ORGANIZE AUTOMOBILE

The Automobile Club of Northern AT STATE THEATRE Michigan is organizing a local club for the Tawases and surrounding country, which will give the same service here that has made the AAA so popular all over America. One garage is already under contract to give 24 hour service to AAA members, and as soon as 100 members are secured a complete touring bureau will be established in the Tawases, giving individual routing anywhere you want to go, road maps, travel aids, license accommomaps, travel aids, license accommo-dations, hotel reservations, road logs, tour books, and a host of other services. This is all free to AAA members. The AAA service garage gives roadside help, towing, out of gas, changing tires and wrecker service free to members over a radius of fine miles. DIVERTING MEDIA FOR HATS; NEW FLARE SKIRT POPULAR

F STRAW or felt has become an old story when it comes to the chapeau, why not "something different"-say crochet ostrich, reversible satin, chenille, lace or gay patterned silks. Yes, indeed! There's just any number of interesting media which milliners are working into hats this

There is the little cap-toque in the triangle in the picture-a Paris model, of course, one decides that at first glance. Never would guess what it is made of-crochet ostrich! Just that. Intriguing idea, is it not? Carries promise of what's coming for fall. Black and white clipped ostrich

Close scrutiny of its patternings reveals a most interesting portrayal of quaint figures -a veritable picture printed on silk According to some folks' way of thinking "to move in a circle is not progressive - "gets you nowhere."

When it comes to the new flare skirt, however, the theory is exploded for moving in a circle, a circular cut if you so please to term it, leads onto foremost chic.

Paris sponsors just such a circular skirt as the smart printed dress in the lower picture adopts. This one-piece cir-

Then there are those novelty sports hats from Renee, which are woven of natural hemp thread combined with a thread of wool. Allover patterns are worked in the wool like an embroidery. These are exclusively for the elite, but they go to show the diversity of media which contribute to the glory of current millinery.

In very smart circles the little toque is made of very wide satin ribbon. The one in the picture to the right concerning fashions "on the way" has to do with flares. The mode seems inclined to flare everything that will submit to a flare. We see this in many costumes which follow up the flare of the skirt with similar flares about the blouse (peplums they call them). The cuffs on the sleeves are flared, too, and the fanciful jabots which so fashionably trim also are cut in a series of flares. When it comes to the new coats, fashionists are in a decidedly flaring mood. There are flares and flares some at the sides, others at the back. also all around effects. These are achieved with ingenious godets mostly

Indians Adopt James Smith JAMES SMITH was eighteen years old in 1755. The French and Indian war was just getting under way. Some time that spring the boy joined a road-building outfit in Pennsylvania. Braddock's army was to use that road in late June on its march westward to Fort Duquesne-and to defeat. One bright morning in early summer young Smith and a companion were traveling along this road when three Indians ambushed them. Smith was captured and his comrade killed. Greatly to his surprise Smith was neither burned to death nor tortured, beyond being compelled to "run the gauntlet." He was forced to travel with the Indians through forests and over mountains. Finally, some weeks later, he was adopted into an Indian family. He lived with the Indians six years. After his escape he wrote the story of his remarkable adventures. I will quote from that story briefly: "The day after my arrival at the town called Tullihas, inhabited by Delawares, Caughnewagas and Mohicans, a number of Indians collected about me and one of them began to pull the hair out of my head. He had some ashes on a piece of bark, in which he frequently dipped his fingers, in order to take a tirmer hold. "So he went on as if he were plucking a turkey until he had all the hair out of my head except a small spot three or four inches square on my crown; this they cut off with a pair of scissors, except three locks, which they dressed up in their own mode. "Two of these they wrapped around with a narrow, beaded garter made by themselves for that purpose. The other they plaited at full length and then stuck it full of silver brooches. After that they bored my nose and ears and fixed me off with earrings and nose jewels. "Then they ordered me to strip off my clothes and put on a breech-clout, which I did; they then painted my head, face and body in various colors. "They put a large belt of wampum on my neck and silver bands on my hands and right arm; and so an old chief led me out in the street and gave the alarm halloo, coo-wigh, several times, repeated quick; and on this all that were in the town came running and stood around the old chief who held me by the hand in the midst. "As I at that time knew nothing of their mode of adoption, and had seen them put to death all they had taken, and as I never learned that they saved a man alive at Braddock's defeat, I made no doubt but that they were about to put me to death in some cruel manner. "The old chief, holding me by the hand, made a long speech, very loud, and when he had done, he handed me to three young squaws who led me by the hand down the bank into the river until the water was up to our middle.

The squaws then made signs to me some cards from which the prince could learn such things as geography and history while he was playing the game. Soon there was delivered to the cardinal two sets of cards, one was a historical set and bore the pictures of famous queens and the stories of their careers. The other was a geographical game, each card representing some country with a short description of that land and illustrated with a symbolic figure, dressed in the native costume.

ment into the pastime. So he ordered a maker of playing cards to devise

Among the countries depicted thus were certain parts of North America. two of which, Virginia and Florida are shown in the illustrations (No. 7 and 8) accompanying this article. Naturally, the symbolic figures of these two are Indian maidens, but it is interesting to note that the "native costume," as shown on these cards printed back in 1664, is not so different perhaps-at least, in one case-from those of today. Take a look at "Florida" above and, except for the bow and arrow, you might almost think that you were looking at the picture of a bathing beauty at Palm Beach, Miami or some other seaside resort!

It is perhaps futile to speculate upon how much the young prince learned from these educational cards and it might be jumping at conclusions too hastily to ascribe to them the awakening of his interest in foreign countries which made him an imperialist and led to France's colonizing experiments in the New world. But the fact remains that "of all the French monarchs of the Seventeenth century Louis XIV was the first and only one to take an active and enduring interest in the great crusade to the porthern wilderness. He began his personal reign about 1660 with a genuine display of zeal for the establishment of a colony which would by its rapid growth and prosperity soon crowd the English off the new continent . .

Although these cards of the French king, which are preserved in the museum of the United States Playing Card company in Cincinnati, Ohio. were perhaps the first thus used to inform Europeans about the New world. they were not the only ones. In the same museum is another set which "deals out" some American history to the visitor. It is a geographical card game made in England in 1675. (No. 1 and No. 3 in the illustrations above.)

On one of them (No. 1) is given the following quaint description of New England:

New-England by some is Counted : Part of the Great Region Canada, I s bounded with Virginia on the South, where is the Late Conquests of the New-Netherlands, at present Called New-York, with a good City of that Name here is Maryland where is the town of Baltemore and Carolina where is Charles-Town Vc but the Capital of this government is Boston and other Considerable Towns are New-Plymouth, Bristown, Barnstable Vc the Church government is Presbytery Vc this Country abounds with all sort of Fanatickes where they may find Room to Plant in. Especially towards the West It being a Country not well discovered full of Woods V Savage Inhabitants therefore not bounded when their Forces have Strength to advance. Oth-Forces have Strength to advance. Oth-er Plantations belonging to the Eng-lish toward the North are New-Found-land Whose Cheif Town is Torbay most Considerable for the Fishing Trade North Wallés South Walles, the Isle of Cumberland Vc are great Regions In-titled to the English but are little Inhabited as vet.

In a country "abounding with all sorts of Fanatickes" one would naturally expect to find the "blue-noses" frowning upon such frivolous things as playing cards, but the fact is that they were manufactured in this country, even in Puritanical New England. Isaiah Thomas, in his "History of Printing in America," mentions James Franklin as a Boston printer and tells how he printed "upon cards" verses that the youthful Benjamin had writ- suit symbols.

Ben himself, afterward, refers to them as "miserable ditties" that at that time they had a large sale.

No less interesting than the historical material to be found on the faces of the playing cards is that found upon the backs of the cards. In the Colonial days it was the custom to use the plain backs of the cards for various things. In the Cincinnati museum are cards with the backs printed and used as cards of admission to entertainments, lectures and classes at the University of Pennsylvania, from 1765 to 1771, and as invitations to teas and assemblies and balls. Some also bear directions for figures of square dances and others various patriotic games. One of the most interesting is that shown in No. 2. It is a silhouette portrait of Joseph Hopkinson by the famous artist, Charles Wilson Peale. In 1824, when Lafayette came back to visit the country whose independence he had helped to gain, a New England card maker, Jaz H. Ford, issued a set of playing cards in honor of the distinguished Frenchman whose portrait, surrounded by symbolic designs, was printed as the ace of spades, as shown in No. 4. Among the interesting exhibits in the museum are the playing cards of the Civil war period in which the patriotic motif is strong. Instead of having the usual suit signs of spades, clubs, diamonds and hearts, flags, shields and other patriotic emblems were used. An example of this is No. 6 of the illustration above in which the bewhiskered general is the "king" of whatever suit is designated by the flag up in the corner. The "queen" of the flag suit was the symbolic figure of Columbia, Another card of this same era is shown in No. 5, in which the figure of the Monitor, famous for its victory over the Merrimac, was substituted for one of the conventional

A Silly Handshake

When King Edward VII was prince of Wales and on a visit to Paris he suffered from a carbuncle which forced him to lift high his right elbow when shaking hands. All the courtiers and dandies of his day immediately copied this gesture and some people today still believe they are smart when they hold their arm high in that way.

One night while he was attending a first night at the Comedie Francaise and was talking to a group of people a dandy asked him: "Prince how did you like the play?" The prince turned around a bit and dropped a chilly, "Sir, I did not think I had talked to you."-Detroit News to plunge into the water but I did not understand them; I thought that the result of the council was that I should be drowned and these three young ladies were to be the executioners. They all three laid violent hold of me, and I for some time opposed them with all my might which occasioned loud laughter by the multitude that were on the bank of the river. "At length one of the squaws made out to speak a little English, for I believe they began to be afraid of me, and said, 'No hurt you.' On this I gave myself up to their ladyships who were as good as their word; for though they plunged me under water, and washed and scrubbed me severely, yet I could not say they hurt me much. Smith tells in detail how he was next conducted to the council, how his body was painted, how he was given new clothes, a pipe, tomahawk and a pouch made out of a polecat skin. After smoking in silence for a time a chief arose and made a speech. This speech, translated to Smith by an interpreter, was about like this:

"My son, you are now flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone. By the ceremony which was performed this day, every drop of white blood was washed out of your veins; you are taken into the Caughnewago nation, and initiated into a warlike tribe; you are adopted into a great family, and now received with great seriousness and solemnity in the room and place of a great man.

"After what has passed this day you are now one of us by an old, strong law and custom. My son, you have now nothing to fear-we are now under the same obligations to love, support and defend you that we are to love and defend one another; therefore, you are to consider yourself one of our people."

From that day on, Smith wrote, he never knew them to make any distinction between him and any of the red-skinned tribesmen among whom he lived. (6) 1929, Lester B. Colby.)

Sun's Rotation Period The sun is as fickle in most of its characteristics as-well, supply your own simile. It has been found, however, that this inconsistency is probably a periodic function, so that the sun will vary from maximum to minimum in its behavior over a fixed period of years.

For example, Dr. Charles St. John of the Mount Wilson observatory in California, has discovered that the period of rotation of the sun has been increasing. The sun, in other words, is slowing down. In 1876 the equatorial speed of the sun's rotation was 2.28 kilometers per second. In 1915 t was 1.96, and by 1928 the sun had slowed down to 1.89 kilometers per second. It is believed, however, that this decrease will not be constant, and that beginning in 1929 the sun will gradually pick up speed again until it reaches a maximum period of rotation within the next few years.

Air Transport Grows Rapidly

THE TAWAS HERALD

Washington .- The development of | that if the present rapid growth in air the aeronautics and air transport industry during the three years' life of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce has been "among this country's outstanding achievements," Secretary of Commerce Lamont declared recently in surveying the present state of development of the industry. "With the increasing interest being shown in this subject by the general public, there is every reason to believe that the immediate future will bring forth even greater accomplishments," he added. Secretary Lamont predicted "the foundations have been laid for a great transportation system over which swift aerial carriers will bear their cargoes of mail, express and passengers to every corner of the globe. Outlook for Big 1929 Record. A statistical estimate of the condition of the industry appended to Sec-transport operations continues during the remainder of the year, the operations for 1929 will exceed the total for the last three years.

The report estimated that the mileage flown by air transport operators for the first half of 1929 would total 8,000,000 miles as against 10,500,000 for all of 1928, 5,870,489 for 1927 and 4.318.087 for 1926.

The average of miles flown daily by air transport operators for the first half of the year, estimated to be 70,-000 miles, is almost three times as great as the average for all of 1928, which was 26,606, more than four times the average of 16,083 miles for 1927 and almost seven times the average of 10,830 miles for 1926.

Thirty Thousand Miles of Airways.

The total length of the airways network, estimated now to be 30,000 miles, has jumped from a total of 16,-667 miles at the close of 1928; 9,121 retary Lamont's statement indicated miles at the close of 1927, and 8,404 close of 1926.

miles at the close of 1926. Ten thousand miles of airways, or one-third of the total, are lighted, as compared with 6,988 at the close of 1928; 4,468 at the close of 1927, and 2,041 at the end of 1926.

The greatest increases were shown for the income-producing activities of air transport companies. It was estimated that 40,000 passengers were carried during the first six months of 1929, as against 35,000 in all of 1928. 8,679 in, 1927, and 5,872 in 1926. Total mail carried was computed at 3.400,000 pounds, as against 4,061,210 pounds in 1928, 1,654,165 in 1927, and 810,855 in 1926. Express volume was fixed at 1,200,000, as against 2,000,000 for 1928.

There are now 45 companies operating air transport lines, compared to 37 at the close of 1928, 19 at the close of 1927, and 14 at the close of 1926. They have 400 airplanes in service, an increase from 300 at the close of 1928. 128 at the close of 1927, and 69 at the

New York.-Eleven states of the | New York, New Jersey, Ohio and | quire a notice of intention to marry to Union still permit girls of twelve to marry. In several states marriage licenses are issued by mail, without the appearance of either prospective bride or groom before the license clerk.

In many places the license clerk is dependent upon the fees he receives for his entire pay, and consequently he issues licenses promiscuously and without questions.

There are at least 57 "marriage market" towns in the United States where law is so lax that justices of the peace and "marrying parsons" advertise that ceremonies will be performed at any time of day or night, and no questions asked.

These conditions, brought to light in the recent survey conducted by the Russell Sage Foundation, explain a big percentage of the constantly increasing number of American divorces, according to F. Emerson Andrews, who analyzes the foundation's report in the current issue of the North American Review.

Approximately 700,000 persons in the United States, it was found, have participated in marriages involving girls under sixteen. Hundreds of thousands of others have taken advantage of these lax conditions to marry bigamously, or while intoxicated, or while mentally or physically incompetent.

Practically 100 per cent of such marriages, Mr. Andrews points out, are doomed to end in the divorce courts. The states where marriages of girls of twelve are permitted are Maine. Rhode Island, New Jersey, Florida, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Tennessee, Virginia, Colorado and Idaho. Twenty-four states, including such highly developed commonwealths as Pennsylvania, still recognize the common law marriage, in which a man and woman may live together under a mere secret agreement between themselves.

Uniform Marriage Laws Needed?

Adoption and enforcement of uniform marriage laws throughout the country could quickly check the rising tide of divorce at its source, it is shown. Recommendations for such laws, made by the Russell Sage Foundation investigators and published in the North American Review article are:

1. Raise the minimum age for marriage to 16 years everywhere. 2. Re- state.

be filed five days before the license may be issued. 3. Issue licenses at regular hours only, on the basis of proved age and in the town or county where the bride or groom resides. 4. Abolish the fee system for payment of license clerks, 5, Abolish the fee system for the civil solemnization of marriage by justices. 6. Let religious bodies establish in theological seminaries thorough instruction regarding marriage laws, and deal rigidly with the commercial practices of "marrying parsons." 7. Establish a bureau of marriage law supervision in each

I've had ague and measles and an occasional ache or pain for a day or two, and that is as much as I know about real illness. I come and go as most of you do, never giving much consideration as to how I feel, what I shall eat or what I shall drink or wherewithal I shall be clothed. These things have never been matters to require serious consideration.

His bed is by an open window, and the view outside is a very restricted one. A road passes near by obscured by shrubbery, but occasionally he can see a motor car scurrying by or a pedestrian moving slowly along the road as he himself longs to do. The strip of lawn in view of his window grows green in the spring; flowers are planted in the small beds scattered about and gladden his eye with their color. The grass grows brown and dead as winter comes on; snow covers the ground at intervals, and all the time Sam is lying looking out upon this circumscribed scene. He gained the hall quietly, unbolt Quickly Leslie explained what had happened. He did not want the little plump man to be frightened. At the moment, he regarded himself in rather an heroic light and Mr. Appleton

Mr. Appleton gave a skillful imitation of the cry of an owl. From afar came the call of another nightflying bird. The owl that was Mr. Appleton hooted again. Gradually the other cry came nearer. Presently there was a rustling in the thicket, and a bullet head was thrust through. "Luigi?" called Mr. Appleton softly. "Come at once !"

The man who wriggled out of the bushes was short, but of tremendous breadth. His exclamations and gestures when he saw what seemed to be a pair of dead men were stayed at a word from the other.

"Carry Jim below, and come back for this.'

Luigi shouldered the two hundred and twenty pounds that was Jim with ease. He had been gone no more than five minutes when he returned and picked up the lighter man.

The bird sanctuary received Leslie Barron, heir to a great fortune, Luigi Bartoli, in whom the police were interested, and, last of all, Mr. Appleton, who breathed more easily as a heavy shower began. It would smooth out the trampled earth and make tracking impossible.

CHAPTER VIII

When Leslie Barron came again to consciousness, he thought he was in a prison cell. It was a small stone room, electrically lighted. He had been placed on an iron cot. A bandage was about his head, and his crumpled shirt front was bloodstained. Except for bruises and a throbbing head, however, he found that he was unharmed.

He reconstructed what had hap pened since he went in search of the wild faun, and was forced to admit that the event which stood out most vividly was the inexplicable knavery of Frederick Appleton. The little man had always been so courteous, so respectful, so flattering. He had expressed his regard for the Barron family repeatedly. He had once embarrassed Leslie by comparing his head with that of the Hermes of Praxiteles; and then, incontinently, he had brought a loaded bludgeon down upon it with such force that death had not been very far away What was the wild faun to Mr. Appleton, that he had sprung thus amazingly to avenge the unknown intruder?

Leslie rose from his cot and walked to the door. It was of heavy wood, metal covered. He could not escape No one answered his shouts, Leslie sat down again on the bed.

In his career as a somewhat reckless driver, he had more than once had to wait in a jail cell until he paid his fine. In every instance there had been a penetrating and unpleasing odor about these places cell had no such effluvium; nor. as he examined it more closely, had it the appurtenances of the regular jail. Yet it was plain that it had been constructed for no other purpose than to imprison. Leslie called to mind his talks with Junior as to the threatened dangers surrounding the Gray house. In the beginning they had thrilled him; but then, as pleasant day succeeded pleasant day, Junior and he began to feel annoyed that they had ever anticipated peril. Leslie was not yet nervous about the outcome of the adventure. The eldest son of Grantley Barron could not disappear without a nation-wide investigation. It would be proved that he had gone from the Gray house into the grounds. Celia would understand why he had gone. He had disappeared in evening clothes, leaving his other effects untouched. The whole neighborhood would be combed by detectives. In the end, his father might have to pay a huge ransom. This last thought rather amused Leslie. Appleton was probably a professional blackmailer or kidnaper. None would suspect the suave, modest, hard-working little man. Had not Leslie seen the descending blackjack in his wand, he would not now have believed him guilty. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

"I'll be d-d!" said Lesli By the pool stood a very tall man -physically more splendid than young Barron, as Leslie himself would not have denied. The intruder heard no footfall on the grass. He was aware of another's presence only when Leslie tapped him on the arm. He seemed far more embarrassed than Leslie.

"What's the idea?" he snarled, trying to shake off the other's grip. Leslie was instantly relieved. Assuredly Celia had not heard the godlike stranger speak, for his speech was of the East side unrefined.

"I don't want you to disappear in your cloud of star dust until I've had a little talk with you. What are you doing here?" Leslie snapped the question out in a threatening tone. "I lost my way," replied the wild faun.

"Don't lie !" said Leslie. The wild faun frowned a little. The white moonlight showed his heavy face to be capable of readily expressed emotion. Leslie saw, too, that for some reason he wished to make his story good.

"I was trying to find a short cut," said the intruder.

"You must make a habit of it. People don't lose their way two nights in succession when the moon is full. You were here last night Why?" "H-1!" said the wild faun "Is this Buckingham palace or the White House? I didn't see no sentries at the gate. It you don't like it, I'd better be on my way."

He turned away, as if to walk toward the drive.

"Not yet!" cried the younger man. "There's a little explaining to be done first."

Perceiving himself to be at a loss verbally, the stranger revised his tactic. This exasperating young man in evening dress must be taught a lesson.

"Bo," said the wild faun coldly, "I don't like your face!"

With that he brought his powerful right arm across with the idea-a wholly diverting one-of altering the sneer on his opponent's features to an expression of fear and agony. He was not quick enough. A left jab caught him on the nose.

"All right !" he said. "If you want it, you can have it !"

He made a vicious spring at Leslie

Mr. Barron. Now, if you will kindly take your end, we will remove him." Obediently young Barron put his arms under the shoulders of the wild faun. When Appleton remained standing, Leslie looked up. Staring down at him, the little man might have been his Uncle Russell. Too late, Leslie saw his danger. The life preserver caught him squarely on the head, and be pitched forward over the other unconscious man. Mr. Appleton smiled bappily. "Very neat !" be murmured. "For first attempt, very neat indeed-

Ear of City Dweller Has No Rest Period

Between beats the heart rests, and | city dweller as the pot of gold at the between breaths the lungs and diaphragm have an instant's respite. All the nerves and muscles of the body have some time when they are relieved of duty except those of the ear in the noisy city. This is pointed out by ear specialists, who say something must be done about it to lower the amount of deafness. City noises going on day and night keep the ear drum and the tiny bones about it in a constant state of vibration. People accustomed to them sleep comfortably through normal night sounds because the nerves are adapted

H. H. Fish, Esq., President of the Company, summarizes from his letter to us as follows:

BUSINESS

Western Newspaper Union, successor to a company of the same name and a business founded in 1865, serves more than 10,000 daily and weekly country newspapers, maintaining fully equipped plants in 36 key cities of the United States from California to Massachusetts. The Company supplies these newspapers with ready printed inside pages or with columns of prepared plate, containing various feature stories, serials and special articles selected by the newspaper publishers; places national advertising in their papers and prepares cuts and copy for local advertising campaigns.

The Company also does a large volume of commercial printing, prints in their entirety various magazines and trade journals and is responsible for the mechanical production of many of the feature services of The Associated Press.

FINANCIAL

During the past 20 years net profits of Western Newspaper Union, after all charges including depreciation, but before Federal taxes, averaged more than $680,000 annually, and in no single year were such net profits less than $450,000.

Net profits after depreciation, but before Federal taxes, for the past 4 years, as certified by Messrs. Arthur Andersen & Co., after eliminating operations of the paper mill, which is being sold coincident with this financing and after other adjustments arising from the reorganization as stated in their certificate, were as follows:

	 955,383
State of the second	 571,249
928	 765,825

Such net profits as above have averaged about $758,448 annually, and for the year ended December 31, 1928, amounted to $765,825, equivalent to more than 3 times the annual Debenture interest requirement.

After deducting from such net profits in 1928 Debenture interest requirements, Federal Taxes (parent company) at 12% and Preferred Stock dividends, the balance amounted to over $352,000, or about $2.35 per share on the 150,000 shares of Common Stock to be presently outstanding.

The net assets of the Company, available for these Debentures, based on the balance sheet, as at April 30, 1929, adjusted to give effect to the present financing, including the sale of the paper mill, were in excess of $8,500,000.

MANAGEMENT

Since the death in 1916 of the former owner, George A. Joslyn, his widow and other heirs have owned the majority of the Common Stock of Western Newspaper Union, control of which is now being acquired by the executives who have been responsible for its successful operation during the past 13 years.

All legal details will be passed upon by Messrs. Tenney, Harding, Sher-man & Rogers of Chicago and by Messrs. White & Case of New York.

We have accepted as accurate the information and statements contained in the above mentioned letter and summary, but no errors, omissions or misstatements in said letter or summary shall give rise to any right or claim against us,
