NEW YORK.—It just happens that a specialist in bankruptcy law is the co-partner of General Trujillo of the Dominican Republic in installing their island haven under the Trujillo plan. But, this specialist, John N. Rosenberg, New York lawyer, has, since the World war, been occupied with the large-scale human-race bankruptcy of war and famine in Europe, so he is entering no new field. He is president of the Dominican Resettlement association, which is cooperating with General Trujillo in what appears to be an absolutely unique experiment in giving 500 refugees a new start in the western world, with houses, roads, land, cattle and farm implements ready for

Mr. Rosenberg has helped liquidate and rebuild all sorts of financial and social wreckage, including Ivar Kreuger's Inter-national Match company. He is the author of "Corporate Re-organization and the Federal Courts," but he is also the author of another book called "Punchinello."

Fantasy, or at any rate, a play of the imagination, has occupied quite as much of his time as law and bankruptcy. He has painted hundreds of pictures, many of which are hung in good galleries, including the Fogg museum of Harvard. He is an etcher, lithographer and playwright, and Broadway has produced his plays. For six years he short stories have appeared in many magazines. All this with time out to be counsel for the Irving Trust

The foregoing might suggest the activities of a trap-drummer. But he is, instead, leisurely and meditative, an easygoing pipe-smoker who always seems to have a lot of time on his hands. Another of his books is "Pastel Expression." He is busy in communal, civic and philanthropic enterprises and in the immediate post-war years was head of the American Joint Distribution Commission for Europe. This took him to Russia, and he wrote a book about that, too—"On the Steppes." If there is to be a general European receivership-financial and cultural—he might as well take over. He is a native of Allegheny, Pa., educated at Columbia university.

German War Machine Invades Belgium and The Netherlands; Chamberlain Resigns His Post

"Germany has respected the integrity of Belgium and the Netherlands under the self-evident precondition that these two countries, in case of war between Germany and England and France, would observe the strictest neutrality . . . These requirements have not been fulfilled" . . . > When the news of the invasion reached Paris, French officials, acting in response to an appeal made by the Belgian ambassador, ordered the French army to march into Belgium. In London, Exchange Telegraph, British news agency, reported that 400 persons were killed or wounded in the first German air raid against Brussels. And in Washington when the same report was received the Belgian ambassador to the United States asked the state department to notify Germany that Brussels was an "open" city, contained no troops and therefore should not be bombed.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt, upon learning of Hitler's latest war the landing of allied forces in the move, immediately summoned his cabinet officials and army and navy chiefs to plan America's course in light of this newest war develop-

NAMES ... in the news

In France, Joan of Arc's name was in the news as soldiers and civilians joined in paying tribute to that nation's legendary heroine on the national holiday in her honor.

In Russia, of course, it was none other than Josef Stalin who had his name in the news as it was announced that Soviet union citizens read more of his literary works than the writings of any other author. Probably it was "planned that way."

Weary Warrior

In England a weary man fought the greatest political battle of his life. That weary man was Neville Chamberlain, prime minister of Great Britain, his current battleground being the British house of commons as a momentous two-day debate on the conduct of the war in Norway held sway.

Speaking in defense of his administration which was on trial, Chamberlain told the world that the battle in Norway is not yet over. Experts believed he was depending on a victory of allied forces near the Naziheld port of Narvik to bolster morale and aid Britain's North sea blockade of Germany.
Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, who day before had been given additional power over the country's war fortunes, rose in the house of commons to take the blame being cast upon the prime minister. He accepted full responsibility for the act around which most of the fury of the opposition centered. Enemies of the administration wanted to know why the powerful British navy had not pounded at the port of Trondheim and forced it open for early days of the conflict.

Churchill said he had advised against this plan and then told the house that the real reason for the British setback was what Hitler has been claiming all along—Germany's air force is too powerful to be faced in open combat at the present time.

Strongest voice of the opposition was that of David Lloyd George, the man who led the empire to victory in World War I. Time after time he was cheered as the house heard him blame failure of the Norwegian campaign on Prime Minister Chamberlain. He flayed what he called "unintelligent and half-hearted leadership" for lack of success.

When the shouting was over 281 members rallied behind Chamberlain as 200 voted against him, the result being that he was not forced to dissolve his cabinet. But as he left the debate cries of "Resign! Resign!" rang loudly in his ears.

Two days later, after Hitler's army began to march, Neville Chamberlain followed this advice and resigned.

DOMESTIC:

U. S. Blitzkrieg

Mobilized from quiet military posts in 33 states thousands of modernized fighting men of the United States were going through their paces as the regular army's largest peace time maneuvers-the annual war games-got under way in the deep South. Sixty-six thousand professional soldiers in opposing "Red" and "Blue" factions are fighting it out in the grim exercises which terminate May 25.

This make-believe war was giving officials a chance to test much of the new mechanized equipment and "streamline" infantry divisions that have been built up and organized to give the U.S. a modern army.

POLITICS:

Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced that the members-designate of the resolutions committee will meet one week in advance of the assembling of the national convention to start framing the party's platform. Regular delegates will assemble in Philadelphia

Simple Goiter May Turn Into Serious Type

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WAS once examining a heavyweight wrestler and noted that both eyes were "bulging." I was surprised to see his excellent muscular develop- TODAY'S ment and exam-ination showed a HEALTH slow pulse. I told COLUMN him I expected to find a rapid heart beat despite his development as I expected goiter. "Oh," he said, "I had that goiter cut out a couple of years ago. I was thin and nervous. I've put on 40 pounds since the operation."

I have spoken before also of a physician whose heart rate dropped from 110 to 72 after removal of a goiter and he lost much of his nervousness, excitability and talkativeness.

Perhaps you know an individual who had a goiter—lump in front of his neck-when he was 15 years old and 20 or 30 years after still has it, and, apparently, has no symptoms. This is because goiters are not all alike; some are innocent or harmless and some must be removed by surgery or X-rays to preserve life.

Dr. Barton

The simple or innocent type of goiter usually develops between the ages of 12 and 17, at the period of greatest physical development. The only sign or symptom present is the growth or enlargement of the gland; there is no change in the structure or working process of the body. However, at middle age this type may develop into the more serious type.

Dr. E. M. Eberts, Montreal General hospital, who, with his associates investigated and treated 4,000 cases says, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal:

"We do not know positively what starts the dangerous (poison) stage but careful inquiry brings out, in many instances, a history of infec-tion, especially from tonsilitis and influenza immediately preceding the onset of the dangerous form of

This dangerous type very often occurs where there has never before been any appearance of goiter.
The individual is of middle age, more frequently a woman (5 to 1).

History of Allergy Case Is Necessary

A LLERGY—sensitiveness to various substances—has become a common word in our language, but frankly, when we think of allergy, most of us have in mind hay fever due to pollen of ragweed, or perhaps hives-urticaria-due to eating strawberries or other foods.

"But what about the other cases of allergy with obscure headaches, with peculiar abdominal symptoms evidently of considerable severity but unexplained by usual examination? What about peculiar skin rashes, dark spots, inflamed spots and the eczemas for which there is no apparent explanation?

I am quoting from the Boston number of the Medical Clinics of North America, Clinic of Dr. Francis K. Rackemann, Massachusetts General hospital.

While there is, perhaps, no direct method by which the question of whether allergy is or is not causing the symptoms, a good deal can be done by getting a complete history of the case. Among the points to be considered are:

Symptoms Explained.

First, the symptoms must be explained by a pathology, or damage, due to muscular contraction, stimulation or glands, or by the tiny blood vessels allowing too much liquid to pass through their walls and form the hives or the swelling of eyes, lips or other parts which is an outstanding symptom of allergy.

Second, the evidence of allergy is not usually just one symptom because patient has usually more than "An abdominal pain becomes easier to understand when a few hives appear."

Third, members of the family, either the parents or the children may have allergy; and then finally with allergy goes the finding of positive skin tests and the finding of an increase in the number of certain cells in the blood.

SOMETHING NEW AND DIFFERENT (See Recipes Below)

New Recipes for Your File

"Something old and something new" is just as important in menus as it is in a bride's costume.

It's a good idea, when you plan to experiment with something entirely new, to include in that meal one dish you know the family is really keen about. For instance, if the dessert is something very new and different, be sure that the main dish of your meal is one that's familiar and well-liked.

And, it's an excellent idea, when most of a meal is composed of family favorites, to include one new dish for a touch of variety. It may be a cut of meat that you haven't used before prepared in an unusual used before, prepared in an unusual manner; or perhaps it will be a vegetable that's new and strange to you; or it might be just an out-ofthe-ordinary conserve or relish to supplement last summer's supply, which, by this time is probably running very low.

You'll find, here, an assortment of recipes for foods that are unusual and delicious. There's a new way of preparing shoulder of beef—in one of those easy caserole dishes you like to serve, where you don't want to spend too much time in the kitchen; serve the Baked Shoulder Steak with baked or scalloped potatoes, buttered green beans and rhubarb pie, and watch your family

You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and "cure" it afterward. Find out what's giving Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of body, but leaves a soft "bulky' mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" p ducing food-such a one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran. Eat it often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is

The Honorable Uncle Lancy

By ETHEL HUESTON

THE STORY THUS FAR

Left orphans by a tragic automobile accident which claimed the lives of their mother and father, three sisters, Helen, Adele and "Limpy," are visited by their Mother and Polympia, politically minded wife of Senator Alencon Delaporte Slopshire. She insists that the girls return with her to Washington, to make their home with them. In addition to loving the girls, Aunt Olympia knows they will be a terrific political asset. Senator Slopshire has as his political opponent one Brother Wilkie, a minister, whose political campaign is furthered by seven "unspeakable brats" who sit on the rostrum with him while he makes speeches. Aunt Olympia and the Senator, kind and loving, nevertheless know that their three nieces will mean votes for the Senator. Senator Slopshire, a pleasantly foggy individual who depends on the astuteness of his wife, prepares for their coming. Though Limpy, the youngest, is 16, and Helen, the oldest, is 21, the Senator buys them all the toys and gifts he can find, feeling that "children" should be occupied. When they first meet their "Uncle Lancy," as he is to be known, the girls take him to their united bosom. Soon Adele, most beautiful of the sisters, meets Len Hardesty, publicity man for Brother Wilkie.

O Bobbs-Merrill Co.

5 Len Hardesty took a glass from the tray Hilda had placed on the coffee table, put in liquor and water. He walked slowly toward her. "I only hope you do not change your easy-to-get-into kind that you need mind and accept this at my insistence, for I need it myself. More pit of the stomach business . . Oh, my dear Miss Adele, do have a drink! Oh, you must have a drink! Come on, be a sport, just one now!

Pick you up no end." Adele leaned forward, gazed intently, deliriously, into his eyes and then gave the lovely blonde head a sew chart.

The braid edging, which brightens it up and accents the length of line by rupning down the front derect Virginia dare! I'm—having entirely too much stimulant as it is." And the blue eyes clung to his. Len Hardesty set the glass on a small table with a resounding plunk.

He turned to Olympia.
"Ollie, I apologize," he said. "I didn't think you had it in you."

"Oh, I just gave her a rough general outline," said Olympia. "I must admit that she added a good deal of embellishment. Take your drink, Len. You're going to need it. I may as well show you the rest . . . Hilda, ask the young ladies to come in and squelch this worm."

Len drained the glass. "I'll have another, thanks." He poured for himself, slowly. "When I think that I'm going to spend the next eight months pitting my brats against your beauty—"

"Oh, come now, Len, I'm not as good-looking as all that," said Aunt Olympia. "Ollie, I didn't even see you. I never expect to see you again. I'm not sure I'll ever see anything butthe automaton there. There seems to be a sort of bright light—an aura, you might say—around that pit we mentioned—"

Hilda coughed faintly in the doorway.

"She thinks she's the Senator," said Olympia in a large whisper. "Miss Helen is waiting for a longdistance telephone from Iowa-"

"Long distance! From Iowa?" ejaculated Aunt Olympia. "Why, who's there to talk to in Iowa, with Congress in session?"

"It might be something about a school," said Adele, swiftly.

"Or-you don't suppose she could have forgotten to-pay that grocery bill?" said Aunt Olympia. "From what I saw of that delivery boy, he's just the type to buy a new necktie and put on his gloves and follow a bill clear to Washington."

Hilda coughed again. "And Miss Limpy is having a conference.' "Having a conference? Miss Limpy? What are you talking about? Is the Senator home?" "No, ma'am. It's with a-a policeman. Miss Limpy accidentally or something threw her arith-"Trigonometry," corrected Adele,

"Yes'm. Out the window and hit the policeman on the head, and he's having a conference about it."

"Well, don't let him in here," said unt Olympia decidedly. "We've Aunt Olympia decidedly. "We've worms enough in here. Miss Limpy can handle him herself. Tell her to come in when he goes."

Len Hardesty shook an accusing finger at Aunt Olympia. "You staged this, Ollie. You staged this whole scene. You knew I was coming. You've been listening at keyholes and pursuing me with detectives and you knew I was headed here and you staged this. Hitting a policeman on the dome with a trigonometry! So that's the kind of campaign we're up against, eh?"

'No," said Aunt Olympia honest-"I'm sorry, but I can't hog the credit. It never entered my head. It's good, Len. I admit it's good. But Limpy thought it up herself." Len groaned.

"But just to cheer you up, Len, will admit that Adele is far the bestlooking. The others are all rightin some ways even better. I don't believe Adele would ever have thought of bashing a policeman with a trigonometry. But she got most of the looks.'

"You're telling me that?" he demanded bitterly. "I'm no fool. I know there's a limit on that sort of thing . . . But if that kid thought of attacking a policeman—out of her own head-she's dangerous. They're all dangerous. You're dangerous.' "Oh, we just try to hold our own,"

said Aunt Olympia seraphically. Limpy bobbed brightly in at that point. She looked slight and small in comparison with Adele's tallness and Olympia's general largeness. She began to speak almost before she was visible. But Len Hardesty, a good reporter, did not overlook that even before she spoke, the fleetingest, most trusting of glances flashed between the two girls-question and answer in one. "Oh, Aunt Olympia," began Limpy, "what's a logarithm?"

Aunt Olympia drew herself up and blinked uncertainly.

Adele spoke quickly. "If you find out, darling, I wish you'd tell me. I studied them for a year and got a C plus, but nobody ever thought to tell me what they really are."

"What in the world are you talking about?" demanded Aunt Olym-

"Logarithms," said Limpy. "Logarithms. I can spell them but I can't imagine what they are." "Ask him," said Olympia neatly.

'He's a newspaperman. He knows everything. Just ask him what is a logarithm?' Limpy turned hopefully to Len Hardesty. "Logarithm!" he said resentfully. What do you mean, logarithm?

"I'm sorry, but I can't hog the credit."

That was no logarithm! That was a plain American policeman you bashed on the dome."

"Yes, how about that policeman, Limpy?" asked Aunt Olympia, suddenly remembering the issue.

"Oh, that! That was the merest accident . . . Unless," Limpy frowned, and pursed up her lips, 'unless, there was something sinister beneath it! I confess, I was a little suspicious, for why should he be prowling about under Uncle Lancy's windows in election year? I asked if he was a special policeman or anything-I didn't want to come right out and ask if he had been hired by the Opposition. But he said no, he was just regular .- It was too bad, wasn't it?"

"How did it happen, Limpy?" asked Adele helpfully, now that the first explosive moment had been safely bridged. "Oh, I was a bit confused about those logarithms-I don't care for them at all, Auntie, and if you don't mind I'd really rather study something else, like French drama or modern novels. I looked out at the trees-and all of a sudden it came to me in a sort of flash that there was a kind of a connection theresort of a relativity-trees and logarithms-or logs, for short. They seemed to go together. And first thing I knew the book was flying Limpy. right out the window among the trees and I do think it was very suspicious that a policeman should be lurking down there. They went together-trees, and logs-for-shortbut the policeman just doesn't fit

"Unless he was a blockhead to begin with," said Adele.

"And perhaps he had a chip on his shoulder," added Len Hardesty. "Well, he seemed to have when he first came in. But he went away very good-naturedly. I gave him five dollars - out of your pocketbook, Adele; I'm low this week. And he left his regards for the Senator. I didn't do it as a bribe, of course, but I didn't want to-embarrass dear Uncle Lancy in election year." "It's the Senator," broke in Hilda

Olympia headed for the hall telephone on a nervous trot. That dour 'It's the Senator" always took her on the run, in a tremor for some pet bill. Limpy occupied herself cheerfully with the cakes and nuts

Len Hardesty got up suddenly and went over and stood beside Adele, now seated in a big chair with the blue curtains for flattering back- effect on the campaign; to let them ground. She looked up with a slight smile and took a sip of her lemonade. She looked up again. This time, the smile melted away on her lips and suddenly they were looking into each other's eyes, deeply, very soberly. Len shook his head with sudden impatience. Something must be said.

"Do you like Washington?" he asked gravely, though the trite query struck him as a good deal of an anticlimax, after meeting her eyes.
"I do today," she said.
"Does the old girl give you all your lines?" he asked moodily. "Not that one. That was original."

"That's something . . . Did you mean it?" "Yes," she said, with honest brevity.

"Well, it's a good thing. To tell the truth, you're going to be seeing a good deal of me from this on—"

"Oh, no, we're not," interrupted Olympia, bounding back. "The only way we're going to be seeing anything of you is at the other end of a good sharp stiletto. If there's any tampering with my campaign material I'll report it to some committee on something."

"I can't stay for dinner tonight," he said, "though it's nice of you to ask me. I have another engagement. I can come back about nine though, since you insist, and-talk things over with Sloppy and sort of check up on the campaign. And how about my dropping in for luncheon around one-thirty tomorrow? I can take the whole afternoon off-if I don't get caught—and give the girls a good sales talk."

"We're going to be out! We're going to be out from right now till the election," said Aunt Olympia rudely.

"See you tonight about nine. Thanks, Ollie. Sweet of you to ask me . . . Uncle Lancy! My word!"
"We're virtually out now," said Aunt Olympia.

"What do you think, Limpy?" said Adele suddenly. "Are they arriving at an armistice, or is this a lull before they tear each other limb from

"I'm expecting blows at any minute," said Limpy, "That's what I'm waiting for. Otherwise I'd be right back with my logarithms."

"Blows! Blows between Ollie and me?" He sat on the arm of her chair and put his arm around her. "Why, Ollie and I are mad about each other. It's my one regret that Sloppy saw her first. Why, I'd lie down in the dirt and let her walk right over me—though I'd be a good deal flattened in the process. And she'd do the same for me, too!"

"Sure I would," said Aunt Olympia, with a beaming smile. She patted his hand affectionately. "You snake-in-the-grass!"

youth, made a perfect foil for her rugged ruddiness, her biting humor. Their appreciative laughter spurred her to gusty heights never before attained. She had not realized how large a part the audience plays in the success of theatrical endeavor. She could hardly let them out of her sight long enough to get their proper sleep and begrudged Limpy every minute spent on "those lousy logarithms."

So the girls were a little disconcerted one day when she went about the apartment wrapped in a brooding air of detachment, full lips compressed, left eyelid ominously lowered; seeming not to hear their light talk, and, still more surprisingly, adding no enlivening embellishments of her own. They watched her uneasily.

"Are you sick, Aunt Olympia?" Helen finally asked. "No," she said abruptly. "I'm working my subconscious.' The girls smiled faintly.

"Don't overtax it," said Adele. 'I understand it's rather delicate.' "And be careful it doesn't turn and begin working you," added

Aunt Olympia did not hear them. That night she addressed the Senator mildly. "Del, I want to ask your advice."

The Senator coughed deprecatingly and his glance at the girls was apologetic. "What do you think we ought to do about these girls?" she demand-That shocked the Senator into immediate coherence. "Do about them!" he ejaculated. "Do nothing about them! Leave them alone! They're doing all right for them-"Referring to their social life," Olympia continued. "Should we bring them out or keep them in seclusion?'

The Senator wiped his glasses. Then he smiled. "My dear, living up to my established reputation as a philanthropic and public-spirited American, I say, bring them out. Give the world a treat! The world needs a treat and I am not one who believes that the blessed should be niggardly with their treasures."

Olympia frowned. "Thinking of the campaign," she said significantly. "Which would have more telling go out, decorously of course, most decorously, or keep them in modest retirement until we go home? If I know our constituents, and I think I do, it would flatter them no end to get the idea that while we were obliged to safeguard and shelter these children from the insidious snares of Washington, we realize that in our home-among our friends -our constituents-they are safe."

The Senator considered this, frowningly. He had not yet worked up any campaign spirit himself, with Congress in no mood for adjournment. His troubled eyes circled the attentive subject of the discussion and the sight led him to instant conclusion. "No use to punish the girls for the sake of a few votes, in my opinion. Let them do as they please." Olympia never paid any attention to what he said. "We could go right ahead-building them up-whetting public interest—putting out just the right photos—and still hold them aloof. It would delight the voters; and why not? It is a definite compliment. But I don't want to bore the girls."

"Aunt Olympia," Helen broke in gently, "if you don't mind, I'd really like to go around as much as I can. I do not mean to gay, social things. I do not want to seem disrespectful or lacking in feeling, but since I shall be with you only this one season, I feel I ought to learn as much as I can, get as much experience as possible. I'd like to learn how things run, how Congress works, all the things that go to make Washington the heart of the nation."

Aunt Olympia agreed with her heartily. She invariably agreed with the girls, even if she flatly flouted her agreement in the next breath. She was determined to be on good terms with them at all cost and she felt that an initial agreement took the edge off what followed.

"Perfectly right, my dear, perfectly sound. So you should. Washington is an education, a higherand, in some ways, a lower-education. It is your civic duty to learn all you can. The life here will be valuable experience for you in the future whether you teach school-or go into politics-or merely sellsay, groceries."

A swift glance flickered among the girls.

"I don't see that politics enters into selling groceries," said Uncle Lancy. "Unless you refer to putting the bad fruit at the bottom of the basket."

Aunt Olympia gave him a straight, hard look. Already the girls knew that look. They called it her shut-upping look. "Aunt Olympia gave me her shut-upping look, and I never opened my mouth," they would say to one another. Uncle Lancy had no name for it but he understood it. "A thorough education," he remarked safely, dropping groceries. "You can come about with me, Helen. You can sit in my committee meetings. Some of them are merely good antidotes for insomnia, but, on the other hand, some of them are very interesting. The munitions committee got into a fight every time it met. You'd have enjoyed that, but unfortunately it wound up we'll be careful. We'll discriminate.

"Sure, that's the idea," corroborated the Senator. "Discriminate. Take them only to things that are good fun-and hold them in seclusion from the bores."

"I'll start off with a luncheon, exclusive, very small. Then a large tea-not too large . . . It's too bad about Len Hardesty; he's a lot of help at that sort of thing . . . Yes, Helen, you're right. We'll bring you and Adele out-in a decorous way -and seclude Limpy.' "Aw, Uncle Lancy!" wailed Lim-

The Senator rose to her appeal "Stuff and nonsense," he said. "What's the matter with Limpy? Limpy can take care of herself. Let her have a good time." "Del, you silly dunce, that child—"

"Seventeen, Auntie darling!" Limpy reminded her. "And seventeen is very, very close to eighteen." "Sixteen," corrected Adele determinedly. "Plus. Large plus, small minus." "Let 'em have as much fun as they can, that's my idea," said Uncle Lancy loyally.

"I don't want to have fun," disclaimed Helen promptly. "I just want to learn as much as I can; about politics and government, particularly; from the ground up. I don't want gay society-"

'You want official things," said Aunt Olympia. "Yes, you're right. Well, we have a stack of invitations. We'll go through them tomorrow and you can pick out what you like. And I'll plan the luncheon." She frowned thoughtfully for a while, left eye invisible, "You know, Del," she said suddenly, "I'm not at all sure but Adele could do a sightworse.

The Senator did not pause to cough. "Do worse!" he ejaculated. 'I should say she could do worse. I don't see how she could very well do any better myself. She's just about perfect, in my opinion. They all are. In fact, they are perfect. Adele laughed. "It has a faint resemblance to a compliment, Aunttoggy for my clouded intelligence. Do worse than what?" "Than Len Hardesty. He's smart. He's got what an election takes. And the Senator'll be up again in '44." (TO BE CONTINUED)

JEREMIAH DENOUNCES FALSE PROPHETS

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 23:21-32. GOLDEN TEXT—Prove all things; hold ast that which is good.—I Theysalonians

Tickling the vanity and pleasing the ears of ungodly people with words of flattery and false comfort, giving them the assurance of peace and prosperity in the very pursuit of their sin, did not begin with the false prophets of the twentieth cen-Six hundred years before Christ, Jeremiah the prophet had to contend with such false teachers.

His manner of dealing with them is of great interest to us, for essentially the false prophets of that day used the same methods and had the same false message that characterize their descendants of today, the so-called modernistic religious liberals who are busy everywhere attempting to undermine the faith of God's children in His Word. They are revealed as being destitute of divine authority, without a real message, and under the disfavor and subject to the judgment of God. They are

I. Without Divine Commission (vv. 21-22). .

"I have not sent these prophets"that should have been sufficient for the people of Judah. A man who is not sent by God has no word from heaven, no help for needy humanity. He is worse than an admittedly 2 by 121/2 inches to 11/4 by 11/4 secular teacher or philosopher, for he claims to speak with divine authority and yet has only the disappointing impotence of a liar and a fraud.

The reason Judah listened to them was because they so eloquently hushed the condemning voice of their own consciences, assuring them that all was well, when, as a matter of fact, everything was wrong. Men listen to the same kind of teaching today for the very same

II. Without a Divine Message (vv. 23-29).

These false prophets may delude men, but they have not fooled God. He is not a finite being, limited to this earth (v. 23). He looks on men from the far off viewpoint of heaven and judges by His own high and holy standards.

Nor can they hide from Him (v. 24). God hears the word spoken in the academic shelter of a college seeking?" classroom, secretly poisoning the young person's heart against the faith of his father and mother. A man. "Say a vice presidency." day of judgment also awaits those CHAPTER IV

"After all," went on Aunt Olympia musingly, "it does impress homey hicks to know that one has been received in Washington. But we'll be conful Wall district.

mind and heart will help anyone, let him be honest enough to call them just that; namely, dreams (vv. 25-28). But God will assuredly not hold those men guiltless who try to pass off their own philosophies as bearing the approval of God; who would have people honor their assemblies as Christian churches, when they are at best only social or intellectual gatherings designed to magnify man rather than Christ.

Note in verse 29 that the Word of God is like the fire that consumes and purifies, and also like the hammer, that breaks up the rocky heart of man.

III. Without Divine Favor and Blessing (vv. 30-32).

God is against every false prophet. Small wonder that there is the savour of death in their speaking and their works. There is no divine power in their message and no holy dynamic to enable people to respond to their admonitions. Prominent modernists are decrying in our day the fact that their cultured essays and polished philosophies are not reaching the hearts of men and are failing to transform lives. At the same time, humble preachers and teachers of God's Word, sometimes in hidden and remote places, are rejoicing as they see the transforming grace of God come upon lives as a result of their simple proclamation of the gospel of grace. Keep on,, brethren; God is with you.

Observe what God calls the false prophets-thieves (v. 30) and liars (v. 32). Hard words, but they come from One who is all-knowing, who judges rightly and in love.

It Doth Not Yet Appear You are not what you ought to be, and you are not what you can be. You may rise yet, and fight a good fight yet, and be a good man once more, after the likeness of God who made you, and Christ who died for you!-Charles Kingsley.

SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES We had a good time at the ball game between the seventh and eighth doys and the Vine and Greenwood boys. It was a close game with our boys winning 13 to 12.

We have begun our review for examinations which begin next week. The seventh grade had a history test this morning. Ardith Lake, Wayne Hughes, Vernon Beaubin and Donna Moore received highest scores.

FIFTH and SIXTH GRADES Janet Musolf is the only person in the room who hasn't been absent or tardy this year.

Blanche Beauben has brought sev. eral pretty bouquets of arbutus. Ruth Ulman brought a plant for our room. Mothers' Day gifts were made last week. Some people made vases, others waste baskets, soap and powder containers and twine holders. We nade cards to enclose with the gifts.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES The fourth grade pupils made maps of the United States so that they can follow their journey across the country on the Lincoln Highway. This trip is an imaginary ne, being taken during geography period.

In their afternoon study period, some of the third grade boys and girls have been making animal picture books. They are now completed, and the animals pictured in their books are: dogs, cats, cows, horses, sheep, lambs, goats, pigs, ducks, chickens and birds.

We are reading the book "By Wagon and Flatboat" by Meadowcroft, in story hour. It is the story of a trip taken by early settlers from a village near Philadelphia to Cincinnatti. Their adventures are numberless and exciting.
