opened a cobbling place in a cabin of his own.

In the days when land was very cheap John Droullard got much of it. He owned land all around where Quincy stands. Much of it is downtown property now. But John got to drinking.

When he grew older John spent the most of his time around Brown's tavern. He no longer made boots. He just drank and dreamed. Occasionally John would run out of money. Then he would sell a lot. A lot was always good for another period of drinking.

Selling a lot with John might be nothing more than taking a few dollars—twenty, perhaps, or thirty, and giving the buyer a receipt. On occasion he might write the receipt on the back of an envelope or a scrap of butcher paper.

Transactions like that sufficed in those days. Such tradings were satisfactory to the buyer and seller alike. The buyer gained possession and John knew that the lot had been transformed as by the touch of an alchemist, from dirt to red wine.

That pleased John. Wine was to drink and it gave cheer and warmth; set an old man's blood to running again. John would smack his lips as one lot vanished and turn to the next. There were more lots, many of them.

Finally John died, some eighty years ago, and was buried. Quincy grew. Property became valuable. Holders started to resell the lots they had bought from John Droullard. For a long time little was thought of it. But in these latter days, with fortunes tied up in single lots; with title insurance and all such things, well—

Every now and then the bailiff in the court in Quincy will be heard calling:

"John Droullard. John Droullard! John Droullard!"

And then the judge, with solemn mien, will say:

"Defendant defaulted."

Records will be written into large, legal books in a very lawful manner. So, year by year, lot by lot, the titles on the bits and parcels of property that John Droullard drank away more than eighty years ago are being cleared up.

Modern Brides Expect Much of Their Husbands

Time was when a young man had saved $40 or $50 and had a good job on a farm that paid him $25 a month he began thinking seriously of marriage. But those days are gone forever.

Nowadays when a man asks a girl to marry him the prospective bride expects much more. She absolutely must live in a house with hardwood floors, furnace heated and equipped with a clothes chute. It must have running water, hot and cold, electric lights, a sun porch, basement, garage, bathroom, large lawn and terrace. Before the bridegroom-to-be buys the license he must first purchase at least two American walnut bedroom suites, an overstuffed living room suite, the latest dining room furniture, a complete kitchen equipment, including a gas range, and, if the fixtures are not built-in, a kitchen cabinet. And there are many other little things, too numerous to mention.

Young brides are entitled to all the nice things their husbands can afford to give them, but it does seem that some of them would do a whole lot better by waiting a bit for all these things. The husband who constantly works upward and who consistently increases his wage earning capacity buys these things piece by piece and bit by bit. If more married women received their household equipment in that manner perhaps they would appreciate those things more. And perhaps fewer young husbands would go broke.

Memorial Day, 1929

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HE ENLISTED in a Pennsylvania regiment in June, 1775, and marched to the siege of Boston. He followed Montgomery to Quebec, and starved and froze amid the snows of Canada. Wearing the Continental Buff and Blue, he fought under Washington at Trenton and at Princeton, and in the summer of 1777 he went with Dan'l Morgan to repel Burgoyne's invasion of New York.

At Saratoga the bayonet thrust of a Hessian grenadier struck him down. What if the historians of the future were to call this conflict, whose din was now sounding faintly in his ears, one of "the fifteen decisive battles of the world?" He was conscious only of the torture of thirst as his life-blood ebbed swiftly away until death finally stilled his cry of "Water! Water!" A great monument stands on the spot which once witnessed the "pomp and circumstance of war"—the surrender of a British army. But, nearby, the smooth, green sod gives no sign that the soil beneath holds the dust of a young Pennsylvania backwoodsman, one of the many who died in defense of American liberty. Who was he? Just an Unknown Soldier of the Revolution!

Before the ink on his enlistment papers in the First infantry was scarcely dry, another boy, who had never before been beyond the confines of the rock-strewn acres of the little New England farm where he was born, was on his way to the western frontier, there to serve in a lonely outpost called Fort Dearborn. It was as though he were on another planet, so far as communication with the world he had known was concerned. But somehow he managed to live through the cold, desolate winters and the hot, fever-breeding summers amid the swamps along the Chicago river.

With the summer of 1812 came the news of war with Great Britain, and, more alarming still, the threat of an Indian outbreak. Then—orders to evacuate Fort Dearborn.

One hot August day the retreat began. From out of the sandhills along Lake Michigan swooped the fierce Pottawatomies. A short, desperate fight and the Fort Dearborn massacre was history. That night there was a hellish orgy in the Indian camp and the pitying stars looked down upon a writhing figure at the stake. What if this was one of the acts in the mighty drama called "the Winning of the West?" What if the future was to see one of the world's greatest cities rise on these sandy shores? Could that knowledge have been recompense for the fiery agony of this New England lad above whose unmarked grave the hurrying feet of Chicago's millions today beat an endless requiem? Who was he? An Unknown Soldier of the War of 1812!

Though some of his neighbors denounced it as an "unholy war" into which President Polk was leading the nation, a certain Middle Western farm boy was one of the first to respond when the President on May 13, 1846, called for 50,000 volunteers to drive the Mexicans back across the Rio Grande. And so he was among those who landed with "Old Fuss and

Day for Thoughts of Peace

Memorial day is no longer a day for the recollection of martial times alone. It is a day given less and less to parades, the salutes of guns, the clank of swords. It is a day given more and more to quiet and individual strengthening of that "bridge of love" that stretches from the dead to those who live. It is a day set aside for memory. When the new and shining link of World war veterans grows Feathers" Scott at Vera Cruz and started toward the City of Mexico. To his parents back in Ohio came cheerful letters from the boy, telling of the rapid succession of victories won by the American army and assuring them that the war was almost over and that he would soon be home. His last letter was written the night before Scott's soldiers stormed Chapultepec. The boy's parents awaited his return in vain. Today in the environs of the City of Mexico there is a little cemetery in which stands a small granite shaft bearing these words: "To the memory of the American soldiers who perished in this valley in 1847, whose bones, collected by the country's orders, are here buried—750." And so this Unknown Soldier of the Mexican war sleeps among the 750 in alien soil.

Fort Sumter had been fired upon. In the upper Shenandoah valley of Virginia a father was bidding goodbye to his two sons. "Pray God, you two never meet in battle," he said. And one rode north to wear the Federal Blue under General Patterson and the other rode south to become a member of Gen. Thomas J. Jack-

The Dead

Blow out, you bugles, over the Rich Dead!
There's none of these so lonely and poor of old,
But dying, has made us richer gifts than gold.
These laid the world away,
poured out the red

Of work and joy; and that un-

That men call age; and those who would have been,
Their sons, they gave, their immortality.

Blow, bugles, blow! They brought us, for our dearth, Holiness, lacked so long, and son's "Stonewall Brigade." Whether or not his prayer was answered, the father never knew. He never saw either again.

Perhaps in some Valhalla two warrior spirits reminisce of Chancellorsville and Antietam, of Manassas and Malvern Hill but there is no bitterness in their toques as they call each other "Yank" and "Johnny Reb." The crumbling dust of the bodies which once housed these spirits rests under a great monument of rough-hewn granite and polished marble in Arlington cemetery near Washington, D. C. On this monument is an inscription which reads:

"Beneath this stone repose the bones of 2,111 unknown soldiers gathered after the war from the fields of Bull Run and the route to the Rappahannock. Their remains could not be identified but their names and deaths are recorded in the archives of their country; and its grateful citizens honor them as of their noble army of martyrs. May they rest in peace." It was the spring of 1898. A Colorado miner, coming off the night old and weak, may these memories be more of peace and sweet life than of war and red death!

Extremes in Cemeteries
The annual report of Quartermaster General Crenshaw says that Arlington is the largest national cemetery both in area and number of interred. The smallest is at Balls Bluff, near Leesburg, Va., about one-half acre in extent and containing the bodies of one known and twenty-four unknown dead.

shift, joined a group of his fellows gathered about one who read in a Denver paper the headlines: "War With Spain." A month later he was on an army transport that steamed through the Golden Gate into the broad Pacific. The next year he was one of a detachment which set out through the Philippine jungle in pursuit of a party of Moro raiders. There was a deathlike hush as they pushed on through the steaming heat of the jungle. A moment later its stillness was shattered by the sounds of men engaged in furious hand-to-hand combat, bayonet against bow, a swarm of little brown men cowering at a group of swearing, desperately-struggling khaki-clad figures and bearing them down to earth by sheer force of numbers. A few months later back in the Colorado mining town a band played "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," for the troop of "our boys" was home from the wars. But out in the province of Sulu a rusted Krag-Jorgensen and a webbed cartridge belt already nearly hidden by the lush jungle vegetation, marked the last resting place of one who didn't come home—an Unknown Soldier of '98-'99.

November 11, 1922. In Arlington cemetery a great throng stood with bared heads as a bugler blew "Taps" over a new white marble tomb in which had been placed the body of a dead warrior. Of him it has been written, "Once he trod our streets—perhaps the very pavements which we daily travel. It never entered his head that he would become a symbol of sacrifice and his tomb a shrine of pilgrimage. If any one had foretold as much to him, how he would have laughed! If anyone were to reveal to us who he really was—that he had been a cashier in a New York bank or a taxi driver in Chicago—would he still retain his power so deeply to move us? Who was he, this Unknown Soldier, whom we have exalted out of humanity into sainthood?"

That question of identity can never be answered. But of him this can be said: since that day seven years ago Memorial day has had a new meaning. On this day his tomb is a shrine before which in spirit all Americans bow reverent heads. For thus they honor not only the Unknown Soldier of the World war but the Unknown Soldiers of all of our wars—the Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican war, the Civil war, the Spanish-American war. We cannot decorate their graves in accordance with the Memorial day custom, for their last resting places, unmarked, are scattered far and wide over the face of the globe. Some of them fell before Indian bullet and lance on the wind-swept plains of the Great West. Some of them died in China, in the Philippines, in Mexico. Some of them "went West" on the battlefields of France and Belgium.

So in alien soil they keep their lonely "bivouac of the dead" and while we cannot pay them the same honors on Memorial day that we do the others who gave their lives for their country, we can offer up to them our tribute of gratitude by remembering on that day what they did even though we do not know who they were.

Man's Uppermost Thought
Whatever one may read into the name of patriotism, however variously the citizens of a nation may love their land, with whatever admixture of criticism and doubt they yield their support, love of home and fellowship with one's own people remain the common lot. Man cannot escape them if he would. The beat of their drum is in his blood, and their memories march as banners in a lasting parade.

He who hesitates is hoked.

SMALL GAY FIGURES POPULAR; DAINY FROCKS FOR GIRLS

DARK backgrounds with small vivid figures are among the latest fashions. Combinations of green, yellow and beige; black, white and pink; gray, white and yellow; navy blue, red and gray are brought out featuring newest and smartest designs. Generous use of colors also has spread into numerous of the types of washable frocks. Likewise, the ever popular black and white comes in for its share of prominence in the modes of the season. Then there is dark-le frocks for summer outings, and the various occasions demanding dainty apparel—is a topic that demands a great amount of attention these days, since our little daughters now copy their elders to a very large degree. Their dresses must be and are as dainty as their mothers and sisters wear, and they should be, if they are to be in the mode. Little girls' dresses show no inclination to grow longer nor is there any appreciable change in locating the blue transparent woolen voile that may be classed among the much-liked fabrics.

Infant fashion makers of Paris are insisting upon the white gown and show more white than any three colors, except black, white evening dresses or frocks of paler shades being brought to the fore especially for evening wear.

The sleeveless frock, as shown in the picture, is an evidence of the return of this popular style. It is of the basque type, close-fitting to the hip-line, where it ends in four large scallops, one in back, one in front and one on each hip. Attached to the waist is a full skirt with large scallops at the bottom, bound in bias edging of plain material. The neckline is suggestive of scallops and is edged also with a bias binding, as is a large pocket placed low on the skirt.

The above garment expresses youth to its utmost and is not designed for the matronly person. It has the navy waistline. This is because most little girl dresses now, as in the past season, are made to hang perfectly straight from the shoulder, with yokes of various kinds, including lace, and other favorite materials—just like older sister's.

This little frock at the left, charming in its simplicity, brings to immediate attention the fact that it is of narrow plaited material. The importance of plaiting this season is manifest in this frock to a very marked degree. This little dress is plaited all around and attached to a yoke of lace. Lace also forms a short capped sleeve, edged with narrow plaiting of the dress material. The plaits are confined at the hips by a narrow ribbon tied with the daintiest of bows at the side front. The frock has a round neck with just a tiny bow on the left shoulder.

Note also the printed silks for children. Shown in this delightful little sleeveless frock is one of the newest blue background with gray and red figure, but it is equally attractive in any of the previously mentioned color combinations.

Gray hose and black patent leather strap pumps are particularly suitable to be worn with this dress.

Material, abundant in variety, is a matter of choice for a dress of this style. Canton crepe, crepe de chine, foulard, or any of the present-day prints are regarded as especially satisfactory and pleasing for such a garment as is here shown.

Children's wear—party dresses, lit-designs for the little tots. A very unusual feature is the plaited ruffle extending in a straight line from shoulder to shoulder, where it is caught with bows of ribbon. Extending down the front is a plaited panel, also of plain, contrasting material. At the waistline the plaiting is held in place by a ribbon band with a bow at the left side.

Figured canton crepe, wool challis and various other materials are suitable for the little frock above described. JULIA BOTTOMLEY

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

FEED TREES FOR EXCELLENT FRUIT

Average Orchard Too Much Neglected by Farmers.

High-grade fruit, either of peaches or apples, cannot be produced satisfactorily, unless the trees are fertilized. The average farm orchard is too much neglected in this one feature. "We often see men who think nothing of using from 500 to 1,000 pounds of fertilizer per acre on cotton, tobacco or other crops, permit the fruit trees to shift for themselves without food of any kind," says E. B. Morrow, extension horticulturist at the North Carolina state college. "As a result, the trees are low in vigor, the fruit is undersized and often a good yield is secured only occasionally. However, fertilizing the orchard is related to other good practices such as cultivation, cover-cropping and pruning. Trees in sodded land will require more fertilizer than those in cultivated land; heavily pruned trees will need less fertilizer than lightly pruned, and trees bearing large crops of fruit will need more plant food or a removal of part of the fruit."

Growers of peach trees should try to get a general growth of from 8 to 12 inches all over the tree and to keep the orchard in a healthy, vigorous condition. Mr. Morrow says the average peach tree should have two to three pounds of nitrate of soda or 6 to 10 pounds of a complete fertilizer during the season, depending on the fertility of the soil and the amount of fruit on the tree.

A good practice is to apply half the fertilizer about two or three weeks before the trees bloom and the remainder after the fruit has been set. Many growers, finds Mr. Morrow, apply about 100 pounds per acre of a readily available nitrogen fertilizer, such as nitrate of soda, and then follow this with 400 to 500 pounds per acre of a complete fertilizer as soon as the crop has passed all danger from frost injury.

Methods of fertilizing apples are about the same as for peaches. However, the amount per tree is greater since the trees are further apart.

Find Way to Help Check "Running Out" of Berries

We are on the upgrade in the fight to control raspberry mosaics and leaf curl.

These two diseases, which do not seem to infect any other of the small fruits like currants, gooseberries, or strawberries, are, without doubt, largely responsible for the "running out" of raspberries.

R. E. Vaughan, plant pathologist at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, says that although scientists do not yet know what causes the diseases, they do know that mosaics can be controlled. They have found that setting out only the plants that come from certified nurseries and removing diseased plants as soon as any symptoms of the diseases appear is a good way to keep the diseases out of the area.

The state department of agriculture provides nursery inspection and certification and as a result of this service, 80 acres are now listed where certified plants can be bought.

Spraying has not proved to be of any value in controlling mosaics, according to Vaughan, and although many scientists believe that these diseases are spread by certain aphids, spraying to control them has been of no appreciable value. So far spraying has proved most valuable in the control of stem spot, a disease common on "black caps."

Nitrogen Is Useful to Increase Peach Yields

The New Hampshire station reports that in the heaviest crop which has ever been harvested at the station, the increase over the check plots due to the application of two pounds of nitrate of soda a tree was 24 pounds of fruit. This is an increase of 30 per cent over the trees that received no nitrogen. For the first time the plots that received no potash produced equally as much as those given it.

Strawberry plots which have for eight years received manure applications at the rate of 20 tons to the acre showed practically no response when the amount was increased to 40 tons. About 30 per cent more runner plants were produced but a decrease in the number of flowers per plant also occurred. A slightly increased size brought the total size of the crop only slightly above that of the plots given other treatments.

Bordeaux Paste

Ready prepared bordeaux paste, containing arsenate of lead, can be purchased in any quantity from one pound up, can be mixed with water and serves well for keeping down insects and diseases on apples, tomatoes and Irish potatoes. Directions for mixing the paste with water are found on the package. As a rule, however, one pound of paste will make about eight gallons of spray. This should be enough to spray four or five medium-sized apple trees.

MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas default has been made for more than thirty days in the payment of taxes levied in year 1926 on the lands described in a mortgage securing payment thereof, executed by Carl A. Palmer and Jennie H. Palmer, his wife, and in her own right, to Edward A. Brown, dated April Ninth in year 1928, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the county of Iosco, state of Michigan, on October Tenth in year 1928, in Liber Twenty-four of Mortgages on page 446; and
Whereas the said Edward A. Brown on February Twenty-fifth in year 1929 paid the taxes levied on said lands to protect his mortgage lien thereon, and by reason thereof declares the whole of the principal and interest secured by said mortgage immediately due and payable; and
Whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice for principal and interest is the sum of Five Thousand Seven Hundred and Twenty-three Dollars and Fifty-nine cents, for taxes paid for year 1926 and interest thereon from date of payment as aforesaid the sum of One Hundred Seven Dollars and Twenty-one cents, and Thirty-five Dollars as an attorney fee stipulated for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage or any part thereof whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided I will foreclose the said mortgage by a sale of the premises therein described at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Tawas City, county of Iosco, State of Michigan (that being the place for holding the circuit court for the said county of Iosco,) on the second day of July in year 1929, at one o'clock in the afternoon, which said lands and premises are described in said mortgage as follows: Lots Thirteen, Thirty-eight, Sixty-nine, Seventy, Seventy-one, Three Hundred Twenty-nine, Three Hundred Forty-two and Three Hundred Sixty-seven of the Christian Outing Grounds Association Plat of Kokosing Resort, county of Iosco, state of Michigan, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the said county of Iosco, state of Michigan.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS

APRIL SESSION
Monday, April 22
 The board of Supervisors for the county of Iosco met at the Court House in the city of Tawas City, in said county, on Monday, the 22nd day of April, A. D. 1929, pursuant to a call of one-third or more of the members. Board called to order by County Clerk Dease.

Mr. Frank E. Dease, County Clerk Tawas City, Mich.
 The undersigned members of the Board of Supervisors for the county of Iosco hereby petition for a meeting of said board, on Monday, the 22nd day of April, A. D. 1929, at 10 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of organization and such other business as may properly be brought before the board at this time.

Signed, Henry Anschuetz, John Searle, James A. Hull, Frank Brown, Geo. W. Schroeder, Roy Curtis, Clark Tanner, Lyman McAuliff, John Schriber, U. G. Colvin, Edward Louks.

The clerk then called the roll. Present Supervisors: Anschuetz, Angell, Brown, Christenson, Colbath, Colvin, Crego, Curtis, Hull, Latham, Louks, McAuliff, Schroeder, Searle, Schriber, Tanner—16. Quorum present.

The first order of business was the election of a temporary chairman. Moved by Anschuetz, supported by Schriber that Mr. Schroeder be appointed temporary chairman. Motion prevailed and Mr. Schroeder took the chair.

The next order of business was the election of a permanent chairman. The chair appointed Supervisors Hull and Louks as tellers. Moved by Anschuetz, supported by Tanner that Supervisor Crego be nominated for chairman. Motion prevailed. There being no other nominees, moved by Brown, supported by Searle that the rules be suspended and clerk cast the vote. Motion prevailed. Whole number of votes cast—15. Mr. Crego received 15 and was declared elected. Supervisor Schroeder was nominated chairman pro tem. There being no other nominees, moved by Supervisor Hull, supported by Supervisor Tanner, that the rules be suspended and clerk cast the vote of the board for temporary chairman. Motion prevailed. Whole number of votes cast—15. Mr. Schroeder received 15 and was declared elected temporary chairman.

A communication from Department of Agriculture in regard to rest on infected cattle in Iosco county. Moved by Schroeder, supported by Tanner, that the clerk notify the Department of Agriculture that we have the money available for the rest and work can be done at any time. Carried. Tuesday, April 23
 The board of Supervisors for the county of Iosco met at the Court House in the city of Tawas City, said county, on Tuesday, the 23rd day of April, A. D. 1929, pursuant to recess from Monday, April 22. Called to order at 9 o'clock a. m. by Ernest Crego, Chairman. Roll Call. Present Supervisors: Anschuetz, Angell, Brown, Christenson, Colbath, Colvin, Curtis, Hull, Latham, Louks, Schroeder, Searle, Schriber, Tanner—14. Quorum present. Minutes of Monday session read and approved.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Iosco County Gentlemen:
 Your committee appointed at your January meeting to meet the directors of the Iosco County Fair Board, beg leave to report as follows:

We met February 14 at the Court House by call from secretary of Fair Board and we went into the matters that came before such meeting, the main cause of why the farm products were not in exhibit there, and it was talked among the directors to have the county road commissioners furnish their trucks for such transportation as the farmers of Iosco County wish. Another thing that is needed is a floor in the stock barn at the fair grounds, which your Honorable Board can take in consideration. I would suggest that your Honorable Board appropriate $300.00 for putting in said floor in view of the fact that the ground and buildings belong to our county.

Respectfully submitted,
 E. O. Putnam.
 Moved by Schroeder, supported by Schriber that we appropriate $200.00 to Iosco County Agricultural Society to be used in putting floor in cattle building. Carried. Yeas: Anschuetz, Angell, Brown, Christenson, Colvin, Curtis, Hull, Latham, Louks, Schroeder, Searle, Schriber, Tanner—13. Nay: Colbath—1.

Committees ordered to their respective duties, balance of board to be at ease subject to call of chair. Called to order at 11:30.

Tons of New Paper Money

Washington.—Nearly 9,000,000 bills, greenbacks and yellowbacks, issued by the United States government and scattered among banks, business houses, and people throughout the country, on or near July 1, will be able to go into permanent retirement at the discretion of their holders.

This does not mean that Uncle Sam has decided to call in all his paper money and issue in its place gold and silver, but that on that date he will replace this 1,500 tons of money, which would fill 40 box cars, with a new series of standardized notes one-third less in size and weight and occupying one-third less space in storage and handling.

This stupendous task of replacement is being done by the bureau of printing and engraving in Washington, where the United States government manufactures its paper money. The plant is working night and day under full force to have this new issue ready on time, and is turning out the largest order in its history. It is producing six tons of the new money every 24 hours. Eight hundred and fifty-seven million pieces of fresh, crisp currency are being stored in the vaults of the treasury to be soon distributed to every state in the Union.

The suggestion of smaller paper money for the United States first came from Americans who had returned from the Philippine islands and had become accustomed to the smaller size of currency in use there, which they found far more convenient to handle. When money was first being printed for the Philippine government, to avoid the confusion that would be caused if both currencies were of the same size, the islands were furnished paper money in sizes one-third smaller than that used in the United States.

Extreme care is being used in the printing and engraving of the new paper money to prevent counterfeiting. The faces will represent the highly specialized and artistic work of some half dozen different expert engravers, and the character of the engraving is such that it is almost impossible to match.

No longer will there be any yellowbacks and the repetition of portraits on bills of different denominations. All bills will be engraved and printed in green and black. The portrait of Washington will be on the one-dollar bills, Jefferson on the twos, Lincoln on the fives, Hamilton on the tens, Jackson on the twenties, Grant on the fifties, Franklin on the hundreds, McKinley on the five hundreds, Cleveland on the thousands, Madison on the five thousands, and Chase on the ten thousands.

While an immense saving is foreseen by government officials in the paper and ink used, and the printing and handling of the new paper money, a question which has arisen and yet remains to be solved is the changing of the national bank notes to conform with the new style.

The bureau of engraving and printing has a set of engraved plates for each denomination ordered by the national banks throughout the country. These aggregate more than 10,000 plates, and the re-engraving of all of them would take many years to accomplish and cost nearly $1,000,000. The only solutions that remain open are the extremely expensive processes of re-engraving all the plates, the elimination of the national bank currency after 1930, or the issuing of a universal bank note upon which the name of the bank can be imprinted.

Young People Will Be Young People

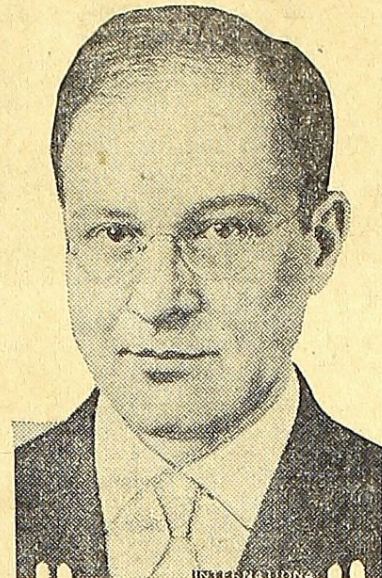

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Youth has always taken chances wherever we find youth, and in the eyes of middle age has ever leaned toward unconventional. No one hates advice and regulation so much as young people; they are eager to go their own way, and possibly not more so today than they have previously been.

I am just reading Northanger Abbey, written one hundred and thirty years ago, so Miss Austen's biographer says. Isabella, reckless and daring to ignore the conventions of the time, was going off unchaperoned in an open carriage to drive fifteen miles or so with her brother John and Mr. Morland. It was as bad as if a pair of lovers today should park their car on a side road at midnight with the lights out. Catherine was discussing the matter with

UPHOLDS AMATEURISM

Mr. Avery Brundage, the forceful leader of the A. A. U., who has taken drastic steps toward clearing the name of his organization from any taint of professionalism. The first step was the release of college athletes from A. A. U. jurisdiction and placing them under direction of the National Collegiate Athletic association. Brundage further declared his determination to run down all traces of violation of amateur rules by athletes supposedly performing for sport and not commercially.

the Allens whose guest she was at Bath.

"Well," said Mr. Allen, "do you think of going too?"

"No, I had just engaged myself to walk with Miss Tinney before they told me of it; and therefore, you know, I could not go with them, could I?"

"No, certainly not," Mr. Allen replies, "and I am glad you do not think of it. These schemes are not at all the thing. Young men and young women driving about the country in open carriages! Now and then it is very well; but going to inns and public places together! It is not right; and I wonder Mrs. Thorpe should allow it. I am glad you do not think of going; I am sure Mrs. Morland would not be pleased. Mrs. Allen, are you of my thinking? Do not you think these kind of projects objectionable?"

"Yes, very much so, indeed. Open carriages are nasty things," Mrs. Allen replies, thinking more of her clothes than of the awful immorality of which the wild young people were committing. "A clean gown is not five minutes wear in them. You are splashed getting in and getting out, and the wind takes your hair and your bonnet in every direction. I hate an open carriage myself."

"I know you do; but that is not the question. Do not you think it has an old appearance if young ladies are frequently driven about in them by young men to whom they are not even related?"

"Yes, my dear, a very odd appearance, indeed. I cannot bear to see it." And then Mr. Allen, more philosophic possibly than his wife, "But one must not be over particular. Young people will be young people as your good mother says herself.—Young people do not like to be always thwarted."

No more do they today any more than they did one hundred and thirty years ago when Jane Austen was a girl. Perhaps the best solution is not to take their irregularities too seriously but to be philosophical about it as Mr. Allen was. They are going to do quite as they please anyway in spite of our protests.

Fear New Era of Tornadoes

Washington.—The tornado record for the first quarter of 1929 as shown by information gathered by the United States weather bureau here promises another unusual year for these disastrous storms.

Last year more tornadoes occurred in the United States than during any previous year for which the government meteorologists have gathered data. The record for 1928 nearly doubled the usual number, of 90 to 100 a year. But the loss of life due to tornadoes in 1928 was exceedingly small and the property loss was far below that of the worst years.

In the first two months of this year ten tornadoes caused 32 deaths compared with only four tornadoes and no deaths in January and February of 1928. March kept up the unfavorable condition, with some half dozen whirlers and a dozen or so of deaths. And the Arkansas tornado toll gives April the beginnings of a bad showing.

As May and June are the months that usually show the largest damage from tornadoes, meteorologists feel that more storms and suffering must be expected.

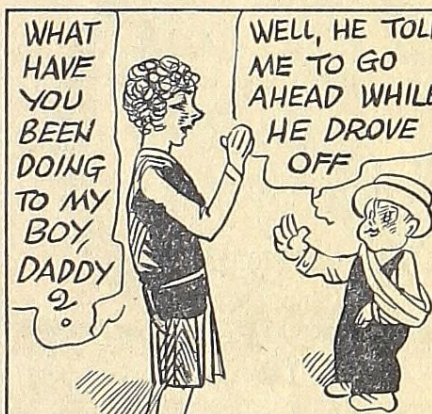

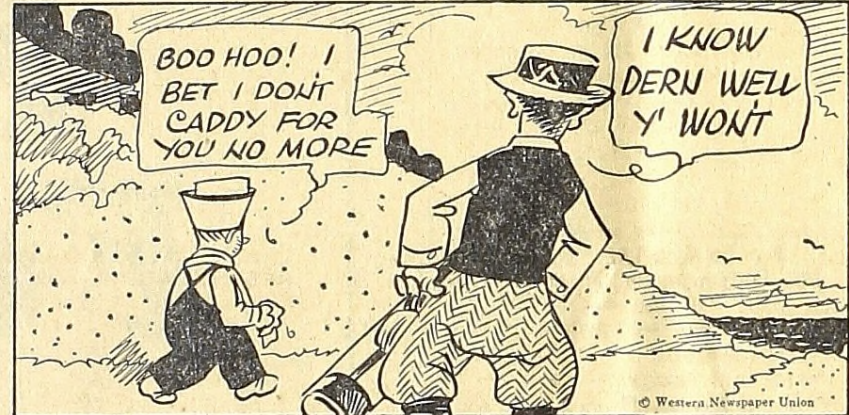

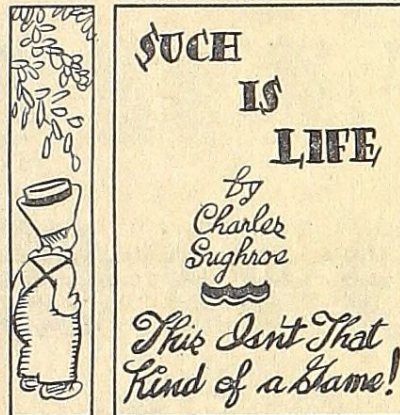

The Southern states experience their tornado storms most frequently in late winter and early spring. Then the whirler season invades the Northern states. Contrary to popular opinion there is no "tornado belt." Statistics show that over half of the extremely destructive tornadoes have occurred east of the Mississippi.

The tornado is born of currents of air above the ground that differ in direction and come in contact. A condition of warm, moist air near the ground overlaid with cold air sets up violent heat transfer and overturning of the atmosphere. A great whirl or vortex results, releasing the pent-up energy of the air. Not always does the funnel-shaped cloud reach the ground, but when it does the low pressure of its center explodes houses, and the wind about the vortex prostrates all that it encounters.

Usually a tornado moves east or northeastward at the rate of 25 to 50 miles per hour. If you see one coming at you, run toward the northwest, as due to the small path, a few feet may mean the difference between death and safety.

Pet Snail at Last Decides to Feast

Pontiac, Mich.—Balzar, pet snail who came to his home in Pontiac by some misstep in his early life which landed him in shipment of bananas from Honduras, at last has ended his "sulks," and come out of his shell for food.

For several months Balzar would have nothing to do with humanity and the food his—or is it "her"—human captors offered. At last, however, hunger overcame timidity and the feast was on.

It was a quite a job to find out what Balzar craved as nourishment, but an offer of bread soaked in milk, overcame the last vestige of shyness and he feasts copiously on this concoction.

It is owned by Mrs. Bee Hough Bartlett, eighty-nine, and was baked by her mother, Mrs. Bartlett says a legend that a loaf baked on Good Friday will endure forever prompted its making and its preservation for 76 years.

Men to Replace "Maids"?

San Francisco, Calif.—The unemployment situation in San Francisco has played havoc with the "stronger sex," in the opinion of the city's old-timers who remember at least a few of the days of '49 and when North Beach was the world's toughest community.

The old-timers' views were aired, in a typically old-time manner, after an announcement that the Associated Charities of San Francisco had started a school to train men to do housework. "It just don't seem reasonable," was the comment of one of the old guard, "that the male folk should have to scrub floors and run them ding-fangled sweepers in order to make a livin'."

"Now I remember when—" and here the gray-haired veteran launched into a graphic story of the time when "men were men" and San Francisco was the "wide open" city of the world.

However, officials of the Associated Charities can see no reason why men should not be trained to do domestic work.

"Men are better fitted to do heavy housework than women," one of the officials explained.

Under the direction of the officials, seven men were chosen to take the first course, and after an intensive series of lessons in the art of housework were graduated with honors.

The men studied house cleaning, use of modern appliances, manners of taking care of floors, and were taken into the finishing department and taught the polishing, touching up and cleaning of furniture.

Then followed ten days' practical experience in homes and, according to the officials, the ability of the men "was simply marvelous."

Should San Francisco take the idea of employing men for household work, it is planned to enlarge the school and to add additional courses such as laundering and gardening.

The Great American Jungle

The DAIRY

CURB DISCOVERED FOR ONION PEST

Surest Way to Prevent Flavors in Cows' Milk.

Although onions and garlic appear early in the spring and soon disappear, they last just long enough before the grass gets well started to cause considerable trouble to milk producers. Observation has shown that if a cow eats a pound of onion tops, about two hours must elapse before her milk will be free from undesirable flavors.

It is not difficult, says F. H. Button, assistant professor of dairy industry, at Rutgers university, to perceive how some cows might get even more than a pound of onion tops in a day's feeding, and thereby require probably four hours before her milk becomes normal in flavor.

Many dairymen believe that the surest remedy for preventing onion and garlic flavors in milk and cream is to keep the cows in pastures where the obnoxious plants do not grow. Where the infestation is small in area, some men eradicate the plants by spraying with orchard heating oil.

The oil destroys the plants entirely. Large areas of infested land, however, are usually cleared by fall and spring plowing and then cropping the land for three or four years with such crops as corn, potatoes, soy beans and cowpeas.

Another common practice in the production of milk free from onion flavor is to leave the cows on infested pasture only for limited periods each day, until the grass advances to such extent that it supplies the wants of the animals.

Different Essentials of Profitable Ration

Dairy cows are equipped with a large stomach, divided into four compartments. Nature intended this large compartment as a store house for roughages and gave the cow the power of relieving the food that had been hurriedly collected in large amounts. Concentrates were not listed in the cow's original bill of fare.

Alfalfa, clover and ensilage are the three farm roughages that will furnish more pounds of digestible nutrients per acre than can be produced by any other crops. Since the dairy cow was designed to handle large amounts of roughage let these bulky feeds furnish the basis of her ration. Such roughages as there are the basis of economic feeding.

Bulkiness should also be considered when making up the grain ration. Have the mixture made up, in part, of bulky grains. When feeding large amounts of grain to heavy-producing cows keep the ration bulky. It is better to feed more pounds of a light-weight feed low in protein, than to use too heavy protein feeds. Where grain rations are heavy, weighing more than one and one-quarter pounds to a quart, it may be desirable to feed the grain with some bulky feed such as ensilage, beet pulp or sliced roots.

Dairy Hints

A dairy barn should be white-washed at least once a year.

Pure breeds of good quality do better in the feed lot than scrubs or common stock.

There are more dairymen who have been using soy beans this past winter than ever before.

A goal of 8,000 to 12,000 pounds of milk per cow is a reasonable aim for the average dairyman.

Off-flavor in milk can usually be avoided by milking the cows before feeding them instead of after.

There never was a cow so scrubby as to feed her calf oleomargarine. How some humans have degenerated.

Dairy herd improvement association records are becoming more and more necessary to the successful sale of surplus females.

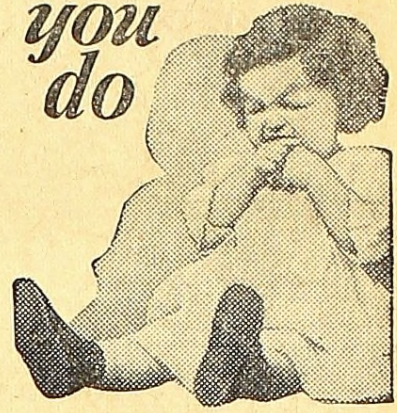

Pails and cans after they are washed and sterilized should be inverted to drain and dry in a clean place, preferably inside the milkhouse.

Cows show their appreciation of good care by increased production. Provide plenty of bedding, balanced and abundant rations, a supply of salt.

The cream screw of the farm cream separator should be adjusted so that the cream will test about 35 per cent fat during the winter months. Cream that is too thick is difficult to handle and sample—especially when cold.

At the Massachusetts experiment station the addition of potatoes to a balanced ration containing no silage increased the milk production. Their conclusion was that raw potatoes fed to dairy cattle up to 25 pounds per day per head was both safe and practical.

Every Part of Grape of Commercial Value

Salvatore Castorina, the owner and operator of an Ontario grape farm, is said to have developed his industry to the point where every part of the grape, including the prunings from the vines, is used in the manufacture of chemicals and for other purposes. Principal among these are alcohol, cream of tartar, phosphates, chicken feed and fertilizer. He says that since it has been shown that ethyl alcohol can be obtained from both the grape itself and the vine prunings, he has now entered into negotiations with one of the leading gasoline companies for the entire output of his establishment for five years. The immediate manufacture of ethyl gasoline is contemplated, and through a subsidiary concern the company will utilize the other grape chemicals.

What the Gray House Hid

The Mystery of a Haunted Mansion by Wyndham Martyn

THE STORY

Hilton Hanby, prosperous New York merchant, has purchased a country place—the Gray house, near Pine Plains. Miss Selenos, a former tenant of the Gray house, came to his office and warns him that the house is under a curse. Further alarming details are impressed upon Adolf Smucker, Hanby's secretary, by a man who claims to have been chauffeur for Sir Stanford Seymour, former occupant of the place. The Hanbys laugh off the warnings they have received both from Miss Selenos and from Smucker's acquaintance, as some form of practical joke. But they are shocked when they hear that the caretaker whom they have put in charge of the Gray house, a man named Kerr, has been mysteriously murdered. Hanby consults his friend Pelham.

CHAPTER III

At the real-estate offices of Douglas & Smith, Pelham was referred by Douglas, whom he knew, to a Mr. Appleton.

"Appleton will tell you everything," said Douglas. "He has an amazing memory for details, and a great affection for the Gray house. Come in to my office when you're through."

Frederick Appleton was a small, plump man of sixty. He had a distinguished conservatism in dress, a florid complexion, and blue eyes which looked more than usually large owing to the thickness and power of the lenses he wore. After a little preliminary talk, Pelham judged him to be one of those men in relatively unimportant offices who bring to their tasks a certain not unpleasant pomposity.

"I have in this book," said Mr. Appleton, pointing to a ledger, "a complete record of the tenants and the expenses of the Gray house for almost thirty-five years. Here you will find the cost of the upkeep of house grounds, and stables. In my head I have many facts concerning the people who have resided there, which would be out of place in the books of a strictly business firm."

"I take it, then," said Pelham, "that you have an unusual interest in mankind?"

Mr. Appleton's shrewd but kindly face beamed. "We see a great deal more in this line of work than you would suppose. Oh, dear me, yes! Do I understand that Mr. Hanby desires information about the place?"

"Yes, and Mr. Douglas said that you could tell me everything. He is a close personal friend of Mr. Hanby."

Mr. Appleton's eyes grew a little harder. "So I inferred from the fact that the sale was not made through me. I knew that Mr. Hanby was interested in the Gray house, but I admit being staggered when Mr. Douglas made the announcement that it was sold."

It was clear to Pelham that the other man was chagrined. No doubt it was the allowable annoyance of an old and trusted employee, who having been consulted for so long is suddenly left out of the firm's confidence in the sale of a property.

"Not that I am criticizing Mr. Douglas," the other went on. "Oh, dear me, no!" His manner was brisk and cheerful again. "What can I do for you, Mr. Pelham?"

"Did you ever know a Miss Selenos?"

"She occupied the Gray house for three years. I remember her well. Poor lady, she loathed and despised men, particularly your humble servant. We had to evict her for non-payment of rent. She had ample warning, but we had to call the sheriff in. May I ask how you know her?"

"She called on Mr. Hanby and threatened him with all sorts of wild vengeance if he did not sell the place to her."

There was no doubt about Mr. Appleton's interest now. "I can quite believe it," he said. "I remember that when we put her out she said that I should be dead within the year. I may say that my good wife was very much relieved when the twelvemonth had passed. I hear that she has at last inherited the great Selenos fortune. They were land-poor for many years."

"You think she's not normal?"

"Insanity in the family," said Mr. Appleton firmly. "The things she said to me were most indelicate, and could only be explained by madness of a hereditary type." The speaker hesitated for a moment. "I suppose she did not mention my name?"

"I think not. I suppose you remember Mr. Seymour?"

on Sir Stanford, but he was always a reserved type.

"What tragedy?"

"His two sons were drowned in the lake."

"Who was the previous tenant?"

"Mr. John Throckmorton. His wife died at the Gray house. A lovely woman! I went to the funeral. Very sad indeed. The lake again."

"It seems to have been a house of death," Pelham commented. He did not relish the idea of the Hanby family inhabiting it as much as he had done. "Who came after Sir Stanford Seymour?"

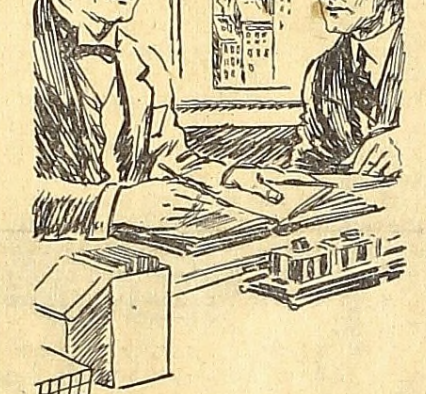

"He subtlet it—subject to our approval, of course—to Mr. Crosby Norton. Mr. Norton lost his four children."

"In that same d-d lake?"

"I regret to say yes." Mr. Appleton looked shrewdly at his visitor. "Have you much influence with Mr. Hilton Hanby?"

"I am his closest friend."

"Do you suppose that you could influence him to reconsider his purchase?" Mr. Appleton was considerate and sympathetic. "I am not a believer in haunted houses. I try to be skeptical in such matters, but there seems to be a strange fate about the Gray house. It always takes toll of the young and happy. Those Seymour children, for example—high-bred, strong, happy boys who could swim excellently; yet they are dead, and at Sir Stanford's death his title goes to a distant cousin. Then the Norton children, three girls and a boy—the lake got them, too. I tell myself it was a coincidence. Perhaps! Perhaps!" His manner grew more confidential. "Tell me, Mr. Pelham, did you ever hear such a chain of coincidences as that?"

Mr. Appleton's Eyes Grew a Little Harder.

"It's most disturbing news," admitted Pelham.

"It seems to me," said the other, "that if these unhappy facts were duly brought to Mr. Hanby's notice, he could not disregard them. No doubt Miss Selenos' manner annoyed him, and he disregarded her story on that account; yet—Appleton tapped the big ledger—the facts are all down here in my own handwriting."

"I'm afraid whatever I said would make him all the more determined to go. He is a skeptic, and opposition makes him ready to fight. I don't think anything would make him give it up."

"I have done my duty, then," said Appleton briskly. "No doubt he is right, and these deaths were due to lack of care. I have here a letter, with estimate inclosed, from a Pine Plains carpenter, who agreed to put the rustic bridge in order. That bridge, Mr. Pelham, crossed the inlet at its deepest part. The Seymour boys were fishing from it when it gave way. I rather think the Norton children were found near there, too."

Appleton turned to the estimate. "You see, Mr. Pelham, these tragedies might have been averted if the owner had seen fit to expend sixty-four dollars and eighteen cents. It was owing to my influence that the lake was completely filled in, and the stream feeding it was diverted to the lower lake. Instead of five acres of water filled with stumps, which made fishing difficult, Mr. Hanby has now a twenty-acre lake with good bass and trout in it and not a pickerel to do damage. I have fished there every year, and I know. I wonder if Mr. Hanby would extend the courtesy to me?"

"I'll answer for him," said Pelham. "I'm a fisherman myself. Thank you for what you've told me."

"Well?" Douglas asked, a little later. "Get what you wanted?"

"And more," said Pelham. "The Gray house has a dismal atmosphere about it, to my way of thinking. Appleton seems to think that for less than sixty-five dollars all those lives might have been saved."

"I think he's right," said the other. "The old lake was within a few yards of the house, and very deep. It was too much of a temptation to children. The banks were steep, too, as I recall them."

"Then you don't believe in the curse theory?"

Douglas lighted a cigar before answering Pelham's question.

"In my office, during business hours the idea seems silly; but sometimes when I can't sleep at night, I'm not so sure. I've Highland blood in my veins, remember, and race memories of haunted houses, and curses that descend from generation to generation. Don't ask me, Bill."

"You give me the same sort of comfort that Appleton does. He tells me what curdles my blood, and then explains it all away by a carpenter's estimate that missed the mark."

It was not a very comfortable motor trip for the Hanbys. When Junior drove, his father thanked God that his will was made and his affairs were in order. When Hanby was at the wheel, his son struggled between a feeling of pride that his progenitor still had his nerve left, and a fear that never again would he tread the campus at New Haven.

"Corking road!" Junior commented, when Pine Plains was in sight.

"Was it a road?" his father demanded. "I'm relieved to know that. I thought it was a race track."

"Where's the Gray house?"

"We passed it on the last lap."

"You might have pointed it out to me," remarked young Hanby.

"Why? I thought, as we went by, that neither of us would ever have the opportunity to inhabit it."

Junior laughed. "This old bus can certainly clip off the milestons!"

"Don't boast. You only scratched the one you hit."

"It hents me," his son remarked philosophically. "Why cows don't know their own minds. I didn't dream that beast was going to give us a race."

"Slow down, Junior!" his sire commanded. "We've got to stand well in this community."

Hilton Hanby stepped from the car, to be greeted by the local police chief and an officer from Kingsford.

"This is my son, Sherlock Gaboriau Hanby," he said. "Is the Inquest over?"

"Yes," said the local man. "I wish you'd been here before."

"Any clue to the murderer?" Junior asked.

"Not a one."

Junior smiled. He knew exactly how it would be.

"But there's a mighty interesting development. This fellow Kerr wasn't Kerr at all. He had a whole string of aliases. We finger-printed him, and fitted the right name to him. Your caretaker, Mr. Hanby was Red Chapin, wanted for most everything up to murder."

"That's interesting," Hanby exclaimed. "A murderer murdered?"

He was not pleased to think that such a man had been in his employ, although engaged by an agent.

"His references was stolen from some Spanish war veteran named Kerr. We'll find out all about it soon. Also he had Kerr's discharge papers and a medal. Want to look at him, sir?"

"Not on your life!" said Hanby, who detested morbid things.

"I'd like to," Junior suggested.

Inside Interference Much heterodyne interference complained of originates right in the receiver, either because it oscillates uncontrollably or because it is an improperly designed superheterodyne. Some receivers of this type squeal and growl as soon as there are two or more stations on the air. The squealing is due to the fact that in every superheterodyne any station comes in at two-dial settings, the so-called "one-spot" not excepted.

Ten Million Trees More than 10,000,000 trees have been planted in Louisiana during the 1928-29 planting season, according to a statement issued by the Louisiana division of forestry. The total of hand-planted forests and wood lots in the state now stands at 28,000 acres, which represents the planting of about 25,000,000 trees. Most of the planting has been done by lumber and paper companies on their cutover lands. The combined output of the nurseries operated by these companies is about 2,500,000 trees.—American Forests Magazine.

Valuable Salvage The rumber, a new device to salvage brass from worn out light bulbs, is announced by the New York Edison company. The name describes the noise made in reclaiming the brass socket shells, the only parts considered worth saving. In shape it is a cylinder, of 500-bulb capacity, with two sets of steel teeth set on bars inside. While the drum revolves, they chew to bits glass and filament, which fall out of holes in the bottom leaving the shells shiny and clean. The company claims about 300,000 shells yearly. Until the rumber was devised the work was done by hand.

Commerce Boomed by Methods of Counting

For ages even the most intelligent men could count only to ten or twenty, the number of their fingers and toes. Then sticks and stone counters were laid in rows to indicate and compute numbers involved in barter and trade. In the earliest civilizations symbols were employed to some extent, then in Egypt they had the happy thought of drawing a picture to represent each quantity. Thus, a frog equaled 100,000 and a man with arms outstretched in admiration signified 10,000,000. The Greek and Roman systems of letters for numerals were considered a great advance, but only the most learned could do any adding or subtracting with them. The decimal system was brought by an ambassador from India into Arabia in 773 A. D., and European countries got their numerals from Arabia in the Twelfth century. It proved popular right away and teachers of the new system were in great demand. Trade and industry, so long dammed up by a lack of any simple method of keeping accounts or doing business with persons at a distance, sprang into life—and the Commercial era was born.—Detroit News.

Pit Pony's Wisdom

In the old workings of a Rhondda Valley mine, in Wales, a pony hauling its coal wagon suddenly dug his heels in and refused to budge. While the miner with it was vainly trying to coax it to go on, a big piece of rock fell with a crash in front of them.

While the Money Lasts

If the money you leave your family is well used, it will be a wonderful blessing—while it lasts.

Your family might live comfortably on $10,000 for four years, or five, perhaps. After that?

In the long run, would not a fixed income payable as long as your wife lives, be far better? Why not provide for one now? We offer a simple but sure plan of doing it.
