O TALBOT MUNDY-WNU SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadur River district in India, along with his indispensable manservant, Moses O'Leary, soldier of fortune. Norwood's job is to survey the district to determine whether a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows to be the Maharanee of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends to the palace for aid. Prince Rundhia, handsome, spoiled nephew of the rulers, comes to her rescue, and takes her back to the palace where he meets Lynn. At a banquet that night in the palace, attended by Captain Norwood, Mrs. Harding takes one of the native doctor's pills, and becomes violently ill. She is placed in bed and arrangements are made for Lynn to move out of the quarters with her aunt and stay with the Maharanee. That evening Prince Rundhia attempts to make love to Lynn. She is unwilling to listen to him, and at the crucial moment Norwood appears on the scene, much to Rundhia's disgust. O'Leary has located the secret entrance to the diamond mine which is being worked by the temple priests. He takes Norwood to the mine, where death is narrowly averted when a live cobra is thrown in Norwood's face. Later Norwood visits the Brahmin priests, one of whom slyly slips a packet of diamonds in his pocket, unknown to Norwood. They are intended as a bribe. While Norwood is talking to Lynn the diamonds fall from his pocket. She notices them, and sees that he is surprised.

8 When Lynn glanced at Rundhia again, he had his back to the iron chest and he was staring at her, dark-eyed, not smiling-noticeably not. Lynn accepted the unspoken challenge:

"I am sorry I let you kiss me this morning. I shouldn't have. It wasn't fair. It may have given you a wrong impression."

"The correct one being-" "Oh, I was just being mischievous. It meant nothing."

Rundhia eyed her for several seconds without speaking. She didn't feel afraid of him, but every fiber in her being was aware of crisis. Simulating calmness that she did not feel, she almost unconsciously moved the tennis racket from one hand to the other. "Careful with that," he advised. "Put it down. You might break something. Come over here and see the emeralds."

She did not put down the tennis racket. That would have been obedience. She was obeying no one. It was not obedience that made her walk toward him around the overloaded table. She was walking straight into danger. She didn't deceive herself about that for a moment. Neither did Rundhia try to deceive her. Passion, confident and self-avowed, glowered in his splendid eyes. They were more arresting than the diamonds in the glass case. He looked bold, experienced, and much more masculinely beautiful than any human being she had ever met. She could feel her heart pounding. And she felt as sure of herself as if she were about to plunge into a warm inviting sea.

She didn't hesitate. "Lynn, I love you!"

"Weren't you going to show me the emeralds?"

Strange, how such tactics checked him. He behaved as he did in the garden the previous night when she mentioned the British Resident and Norwood. It seemed to make him nervous-to remind him of some insufficiency within himself. He glanced past her, at the eyehole in the door, then turned and opened the iron chest. He took out two handfuls of huge emeralds.

"Thousands," she said, "I suppose, are like me. What is it about precious stones that-"

"Thrills you? Sensuous things, aren't they? Feel their magic! Press them against your face! Enjoy them! One of these days they'll be mine. These emeralds are not State property. Lynn! Love me and I'll give them to you!"

"Thank you. I don't want them." "Maharanee Lynn of Kadur! How would that be? Lynn-"

He moved both arms toward her. She poured back the emeralds into his hands. He had to take them, or they would have crashed to the tiled floor and that might have brought in the guard. Rundhia dumped them back into the chest. Lynn spoke before he could:

"Show me the diamonds. Captain Norwood—" Rundhia flinched. Lynn noticed it—"wouldn't show me those that he has."

Again she had sent Rundhia's thought off on a tangent. His eyes weren't steady any longer. Lynn followed up: "They looked like big ones, but he's careless with them. If I hadn't noticed them fall he might have lost "Diamonds?" said Rundhia. "In Norwood's pocket? When?"

"This morning. He let them fall while he was talking to me."

She was already sorry she had said it. Rundhia's eyes darkened with what looked like cunning. Lynn felt safer. Rundhia was running wild along a new line, for the moment. But Lynn felt guilty. She should not have defended herself at Norwood's cost. She hadn't meant to. But she guessed now that she had. It made her self-contemptuous and angry. "Rundhia, what are you thinking about?"

"You! You only!" His eyes sought hers again. "To hell with Norwood! Lynn beloved, beautiful, glorious ing what I am! She saw us!' 'Damn her, what do we care?" "Captain Norwood also saw us."

"Any of his business?" Rundhia

Lynn laughed. "Ask Aunty Hard-checked again. His eyes darkened. 'Look here, Lynn, I don't like to tell tales about people-"

"Why do it then?" "You ought to know this. Norwood has been talking." "About me?"

"Yes. While he was waiting to enter the audience room just now he asked a palace official where you slept last night." 'I don't believe it."

"The official told me." "Captain Norwood never would do such a thing."

"Don't you know he's a spy for the British Intelligence? Such fellows havent a scruple. Do you think I would lie to you?"

"Yes! I know you would! Let's go now, Rundhia. I've seen enough. I want to talk to the Maharanee."

"Merciless! You want to tantalize me? I'm already mad about you! Mad, I tell you! Lynn, do you believe this love that sweeps me like a storm can't conquer you? Do you suppose you can fire my veins, torture my heart-and not burn in the same ecstasy? I said burn! You are as passionate as I am! You are no cold beauty. Come here."

She was against the table. He was pushing her backward. Things were falling off the table. He was kissing her. His face was buried in her hair. She freed her right armgroped-seized the tennis racket and struck him hard in the face with its edge. Blood. Blood on her frock. Lots of it. Rundhia let go then. He found his handkerchief and held it to his face. Blood. Lynn gasped, breathless: "What have I done?"

He didn't answer. With the handkerchief to his face he turned away from her.

"Rundhia," she said, "I wouldn't have hurt you for worlds." "You have broken my heart," he answered. "Rundhia!" It was the Maharanee's voice. The great teak door had swung open.

The Maharanee stood in the doorway, staring, with the guards behind her. She turned and dismissed the "Rundhia, what have you been doing? There is blood on Lynn's frock! Lynn! Darling, what has he done to you?"

"No harm," Lynn answered. She turned to hide the blood and the rip in her frock.

The Maharanee spoke to Rundhia, in his own language, vehemently, for about a minute. She was at no loss for words. She let him have it with the governed directed anger that cuts like a whip. Then, in English, for Lynn's benefit:

"Don't play for sympathy! That is no more than one of your usual nose-bleeds! Let your doctor attend to it. Go!"

Rundhia strode from the room, The Maharanee came and put her arm around Lynn:

"Lynn, Lynn darling, I am too ashamed to tell you how I feel. Has he hurt you? Are you all right? I have told him I will neither pay his thing else. debts nor speak to him again until he has your full forgiveness."

CHAPTER VIII

Norwood could almost physically feel those diamonds in his tunic pocket. He should have asked Lynn not to mention them. He knew that. It was too late to turn back. And besides, she was having a row with her aunt and it wouldn't be cricket to butt in. He wished he hadn't seen Lynn kiss Rundhia. There were two things that Norwood ached to do that minute. One was to punch Rundhia. The other was to go to the temple and throw those diamonds at the high priest.

But that was just the kind of thing that Norwood could be trusted not to do. He knew exactly what he should do. But the Maharajah and his court were waiting to give him official audience. He glanced at his watch. There remained only five minutes in which to reach the palace in time for the appointment, so he mounted his horse at the gate and rode up the long drive to the front door, where he arrived exactly on the minute. The sais wiped the dust from his boots and he strode up the palace steps, expecting to get away within fifteen minutes. But time, in India, is one of lethargy's dimensions.

As a captain, Norwood wasn't entitled to be received from the throne, so the Maharajah sat on a gilded chair at one side of the room, with officials of only second-grade importance on smaller chairs to right and left. The chamberlain stood and read aloud from the instruction for the reception of British captains:

"His Highness now enquires after the visitor's health . . . The visitor responds . . . His Highness is pleased to welcome him . . . His Highness begs him to be seated . . . The visitor sits . . . His Highness . . . "

He was met and importunately detained by the Maharajah's minister of state and four other important members of the Council. Silently cursing his luck, he did his best to escape. But servile wretches in silken liveries flung open the door of an antercom.

"Look here, Diwan sahib, I'd be awfully glad to talk things over with you now, but I have urgent business at the Residency."

"Oh, but Captain Norwood, we could phone the Residency." "That wouldn't help, I'm afraid.

I'm not expected there. I need the Resident's advice." "Ah, but Captain Norwood, is not our need greater? Documents, arguments, some witnesses are ready now! His Highness has postponed important business to be present. He is waiting in the Council room. This boundary dispute is so urgent and its implications so important. that we feel our importunity is justified. We beg you."

"Oh, well." Norwood could almost feel those diamonds, burning him through the lining of his tunic pocket. Tension crept into his normally easy manner. The ministers detected it. Tension became mutual.

"I hope you'll bear in mind I'm in a hurry."

Two cars started from Rundhia's palace door within two minutes of each other. Having brought Rundhia's nose-bleed under control, the Bengali doctor drove away first, in the smaller car, for a professional call on Aunty Harding. If he had been going to his own execution, he might have looked equally comfortless. Perhaps he dreaded Aunty Harding's temper, perhaps some-Rundhia, a moment or two later, climbed into the new Rolls-Royce and laid his head back on the cushions, to prevent the nose-bleed from recurring. He was still bleeding slightly. He kept dabbing with a handkerchief.

"The British Residency!"

The Russian chauffeur drove like fury, but Rundhia made him slow down near the Residency gate. Though he affected to despise all ceremonial, Rundhia took cynical pleasure in making sure they should turn out the guard. He had phoned to say he was coming, so he was shown into the dim library, where the shades were drawn against the brazen sunlight, and the Resident didn't keep him waiting more than a couple of minutes.

"How are you, Rundhia. How is the new Rolls-Royce behaving?" Rundhia dabbed at his nose with the handkerchief. "The car is quite well, thank you. How are you?"

They sat in armchairs eyeing each other in comfortless silence for nearly a minute. The Resident, who was feeling drowsy, tried to look firm, but fatherly and cordial. Rundhia was very good indeed at looking insolent without giving actual grounds for offense. He did his best, until the Resident decided to take hatred by the horns:

"Of course, I've no inkling of the reason for this unexpected visit, Rundhia. However, I'm glad you came. There are no witnesses, and, of course, this is off the record. I am taking the opportunity to remind you, once more, privately, that our treaty with this otherwise independent State of Kadur gives to His Majesty's Indian Government the right to veto the succession to the throne of any heir in whom His British Majesty's advisers may lack sufficient confidence."

"I have always been civil to you. But you couldn't like me, even if you tried, could you!" Rundhia retorted.

"I take exception to that," said the Resident. "I have my duty to consider, not my personal likes and dislikes. As a matter of actual fact, I could easily like you, if you would give me the opportunity. When you choose, you can be charming, and you are very intelligent. But on several occasions I have deplored your conduct and have had to speak to you about it. You have recently returned from Delhi. Rumors reached me. Without revealing confidences, I may say they were more than rumors. There are limits beyond which an heir to a throne should not trespass in quest of amusement-or for any other rea-

"Failing acceptable heirs, the throne of Kadur can be escheated. I am warning you, Rundhia."

"Thanks! I have heard you. Now it's my turn and I'll warn you. It's what I came for. Who is this Captain Norwood? I notice you didn't present him at the palace. He came alone. Why? Are you keeping your hands off? Why does he carry diamonds in his tunic pocket? Why is he nervous when someone happens to see them? Is he one of your British gentlemen who never-never under any circumstances, never take a bribe? From a priest, for instance -to report, according to his honorable conscience, in the priests' favor!"

Italy Develops New Extensive National Highway System

If all the national, provincial and | of engineering, as most of its length communal roads in Italy and in its empire were laid end to end they would circle around the world almost five times.

The highways in Italy, Ethiopia, Lybia and the various island possessions total more than 110,000 miles. All of this mileage represents modern, wide, surfaced roads.

In Italy there are 105,000 miles of highways. Of this total 12,000 miles are national highways and the rest provincial and communal roads. There are 2,000 miles of completed roads in Ethiopia and another 1,000 miles will be ready for use within the next 12 months. In Lybia there are approximately 2,000 miles of roads, 1,250 miles of which skirt the seafront, extending from the Tunisian to the Egyptian frontiers.

Italy claims that its roads are the highest, the most beautiful and the most fascinating in Europe. The highest road climbs over the Stelvio into Switzerland. At its highest point it reaches an altitude of 9,050 feet above sea level. The most beautiful, according to Italian claims, is the winding, picturesque road in the pastel-tinted Dolomites. The most fascinating is the Gardesana, which runs along the west is carved out of solid stone mountains and long stretches run through galleries.

Italy has eight superhighways (autostrades), reserved exclusively for high-speed motor traffic. They pass through some of the most beautiful regions in Italy and form direct connecting links between places of artistic and historical interest. Work of keeping Italy's highways up to date has been entrusted to the autonomous road board. Through its labors the greater part of the Italian road system has been reorganized.

The inconveniences of the old thoroughfares have been reduced. Dirt roads, which meant mud in rain and dust in dry weather, have disappeared, and road surfaces asphalted and paved. Dangerous curves and steep gradings have been eliminated. Trees and fences alongside roads have been painted with white bands to aid night driving.

JESUS DRAMATICALLY PRO-CLAIMS HIS MESSIAHSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, thy King comth unto thee.—Matthew 21:5.

The official presentation of Himself to the Jewish people as their King, their rejection of Him, and what was even more solemnly meaningful, His rejection of the Hebrew nation because of unbeliefsuch are the stirring events which face us as we enter with our Lord into the last week of His earthly life. The first event in that sequence is the one we study in our lesson for today, namely, the coming of the King to Jerusalem. Jesus on this occasion did a very dramatic and unusual thing, a fact which indicates that here is an incident of extraordinary import to which we do well to give careful study.

I. Preparation and Presentation (vv. 1-7)

The King comes, but even in His hour of royal triumph He gives to His followers the unexplainable but inestimable joy of meeting His need.

1. "The Lord Hath Need" (vv. 1-4). He had need of disciples who would do His bidding without question or hesitation—"and the disci-ples went, and did even as Jesus had appointed them" (v. 6). How precious is such obedience! Let us also go and do what He commands.

He needed the colt and the ass. How simple and lowly was that need, and yet how glorious that a man was ready to meet it! God's plans are worked out in the little things as well as the great. Prophecy was being fulfilled here (see v. 5) by a little thing. Is God waiting to carry out some great pur-pose through some little thing which you are withholding from Him? Why hinder Him any longer?

2. "Behold Thy King Cometh" (vv. 5-7). Though He did not come with the pomp and trappings of an earthly potentate, the King of Glory came to His people to offer them for the last time the opportunity to receive Him. He asks you to yield your life to His kingship. What will your answer be?

II. Acceptance and Rejection (vv.

8-11, 15, 16). 1. "The Multitude . . . Cried Hosanna" (vv. 8-11). The fact that before the week was over many of the same voices cried, "Crucify Him!" should not obscure the fact that there were childlike believers (v. 16) who really had faith in Christ. There is something inspiring about that picture of enthusiasm and devotion. Real faith in Christ ought to result in a fervor of spirit which will stir our hearts and our cities. Are we not altogether too son. I remind you that your cousin dead and formal in much of our worship today? Do we not need more holy enthusiasm for Christ and for

His Church? 2. "The Chief Priests and Scribes Were Sore Displeased" (vv. 15, 16). Small wonder, for not only had the children put them to open shame by recognizing the Christ whom they had ignored, but He had in turn ruined their polite religious racket which produced for them such a lovely profit. Mark this-when anyone is displeased with Jesus or with His true children or with His work on earth, you can be sure that there is a reason, and not a holy, upright or good reason either!

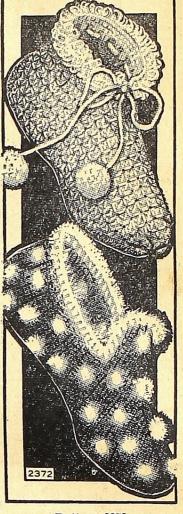

III. Judgment and Compassion

(vv. 12-14). What a remarkable picture! In the midst of flaming judgment and destruction we find loving compassion upon the blind and the lame. Folk who think that Christ has no message but love need to look on Him as He cleanses the temple. On the other hand, those who think that He has no word but judgment need to behold Him as He stands in the midst of the overturned tables and debris and heals the needy. Inconsistent? Not at all. God is love, but He is also absolute holiness.

1. "Jesus Cast Out . . . and Overthrew" (vv. 12, 13). He knew where to begin to cleanse the city. He started in the temple. Absolutely right is the man who suggested that the place to start to clean up a city is not in the slums but in the churches. You will be ready to clean out the tavern or that other low place where the gang hangs out in your town after you have cleaned out the church. The same is true of the individual. A regenerated heart will bring a reformed life, not vice versa.

2. "He Healed Them" (v. 14). The very hands which had just overthrown the tables and cast out the money-changers now gently touched the lame and the blind with heal-The eyes which had blazed ing. with holy indignation now shone with love and compassion. The scene of judgment and chaos became the house of prayer and of answered prayer. On the very spot where one man had received condemnation, another received healing. Each one received that which he sought by his action. How will you, my dear reader, meet Jesus-as your Judge or as your Saviour? You must make the choice.

LAYING FLOCKS REQUIRE WATER

Warm Supply Is Necessary During Colder Months.

By C. F. PARRISH

Farmers and other interested persons-prepare for somewhat of a shock: About 66 per cent of an egg is water! That doesn't mean that eggs are not one of the best foods, but it does mean that the kind and amount of water a hen drinks is highly important.

For this reason the extension division of the North Carolina State college recommends the warming of drinking water for the laying flock during the winter and early spring months. It is well to remember that egg production will be greatly reduced and Old Man Winter will dip heavily into your egg profits if you permit drinking fountains to freeze over, or the water to become so cold the birds refuse to drink liberally.

There are a number of heated fountains on the market that will operate for about a week on a quart of kerosene. However, he said that a homemade device may be utilized if care is taken to make it fireproof. The only materials needed to make it are an old tin tub, sand, a few rough boards, and a kerosene lamp. The tub is inverted on a bed of sand spread one inch deep over the area to be occupied by the device. Holes are made in the side of the tub to permit the escape of fumes and the entrance of oxygen. A platform is built over the tub and the container of water placed on the platform. The lighted lamp is put under the tub.

Flock owners are urged to protect the hens against cold, wind and snow by covering the cracks in the ends and sides of the laying house with strips of wood or heavy paper. A six-inch dry-litter on the floor makes the house more comfortable for the Workable curtains on layers. frames that move up and down in a track over the front of the laying house is also to be commended. These curtains should be held out about two inches from the wire front by the track so that they will not interfere with the ventilation.

'Strip Cropping' Rotation Keeps Moisture in Soil

Strip cropping combined with crop rotation adds up to "strip rotation," a method of saving soil and saving inch material with short sleeves; moisture that works well in many farming areas. The soil conservation service gives actual comparisons as worked out on experimental plots at the Pennsylvania State college farm in an area where erosion and gullying are not nearly so serious as in many farm regions.

In corn plots cultivated up and down hill for three years there was an annual soil loss averaging 43 tons to the acre yearly. By running the corn rows across the slope the loss was cut in half. In both cases three crops of corn in succession reduced fertility.

By strip rotation in the plotsplanting corn rows across the slope undone, but the conscience that is and further breaking the slope with so dull that it has no experience cross strips of close-growing hay crops to catch and strain out the soil that starts from the cultivated strips-the soil loss was cut to one twenty-fifth, a ton and a half a year instead of 43 tons. The water loss memories of passion and shame. was only about one-fourth that from the all-corn plots. When the strips were plowed in as a part of the rotation, the roots and tops helped to restore organic matter and maintain fertility.

Clipping Dairy Cows

Probably the most important factor in keeping cows clean is clipping the hair short. Manure and other sources of bacteria naturally cling to long hair. A clipped cow is obviously much more easily and quickly cleaned. Clip the long hairs from the udders, flanks and tail in order that dirt may not cling to them. One hair, if it falls into the milk, may add as many as 30,000 bacteria. Because much of this dirt is soluble and dissolves in the milk, it cannot be strained out.

Now it is the ultra-conservative Mr. Stanley who replaces Mr. Hore-Belisha as war secretary, against a confused background, requiring more details for full understanding -at least at this distance.

On October 8 of last year, Mr. Stanley offered his resignation as president of the British board of trade. At the time, it was indicated that Mr. Stanley had not found Prime Minister Chamberlain's prosecution of the war sufficiently aggressive, but later reports were that he had revolted against the control of the government by an inner cabinet of four members. He was persuaded to withdraw his resigna-

His political alliances have been with the conservative section of the army, who vehemently opposed the appointment of Mr. Hore-Belisha to the war office, early in 1937. Some of the "appeasement" wing of the Chamberlain government were bitter critics of Mr. Hore-Belisha's subsequent army shakeup, in which he sent many oldsters back to their club chairs. It is possibly this circumstance which has led to conjecture that Mr. Stanley's appointment foreshadows a new rapprochement between extreme right elements in England and Germany, the elimination of Adolf Hitler and a new basis for peace.

Mr. Stanley's activities since Mu nich haven't indicated that he is out for appeasement. However, it is clear that the colonel blimps of the army don't like Mr. Hore-Belisha and do like Mr. Stanley.

He is the secretive, tight-lipped son of the genial, talkative seventh earl of Derby. He gathered some shining medals in the World war and was parliamentary under-secrebefore becoming president of the British board of trade. As indicated above, he is a fencer rather than a

Since the start of the desert battle of the loud-speakers several years ago, along with the Palestine impasse, there have been indications that Ibn Saud was losing interest as an empire partner.

Last January, he wrote President Roosevelt an appeal for support of the Arabs against the Jews in Palestine, with an implication that the Balfour mandate was working against Islam.

Congress Tears Budget Apart: Defense Fund May Be Raised But Other Items Are Slashed

EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union

CONGRESS: Mutilation

After almost a month of argument it appeared that congress would grant Franklin Roosevelt his $1,800,-000,000 defense budget for 1941, but the price would be (1) drastic slashes in all other items and (2) a boost in the $45,000,000,000 national debt limit. In both house and senate, four out of five committeemen kept one eye on the purse strings. The other was cocked carefully toward the constituents back home, who are more concerned about economy than pork barrels, even in an election year.

One warning came from Budget Director Harold D. Smith, who told all federal agencies to start training for a smaller diet next year.

WOODRING AND STARK They'll win; others will lose.

He threatened to be "plenty tough' on requests for deficiency appropria-tions. Another came from house appropriations committeemen who threatened to cut a proposed $25,000,000 farm tenancy fund from the agriculture department's budget. But actions spoke louder than threats:

Out from the appropriations committee came a badly mutilated independent offices bill, usually the catch-all for pork barrel items. It was $94,492,166 below the President's budget estimate. Gone were all funds for the national resources planning board and the office of government. ernment reports. Cut drastically were items for the executive office and the maritime commission. Nor did the house backslide on its appropriations committee; next day, having shouted down $22,000,000 in pork-barrel requests, it passed the bill almost exactly as reported by the committee.

Meanwhile the army and navy were getting better treatment. Admiral Harold D. Stark, chief of tary in the war office, minister of naval operations, told the house transport, minister of labor and naval committee that he hoped to president of the board of education, complete a $2,276,000,000 building program by 1945. EUROPE:

The Belligerents

Britain's war consisted of (1) a factory explosion; (2) a reported railroad sabotage plot; (3) a fiery defense in commons of Prime Minister Chamberlain's action ousting War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha, and (4) the slaying of Britain's first German on the western front.

France's war featured (1) expulsion from the chamber of deputies of all pro-Stalin Communists; (2) news of a "plot" to aid Hitler, and (3) a verbal battle with Berlin, where France was accused of backing down on its promise not to interfere with German expansion in eastern Europe.

It was not so quiet for the Finns. For five successive days Russian planes defied temperatures ranging down to 51 degrees below zero, bombing Helsingfors, Hango and other cities mercilessly. Though they might be poor soldiers, the

SWEDISH VOLUNTEER "Now it is your duty . . ."

Russians proved themselves persistent in the far-north Salla sector. Forty thousand of them staged a new drive, only to be routed.

The Neutrals

"Now the world knows what it is to be Finn. Now it is your duty to show what it means to be a Swede. Make up your mind now. Join the Swedish Volunteer Army, With Finland for Sweden!"

This advertisement in a Stockholm newspaper was one answer to Russia's order that Scandinavia stop sending aid to Finland. Richard J. Sandler, ex-Swedish foreign minister, demanded that his nation send troops to defend the Finnish Aaland

Though both the allies and Germany tried to remain aloof from this Scandinavian-Russian spat, they were undoubtedly being drawn into it. One reason was the continued sniping at each other's iron ore shipments coming out of Sweden.

While tension grew here, it lessened in Netherlands and Belgium, which only a few days earlier had ordered complete mobilization in fear of a Nazi invasion. But there was still a chance that Germany and Russia would try to confound their foes and hostile neutrals alike with lightning-like blows at both the Lowlands and Scandinavia.

Italy, watching over the Balkans like a mother hen, heard a warning from Rome to be ready for war 'at any moment." Still on the fence, Il Duce countered Britain's renewed wooing with a warning that Italians should not be too greatly impressed by "recent demonstrations of international sympathy."

DISASTERS:

Turkey Again

Last December at least 30,000 died when earthquakes and floods hit north central Turkey. About the same time 1,500 more died in the flooded western plains. Late January brought still more tragedy to a nation whose international diplomatic woes are legion. A second major earthquake killed 50 and injured 160 more in the Nigde district, 200 miles southwest of the first quake area. Luckily, such blows were cushioned by French-British friendship. Available to the Ankara government was some $340,000,000 in loans and credits, Turkey's "price" for keeping the strategic Dardanelles open to allied warships.

(This loan, to be repaid partly through British imports of Turkish tobacco, prompted the government to ban imports of U.S. tobacco. Mourning at the news, American growers found themselves deprived over-night of an export market running between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000 a year.)

Meanwhile another prospective candidate was given his camera test: Wendell L. Wilkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern corporation. At New York 400 sales executives applauded him. Said Dr. Paul Nystrom, president of the Limited Price Variety Stores association: "We could expect great improvement with gathering momentum if we had a man running for President like our distinguished guest, Mr. Wilkie." Said Mr. Wilkie: Nothing.

Franklin Roosevelt was meanwhile gaining strength for a third term. Florida's Sen. Claude Pepper promised his state's 14 delegates would support the President or any man of his choice, although they would go to the convention without official instructions. From Ohio came word that its Democratic delegates would also be in the Roosevelt camp if their favorite son, Sen. Vic Donahey, failed to develop. Both Democratic and Republican national committees were soon to meet, naming times and places for their nominating conventions.

Seeing Eye Dogs Bring Light To America's Legion of Blind

Throughout the United States, more than 450 blind men and women go to school, hold jobs and manage households because educated dogs from the Seeing Eye school at Morristown, N. J., walk by their sides constantly to guide them. Here's how they work, bringing new happiness to lives that might otherwise be desolate.

Seeing Eye dogs take three months to learn their new job. A typical problem is shown here: Although given the command "Forward," the dog (above) sees danger, stops, turns his master around, takes him into the street to avoid the manhole and then (right), back on the sidewalk. It takes weeks of patient training to teach the dogs such tricks, but they learn their lessons well.

Each class of ten blind students spends four weeks at the school in Morristown, being instructed by sighted tutors under actual traffic conditions. The instructor (left) is showing the girl how to obey her dog's warning "check" upon reaching the curb. If there is any sign of danger, the dog will wait until a clear path is open, then proceed across the street.

Shown with Buddy II (inset) is Morris S. Frank, vice president of the school and the first person to have a guide dog in this country. His first dog, Buddy I, who died recently, was trained in Switzerland in 1928 by Mrs. Harrison Eustis, founder of the Seeing Eye. Each graduate is protected from "going blind again" by a special fund to provide replacements.

Student Pilots Need Thorough Health Check

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

IN THESE days when the world is becoming more air-minded and a continent or an ocean can be spanned in about half a day,

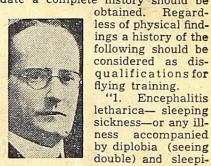

TODAY'S more and more of our boys and HEALTH young men are COLUMN considering aviation as a career. They feel that the professions are crowded and that aviation offers an excellent opportunity for fame and fortune.

During the last war I examined many recruits for the air service, an examination that differed to some extent from that of the other branches of the service as to eyesight, hearing, sense of balance and condition of heart and lungs. Today the physician examining recruits for the air service or commercial service gives an even more searching exam-

Dr. Samuel E. Brown, M. C., in Rocky Mountain Medical Journal, says:

"In examining an aviation candidate a complete history should be obtained. Regardless of physical findings a history of the following should be considered as disqualifications for flying training.

"1. Encephalitis letharica— sleeping sickness—or any illness because of the Dr. Barton chances of the return of the symptoms.

"2. Syphilis, due to the possibility of latent or late effects. "3. Repeated attacks of asthma or hay fever. "4. Recent attacks of malaria, on account of lower resistance, the uncertainty of a cure, and the sudden and extreme changes in temperature encountered in flying. "5. Organic heart disease.

"6. Recurrent (occurring from time to time) attacks of any form of rheumatism, due to its likelihood of heart complications.

"7. Paroxysmal tacchycardia (attacks of very rapid beating of the heart) owing to the probability of having an attack while flying.

"8. Stone in the kidney. "9. A history of an operation on the mastoid bone behind the ear, or a definite history of chronic inflammation of the middle ear, unless there have been no symptoms for a period of six months."

The fact that the boy or young adult has a history of any of the above conditions does not mean that he should give up the idea of trying to fly; some of the above conditions can be corrected by regular and persistent treatment. There are some of the above conditions which cannot be corrected sufficiently to permit flying but in which treatment can be of considerable benefit.

Apoplexy Patient Must Live Normally

ONE of the difficult situations for the patient, his family, and his physician is when a patient regains consciousness after his first stroke of apoplexy. This is understandable because the patient, family and physician all have the same question in mind, "Will there be another stroke and when will it occur?"

A second stroke may never occur and yet it may occur within a few days, or not perhaps for years. What should be the attitude of all concerned after a stroke occurs? While no one should close his eyes and thoughts entirely to the possibility of another stroke, the best way to prevent another stroke or delay it as long as possible is not to allow the patient to consider himself an invalid or a very sick individual. When it is considered safe for him to be up and around he should get back into his regular routine of life gradually but rapidly, so that the 'fear' of another stroke will not get so many chances to occupy his mind.

Anxiety Begets Fear. Dr. O. C. Perkins in New York State Journal of Medicine, says:

"When the patient regains conciousness and realizes that he has had a "stroke," anxiety begets fears and there is the element of worry to treat. These patients should not be kept in bed too long. The physician should take the patient into his confidence and explain what has

A tiny blood vessel is broken. Rest will heal it, and that rest of mind and body, and eating small meals will prevent a rise in blood pressure and so prevent a stroke. He should be told that the improvement is likely to be rapid for three or four weeks, but may then progress slowly for a number of months. This will prevent him expecting too much in a short time. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

OAN CRAWFORD is as popular as ever, judging by the welcome that she received from the fans when she arrived in New York not long ago for a brief vacation. She was accompanied by two dachshunds, Stinky, which is hers, and Pupschen, which belongs to her exhusband, Franchot Tone, with whom she is on the friendliest of terms.

Fetchingly dressed when she arrived, she rushed straight to her favorite milliner's and ordered hats -all kinds of hats, rather goofy ones, the kind so many of her fans like to have her wear.

Twentieth Century-Fox is going to film the history of radio, probably next fall, with Alice Faye and Don Ameche starring in a tale that will cover the development from crystal sets to television.

Did you know that that dashing hero of the films, William Powell, wore a gray suit and a sweater to his own wedding? The bride took the occasion more seriously, sartorially; she wore a blue flowered print dress and a turban that matched it. But then, she hadn't been married twice before! You'll see her before long in "Forty Little Mothers," and you may have seen her on the screen already, without knowing it; as Diana Lewis she's been just one more promising young actress. She's beautiful and talented, and acting is an old story to her-her parents used to be headliners in vaudeville.

If the British government had been as eager to send David Niven to war as he was to go, he could have taken with him—and probably would have—a novel memento of Hollywood. It is the service cap which he wore in the role of a young English officer in "Dawn Patrol." Louis Hayward, playing the role of an English captain in one of the sequences of "My Son, My Son!", in which he has one of the top roles, drew an army cap from wardrobe. He noticed the initials "D. N." in the band, and learned that it was Niven's "Dawn Patrol" cap, so he bought it and sent it to his friend

Time was when a screen star couldn't be sued for divorce and hope to carry on with her career. And although she planned to marry someone else as soon as she was free, she wouldn't have said so as frankly as Vivian Leigh has. It seems likely that her studio would have been just as well pleased if her husband had not chosen to sue her while "Gone With the Wind" was still at the height of its glory, but she did so well in it that the publicity regarding her private life probably won't keep the public from clamoring to see her in "Waterloo Bridge."

It's not unusual to hear a few bars of "God Bless America" in traffic jams in New York these days. People look about and stare, and if they're lucky they catch a glimpse of Kate Smith in the car whose horn startled them. A horn manufacturing company gave the horn to Miss Smith as a present; the driver just presses a button, and a bit of the patriotic song that she made famous rings out.

Title to the title, "Buck Benny Rides Again," has changed hands three times. When Benny's authors, Morrow and Beloin, first used the idea it automatically became the property of the comedia, as does all their material. With characteristic generosity, Benny gave it back to the writers.

Now they have sold the title to Paramount, the company for which they wrote Benny's new picture.

SERVE A MODERN FRUIT PIE AND A CANDY RAIL FENCE IN HONOR OF LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY See Recipes Below

For Patriotic Parties

February, with its two famous birthdays, is a grand month for a patriotic party-with novel decorations and unusual foods, to help make it a success.

Lincoln, the biographers tell us, had a keen "sweet tooth." Children could always be sure he'd have a bag of bonbons in his pocket when he dropped in to visit. Fruit pies were favorites with him, too, so you'll be historically correct to feature a fruit pie when you plan your Lincoln's birthday menu.

"Chocolate Fence Rails" are a novel sweet that will pay double tribute to Lincoln's rail splitting fame and his "sweet tooth." Use three of the fence rails tied in a bundle with a bit of red, white, and blue ribbon, for individual table favors at your party.

Everyone knows the significance of cherry pie at a Washington's birthday party, of course, but few people know that cherry pie a la mode has a double historical meaning! George Washington has been credited, by some historians, with being the inventor of the first ice cream freezer.

You'll find suggestions for almost any kind of party you can name, in my booklet "Easy Entertaining." There are ideas for unusual menus, hints on party short-cuts, too, and a store of practical, tested recipes.
With Valentine's day and Easter,

Salad Roll Sandwich. Slit long, plump, soft rolls down the center, not quite through. Scoop out a little of the inside. Brush with melted butter, and heat. Stuff with any desired salad sandwich spread. (Don't try to push the sides of the sandwich together again!) Serve on a lettuce leaf, and garnish with olives. Magic Chocolate Logs.

1 square unsweetened chocolate 2/3 cup sweetened condensed

1/4 teaspoon vanilla 11/4 cup sifted confectioners' (4x) sugar 1/2 cup coconut (toasted)

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk and stir over rapidly boiling water five minutes or until mixture thickens. Remove from heat. Add vanilla and confectioners' sugar gradually and blend thoroughly. Shape into rolls, two inches long. Roll in toasted coconut. Allow to stand in cold place several hours or until firm. Makes about two dozen.

Apricot Pie.

11/2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca

½ cup sugar

1/4 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon butter (melted)

2 cups cooked dried apricots (drained) 1/2 cup canned crushed pineapple (drained)

1 cup apricot juice 1 recipe pie crust

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, butter, fruit, and fruit juices; let stand 15 minutes, or while | in a short time.

pastry is being made. Line 9-inch pie plate with about 1/2 of pastry, rolled 1/8 inch thick, allowing pastry to extend 1 inch beyond edge. Fold to extend 1 inch beyond edge. Fold edge back to form standing rim. Fill with apricot mixture. Moisten edge of pie with cold water and arrange layout of pastry stars across top. Flute rim with fingers. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees) 10 minutes; then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 35 minutes longer. Cool. Serve with minutes longer. Cool. Serve with or without whipped cream. For a gala dessert, top with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

> Potato Chips. 4 medium sized potatoes 2 or 3 pounds fat

Pare and cut potatoes into very thin slices. Allow sliced potatoes to stand in ice water until firm (about 1 hour). Heat fat to 375 degrees. Blot potatoes dry with a clean towel and place potato slices in French fry basket. Immerse basket in hot fat by handle. Keep potatoes moving constantly so that the slices do not stick together. Remove basket and drain potatoes on brown paper. Sprinkle with salt. Temperature: 375 degrees; Time: 2 minutes or to desired brownness.

Individual Sandwich Loaves.

Cut 21/2-inch rounds from thinly sliced white bread, allowing 4 rounds for each sandwich. Brush one side of each round of bread with soft butter. Leave 1 round of buttered bread plain to be used for the top layer. Spread each of the remaining rounds with a different sandwich filling, varying both the flavor and the color. These two combinations are

1. Watercress or shredded lettuce Ground ham, sweet pickle, and mayonnaise Deviled egg sandwich spread

2. Olive-nut filling Minced pimento mixed with softened butter Sardine sandwich spread

"Frost" the top and sides of each sandwich with cream cheese, moistened to spreading consistency with a little salad dressing. On top, arrange a sprig of watercress and a slice of stuffed olive, to resemble a flower. Serve on lettuce leaf with small, sweet pickles.

Cherry Tarts. 3 cups red pitted cherries (with juice)

3/4 cup sugar

2 tablespoons flour 2 tablespoons cornstarch 1/4 teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon lemon juice 1 tablespoon butter

Drain juice from cherries and heat to boiling point. Mix sugar, flour, cornstarch, and salt, and add to the cherry juice. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool slightly and add lemon juice, butter and cherries. Pour into baked pastry tart shells. Serve with whipped cream.

OUR HOUSE IS ON FIRE!

Who would think of a pencil and paper at a time like this? And yet your own fire insurance policy states that a complete list of destroyed and damaged property is required, for settlement. After a fire is too late! You'll never remember everything!

The time to make this list is before fire strikes. We nave prepared a special booklet that helps you. It lists things—room by room. Suggests items often forgotten. It is easy to make a list of property, if you do it sanely and calmly in advance. Then you are ready. Write for this booklet. It is absolutely free. Mail the
