WHITE EAGLE OF THE OMAHAS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HE Jay is March 16, 1854 ; the scene is Washington,

D. C. A little group of Indian chiefs, arrayed in all their tribal finery, is holding a council with the frock-coated representatives of the "Great White Father." The business at hand is a treaty and a cession of lands owned by the people whom these chiefs represent-the Omaha Indians who live beyond the Missouri river in that vast empire known vaguely as the "Great West." And when the last formalities have been completed and the chiefs have made their marks under the signatures on the parchment, the Omahas have ceded "all their lands west of the Missouri and south of a line running due west from the point where the Iowa river leaves the bluffs, retaining their lands north of this line for a reservation." And that marked one of the steps whereby the great state of Nebraska came into being.

Now, 75 years later, the citizens of Nebraska are preparing to celebrate with parade and pageant, with air circus and military maneuvers and with many another contrast between the old and the new, the "diamond jubilee" of the Cornhusker state. On November 5, 6 and 7 Nebraskans, as well as residents of every state in the Union, will gather in Omaha for the celebration, which is being held there, because Omaha was the first territorial capital, and which is sponsored by Omaha civic interests, who have contributed more than $100,000 for Nebraska's "seventy-fifth birthday" party. It will be held in conjunction with the Sar-Ben Live Stock and Herse

Another frontiersman who will come to Omaha for the celebration is "Parson Bob," or Phillip R. Landon. He was stationed at Old Fort Kearney in western Nebraska, near the present city of Kearney, during several Indian uprisings.

Old Chief Yellowsmoke, the oldest chief of the Omaha Indian tribe, will come to Omaha for the celebration, as a representative of the original inhabitants of Nebraska. Yellowsmoke's father, then chief of the Omahas, was one of the signers of the treaty, whereby the Indians in 1854 relin-

Oh! there's no doubt about it the furred tweed suit is having its day, and what a day of triumph it is proving to be. The new-this-season tweeds are very interesting. One of their characteristics is that of being loosely woven. Then, too, they introduce such features in their weaving as being flecked, or nubbed or variously patterned, usually with yarn of a different color. These flecks and nubs and otherwise splotches of contrasting yarn are, in turns complemented with matching fur trimmings. For instance a brown tweed flecked with white is trimmed with white caracul, a blue tweed spotted with gray takes on gray fur borderings. collar and cuffs.

AIRPORT DESIGNED LIKE THE BEEHIVE

Novel Terminals Proposed by New Yorkers.

New York .- In a few years the air traveler may look down and regard a beehive on the earth with the same joyful anticipation that an ocean traveler sights land.

For the beehive, one of the oldest forms of architecture, inspired the newest plan for the nation's newest need, the airport, and one has been designed by Frances Keally and E. P. Goodrich, New York architect and city planner.

Goodrich is in China, having been commissioned by the Chinese government as consulting engineer in the development of a modern seaport at Canton and the laying out of a modern capital city at Nanking. His plans call for aviation development and he will use the beehive airport as a basis for this phase.

But the treaty with the Omaha Indians, that handed over to the white men the land which was to become this fertile commonwealth, is not the only event that makes this seventy-Afth anniversary celebration a particularly fitting one. Acquired by the United States as a part of the Louisiana Purchase from France in 1803, what is now Nebraska for half a century was a part of the great "Unorganized Territory" which lay between the Missouri river on the east, the Red river on the south, the Rocky mountains on the west and the Canadian boundary on the north, and over which had roamed for centuries the Indian and the buffalo.

Then on January 4, 1854 Senator Stephen A. Douglas introduced a bill for the organization of Nebraska territory. This bill aroused the bitterest opposition and resulted in the Kansas-Nebraska bill which divided the new territory into two territories, Kansas and Nebraska, Franklin Pierce, who was then President, chose Francis Burt of South Carolina for the first territorial governor of Nebraska. But on October 18, 1854, two days after the new governor reached Bellevue he died and Thomas B. Cummings of Michigan became governor. Cummings faced the task of bringing political order out of chaos and one of the first problems to be settled was that of selecting a territorial capital. Bellevue, Plattsmouth, Nebraska City and Brownsville were all candidates for that honor but Cummings, who was a man of decisive character, took the initiative and selected Omaha. Then he set about when "Diamond Dick" Tanner heard is now engaged.

between the savages and government troops, stories of massacres, of burning emigrant trains, of turbulent life on a frontier, and of almost unbelievable hardships and dangers overcome by the brave men and women who built the state.

Like all states of the Western frontier, Nebraska has had her quota of picturesque figures and some of them are still living and have been asked to take part in the jubilee. Outstanding among them all, perhaps, is Capt. Luther H. North of Columbus. Captain North and his brother, Maj. Frank North, were the organizers of the famous Pawnee Scouts, a group of Indian auxiliaries who performed such valorous service for government troops in the wars on the plains while the railroad was being built west. Captain North has been characterized by authoritative historians as "the greatest of the old-time scouts of America." Then there's "Diamond Dick," famous as an unequalled rifle shot, who settled down to a quiet life of retirement at Norfolk, where he has been living for a number of years. Several years ago he told the surprised home folks that the quiet, well-mannered man they had known for many years as Dr. Richard Tanner was the celebrated "Diamond Dick." And he had the records of his prowess to back up his claims. "Diamond Dick" is a personal friend of Jim Dahlman, Omaha's cowboy mayor, who holds the record for successive terms of office. And

Has Traveling Library

The Italy America society reports that, through big motor trucks, small traveling libraries have started to circulate in Italy, particularly in the rural districts of the country. They introduce the best Italian literature where it would not be so easily accessible, thus allowing the inhabitants of the smallest centers to share in the intellectual life of the country.

Italy is the first country in Europe, which, following the admirable example of America, has instituted the traveling libraries. Book circulation is now very active and the work is done with the co-operation of the circulating libraries already established. In Italy are to be found the so-called Biblioteche Popolari, or libraries for the people, which are supported by the municipalities, citizens' associations and religious bodies.

quished title to the lands now within the borders of Nebraska. White Eagle, another Omaha Indian, and descendant of one of the signers of the government treaty, will also come to Omaha for the diamond jubilee celebration.

A number of contests with entrants from every section of Nebraska wili be one of the features of the jubilee and one of the most unique of these is a Young Citizen's contest in which one boy and one girl from 93 Nebraska counties, between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one years, will be brought to Omaha, during the jubilee, with all expenses paid, to be entered in the Nebraska Young Citizens' contest. All state contestants will be winners of their respective county contests and will be judged on the basis of health, personality and intelligence. Chancellor E. A. Burnett of the University of Nebraska is chairman of this contest.

A spectacular pageant, said to be the most elaborate ever to be planned in the Mid-West, will be presented during the jubilee. This pageant, entitled "The Making of Nebraska," has been written by Hartley Burr Alexander, native Nebraskan, who is now a professor at Scripps college, Claremont, Calif. The pageant will be produced under the direction of John T. Hall, of the John B. Rogers company of Fostoria, Ohio.

This pageant will embody the chief historical points in the growth of Nebraska from the time it became a territory, until today, when it has become one of the leading agricultural states of the nation. Professor Alexander is an authority on Nebraska history and has written a number of pageants, none as com- pockets. prehensive as the work in which he

"All planes will start from and arrive at four terminals, which meet in a huge rotunda. Either the eastwest or north-south terminals may be used to the advantage of the wind direction."

The design calls for an airport 6.000 feet in diameter, the landing surface of which is covered with cinders, with enough space left for a runway 350 feet wide for each plane, the length of the runway being 2,500 feet.

"The landing surface has a 21/2 per cent grade so that airplanes arriving will be helped by gravity to stop and airplanes taking off will be helped by a down-hill run," Keally continued.

"A 'huge dome will cover the rotunda with storage space for several thousand airplanes supplied by twostory hangars. Above the dome will be a mooring mast for a dirigible and the top of the mast will be exactly 1,000 feet from the ground, the highest structure in the world.

Water expands when it freezes, and the minute particles of fog instead of freezing tend to spread more thinly through the air until they come in contact with some other surface. Immediately upon such contact, as the surfaces of aircraft, they solidify directly into a layer of ice. In this case the temperature of the droplets is decidedly lower than that of the surface upon which they freeze.

Doctor McAdie says the best way to escape from subcooled fog is to watch thermometers closely and seek levels, either lower or upper, at which temperatures are higher.

When fibers of sweaters and the hairs of fur coats become covered with hoar frost, it is a sure sign of subcooled water.

Glaze, which he says formerly erroneously was called sleet, occurs when rain drops near freezing temperatures fall upon a surface which is much colder.

Real sleet is due to raindrops falling through a layer of air below freezing, which turns them into frozen raindrops. An airplane moving through such a stratum when raindrops are coming from a warmer area above is in a dangerous zone, for the accumulating frozen drops stick to one another readily and so build up a peril-

Rocket Plane Being Built in Germany

Dusseldorf, Germany .-- A motorless propellerless rocket airplane, with stream line "arrow" body for greaterspeed, is under construction here at the Espeniaub airplane factory.

It was designed by Max Valier, inventor of the rocket automobile.

Lifted into the air by another plane, the new plane is to take off for its first flight by merely setting off its rockets and dropping the tow-line. A one-seater monoplane, with a 36foot wing spread, it needs neither motor nor propeller, because of its rocket system of propulsion. About 225 pounds in total weight are thus saved.

THOUSANDS ARE STARVING!

RIGHT here in the U.S. A., the wealthiest country in the world. Some are starving and do not know it, while others know that something is the matter and cannot find the cause.

These unfortunate people we refer to are not suffering for want of bread and cheese. They may be surfeited with quail and terrapin; but their minds are starving because really good reading today is hard to find. Goodness knows, there is plenty of reading matter piled mountains high on every newsstand, but it does not satisfy the mind hungry for normal stimulation.

The opening then tapered down until the men came to a second small opening. By wedging themselves sidewise they were able to pass through. Upon crawling a short distance they were again able to stand up in another large chamber. The pair followed the passageway for about 15 feet, and it, too, tapered down like the first one encountered. They followed it on hands and knees and came to where they could proceed no further. They believe that the cavern ends at that spot, which is over 50 feet under ground.

SUPREME SACRIFICE

Sculptured by Lorado Taft, this a notable monument of enduring marble was dedicated recently at White Hall, Ill., to the memory of Annie Louise Keller, a school teacher who gave her life to protect the children entrusted to her care. When a tornado swept over central Illinois on April 19, 1927. the school, with Miss Keller and her twenty-two pupils, was in its path. She ordered each child to crawl under a desk while she kept watch at the door. The building went down, killing the teacher, but every one of her charges escaped uninjured.

"What 'a' you been burnin'?' the ash man inquired as he viewed the pile of cinders lying in one corner of the cellar. "Well, coke, mostly," Thompson re plied, "mixed with a little coal."

a supply of fuel.

"I could see at the first glance that it wasn't coal," the laboring man stated. "I ain't educated, but I do know my ashes."

It is an accomplishment which is not infrequently lacking for a man properly to know his ashes.

"Have you Little Black Sambo?" I asked the , erk in the book store. I was getting a birthday remembrance for a child of my acquaintance and I thought he might be interested in the story of the little colored boy.

The salesman looked over the long line of shelves in an endeavoi to find the desired volume. He opened a few drawers, pawed over a table of miscellaneous books nearby, confusion showing on his countenance. "I don't seem to find it," he ex plained finally, "but we have Black Beauty, and the Black Tulip." Here was a man who did not know his ashes.

Denton occupies a prominent position in a big organization, but he has hard sledding. He is far from pop ular; he is even cordially disliked by many of the people, who work with him, or perhaps I should say who work for him. Dentop prides himself that he plays no favorites; he treats everybody alike. The trouble with him is that he doesn't know his ashes. here. It has never got through his head that diplomacy is a virtue, that the sensitive self-conscious man should be ap proached in a far different manner than the bully; that some men are stimulated by praise and others by pride. Denton praises no one. It would seem to him a weakness to do so. He makes friends with no one. He sits in cold isolation in his bare office and gives orders. If he only knew a little of human nature and could some way get to it, he might some day be almost a great person. The ssh man could teach many of us a very important lesson. The recognition of different conditions, of different personalities, of a varied method of approach in business transactions, of the value of what at first might seem trifling details-these qualities make or mar success. Schoolgirl learns simple health measure

WITH all the talk there is nowadays about the independence of the sub-deb generation, your reporter got a great kick out of hearing a grandmother describe how her granddaughter was following a good old tried and true method of improving her general health.

"My granddaughter, Margaret, "says Mrs. Zell of 6231 Catherine Street, Philadelphia, "read about Nujol, was interested in it, so sent for a sample." It seems she has been taking a tablespoon of Nujol once a day since and expects to continue this treatment. Already she has found an improvement in her general health, her system functioning normally where other remedies had failed.

That's one of the best things about Nujol. It is just as harmless for young girls, or babies even, as it is for adults. For Nujol contains no medicines or drugs. It can't upset

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take. No Woman Without Some Appeal to Masculinity

Almost every woman has something | about her which, carefully nurtured, will make her seem desirable-not, of course, to every man in her world, but to one or two. The charm, which may be anything from piquant conversation to good cooking, will find appreciation somewhere if it be well displayed. Men are appealed to through their vanity and vainglory even more easily than women, which means that most men would rather be seen about with a woman who patently did credit to their own powers of fascination than with the worthiest creature in the world if she had no means of making the beholders envy them.

There may be men who dislike mere flirtation, and coldly ignore a woman who attracts them, but you will have to look for them in monasteries and this world.

A man likes to look upon a woman as one who is subject to a hundred weaknesses and follies, and yet ramains at heart a stunch friend, a really good sort.

Perhaps it requires a stretch of the imagination to picture an ant playing the violin. Yet certain varieties of the tiny creatures come close to doing that very thing. Nor do they have to marufacture the music-producing instrament. State of Yucatan Seat of High Civilization

The state of Yucatan is known to historians as the seat of one of the highest civilizations developed in the western world prior to its colonization by Europeans, but other than some very ancient ruins of which but little is understood there are no indications of the old-time glory of the country. Although there were the remains of a highly developed civilization when the Spaniard- arrived in 1517, the Mayas have left no record of their institutions or of the causes of their decline beyond what may be deduced from their ruined structures. At present descendants of the Maya Indians comprise 50 per cent of the total estimated population of 358,000 persons. The Indians are illiterate and have simple wants; they live on the large hene quen plantations and in the small country villages. Their principal occupations are the cutting of henequen leaves and the extraction of fibe

Javanese Death Trap

A new Valley of Death has recently been discovered in the island of Java, it is simply the crater of an extinct volcano one-half mile in circumference filled with carbonic acid gas which continually emanates from the fissures in the valley in the bottom of the crater. This gas, being invisible and incapable of being perceived by unsuspecting animals, is inhaled by those luckless ones who enter the valley. The gas is present in the air in such large quantities that the animals are suffocated, and the ground is covered with the bleaching bones of the animals who have been caught in this death trap.

His First Ride Capt. Rene Fonck, the French airman, told this story during his recent American visit:

"'You must excuse me, sir,' he said. 'I'm very sorry, but I haven't learned to ride one of these things yet."

Facts About the Telephone

The American people send more than 26,000,000,000 messages over the telephone lines in a year.

In the United States there is a network of more than 19,500,00 connecting telephones, and the number is increasing at the rate of 800,000 a year.

Only 15 per cent. of all the telephones in the world are unconconected with the telephones of the Bell System in the United States.

Crippled nine years ago, Miss Dorothy Antel still directs her business, connected with the management of the Sunshine Shop in New York City by telephone.

A.new telephone circuit connecting Reval in Esthonia with Stock-holm by way of Helsingfors, has been placed in service. Later, the line will be extended to Latvia.

The first police message over the telephone typewriter system, installed recently at Police Headquarters in Norwalk, Conn., resulted in the apprehension of two New Haven boys who had run away from home.

The Belgian Government has appropriated $2,773,900 for the installation of a new submarine cable between Belgium and Great Britain. Work on laying the cable is to be started at once and will be completed within a year.

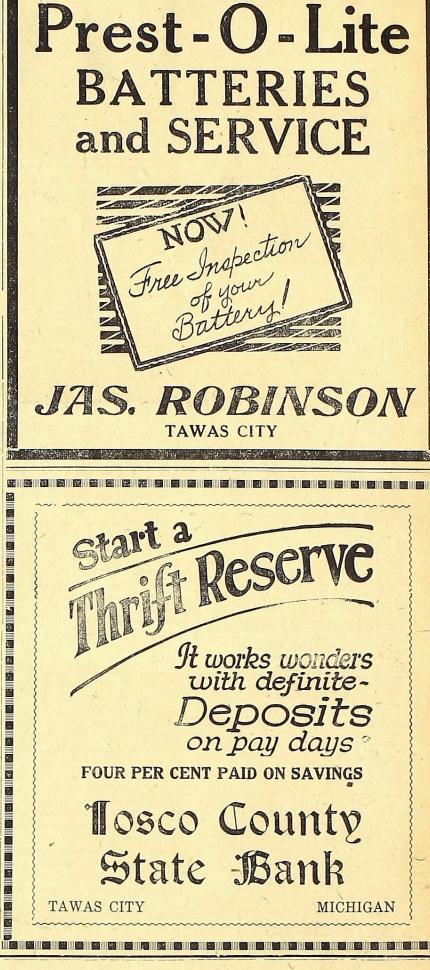

The telephone service of Den-mark is operated by seven private companies, each serving an island territory, with the exception of the Jydsk Company, which operates on the peninsula of Jutland. Submarine cables connecting the islands are owned by the state. Telephonically, Denmark is the best developed country in Europe,
