BAPTISTS TO MEET HERE WEDNESDAY

Dr. Axling of Japan Will Be Principal Speaker On Program

The annual mid-winter meeting of the Alpena Baptist association will be held at the Baptist church in this city next Wednesday, announces Rev. Frank Metcalf. It will be an all day meeting with the morning program starting at 10:00 o'clock.

Included among those taking part in next Wednesday's meeting are Dr. William Axling, Mrs. Guy Orcutt, Mrs. Ralph Taylor Andem, Ezra G. Roth, president of the Michigan Baptist conference, and Ralph Taylor Andem, secretary of the Michigan Baptist conference.

Dr. Axling is from Tokyo, Japan, and has rightly been called the "Statesman Missionary" of that country and his service to the Japanese people has brought him many times before leaders in high places. He rendered a notable service at the time of the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armament in 1921, when his intimate knowledge of the Japanese people in all situations of life made him an authority on certain points and led to important conferences with representatives of the various delegations. During his furlough which occurred at this time, he gave 253 addresses to help promote better international relationships, speaking many times before influential citizens, once to the officers of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and on one occasion to a group of congressmen upon their invitation and desire to know conditions in Japan.

Dr. Axling has held important positions for Christian missions as a whole, including the Presidency of the Conference of Federated Missions of Japan, and the executive secretaryship of the Japan National Christian Council. He was one of the secretaries of Japan's Delegation to the Jerusalem Conference and to the World meeting of the International Missionary Council in Madras, India. Dr. Axling has also served the Kingdom of God Movement as its secretary. He is at present one of the secretaries of the National Christian Council of Japan as well as one of the secretaries of the Nation Wide United Evangelical Movement—an Interfaith All-Christians nation-wide evangelistic crusade.

The program will be as follows:

10:00 A. M.—Devotional service.
 10:30 A. M.—Missionary address.
 Dr. Axling
 11:30 A. M.—Message from our Women's President, Mrs. Orcutt.
 12:15 P. M.—Luncheon.
 1:00 P. M.—Women's conference, Pastors' and Laymen's conference.
 2:15 P. M.—The Book of Remembrance for the day.
 2:30 P. M.—Open Forum.
 4:00 P. M.—Presidential address, Mr. Roth.

P-T. A. Notes

The January meeting of the Tawas City P-T. A. will be held at the high school on the evening of Monday, January 29, at eight o'clock. At that time the regular business meeting will be held.

The program will be a group of sound pictures put on by the Michigan State Highway Department. The pictures are to be "Safer Roads," "Michigan Highway Adventures," "Blue Water Bridge," and "Winter Comes to Michigan." In order to secure the pictures it was necessary to hold the January meeting on this later date instead of the regular time.

$10,920 State School Aid Comes to County

The County Treasurer's Department announced Thursday that Iosco county had received its first installment of State School aid from the Auditor General. It amounted to $10,920.57 and will be allotted within the next few days to the various districts of the county. State aid money will be disbursed by the auditor general in seven installments.

DRIVE ON FOR FUNDS TO WAR AGAINST POLIO

Copeland Orchestra Will Play at President's Ball

The "March of Dimes" in Iosco county is on. The county committee in charge of this annual drive on the scourge of infantile paralysis reports that the campaign has been carried into every part of the county and is proceeding successfully. From every part of the county, Birthday Greetings containing dimes are being mailed daily to the President as contributions to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Meanwhile, arrangements are going forward for the annual President's Birthday Ball to be held on January 30 at the Community Building in East Tawas to celebrate the President's birthday. The proceeds to go to assist the campaign against infantile paralysis. The committee announces that Arnold Copeland and his orchestra, from Bay City, will play. This band consists of nine players and a girl singer, a group who have become popular in the Saginaw Valley for their fine music and entertainment.

Application has already been made for a Chapter to be established in the county affiliated with the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. This Chapter will receive half of all proceeds realized from the Birthday Ball and from the "March of Dimes." It is expected that this county chapter will be fully organized and functioning within the next few weeks.

Roy Leslie Remodels Ford Garage For Desired Improvement

Roy Leslie has purchased the old Ford Garage building at Whittemore and is completely rebuilding the interior to provide for a modern community building. This building is of concrete block construction being 44 feet wide and 112 feet long.

On the inside at the west end a stage 12 feet by 44 feet is being built which will be suitable for school plays and other public functions. At the other end is being constructed a fire-proof motion picture booth, while the extreme east end is being utilized for lobby, ticket booth and vending of tobaccos and soft drinks.

The entire floor area has been covered with hardwood flooring which will make an area 44 feet by 76 feet suitable for basketball.

It is anticipated that the owned will sponsor roller skating, basketball, dancing and motion pictures probably twice weekly.

This construction is not a city or school proposition but is purely private. However, everyone in the community is enthusiastic over the prospect of having a much needed asset for the town.

Four-County Teachers' Meeting at Mio

A four-county teachers' institute will be held next Tuesday at Mio, announces Russell A. Rollin, Iosco county commissioner of schools.

One of the principal events of the institute will be a discussion of school problems found in reports compiled from school visitations made Monday in the various schools of the four counties. Miss Feunstein of Ypsilanti and Commissioner Rollin will visit the Iosco schools. Among the speakers at the institute will be Prof. Guy Hill of Michigan State College; Mr. Haimta of the Department of Public Instruction; Superintendent Glenn Jacquays of the Oscoda public schools; Catherine Canisius, normal critic, West Branch; and Miss O'Conner of the Lincoln Consolidated schools.

Finnish Relief Dance Proves a Success

A successful drive was made by the Oddfellows of Baldwin Lodge of East Tawas and Tawas City last Monday evening when a dance was held at the Community Building in East Tawas. Members of the Rebekah Lodge together with many of the people of Finnish descent living in this community aided in the drive. Other nearby Oddfellow lodges, notably Oscoda and Barton City lodges, contributed their support.

T. George Sternberg, chairman of the drive, reports that first returns show approximately $90 has been realized and predicts that this sum will reach $100 when all returns are in.

These proceeds will be forwarded to the Finnish Relief Fund Drive of which former President Hoover is the national chairman.

Fred Adams, president of East Tawas Winter Sports, states, "It is essential that Iosco county be well represented at this luncheon. We want to show these prominent visitors that we are really interested." The public is invited. Tickets will be reasonable.

BASKET BALL BOY'S LEAGUE

Au Gres proved to be one of the strong teams of the circuit when it met and defeated Rose City by the large score of 40 to 12. Au Gres was a much improved team and really clicked against Rose City. Al Packard and Woodrow Ramsey showed some fast passwork in taking the ball down the court, followed up by either Lester Selle or Merle Beach, to score rapidly against their opponents. The hard fighting Kopasz twins handled the defense well and together scored 13 points. The strength of the Au Gres team will be tested Tuesday evening when it meets the fast Prescott team. Prescott holds one victory over them this season.

Rose City, the hard luck team of the circuit losing most of their games by close scores, was much surprised to lose this game by such a wide margin. Flynn of Rose City was high point man for his team with six points.

Our Old-Time Couch Is Made Streamline

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
 WAS there a couch like the picture in the family "sitting room" when you were a child? Let's get it down from the attic, for just see what can be done with it! Properly streamlined it will look like the middle picture.
 First paint the front of frame; then cover well up onto the head portion with cotton batting; next use bright cotton upholstery material. Remove stuffing at high end. Now, make box-like end tables like those illustrated. The dotted lines indicate how the couch fits under these box tables and how a partition and shelves are put in the one at the lower end. Paint tables to harmonize with fabric. The final touch is the back and end cushions covered with the upholstery material.

NOTE: Full directions for changing an old iron bed into the latest style, are given in Mrs. Spears' Book No. 3; also step-by-step directions for making "The Rug That Grew Up With the Family." Thirty-two pages of fascinating ideas for Homemakers. Ask for Book 3, enclosing 10 cents in coin to cover cost. Address; Mrs. Spears, Drawer 10, Bedford Hills, New York.

EAST and WEST

BY TALBOT MUNDY

TALBOT MUNDY—WNU SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadur River district in India, along with his indispensable manservant, Moses O'Leary, to survey the district to determine whether a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows to be the Maharanees of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is the Maharanees of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is the Maharanees of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is the Maharanees of Kadur.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

The Resident was in his office, reasonably civil, but he frowned when Norwood told him about the palace supper.

"You met the Hardings, I suppose? What did you make of them?"

"Tourists. Beautiful niece. Terrible aunt. I gathered, without being told, that the aunt has money."

"Rundhia show up? Did you notice anything suggestive of the possibility of scandal?"

"I thought the niece a damned nice girl, sir. A bit romantic."

"Any conversation with the Maharajah?"

"Yes. I was alone with him until midnight. He showed me all the documents that he seems to think bear on his claim to own that temple property. He seems very anxious to avoid a lawsuit, and it isn't difficult to guess why, though I'm not a lawyer. He showed me nothing that even half persuaded me he has a case against the priests. Of course, we'll know more when we've run the survey. But as far as I've gone, I should say the priests have a walk-over."

"You sound prejudiced."

"I haven't a trace of prejudice, sir, one way or the other."

"Why not reserve your opinion? Are you off now to call on the Maharajah?"

"Yes. I'm a bit early, but I have something to do on the way."

"Very well. Keep me posted."

CHAPTER VII

Norwood left his horse in charge of the sais at the palace front gate. He intended to return and ride up the long drive to the front door for his formal call on the Maharajah. But the footpath to the guesthouse was shorter than the winding carriage-road, so he walked, to leave the iodine for Mrs. Harding. On the way he saw Lynn and Rundhia.

Lynn was no longer in riding breeches. She looked delicious in a frock of Nile-green print and a wide leghorn hat. Norwood wasn't sure, but he suspected she knew she could be seen from the guest-house veranda, and that Rundhia did not know. She and Rundhia were laughing. Suddenly Rundhia snatched her hat off, used it as a shield to hide behind, caught her in his arms and kissed her. It was no fool of a kiss. It was an experience. Lynn did make a show of resistance. She struggled free and recovered her hat.

Norwood's view of it, against the background of the leghorn hat, made him set his jaw. But he relaxed it again and smiled, a bit grimly, a bit maliciously. From the opposite direction he had heard what sounded like an oath, although it was nothing worse than the well-bred, almost inarticulately gurgled word:

"Hussy!"

Aunt Deborah Harding had also seen that lingering and only laughingly resisted kiss.

Aunt was on the screened veranda, propped on pillows, on a reed chaise longue, with a table beside her. A native servant was just in the act of removing a tray of breakfast things.

"May I approach," asked Norwood, "or are you purdah?"

"Who is it? I can't see you. Oh, yes, Captain Norwood, come in if you can hear the sight of me. I should look presentable. I never had so many women in all my life to push and pull me about. This is my second attempt at a meal this morning. You'll have to run away if I can't keep it down. What has brought you, pray, at this hour?"

He had forgotten the iodine. "Thought I'd ask how you're coming along."

"Will you bring my niece here? She's beyond those trees, talking to someone. I want her to come here and talk to me. Will you tell her I said so, and please don't take no for an answer."

Norwood strolled across the lawn, tapping his boots with a riding whip. He coughed a couple of times. By the time he had peered around the trees, Lynn and Rundhia were seated opposite each other on wickerwork chairs. Lynn seemed unselfconscious. Rundhia looked venomously sly; he offered Norwood no greeting whatever.

"I happened to be calling on your aunt," said Norwood, "and she asked me to say that she wants to see you—"

Lynn looked dubious: "What sort of mood is she in?"

"Very polite to me," said Norwood.

"That's a danger signal. She can't be polite to one person at a time. I think I won't go."

"You will have to pardon me," said Norwood, "but I agreed to bring you."

"You always do what you say you will?"

"Yes." He looked straight at Rundhia, who ignored him.

"Prince Rundhia," said Lynn, "is going to show me the jewel room."

"Is he?" said Norwood.

Rundhia winced noticeably: "Perhaps you'd better go," he said to Lynn. "There's lots of time. She'll have her tantrum out, and you can meet me later."

Lynn compared them, as clearly as if she had said it aloud. Her

"Write a letter, why don't you?"

smile was a bit forced when her eyes met Norwood's:

"Do you always order people?" she demanded. "Don't you ever say please?"

He laughed. "I can't kneel. Breeches too tight."

"What will you do if I won't come?"

"Scream," he answered.

"I dare you."

"Tuesday is my day for screaming. Are you game to wait here until Tuesday?"

"No. I'm coming with you." She glanced at Rundhia: "You'll excuse us?"

"I excuse you," he answered.

Norwood looked so comfortless that Lynn noticed it:

"What are you worried about?"

"Oh, nothing. I was wondering what your aunt eats."

She laughed at him. "Liar! That's the very first time you haven't spoken like a polished rascal."

"I told part of the truth. I am worried about you."

"You needn't be. I'm all right."

She ran forward to speak to her aunt. The tray of breakfast things was being carried out by a palace servant. Norwood stopped the man, inspected the tray, and selected a piece of toast. He looked for something to wrap it in. That reminded him. He groped in his left-hand pocket for the iodine, tore off half the paper in which Stoddart had wrapped the bottle, stuffed the untidy package back, wrapped the toast in the torn-off paper and put that into his right-hand pocket.

"I'm expected at the palace, so I can't stay, Mrs. Harding. I brought you some fresh iodine, in case the doctor's stuff is pretty ancient, as sometimes happens."

He plunged his hand into his tunic pocket and Lynn came to the screen door to receive the bottle. He looked at her, groping with his left hand, trying to pull out the bottle without the untidy paper; but a piece of string, tied with one of Stoddart's knots, prevented. So he pulled out the disgraceful package with a quick smile of apology.

"Hello," said Lynn, "you've dropped something."

He stooped, picked up what lay at his feet but didn't recognize it. It was a quite small black paper envelope.

"I saw it fall from your pocket," said Lynn.

He opened it. It contained a neatly folded paper of diamonds. Nine large, clear white brilliants shone in the sun. He scowled at them and stuffed the package back into his pocket, evidently upset. He appeared to hope that Lynn hadn't seen the diamonds. He seemed about to mention them, but changed his mind. Lynn thought he seemed suspicious of her. Then suddenly:

"Excuse me, won't you?"

He walked away. Lynn's eyes followed, wondering. He looked like a man who has been hit hard and is trying not to show it.

"Lynn," said her aunt's voice.

"Come here!"

Lynn faced about: "Aunt Deborah! I have seen someone staring at what he heeded. Or it seemed to me so."

"Lynn, please rearrange my pillows."

It was not Aunt's cultured, conventional voice but the hard, unsympathetic one in which she almost always commanded attention to her comfort as a prelude to the luxury of an explosion of temper. Two palace women, loaned by the Maharanees, had been fussing with the pillows less than five minutes before. Lynn rearranged them. She waited. Her silence offered the old turgid opening, so Aunt Harding abandoned her usual gradual style of attack. She exploded:

"Don't dare to speak to me, you sullied creature, until you have washed your mouth! There is soap and water in the bedroom."

"Aunt—!"

"Wash your mouth this minute! I saw you—permitting yourself to be kissed by Prince Rundhia!"

"Aunt, I'm no longer five! Aren't you forgetting—"

"To my humiliation I remember too much! You are old enough at least to try to keep up an appearance of decency."

"Aunt, there's no harm in a kiss after breakfast! It's kisses after midnight that—"

"Don't you dare to try to justify your grossness! Even your graceless father had enough sense of his social position to keep his indecencies out of sight!"

"Aunt—!"

"Don't 'aunt' me! You inherit your father's wantonness."

"I never knew him," Lynn answered. "I only know what you and other people have told me. Others seem to have admired him. Wasn't he merry and brave and generous? Would he have endured your injustice? I have had to. For seventeen years. Aunt, I am very near the end of endurance. I knew you were looking. That is why I let Rundhia kiss me."

Lynn repeated: "I kissed Prince Rundhia, in a spirit of fun and partly to defy you."

"Fun indeed! Vulgar, suggestive immorality, with an Indian prince whose immorality is notorious! Whether or not I disinherit you will depend—"

Lynn's rebellion flared to its inevitable climax. She interrupted: "Disinherit me now, if you please! Do it now, Aunt. I have made my last submission to your cruel money! You have educated me so that I haven't one chance in a thousand to earn a living. God knows what I can do. But I will find something. I accept the odds. I will make a go of it somehow."

Aunt's stare was skeptical, scornful. Lynn turned away.

"Where are you off to now?"

"To the palace. The Maharanees is human. Perhaps she and I can find something to laugh at."

"Very well, Lynn. All your clothes were removed to the palace last night, against my wishes. Go and pack them. If it kills me, we are taking the first boat home, and you may say so to the Maharanees. You may tell her why. If you don't, I will."

"And if you don't," Lynn answered, "the palace women will! They have been listening through the bedroom window. So if you want to get the first malicious word in, you had better be quick! Write a letter, why don't you? I assure you I won't discuss it."

She picked up her tennis racket and unscrewed the frame. It was a hardy conscious gesture: it was much too hot for tennis. She walked out through the screen door, carrying the racket.

As she approached the palace front door, she saw Norwood's horse near the portico. She recognized Norwood's hair, squatting down under the horse's nose, half asleep, instead of flicking flies off the horse as he should.

Then she saw Rundhia. He had been watching for her. One could tell that by his manner. He looked astonishingly handsome in a gray suit of some thin material and a gray silk turban.

"Tennis?" he asked. "In this heat?"

"No. Tantrum! I'm so angry I could kill."

"Don't kill me, Lynn. I'm important. Tell me instead."

Lynn used the racket as if she were returning one of Rundhia's serves. "Would you tell me the truth?"

He grinned. "Well, almost. Who can be in love and tell the whole truth? I will lie to you, of course, about my character. But I will tell the truth about yours! You're a lovely, inspiring, challenging fact, Lynn Harding. You're an event."

"I feel like a skeleton in my own dark closet," she retorted, and Rundhia laughed.

"Come and I'll show you the treasures. Drive away the very memory of Aunt!"

All the way up the palace stairs and along the ancient corridor, Rundhia chattered gaily. Lynn answered in monosyllables, perfectly aware that Rundhia was talking to divert attention from his motive.

"Beauty and the beast!" said Rundhia.

"Bromide! Rundhia, you look like secrets in a suave disguise."

"My very inmost heart," he answered, "is an open book. Can't you read it?"

"I don't want to."

He kept his distance. That sinuous right arm of his behaved itself. He walked ahead of her through the narrow anteroom, where two turbaned guards salaamed respectfully. Rundhia spoke to one of the guards, who switched on the electric light in the treasure room. The masonry wall was ten feet thick; the door a foot thick. The guard closed the door behind them and opened an eyehole. Lynn could see the guard's eyes.

There was a long teak table between her and Rundhia, loaded with golden and jeweled ornaments: embossed golden shields, scimitars in gold sheaths, scores of objects such as are carried in procession by the servants of an oriental throne. Electric light shone within lanterns, suspended on chains from the ancient beams. At the far end of the room, on the right, was a huge glass case, in which the famous Kadur diamonds sparkled, stealing color from the jeweled lanterns.

"Hello," said Lynn, "you've dropped something."

He stooped, picked up what lay at his feet but didn't recognize it. It was a quite small black paper envelope.

"I saw it fall from your pocket," said Lynn.

He opened it. It contained a neatly folded paper of diamonds. Nine large, clear white brilliants shone in the sun. He scowled at them and stuffed the package back into his pocket, evidently upset. He appeared to hope that Lynn hadn't seen the diamonds. He seemed about to mention them, but changed his mind. Lynn thought he seemed suspicious of her. Then suddenly:

"Excuse me, won't you?"

He walked away. Lynn's eyes followed, wondering. He looked like a man who has been hit hard and is trying not to show it.

"Lynn," said her aunt's voice.

"Come here!"

Lynn faced about: "Aunt Deborah! I have seen someone staring at what he heeded. Or it seemed to me so."

"Lynn, please rearrange my pillows."

It was not Aunt's cultured, conventional voice but the hard, unsympathetic one in which she almost always commanded attention to her comfort as a prelude to the luxury of an explosion of temper. Two palace women, loaned by the Maharanees, had been fussing with the pillows less than five minutes before. Lynn rearranged them. She waited. Her silence offered the old turgid opening, so Aunt Harding abandoned her usual gradual style of attack. She exploded:

"Don't dare to speak to me, you sullied creature, until you have washed your mouth! There is soap and water in the bedroom."

"Aunt—!"

"Wash your mouth this minute! I saw you—permitting yourself to be kissed by Prince Rundhia!"

"Aunt, I'm no longer five! Aren't you forgetting—"

"To my humiliation I remember too much! You are old enough at least to try to keep up an appearance of decency."

"Aunt, there's no harm in a kiss after breakfast! It's kisses after midnight that—"

"Don't you dare to try to justify your grossness! Even your graceless father had enough sense of his social position to keep his indecencies out of sight!"

"Aunt—!"

"Don't 'aunt' me! You inherit your father's wantonness."

"I never knew him," Lynn answered. "I only know what you and other people have told me. Others seem to have admired him. Wasn't he merry and brave and generous? Would he have endured your injustice? I have had to. For seventeen years. Aunt, I am very near the end of endurance. I knew you were looking. That is why I let Rundhia kiss me."

Lynn repeated: "I kissed Prince Rundhia, in a spirit of fun and partly to defy you."

COUNSEL IDENTIFIED

During the hearing of a case in an American court counsel confronted each other for the first time. "You dirty, double-crossing four-flusher," snarled one. "I'll show you up for the crooked ape you are." "Oh, yeah!" returned the other. "You needn't take that line with me, you ham-faced liar." At this point the judge intervened. "Now that learned counsel have identified each other, the case will proceed," he announced.

NO GENTLEMAN

Let's go to town - at home!

NO TELLING what tomorrow's weather may be. It fools the best forecaster. But we do want chintz for the windows. We do need a carpet sweeper, a new percolator, and a new end-table in the living-room. And we don't want to slosh around rainy streets to hunt them. Problem: How to thwart the weather man. Simple enough! Let's sit down by the fireplace and read the advertisements. Here it's comfortable and snug. We'll take the newspaper page by page, compare prices, qualities, brand-names. Tomorrow, rain or shine, we'll head for the store that has what we want, and be home again in a jiffy.

"Buying at home"—through the advertising columns—gives you wide selection, more time to decide, and satisfaction when you decide.

Carl A. Brownell and Laura J. Brownell, his wife, Plaintiffs, vs. Oramel Griffen, E. Mors and Company, Joseph G. Dimmick and Company, Joseph G. Dimmick, James P. Close, Asa J. Rodman and Nellie Rodman, his wife, Elisha Mors, Charles H. Mors, Joshua Mors, James W. Sanderson, Enard J. Leach, Beatrice Leach, his wife, and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, Defendants.

At a session of said Court held at the Court House in the city of Tawas City, in said county, on the 15th day of January, 1940, Present: Hon. Herman L. Dehnke, Circuit Judge.

On reading and filing the Bill of Complaint in said cause, and the affidavit of Carl A. Brownell attached thereto, from which it satisfactorily appears to the Court that the defendants above named or their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, are proper and necessary parties defendant in the above entitled cause, and

It further appearing that after diligent search and inquiry it cannot be ascertained and it is not known whether some of said defendants are living or dead, or where they may reside if living, and if dead whether they have personal representatives or heirs living, or where any or some of them may reside, and further, that the present whereabouts of such defendants are unknown, and the names of those persons who are included therein without being named, but who are embraced therein under the title "unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns" cannot be ascertained, after diligent search and inquiry.

On motion of McTaggart and Krapohl, attorneys for plaintiff, It is Ordered that such defendants, their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, cause their appearance to be entered in this cause within three months from the date of this order, and in default thereof that said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by the said defendants, their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns.

It is Further Ordered that within twenty days plaintiffs cause a copy of this order to be published in the Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said County of Isosco, such publication be continued once each week for six weeks in succession.

HERMAN DEHNKE, Circuit Judge

Countersigned:
R. H. McKenzie, Clerk of Circuit Court.

TAKE NOTICE that this suit in which the foregoing order was duly made, involves and is brought to quiet title to the following described pieces or parcels of land situate and being in the Township of Wilber, County of Isosco and State of Michigan, described as follows, to-wit:

The north half of the southwest quarter, and the northwest quarter of Section 24, township 23 north, range 7 east.

Congress May Out-Spree FDR In Boosting Defense Budget, Despite Election-Year Fears

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS:

On Guard (?)

Biggest item on the congressional agenda was Franklin Roosevelt's $8,242,000,000 budget, which the senate voted to investigate via a joint super-committee. But there was more talk than action. While congressmen fumed to bury their teeth in the $1,800,000,000 defense program, major budget item, they also hesitated, watching developments abroad. In an election year there must be economy talk, but 1940's congress may end up by spending more on defense than even the President asked.

There were probes aplenty. Even though the house might kill that unprecedented super-committee, four more groups were hard at it. The house naval affairs committee began by slapping newly appointed Navy Secretary Charles Edison. The slap: Pigeon-holing a proposal that the President be given peacetime power to commandeer factories, materials and ships. Next came Admiral Harold Stark, chief of naval operations, who opined (1) that the U. S. now has no two-ocean

The committee was jealous.

navy, and (2) that 52,000-ton battleships wouldn't be a bad idea. (Now building are two 45,000-tonners, with two more provided in the current bill.)

Chairman Carl Vinson stepped in at this point with the week's No. 1 surprise, a proposal to boost naval strength 25 per cent the next three years through a $1,300,000,000 added appropriation. With this suggestion Admiral Stark agreed in toto. Another house committee, appropriations, showed neither spendorthriftiness nor laziness in okaying $287,197,000 for immediate emergency defense (army, navy, coast guard and FBI). The committee simply knew not where to turn. But if the senate approved this fund the current year's defense bill will be higher than next year's. Next day, when Carl Vinson learned the appropriation committee might okay another $4,000,000 to fortify Guam, he boiled over. That question, he insisted, should first come to his attention. Said he: "This committee (naval affairs) is jealous of its prerogatives."

Two senate committees meanwhile got up steam. Foreign affairs looked suspiciously at Guam, wondering how Japan would swallow the fortification plan. (See ASIA.) Appropriations, under Colorado's Alva Adams, wanted to junk the emergency defense fund and probably would.

What would eventually happen, most observers were willing to guess. Investigations will probably string along several months until Europe's war gathers steam. Then, overnight, congress will shoot the works and forget that it's an election year.

Also in congress:
Ⓒ The house passed Rep. Joseph Gavagan's (D., N. Y.) perennial anti-lynching bill imposing fines on county or state officials who fail, by negligence, to prevent mob killings. The bill went to the senate, which customarily defeats it, two years ago by a South-sponsored filibuster.

Ⓒ The house ways and means committee heard Secretary of State Cordell Hull defend his reciprocal trade act, which expires June 12 unless renewed. Score: Ten Republicans against it, most of 15 Democrats in favor. But on the floor it will face greater opposition, probably being renewed only on the condition that the senate shall ratify all pacts. Meanwhile doughty Sen. Bill Borah of Idaho inferred that the breakdown of trade talks with Argentina and Uruguay was a plot to win continuation of the act.

Ⓒ Adolph Sabath of Illinois, chairman of the house rules committee, said he opposed any more money for Martin Dies' un-Americanism committee. Reason: "After all, Mr. Dies has had enough publicity for any and all purposes and perhaps he will be still in demand for public speeches and writing magazine articles."

ASIA:

Naughty U. S.

By mid-January the U. S. was giving Japan so much trouble that the cabinet of Gen. Nobuyuki Abe was ready to fall. It was not enough that Tokyo's emissaries had been unable to win a new trade treaty replacing the pact being abrogated this month by Washington. Japanese also learned:

(1) That the senate foreign affairs committee was talking again of imposing an embargo on war material shipments to Japan. Leader of the move is Nevada's Sen. Key Pittman, committee chairman. Such a step would sound the death knell of Japan's war in China.

WANG'S EMPIRE (IN BLACK)
What would an embargo do?

(2) That Washington was again talking about a big navy (See CONGRESS). The Guam fortification plan, pigeon-holed last year, when Japan objected, was making news again. Tokyo papers were warning that the U. S. would soon be No. 1 offensive-defensive power in the Pacific. But the public, suffering from an internal stomach ache, was unexcited.

It seemed likely, meanwhile, that the Abe cabinet's sole accomplishment and last act would be to launch the puppet government of Wang Ching-wei over Japanese-dominated sections of China (see map). But if the U. S. embargo falls, lack of military supplies will make it hard to preserve what Japan has already won.

Militarists Expect War to Kill Itself If New Weapons Are Turned Loose

By GREGORY ADAMS

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON.—From the intense warfare expected to envelope Europe this year, American military and naval experts hope to tabulate their first authentic information regarding improved efficiency of modern fighting weapons.

In the 70 years that have elapsed since the Civil war—first modern conflict—the munitions of army and navy have assumed new sizes and shapes, becoming more deadly with each succeeding decade. But not since 1918, when it was prematurely decreed that men should cease making death-dealing weapons, have well-equipped armies met face to face as they do today.

Though all types of armament have been improved since 1918, it does not follow that any given nation has equipment so superior as to facilitate lightning war in which the enemy will be vanquished overnight.

You Can't Win.

To the contrary, the military inventions of one power have been so equally matched by neighboring states that the stalemate is increased. In modern warfare, sheer power runs against sheer power. Thus, on France's western front, neither army is able to gain a decided advantage. Knowing this, they stay safely behind well-guarded front lines.

If this frightful power were unleashed there would be only chaotic destruction of life to show in the end; advances would be negligible.

Such an ultimate clash of strength would provide the experts with their first clue to the potentialities of modern weapons. Italy's invasion of Ethiopia was no test, for Il Duce's army was pitted against an inferior foe. So were Hitler's legions in Poland. The Spanish war found each side ill equipped and resorting to old-style guerilla tactics, as have the combatants in the Chinese-Japanese war.

Finland has demonstrated that shrewd maneuvering, coupled with aid from Mother Nature, can stop the Russian juggernaut. But what will happen next summer, when the mechanized Red army operates under normal conditions?

Bombers Shun the Civilians.
Military experts believe the end of war may come when nations realize how an attack may backfire. An indication that the powers appreciate this danger is demonstrated in the fact that not a single civilian objective was bombed in the first five months of the allied-German war. To bomb London, the Nazis knew, would be to invite retaliatory bombing of Munich, Berlin and other cities.

Thus the vast improvement in death dealing weapons may be a blessing in disguise.

Take the ordinary rifle, traditionally the backbone of armed strength. In 1865 an American infantry soldier carried a long-barreled, single-shot, muzzle-loading musket that delivered an average of one cartridge a minute. Its maximum efficiency was 300 yards. By World war days the army was using a Springfield

BATTLESHIPS

Maximum speed has grown from 14 knots in 1865 to 30 knots today. Cruising range now 5,200 miles against 3,000 miles in 1865. Modern vessels mount 15-inch guns, compared with earlier artillery effective only a few hundred yards.

BOMBERS

Maximum speed has increased tremendously, cruising rate of 1940 bomber being 250 m.p.h. compared with 118 m.p.h. for 1918 makeshift bomber. Cruising range: 3,500 miles today against only 600 miles in World war.

RIFLE

Modern gun effective at 600 yards, shooting average of 36 shots per minute. This compares with 300-yard effective range in 1865, when infantrymen averaged two shots per minute. New gun discharges 20-shot clips in two and one-half seconds.

ARTILLERY

Civil war gun immobile and effective at no more than 1,100 yards. French "seventy-five" adopted in World war, still used but effectiveness increased from 9,000 to 13,500 yards with new mounting. Illustrated: Fixed-placement coastal artillery.

breech-loading, bolt-action, repeating rifle which the average soldier could discharge at a rate of 13 shots a minute. Its efficiency range was 600 yards.

It's Faster in 1940.

Today's Garand rifle requires but a pull of the trigger to discharge an eight-shot cartridge case, eject it and place a new load in the chamber. Though it can be fired up to 100 times per minute, its average efficiency is about 35. Maximum distance has been increased, but for battle purposes the range remains about 600 yards.

The first machine gun in 1865 was the Gatling, a military wonder which fired about 150 bullets of musket calibre a minute. Thanks to its stable mounting, the Gatling was efficient at 1,100 yards. By 1918 American troops had the Browning machine gun, water-cooled and gas-operated, which fired 500 rounds a minute at an effective range of 3,500 yards. By last year Browning ammunition had been so improved that the same gun could reach 5,500 or 6,000 yards.

Artillery on Wheels.

As with the machine gun, the United States army still depends on the old French "seventy-five" field artillery piece. Originally this gun had a standard base, was hard to move and offered a low maximum range. It fired only 9,000 yards. Today it is mounted on a pneumatic carriage, has been given greater elevation to permit a 13,500-yard range and is easily moved from one sector to another.

Air and sea weapons have increased apace. In 1865 the average fighting ship displaced no more than 3,000 tons, the super-battleship of that day being Britain's H. M. S. Warrior. That boat displaced 9,000 tons and carried four dozen sixty-pound smooth bore guns. By 1918 the giant was Britain's Queen Elizabeth, displacing 27,500 tons and mounting eight guns of the 15-inch size. She had 13-inch armor sides.

Today the British Nelson displaces 33,000 tons and has 16-inch guns—nine of them. She has 14-inch armor and travels at a speed of 30 knots compared with the Elizabeth's 25 knots.

Warships are getting bigger every year. Thirty-five thousand ton boats will soon be ready and the United States government is already talking about 40,000 tonners.

The airplane, an infant in the World war, has become a formidable weapon today. In 1918 the Martin bomber cruised 600 miles at an average speed of 118 miles per hour. Today a bomber like the Boeing can go 3,500 miles at 250 miles per hour. It carries 10,000 pounds of bombs and ammunition, compared with 1,500 pounds for the old Martin.

Might does not make right, as the world once believed, but it does make a war-hungry nation think twice before walking into the jaws of self-destruction.

By L. L. STEVENSON

In that section of midtown—the upper Thirties between Sixth and Eighth avenues—where something like 90 per cent of the garments worn in the United States are manufactured, there is much mechanized transport of course. Huge trucks all but block the narrow east and west streets. Light delivery wagons dash here and there. Horse-drawn vehicles form part of the traffic picture. Taxicabs, in emergencies, are used for deliveries. Nevertheless there is also more man-power transportation than anywhere else in the city. All through business hours, young men, who may some day be employing other young men to do that same work, trundle rolling wardrobes freighted with the finished product to stores and jobbers. Hand trucks clatter over the sidewalks with bolts, bales and boxes. In fact, there are so many pushers pedestrians don't do well.

The human back is also a popular form of transportation. Bolts of cloth are usually the burden though there may be so many pasteboard boxes that the bearer can't be seen, and so those boxes look as if moving on human legs. The cloth bearers, not infrequently manufacturers who have gone to wholesale houses for materials, stop for a chat. Thus more congestion. Young men with hangers draped with coats and dresses also form part of the throng. In the afternoon there seems to be a constant procession of pasteboard boxes into the Times Square post office station, and the parcel-post clerks do a brisk business. Within a few minutes, the bare tables behind them bear up under mountains of merchandise.

In the fur district, which blends right into the garment district to the south, there is also much human transport. The only rolling wardrobes, however, are invaders from the garment section. Fur coat manufacturers seem to prefer their arms when it comes to delivering the finished product. Raw pelts are carried constantly. One afternoon I saw a man toting what looked like two armloads of dried fish. Closer inspection showed them to be animal skins. Later, I learned that they were mink pelts with a value of something like $10,000.

Like to prow around the city looking over those various centers. For instance, the leather district away downtown. There are long rows of stores and display rooms with workshops in lofts. And that odor that is always associated with leather. The leather district is fittingly situated. Once its site was a swamp and the city's tanneries did business there.

A friend dropped in to tell of an experience he'd had over in New Jersey last night. As a short cut to the George Washington bridge, he turned into a dark side road on which construction work was being done, and as he sped along hummed that nonsense ditty about the little man who wasn't there. Suddenly, his headlights revealed, well ahead of him, a youth with thumb at full cock. Being a kind-hearted person, he stopped the car and the lad started toward him. Only a few steps did he take and then he disappeared. And the New Yorker, cold sober, suddenly experienced the big jitters because he felt that he was a victim of hallucination probably brought on by the song he had been warbling.

Just as he had decided jitters or no jitters to resume his journey to New York, the youth reappeared. After all, the explanation of the happening was quite simple. Blinded by the car's headlights, he had stepped off a culvert and ended up in a deep ditch. So instead of proceeding to some undisclosed destination, the hitch-hiker went home to change clothes and eventually the New Yorker reached Manhattan safely. But he's through with that little man tune.

Deputy Avoids Arrests

Smaller Junk Heaps Held Prosperity Sign

LORAIN, OHIO.—Service Director Paul Mikus, who judges the economic condition of the country by the condition of the city's rubbish, believes this city is on the way to recovery.

"The junk piles are smaller," he said. "That is because the people, having more money, buy less canned food and eat more fresh fruit and vegetables. Hence fewer cans, smaller junk piles."

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—If death is taking only a brief holiday on the west wall, the opposition is making the most of it. The life brigades press forward in medicine, research science, philanthropy, social inquiries and studies, and all that has to do with the two healing virtues of compassion and understanding.

Even the sedate American Philanthropic association feels a touch of the new elan vital and is moved thereby to a spirited teleological free-for-all as it tries to understand John Dewey. The occasion was a special meeting to honor Professor Dewey on having become 80 years old last October. Never before has this courier seen a year wind up with less arthritis and more punch, in the field of science.

Young blood is helping a lot. Dr. Albert B. Sabin, of the University of Cincinnati college of medicine, who scores against infantile paralysis and viruses attacking the nervous system, is 33 years old. His paper, read before the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Ohio university, reveals unsuspected tissue defenses against the entrance of the viruses into the nervous system. It is regarded as an epochal advance toward understanding of the disease and later conquest.

Dr. Sabin was born in Poland, and acquired his academic and medical education at New York university, from 1923 to 1931, later studying at Lister institute, London. In 1932, he became associate research scientist at Rockefeller institute, New York city. During his tenure with this institution he discovered a new disease, caused by an agent which he calls the B virus.

His new discovery of the anti-virus goalkeepers in human tissue was announced in connection with his receipt of the Theobald Smith award in medical sciences.

DR. ALEXANDER LESSER of Brooklyn college finds there is not any such thing as social evolution—at least not in the old sense.

Sees Our Hope In Understanding Human Behavior

"In the form given it by the 'classical evolutionists,' it is dead as a door-nail," says Dr. Lesser. But, tossing aside "subjective judgment," he finds ample hope of new understanding as he assails the old rationalization of haunch, paunch and jowl darwinism, as rationalizations of force.

Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, as above, sees our ultimate hope in "understanding human behavior," and urges the scientists to keep on swinging. Dr. Mitchell, it will be recalled, is the widely known Columbia university economist who headed President Hoover's research committee on social trends.

MATTHEW W. STIRLING, anthropologist of the Smithsonian institution, who delves into exciting origins and inducements of what is loosely called civilization, is off for the Maya country of Mexico, leading an expedition which will hunt new clues to early Indian cultures. It is a renewal of Mr. Stirling's explorations of last January, in which he found a stone bearing the earliest recorded date of the Americas—equivalent to November 4, 291 B. C.

A Princeton scientist traced the honey highball back 5,000 years and thereby gained knowledge of great historic Indo-European shifts in population. Mr. Stirling also has found man's early day elbow-bending a light source. He discovered that the drinking of primitive man was premeditated and indulged in to induce visions. At Ostia, Mr. Stirling found a bar, several thousands of years old, lacking only the brass rail and the free lunch to match ours.

In British Guiana, in 1927, he found pygmies who, for full dress, wore artificial tails; whose babies in arms smoked big cigars and whose dogs were barkless. In Florida, he found the lost Calooshas, the earliest Americans. In the Jivaro, he was clubby with head-hunters and learned much, not only of their recipe for shrinking heads, but of their visions, legends and customs.

He was reared in the Salinas cow country of California and attended the University of California. His explorations have been in North, Central and South America, Europe and the East Indies. He is 43 years old, and, as usual, having the time of his life.

How the wind is blowing . . .

BANKING—At San Francisco L. M. Giannini threatened to withdraw his Bank of America from the federal banking system unless Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau halts "persecution" of its officers through the Securities Exchange commission, which has been examining records of Trans-america corporation, owner of 40 per cent of the bank's stock. Next day Henry Morgenthau struck back.

POLITICS—At Washington it was indicated that Chicago can have both Republican and Democratic national conventions for the asking providing the city posts a $150,000 financial guarantee for each.

AGRICULTURE—Although 1940 cotton marketing quotas were approved by 91 per cent of the farmers voting (962,273), it was estimated by the department of agriculture that the election had been staged by only 38 per cent of all cotton growers (2,300,000).

AVIATION—Within the next year, every major airline in the U. S. will be flying four-engined, 40-passenger aircraft in substratosphere levels at speeds more than 50 miles per hour faster than at present. The ships: Douglas DC-4s and Boeing 307s.

Those Ancient Giants

The Book of Genesis records that before the flood "there were giants in the land."

Science thinks it has found some of them in Palestine. If science is right, then modern man is more gigantic, a more splendid physical specimen.

Sir Arthur Keith sketches the scientific story, in the British journal, Nature. He refers to the bones of men and women who lived 50,000 to 100,000 years ago in Palestine. He quotes Genesis on giants and says:

"The fossil people we are now dealing with are almost worthy of such a name. The men were tall; four of them range in height from 5 feet 8 inches to 5 feet 11."

American studies of college men and women indicate that height and size are a matter of food. With the diets available long ago, these old Palestinians might truly rate as giants.

Chamberlain Gets Closeup of Front Line Warfare

His umbrella discarded for the time being, Premier Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain is shown inspecting a camouflaged gun emplacement during his recent visit to the front lines in France. It was on this occasion that he replied to critics of the "boring" war with the sage remark that "it is better to be bored than bombed." The premier is equipped with boots and puttees, evidently prepared to rough it.

Civilian Planes Meet in All-America Air Maneuvers

The greatest aerial armada of privately owned planes ever seen in this or any other country concentrated in Miami, Fla., recently to hold its annual All-America air races. More than 1,500 civilian planes attended the meet. Winners included Homer C. Just Good Food

In her own town and in her time, Aunt Edith was considered a good cook. When prizes were awarded for the best cakes at church fairs, Aunt Edith won her share of them. But she had her bad days, too, when this pie crust was soggy or that cake fell flat. Aunt Edith used to say, "Well, I had good luck with my baking today," and sometimes she said, "I don't know why, but my sponge cake isn't near as nice as usual, this time." Luck played quite a part in the success or failure of one's cooking and baking, in those days! There isn't any mystery about cooking and baking today; this "four-point plan" eliminates the element of chance, and insures uniform results, day after day: 1, tested recipes; 2, accurate measurements; 3, proper methods of mixing; 4, correct temperature for cooking and baking.

Reliable recipes and good ingredients are available by the score. When you've found the ones you like, stick to them! Marked measuring cups and spoons have done away with the old time "pinch" of this, and "smidgin" of that, and directions for mixing are a part of every tested recipe. Thermometers of every kind insure the proper temperature for cooking and baking; thermometers for deep fat frying eliminate grease-soaked doughnuts or croquettes; there'll be no sticky, runny frostings or candy that won't "set," when the cooking is done with candy thermometers; meat thermometers mean roasts that are cooked to just the right degree of "doneness"; and oven thermometers are practically indispensable for the countless baking jobs involved in feeding a family. You'll find the recipes below meet the requirements of the four-point plan. You'll want to add them to your file of tested recipes for "Just Good Food."

Silver Cake.

- (Makes 2 9-inch layers)
- 2 3/4 cups cake flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 4 egg whites (stiffly beaten)

Sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream the butter, and add 1 cup of the sugar gradually, beating until smooth and fluffy. Add the dry ingredients to the creamed mixture, alternately with the milk. Add flavoring. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry, and gradually beat in the remaining 1/2 cup of sugar. Fold into the cake batter. Bake in 2 greased 9-inch layer cake pans in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Boiled Icing.

- 2 1/2 cups granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon almond extract

Cook sugar, corn syrup, salt and water together to the firm ball stage (250 degrees). Pour the hot syrup slowly into the well-beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add almond extract and continue beating until the frosting will hold its shape when tossed over the back of a spoon. Should icing become too stiff to manipulate easily, a small amount of hot water may be added.

Lemon Apple Cake Filling.

Pare and grate one large, tart apple. (There should be 1 cup of grated pulp). Add 2 tablespoons of lemon rind grated, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, beaten, and 1 tablespoon of quick-cooking tapioca. Cook over hot water until thick and clear—about 15 minutes. Cool, and spread generously between the layers of a cake. The filling is especially good in white cake.

Liver Croquettes.

- (Makes 10-12 croquettes)
- 3/4 pound beef liver
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- Boiling water
- 2 tablespoons onion (grated)
- 1 cup fine bread crumbs (moistened with 2 tablespoons water)
- 1/2 cup thick white sauce
- 2 eggs (well beaten)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Cover liver with boiling water to which baking powder has been added. Cook a few minutes until liver begins to get tender. Remove from water, cut off tough skin or connective tissue, then grind. Mix with bread crumbs, white sauce, and eggs well beaten. Season to taste and cool. Shape into small ball croquettes. Fry in deep fat (375 degrees) until golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper. Serve at once with hot tomato sauce. If desired, croquettes may be dipped in crumbs, egg, then crumbs again before deep frying.

Lemon Meringue Pie.

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add cold water; stir until smooth. Add boiling water and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is clear and thick. Cook 3 minutes longer. Beat egg yolks; stir cooked mixture into them. Add remaining ingredients, return to flame and cook 1 minute. Pour immediately into baked pie shell. Top with meringue.

Meringue.

- 3 egg whites
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Beat egg whites partially; then add sugar slowly, beating until mixture is stiff. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) for 18 minutes.

Apple Sauce Doughnuts.

- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 1/2 cups brown sugar
- 2 eggs (beaten)
- 1 cup apple sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 3/4 cups bread flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and add sugar; blend thoroughly. Add the eggs. Combine apple sauce, salt, soda, and spices, and add to first mixture. Sift together the flour and baking powder, and add. Roll out to 1/4-inch thickness on well-floured board. Cut in circles and fry in deep fat (365 degrees) until brown. Drain and roll in confectioners' sugar.

Where There's a Will Things Usually Get Done!

The teacher was examining the pupils in arithmetic.

"Now," he said, "I'll give you one more sum. If a cat falls down a bottomless well, and for every two feet it climbs up it falls down three, how long will it take to get out?"

One boy took a slate, and after filling both sides with a mass of figures, asked for another.

"Good gracious!" snapped the teacher, "haven't you the sense to see the cat will never get out?"

"Don't be in a hurry, sir," replied the boy. "There's plenty of time and heaps more slates. If you wait long enough, I'll bring the little beggar out in Australia."

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself these dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention?"

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Business as Usual for Warren Billings

Warren K. Billings, who served 23 years of a life sentence in Folsom prison in connection with the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing in 1916, is now running his own watch-repairing shop in San Francisco. Billings learned the profession in prison, where he says he worked on 10,000 watches owned by fellow prisoners and prison officials. Billings is pictured at his workbench, surrounded by tools presented him by friends, many of whom worked diligently to secure his release from Folsom. Tom Mooney, convicted with Billings, was released from San Quentin after serving 22 years.

Service De Luxe by War Zone Waiters

Steel-hatted German soldiers, serving as waiters, make their cautious way through the woods near the front line "somewhere in Germany" carrying rations for the garrison of an advanced outpost. The man in the rear is a guard, whose duty it is to protect the food. There is probably hot soup or stew in the tureens on the back of the "waiters."

New War Minister

Conservative Stanley Oliver, above, was given a recent interim appointment as British war secretary supplanting youthful and daring Leslie Hore-Belisha in the first major governmental shakeup of the present conflict. Oliver's appointment aroused a storm of controversy. The appointment of Sir John Reith to replace Lord Harold MacMillan as minister of information was also announced.

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL

The Junior-Senior skating party at Silver Valley Friday evening was attended by about thirty of the class members. Mr. Fahselt drove the school bus and this helped with the transportation problem. Other drivers were Fred Musolf, Arthur Bigelow, Frank Hill and Charles Nordman. A fire was built and "hot dogs" and marshmallows were eaten. It certainly would be an improvement if a skating pond could be formed in Tawas City.

Mention was made last week that the annual pancake supper of the Senior class will be held Friday evening, February 9. We are now able to add one more fact, that is, this important social event will be held in the basement of the local Baptist church. We expect to give you more details next week.

The Ladies' Twentieth Century Club will show the sound pictures which they have obtained of the Michigan State Highway Department in the high school session room on the afternoon of January 23. There will be four films: "Safety Roads, Michigan Highway Advertisements," "Blue Water Bridge," and "Wanted Comes to Michigan."

The December Honor Roll is made up of names of only nine pupils. This is a new low for the year. In September there were sixteen listed, and in October and November ten made the grade. This month finds the names of seven girls and only two boys in the roll. The ninth and twelfth grades have the highest representation, listing three each. The eleventh grade has two and the tenth only one on the honor roll. The pupils with no mark lower than a "B" for the month of December are: Kathleen Davis, Muriel Galliker, Hazel Herman, Ruth Herriman, Helen Krumm, Jean Moeller, Marion Musolf, Harold Ross and Philip Ross. Several pupils only missed making the grade by one point, and so we hope to have their names on the list for January.

The classes kept the same order in average attendance as last month, but the averages were slightly lower than before. The twelfth grade was again in the lead, with the eleventh, ninth and tenth grades following in that order. There were an especially large number of tardinesses in December. Previously there had been 31 tardinesses for the year, but December alone added 36 more to this number.

Grade	Year	Month
12	96.3%	93.6%
11	96.2%	94.3%
9	95.2%	92.6%
10	94.2%	95.8%

MUSIC

Although not much has been written about our department for some time, it does not mean that we have been too busy to write news.

The Girls' Glee Club gave a very favorable performance of the "Child Jesus" for the Christmas program at the Baptist church. After the exams we will start work on an operetta which we hope to give in the new auditorium this spring.

The band has been improving rapidly and everything points to a banner year, and abandoned such as this city has never seen or heard.

There is one request we wish to make of the parents. To have a good band, individuals must practice, and we know that there are many who do not. Starting the next semester we will require every band member who does not play his part satisfactorily at try-outs, to stay after school and practice under the director's supervision every night until those people are able to play their parts. It is very urgent that we do this and we know that every parent will cooperate with us. By your help and cooperation we can make better organizations and offer more to the community. If your child does not come home early, you'll know he is not doing the amount of necessary practice at home.

See you at a concert soon!
SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES

Everybody is busy reviewing for the examinations next week.

Harold Bublitz has the mumps. Several are absent because of colds, also.

Mrs. Allen read an article in the Current Event paper entitled "Youth Has a Wilderness to Conquer." In order to be ready for service we must make the best of our opportunities.

PRIMARY
Mr. Fahselt brought our clock back from the hospital this week. We thank him for lending us his clock while ours was gone.

Many of our boys and girls are ill. We hope they will be well and back in school soon.

Tawas City Recreation journeyed to Saginaw last Sunday and bowled a return match with the Spic and Span team of that city. It was a close score throughout the match and at the final count it was found that the Tawas City five won by a margin of four pins. The score: Tawas City 2694, Spic and Span 2690. C. T. Prescott, Jr., made his debut with the house team in this match and did it in a commendable way. When the going got tough in the tenth frame of the last game, he had a tough leave and asked if they needed the spare, he was told that they sure did, so like a veteran he stood and posed for a while and then rolled and when he lifted his right foot they knew he made it. After the match the boys decided to buy C. T.'s supper for helping them out of the hole. He said he wasn't hungry but thought he could go for some steaks. When he said he thought he had enough, the waitresses marked steaks off the menus.

On Saturday evening a match will be rolled at the Tawas City Recreation alleys between Morley Bros., of Saginaw and Moeller's Recreation.

On Sunday afternoon two match games will be rolled on the Tawas City Recreation alleys between teams from West Branch and two local teams.

On Friday evening of last week the East Tawas Recreation rolled to an easy victory over Strohs of Alpena. The scores: East Tawas 2690, Strohs' 2497.

Saturday afternoon the East Tawas Pin Boys defeated the Tawas City Pin Boys in the second game of a home and home series. East Tawas 2454, Tawas City 2193.

Sunday afternoon the Knights of Columbus team of the Alpena Fraternal League bowled the Mobilgas five of this locality. The Knights came out on top, Knights of Columbus 2391, Mobilgas 2212.

Sunday evening spectators saw a fine match between Frankensmuth Beer of Bay City and East Tawas Recreation. Both teams hit fine wood, but Bay City's early lead was too much for the locals. Frankensmuth 2785, East Tawas 2712.

Renke's All-Stars went to Bay City for the return match with Madison Square Tavern and came home smiling. Renke's Stars 2500, Madison Square 2500.

One resolution it's not too late to make

The model illustrated is the BUICK SUPER model 51 four-door touring sedan $1109 delivered at Flint, Mich. White sidewall tires additional.*

NO matter what's happened to the rest of those first-of-the-year vows, there's still time to resolve to have yourself some fun this year with that power-packed, sure-fire pleasure producer—a slightly, sprightly, roadwise 1940 Buick.

You can put yourself behind a husky Dynaflex straight-eight that's a veritable tornado when it comes to going places—but actually silkier than watchworks in its smooth-and-easy freedom from vibration.

You can switch to gentle coil springs and never need another "lube job." You can discard the old-type gear lever for Handshift transmission that works with a finger-flick.

You can help yourself to room—the spacious expanse of the Buick Super's next-things-to-five-feet front seats. You can ride in Foamtex cushion comfort, with Safety Plate Glass all around you and everything from a built-in automatic choke to Buick's exclusive Fore-

N-Aft Direction Signal to make driving easy and convenient.

TAMPER-PROOF GAS TANKS—your ignition key locks the gas tank door in the fender, prevents gasoline loss through pilferage. Standard equipment at no extra cost.

So why wait to get your Buick? Prices are low now—lower than on some sixes—and delivery is prompt. Your dealer has a full line to show, too, and your old car's worth more now than it will be later.

How about some action? Time's a-wasting, there's fun to be had—and there's a Buick waiting to hang your license plates on!

"Best buy's Buick!"

Wore Prince Alberts
In the "nifty nineties," most United States senators wore Prince Alberts. The frock coat was a symbol of statesmanship and a beard was the mark of a man of maturity and substance.

Father of English Song
Caedmon, the father of English song, was the first Anglo-Saxon who composed in his own language works that are extant. Born in the early Seventh century, he was originally a cowherd attached to the monastery of Whitby. According to legend, he was commanded in a dream to sing the beginning of created things. He accordingly produced metrical paraphrases of Genesis and other parts of the Bible. He died about 680.
