FORD PROGRAM CALLS FOR

The Ford Motor company, through James H. Leslie of this city, issued the following statement today:

"Production of passenger and commercial cars during September, 929, totalled 161,305 units, a heavy ncrease over production during the same month of the preceding year.

'An increased production schedule has been set for October, calling for an output of 175,000 Model A cars and Model AA trucks. The program for October anticipates a pain of 47,000 units over the pro-duction of October, 1928, when 27,225 units were produced.

first nine months of the current year aggregated 1,633,498 units. Adance schedules indicate that prouction of Model A cars and Model AA trucks for the full year ' will exceed 2,000,000 units.

The program adopted for October means that the Rouge plant will continue on a full five-day schedule. Employment in the Ford plants re-mains at a high level, with 108,138 game. Many local hunters were employees working in the three large plants of the Detroit area on October 2."

Two Cows Complete a Long "Bunion Derby"

Two cows, Tomboy and Alice, have just completed a 1,275-mile walk from Brandon, Vt., to St. Louis, Mo., which began last June. Accompanied by three young men who rode in a "dairy on wheels" alongside the bovines, these Ayrshire cows demonstrated their hardiness by tramping over mountains and bad roads and finishing in excellent condition. The animals were milked daily in a portable pasture set up every night at the end of ten to twelve miles of hiking.

U.S.S. Olympia

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON NTED: Another Oliver Vendell Holmes to save a nistoric ship from destruction. It was just a century ago that the proposal to break up the old frigate

Constitution brought forth from the young Harvard law student his lyrical protest, beginning, "Ay, tear her tattered ensign down !" which was first published in the Boston Advertiser widely copied in other mewspapers, circulated in handbills and resulted in the saving of "Old Ironsides." Now there is a proposal to junk the battleship Olympia, the flagship of Admiral Dewey at Manila bay, and only action by congress can prevent this historic vessel from going to the scrap heap.

The Olympia is now out of commission and rides at anchor in the back channel of the Philadelphia navy yard, her once gleaming white paint scaling off and her ironwork rusting away. Recently an inspection board of the navy reported that the Olympia had outlived her usefulness and recommended that she be disposed of. Immediately chapters of the Veterans of the Spanish-American war in all parts of the country began bombarding the the Navy department with telegrams, urging the preservation of the ship, and the department announced that these requests will receive full consideration before the final disposal of the vessel.

USED PLANE MARKET ROMANCE IN ISSUING BECOMES A PROBLEM LICENSES TO PILOTS

Girl Clerks Feel Heartbeats of the Game.

Washington .- There is romance in the task of issuing licenses to the thousands of airplane pilots, mechanics and students over the country. It might seem a dull, routine matter, but it is not, take the word of the girls who issue them in the licensing section of the Department of Commerce. They 'feel the heartbeats of the game."

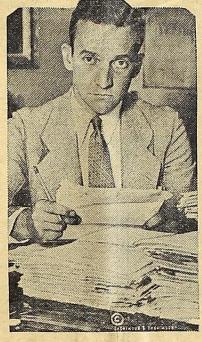

"Handling such a large volume of work, it seems strange that we remember so many of the pilots to whom we send lincenses," the young woman who supervises the work, writes for the department's Air Commerce bulletin. "Some of the old-timers I would recognize in the hereafter just from handling their papers and photographs so many times. We know those who think kindly of us and those who take every opportunity to knock. Many Specials Issued.

"Often we have stayed overtime to get out a 'special' to some chap who wrote a nice letter saying that a good job was awaiting receipt of his license.

"It has been lots of fun watching the young boys come in for their student permits and take the steps up through private and limited commercial and finally to transport licenses. To us that is his graduation, and we often wish we could send along a little note of congratulation. "Then, sometimes we have to take dirty old rubber stamp and mark began to show marked results. Three If there is any doubt of the growing airmindedness of America, all one needs do is look at the heap of letters, each containing an application for a license to pilot aircraft, on the desk of G. G. Budwig, chief inspector of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce at Washington. So tion, therefore, ceased temporarily at | far this year more than 15,000 appli-The American ships remained cations have been received.

Rapid Strides in Design Make Craft Obsolete.

Chicago .- The airplane distributor at the average airport is rapidly approaching the impasse which was the bugbear of so many automobile dealers a few years back. That is the problem of exchanging new planes for old on an equitable basis. While the aircraft industry has thus far eluded the "used car problem," it has only been because of the lack of markets for used planes.

So constant are the improvements made in airplane construction and power plants that planes having lived less than one-fifth of their average lives are already becoming obsolete. Their owners would be ready prospects for new ships if there were some way of making an equitable trade on the old ones.

Several enterprising dealers have been studying the problem, and here and there one has had the courage to emulate his brother of the automotive field by taking the old plane as part payment on the new. He then rebuilds the old ship and either uses it himself or stores it away until some buyer comes along who is unwilling to buy a new plane.

No standard yet has been established whereby the value of a used airplane can be judged. This is probably due to the lack of uniformity in the construction of the various types of new ships. One pilot may like one and another another, without regard for the superiority of newer models. The point is argued by the mail pilots, many of whom still prefer the old Liberty motored ships to the more modern planes which are faster and more stable. They say that they are used to the older type and satisfied as to its reliability.

In the opinion of many older pilots it is just as well that there are not many used planes for sale. Too many, they say, would make them so cheap that irresponsible people would be attracted, only to hurt themselves and the industry as a whole. If the plane remains in the hands of the original owner, however, they say he will wear it out in perfect safety, knowing its idiosyncrasies and guarding against them.

Washington University

Adds Aviation Course Seattle .- With the completion of a $290,000 building, funds for which were given by the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, the University of Washington will launch a course in avlation. Courses to be taught include airplane performance, aerial design, propulsion, aerial transportation, aerial navigation and airships. Advanced courses will be offered in all subjects.

The Guggenheim foundation awarded the building fund to the University of Washington because of a belief that the growth of aviation in the Northwest will require such a school, and because one of the largest airplane manufacturing plants in the United States is located there. Work already accomplished by the university also was taken into consideration.

Doctor Gives Hint to Lucky Salesman

TT'S a wise man that knows when he is slipping. Mr. R.F. Myers of 711 Rosedale Street, Baltimore, had the good fortune to get his tip straight from one of his doctor customers (he was selling for a pharmaceutical house) and since that lucky visit he has increased his business 50 per cent.

For two years he had been driving from town to town, and naturally this threw his elimination out of shape. He felt himself slipping. Cathartics only made him worse. Then one day he was calling on a wise old physician, and asked his advice. "What you need, my boy," said the doctor, "is a simple, easy, normal way to clean the poisons out of your system-we all have themand with your kind of work they certainly cut down efficiency. Why don't you try Nujol?"

"Well, believe it or not," says Mr. Myers, "in a few days I felt like a new man. 'What's got into you?' | your efficiency 50 per cent too asked the home office, 'your basiness has increased 50 per cent!" "

That's the great thing about Nujol. As soon as it begins to clean the poisons out of your system it makes you feel so well that you can almost always do a much better job.

Nujol is not a medicine and contains no drugs. It is perfectly harmless, forms no habit. It is simply bodily lubrication, which everybody needs. You, like everybody else!

Why put off good health any longer? Go into any good drug store and get a bottle of Nujol in a sealed package. Costs so little and means so much! Maybe you can increase pia rests with congress. In March, 1928, Representative Cochran of Missouri introduced a bill to bring the Olympia to Washington for exhibition as a permanent memorial. No action was taken on this measure at the last session of congress, but when the national legislature meets again in De cember it is probable that a determined effort will be made to pass the Cochran bill.

If the Olympia is thus preserved, she will provide a sort of floating museum of naval architecture, of value not only as a historic relic but as an illustration of an earlier stage of steel-plate armament. Although she would be an easy victim of the Washington-type cruiser of today, the Olympia was considered a first-class fighting ship when she was commissioned in 1895. Her construction had taken four years and cost $2,675,000. As cruisers went she was not a large ship even 30 years ago.

But destiny had cast this little cruiser for a leading role in an event of world-wide importance. For 31 years ago America was thrilled at the news of the Battle of Manila bay, won by an American squadron, commanded by Commodore George Dewey, who had for his flagship the Olympia.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war Dewey was in command of the Asiatic squadron of the American fleet then lying at anchor in the harbor at Hongkong within reach of the cable. He left Hongkong with instructions to tight the Spanfards when and where he found them and immediately started for the Phil-4ppines, stripping his ships for action and going through battle practice on the way. Dewey's squadron consisted of the small cruisers Olympia, Boston, Concord, Raleigh and Baltimore, the collier Nanshan, the supply ship Zafiro, the gunboat Petrel and the Monoc-which burst, doing little damage.

In the lull in the fighting, Dewey sent word to the batteries near Manila to cease firing or he would shell the city. The threat silenced the guns, and the Americans returned to the attack at Cavite. The Baltimore leading the column this time engaged the shore batteries, and a picturesque duel resulted. The battery at Canacao was the first to withdraw from the fighting. Then Fort Sangley was silenced. The Don Antonio del Ullao bravely opened fire, but the American ships were too much, and the crew deserted and swam to shore. At twenty minutes past

With none killed in battle, only seven slightly wounded and his ships but little damaged, Dewey had destroyed ten Spanish ships, silenced three shore batteries, killed 381 men and wounded many more. across the folder of some fine young man, 'deceased.' It is like parting with an old friend.

"Of course, among a gallery of such real Americans each girl has a favorite. My pick of what a young aviator should be lived down in San Antonio. I requested one of our field inspectors to look him up-but alas. he came back with the report that the pictures must have been taken before the war as he was now bald, fat and married.

"Nice Numbers" for Women.

"Feminine aviators sometimes receive a little extra attention by getting what we call a 'nice number. Often I hear one of the girls say: 'Gee, my next number is 2,500-I wonder if I have a girl in this bunch.' A girl's photograph naturally is always scrutinized, often to determine if she is as young as she says she is. Once a girl took literally our request for 'a photograph showing head and shoulders,' thereby throwing the entire aeronautics branch into hysterics. "I could tell dozens of real humaninterest stories-stories alive with the spirit of flight. I could tell stories of the sadness and courage of a mother who lost her boy; the disappointment and determination of a boy who hadn't the funds to continue to fly but expected to take it up again in the spring, and the ridiculous assuredness of the student who wanted to learn to fly by summer so he could make a transcontinental trip.

"Sometimes I wonder if the issuing of pilots' licenses will ever become a routine government job. I think not."

Ohio Marks Roads for Air Travelers

Columbus, Ohio.-Air travelers passing over Ohio soon will find a statewide network of well-marked aerial highways, which eventually will be the first link of a nation-wide network of air highways.

Through Ohio's new aeronautics law, just being put in effect, every city, village, hamlet and crossroads in Ohio is to be air-marked to guide air travelers along their way. The state will advise communities how to airmark, the best points to locate the marks and the best material to use. Financial aid will be furnished in some cases.

Aerial Instructors Must Really Teach

Washington .- Only flyers actually engaged in teaching students to fly will be granted instructors' licenses under the new Department of Commerce regulations governing flying schools.

Department inspectors are much too busy, Commerce department aeronautical officials say, to examine and grant a license to every pilot who should apply for one. Instructors at flying schools now are operating under letters of authority. The examining and licensing of instructors began September 1, when new flying school regulations went into effect.

Huking, president of the Pilots' veteran pilot with 6,000 flying hours to his credit.

Huking is at the controls of trimotored transports and for months has been flying men and women in his big plane over the Sierra Nevada mountains between Oakland and Salt Lake City, a 640-mile night trip. "Most passengers have a de sire to get up front and look around," said Huking. "The courtesy of permitting passen gers to go forward and stand in the entrance of the pilot's compartment, with its many controls, has been extended to many passengers. Almost invariably men passengers will ask a few questions, look around a bit, and return to the passengers' cabin. However. with women passengers it is different. Often it is necessary to suggest they return to the cabin when they are still in quiring about features of the plane's construction and operation."

OUR eyes tell you when trousers are stylish. You can feel with your hands that the material is right. Try them on and the matter of fit is settled. But how are you going to know whether they are made to give real wear?

ANSWER: Pick out a pair of Dutchess Trousers. Look inside of them on the left rear pocket. Sewn there you will find a warranty label guaranteeing the payment of

"10c a Button; $1.00 a Rip"

This means just what it says-no argument, no "red tape." We pay you if buttons come off. We pay you for a rip or give you a new pair of trousers.

Fair enough? For more than a generation the manufacturers of Dutchess Trousers have stood back of this famous warranty.

Dutchess Trousers have to be right in wear and they are just as right in style, in materials, in price-the kind of garments that are four-square with our policy of providing the men of this vicinity with clothes that satisfy.

You will find here just the trousers you want for dress, for work, for play-and be sure to look at the left rear pocket.

- 1. During 1928, operating errors were materially reduced.
- 2. The average time for handling calls to out-oftown points has been reduced.
- 3. The great majority of all Long Distance calls are handled while the calling party "holds the line."
- 4. Clearness of voice transmission, over both local and long distance lines, is improving continually.

This company always will endeavor to provide for Michigan a more efficient telephone service and one more and more free from imperfections and delay.

Our policy—"To continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety".

Washington .- The final disposition | of the U. S. S. Olympia, flagship of Admiral George Dewey at the battle of Manila bay, is likely to be considered at the next regular session of congress, as a strong sentiment has developed among veterans and patriotic organizations for preservation of the vessel as a historic relic. The vessel, having outlived its usefulness as a fighting craft, might iu the ordinary course of events be slated for scrapping, but the tradition of its prowess as a fighting machine, gained at Manila, still lingers in the public consciousness.

Heeding telegrams from all chapters of the Veterans of the Spanish War. the Navy department has officially announced that the disposal of the

The Olympia has seen service in many parts of the world since the time of the war with Spain. It continued for a few months with the Asiatic squadron, but went out of commission on November 8, 1898. After recommissioning in January, 1902, it joined the North Atlantic squadron as flagship. During the period from 1903 to 1905 it went on errands of protection for American interests and lives in Panama, Smyrna, and the Dominican republic. When the United States entered the

Manila bay, the Olympia led the attack on the ships of the Spanish squadron.

World war, the Olympia was des-Ignated flagship of the United States patrol force. She was employed in pa trol duty off the coast of Nova Scotia and ocean escort for British merchantmen en route to and from New York and the war zone.

In December, 1918, the Olympia became the flagship of the commander of United States naval forces in the eastern Mediterranean, and cruised the Adriatic and Black seas. After several important missions of post war transport and relief in eastern European waters, the Olympia returned May, 1921, to Philadelphia.

In September, 1921, she was as-signed the distinguished duty of bringing home for burial in Arlington cemetery the Unknown Soldier representative of the heroes of the American forces of the World war. She left the Philadelphia navy yard on this mission October 3, 1921, reaching Ply mouth, October 16. She arrived at the Washington navy yard on November 9, 1921, with the Unknown Soldier, and was met by representatives of the army and navy and other services.

The Resourceful Dramatist

Louis Weitzenkorn, editor of a New York paper, has written a play which has been accepted for production. One of the scenes is at a Long Island house party, and it shows the week-end guests who are complaining bitterly about the service and the dull time they are having. The owner is trying to think of a name for this country place, and he has heard his guests crabbing. Instantly he has an inspiration, and he calls it BELLYACRES.

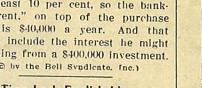

I am informed that a banker has moved into the most expensive apartment in the city. It is on Park avenue, and occupies three floors. The living room is three stories high. The apartment was built to the banker's order, and cost $400,000. The cost of maintaining co-operative apartments is at least 10 per cent, so the banker's "rent," on top of the purchase price, is $40,000 a year. And that doesn't include the interest he might be getting from a $400,000 investment.

A GOOD STORY

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Father never gave me a great deal of advice when I was a boy. I do not know whethdevelopment of habits and character, but that we learn most largely from example. Father very good man; his one had habit was his attachment to an odorous pipe. I lay it to his credit that he never advised me not to smoke. His wisdom in this regard accounts, I am quite certain, for the fact that tobacco has never had any attractions for me.

So far as I knew, father had never read a novel in his life, and he was a constant reader. He objected to fiction as he did to cards and dancing, and the one dictum I recall that he ever laid down to me was, "Lad, don't read novels; they are not good for you."

I had read hundreds of them before I was fifteen-openly, surreptitiously, out in the yard, lying flat on the floor in the front room, after I had gone to bed at night, up in the barn lofteverywhere in fact where it was possible to take a book with me.

I've just had a long ride on a crowded passenger train without a soul near me whom I have ever seen before; but it has been a delightful ride full of thrills and romance and excitement, for I have had a good story in my hand which has held attention and left me oblivious of everything else around me. There is nothing like a good story to cause the cares of life to vanish.

If I am thankful for anything which characterized my childhood and youth it is that very early in life I developed the habit of reading and that I became acquainted with some of the best fiction that has ever been writ-also well acquainted with Dickens and Thackeray, and Scott and Cooper, and Dumas and Hugo, and a host of other masters of the art of story telling. As long as I can read or can be read to life will never for me become dull or uninteresting.

Bruce Barton is quoted as saying to a mother who asked how she could break her boy of the habit of reading breeding grounds for countless numbers of sea birds, and the protection their bird inhabitants received because of the Migratory Birds Convention act has resulted in greatly increasing their numbers. Each year the sanctuaries are visited by a migratory bird officer from the department of the interior and careful note is made of the increase among the birds.

It cannot be rooted out-its precept counts very little in the roots run back too far.

The fame of the bird sanctuaries of the St. Lawrence, which number 13, has spread and growing throngs of tourists make the trip by rail or steamer each year. The Gaspe coast rookeries were set aside in 1919 and those along the northern shore of the gulf were established in 1925. All Rock and Bonaventure island off the Gaspe coast and the islands along the are under the joint control of the north shore of the gulf have been the Dominion government and the Quebec provincial authorities.

The bird sanctuaries off the Gaspe coast, which are reached with ease by rail to the quaint little town of Perce, are better known than those of the north shore and consequently the thrilling picture of the great throngs of gannets which inhabit the Bird Rocks, Perce Rock and Bonaventure island are known to many.

The boy's father swelled up with pride.

"You see," he told the visitor, "my boy's ambition is to be a regular heman, and none of these sheiks and drug-store cowboys. He's going to be

And the discussion ended there.

Oldest Known Will

The oldest will in existence is the one executed by an Egyptian named Uah in 2548 B. C. The will was written on papyrus in hieroglyphics and sealed with a scarab. It reposes in the museum attached to London university. The will is remarkable for the clear and definite way in which it disposes of the maker's property, and interesting in that his estate is left to his wife, giving her discretion about the manner in which it was to be divided among their children.

STORY FROM THE START

STORY FROM THE START Retirning to America, during the War of 1812, after a success ful voyage, Capt. Lion Fellowes' merchant ship Sachem is sunk off Portugal by a British frigate. His crew surrenders, but Fellowes reaches shore exhausted. His life 's saved by an English-speaking girl who conceals her identity He learns from her, however, that she is about to set out for Lisbon. Fellowes goes to Lisbon. hoping to find a vessel America bound. He meets Captain Chater of the American ship True Bounty, an acquaintance. Chater offers him a berth as mate. Fel-lowes refuses, knowing Chater is a side his life, Cara Inglepin, daughter of the owner of the True Bounty. Cara induces him to sail as mate. Fellowes falls in love with her. The True Bounty is stopped by the British frigate, Badger, Captain Col-lishawe. Despite his American otizenship Fellowes is taken aboard the Badger a "pressed" man. Maddened at what he be-itreachery he strikes Collishawe, who orders him a hundred lashee with the "cat."

CHAPTER IV

-6-Tom Grogan and Cuffee Cockroach

In his delirium Fellowes was plagued by a webrd spector-the head of Collishawe on the sinewy torso of Bob Clinch-that brandished a drip ping cat over his lacerated back. But always as the lashes were about to fall a gigantic black figure intervened, and a soft, crooning voice quieted his frenzied defiance: "Hush yo'se'f, mars'r, Cuffee hol' yo' han'. Dar, yo' don' need holler-ain't only Cuffee 'n' Tom wid go'." Fellowes raised his head as the negro spoke, and his lips parted in a groan lle was lying on his stomach on a pile of hammocks; the yellow glare of a battle-lanthorn, suspended above him, revealed the confined space of the Badger's berth deck. From his neck to his loins his back was a blaze of agony.

"How long have I been here?" he whispered.

"Dis two night'. Yo' hab much bob bery, mars'r. Yo' holler, an' yo' yell. an' yo' wan' fo' kill him cap'n. Oh. my aunt, yo' plenty sick !"

Fellowes moved again, tentatively, to ease a stiffness in his legs, and with the stab of pain which shot through him he felt an oily moisture percolat ing down his flanks.

"What have you got on me?" he asked, between gritted teeth. "Plenty slush. Dat best, to' yo the Middle passage. He was the only livin' critter aboard. I guess he wouldn't have lasted more'n a day, if we hadn't happened by. Cap'n, he didn't want to take Cuffee off-but I was a cur'ous young feller, and thar was a chauce the slavers had left treasure behind 'em, so the cap'n, he hems 'n' haws and 'lows I can go, it so be I go alone, which same I did."

Fellowes found the narrative amusing. It removed his thoughts from his tortured back. Grogan went on: "Cuffee come, 'n he kissed my hand, and kneeled down on the deck in front of me. And after I took him back to the Martha, 'n' we'd fatted him a piece, why, ye jest couldn't pry him away from me. Cap'n, he called him 'Tom Grogan's nigger,' and nex' time we made Baltimore that's how the cus toms orf'cers entered him. 'Cuffee Cockroach, property o' Tom Grogan. A. B., of Philydelphy, P. A.'"

A shadow fell across Fellowes face, and Clinch squatted opposite Grogan.

"Feelin' a mite more peckish. lad?" inquired the bosun, "Rot my guts but yer a game bantam." He paused awkwardly. "No aneemoseetees. I 'ope?"

Fellowes thrust out a hand, regard less of the pain the movement caused him. "I haven't anything against you juju man. The big, calloused hand slid caressingly on to Fellowes' head. "Dar, now, mars'r, yo' go fo' sleep. Cuffee here.'

And the crooning, monotonous hum of liquid polysyllables fell like an anodyre on Fellowes' aching nerves.

The Long Islander improved steadily. His back, which, fortunately, he could not see, remained a horrid spectacle; but gradually the shredded flesh commenced to scab over, and, what meant most to him, his oerves eased off from the terrific tension imposed upon them. And now he was morbidly anxious test the mitigation of his pain should quench the fire of hatred burning in his heart. But he need not have concerned himself. The first time he was assisted to the spardeck, and saw, aloof in the sacred precincts aft, Collishawe's straight, trim figure, his eyes were clouded by the same red mist which had blinded him the day he boarded the Badger With nothing else to think of, Feltowes found diversion in whetting the edge of his batred, scheming plans of vengeance. And slowly, as his mind became normal, he relinquished the fantastic dreams which had occupied him in his earlier convalescence. No ordinary retribution for himl No blow in the dark, no shot across a smoke-filled deck, no yielding to sul cidal hysteria. They'd stand face to face, aye, ship to ship, when the time came. Watching Collishawe, he discovered the Englishman's heart was bound up in the Badger. Smash her, take ner from him, and Collishawe would suffer infinitely more than the pangs of death. But to take or trap the Badger Fellowes must first escape from her, and this posed an apparently insoluble problem. He cudgeled his wits over it, and finally called on Tom and Cuffee for advice.

"Mebbe a man can escape when he's ashore," commented Tom; "but how ye goin' to escape anywhere in all this water?"

"There's always a way, if we can find it," Fellowes answered dogged-"We must hope, and keep a watch. And if we do get ashore I'll buy a ship that can cun the Badger into her hole in Davy Jones' locker -and you shall be with me."

Cuffee was all smiles. "Yo' hab Long Tom, Mars'r Fellowe? Oh, my aunt, I mos' please to deat wid him!

"Ye'll be dead afore yer pleased, nigger," Tom sighed dolefully. But Fellowes refused to despair. "Nonsense, Tom." he exclaimed.

You shall be bosun. Think! A sharp, Yankee privateer that'll carry royals in an ordinary blow. You wait and see."

A few days later the sloop-of-war spoke the Shannon frigate, which made signal she was bound south with dispatches for Admiral Cookburn cruising off the capes of the Chesapeake, and Fellowes heard the signalman's report to Collishawe, and Collishawe's prompt rejoinder. "My compliments, and ask em to heave to. Tell 'em Captain Collishawe has important documents for the admiral's attention. Mr. Curry, have a boat lowered. I'll see Captain Broke, myself." Fellowes remembered the papers Collishawe had discussed with Cara Inglepin and Chater in "the True Bounty's cabin. This could be no trival plot, which was referred direct to the admiral commanding the blockading squadrons, having previously been indorsed by British authorities across the Atlantic. Another reason for escape. Here should be a weapon with which to humble the Inglepins and Chater. For he mustn't waste all his hatred on Collishawe. No no! It was Cara Inglepin who had betrayed him in the first place. And sneaking Saul Chater. If he might only escape! With any luck, he'd see them hung in chains

According to a statement of Dr. W. S. Deffenbaugh of the Bureau of Education, if a child attends school 6 hours for 200 days of the year from the age of six to seventeen, inclusive. he is in school only 14,400 hours. Assuming that 9 hours are spent in sleep, he has 15 hours a day at his disposal during the 12 years in which he is awake 65,700 hours. Consequently he is in school only 21.9 per cent of the time awake from six to eighteen years. As the actual average school attendance is only 152 days a year.
