German Troops Enter Paris; French Make Desperate Plea For Additional Aid From U. S.

(EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

When Italy joined forces with Germany in the war against France and England she had a good supply of armored tanks to aid in clearing the way for troops in true blitzkrieg fashion. Here are pictured a number of Mussolini's soldiers manning the best tanks Italy has been able to produce. In addition to these "regular" tanks, the Italian army is said to possess a large number of the "flame-throwing" variety.

THE WAR: Help Wanted

"Our race does not allow itself to be beaten down by invasion . Our race has always thrown back or dominated the invaders . . ." Brave words these, spoken by Premier Reynaud of France as he was telling his people of his "last" appeal for help to President Roosevelt.

If President Roosevelt was planning on helping the allies, next morning he learned that there was nothing much to be done to aid them in defending the French capital, Paris. For during the night word had come through from Ambassador Bullitt that the German army was "inside the gates of Paris."

When the French government had transferred itself to the city of Tours, Ambassador Bullitt decided to stay on in Paris. While there he watched the French clear the city of all troops so that it might be declared "an open city" and thus be spared destruction by the invading

As the French army abandoned Paris, the high command explained that no worthwhile strategic aim would justify the destruction of the historic capital, almost sure to result in any battle to defend it.

As the news spread that Paris was not being defended rumors spread that a separate peace for France was in the offing. Soon, however, Britain announced that she was pouring every available man and all available equipment across the channel to aid in the further defense for "clouds" of U. S. warplanes.

And as the military experts were calculating the combined strength of England and France against Germany and her new ally, Italy, it became increasingly apparent that planes were the prime need of the defenders. For while Britain and France may control the sea, their air power is sadly lacking. The figures show that the Rome-Berlin axis has over twice as many fighting planes as the allies.

HOME FRONT:

Big Job

In a machine age war world, with dive-bombers, flaming tanks, and motorized equipment of all types, industrial mobilization of national resources takes precedence over manpower mobilization.

Germany's swift thrusts into enemy territory stand as evidence that while France and England idly watched, Nazi factories were working overtime turning out their mechanical instruments of war.

EAST SIDE: Accord and Discord

On the world's troublesome east side where eyes of the western world are cast in never-ending vigusual discord.

For from Tokyo comes word that Japan and Thailand (Siam) have concluded a treaty of friendship. which a foreign office spokesman described as "unmistakable evi- pay." dence of Japan's peaceable intentions in the South Pacific." And in London the British reported a non-aggression pact between Thailand, Japan and Great Britain as well as a partial settlement of an old dispute with Japan on the matter of money circulation in China and the prolonged silver dispute in the city of Tientsin.

If all this sounded as if Great Britain's campaign to woo Japan's friendship was bearing fruit, there were more ominous sounds droning from the motors of Japanese bombers over China's provisional capital, Chungking. For the Japanese air force has been concentrating its attacks these past weeks in an effort to destroy that city and force the government officials to surrender.

Outside of China the Japanese seem to be in a mellow mood for even from Moscow came news of accord with Russia in the Soviet-Mongolian border dispute,

Dole Debauches, Says Mormon Leader, So Church Sets Up Own Work Welfare

By CLARENCE D. WILLIAMS

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

E MORMONS have

Cared for the assential cared for the essential needs of our own since the struggling days of the 'forties' under the guiding hand of the great colonizer, Brigham Young."

So says 83-year-old Heber Jeddy Grant, president of the Mormon church. But he doesn't rest with talk, and that accounts for the huge Mormon church welfare plan to banish unemployment.

This plan, wholly divorced from politics, seeking and wanting no aid from any municipal, county, state or federal agency, is going to be a permanent plan to "help people help them-selves," asserts the man who is prophet, seer, revelator, and leader of more than 800,000 faithful since

The project is based purely upon religious principles, assert its sponsors, which were laid down by the church a century ago.

Operate Coal Mine, Factories.

The plan, which materially reduces the total amount necessary for adequate relief in any given community, has been showing rapid results. There has been established in Salt Lake City a central bishop's storehouse, in addition there are 67 regional and stake storehouses that serve approximately 100 of the 127 stakes and there are small emergency bishop's storehouses in the remote rural wards of the church.

The welfare plan operates a coal mine, a large canning factory in addition to smaller units scattered all over the church, a clothing factory, a clothing renovating shop and salvage plant, with several stores established to distribute their output, and two saw mills. One stake is undertaking an experimental soap manufacturing project and still another group is manufacturing ladders and another adobes for building homes.

Newest venture in the plan is the construction of 23 grain storage elevators having a total capacity of 350,000 bushels. At the present time a large crew of workmen, the majority of whom are devout church members, are working day and But the situation is so uncertain night pouring concrete in the giant that the farmer who takes a gam-

Ever since the planner, Brigham Young, drilled the necessity of hard work and thrift into his flock there has been more or less strict obedience to his commands.

Heads Many Businesses.

The life and character of Mr. Young, second leader of the church, death in 1877 have worn the mante. of president of the Mormon church.

Heber J. Grant, seventh president, is a native of Salt Lake City. He is tall, erect and still is a "powerhouse" despite his recent serious illness which forced him to refrain from his strenuous and untiring job of attending to even the smallest details of operating the church.

President Grant in addition to being titular head of the Mormon faith is head of many powerful Utah industrial and commercial organizations. They include factories, banks, hotels and insurance companies. In spite of all that keeps him "on the go" he keeps in close contact with the most humble members of his Keen-minded and witty Mr. Grant is a firm believer in work and more

"It keeps you young and maintains your pride," he asserts. He is dead set against such retirement plans as Townsend advocates.

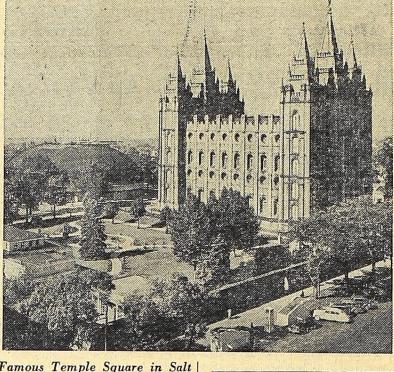

"Why, it's the silliest thing I have ever heard," he said. "I certainly do not indorse such a pension plan for my members." He stopped to figure out how much ilance there are some signs of accord . . . and added signs of the were effective when he was 65 years

> "Why, I would have received thousands of dollars. No sir, I urge at all times that church members give a full day's work for their full day's

And he added: "I urge that they keep on working their life time, providing they are able."

Along with his right hand men, First Counselor J. Reuben Clark Jr. and Second Counselor David O. Mc-Kay, who make up what is termed the "first presidency," bearded President Grant quickly points out the church can care for its own in the future if it can be relieved of the debauchery to character which follows along with a dole.

In order to render moderate financial assistance to those who were engaged in small farming or business, and who did not have a bankable undertaking, the church set up the Co-operative Security corporation. This company has made a number of small loans, which are largely character loans, but has limited the amount it would lend to any one person to a few hundred dollars.

Finally, the church has not yet made any effort, or pretended to make any effort, to take its mempers from governmental work projects. Leaders say it has merely urged those on such projects to do a full day's work for a day's pay.

While the church welfare plan aims, of course, to help those in need, its real purpose is not merely to substitute church gratuities for others furnished by charitable or governmental agencies, but to rebuild the characters of its members and to promote and foster the patriotic, civic, and spiritual qualities of the people.

He Knew Poverty.

Heber Jeddy was born in 1856 in a pioneer house where the large C. M. I. mercantile establishment now stands, nine years after Brigham Young had arrived in Utah with his band of pioneers fleeing from persecution in Missouri and Illinois.

When Heber was a growing boy the Mormons under President Young were beset by disease, famine and more persecution. Mr. Grant's father, Jedediah, was one of Young's leaders. His boy, Heber, grew up under conditions of poverty. He struggled hard to support his mother after the death of his father when he was at a tender age. He possessed the will to succeed with everything he undertook to do. He later built his mother a fine home when he was often branded as a failure. Meantime he exhibited a talent for business and weaved his pattern of life, without the aid of anyone except his mother, who constantly encouraged him to carry on under the ideals laid down by the L. D. S. church.

The churchman has many favorite sayings which he has recited to Latter-day Saints at various church conferences that are held in the historic oval-shaped tabernacle on famous Temple square. One of his sayings is based on his 'persist in doing" philosophy. Praises Sense of Humor.

He asserts: "That which we persist in doing becomes easy to do; not that the nature of the thing has changed, but that our power to do has increased."

The Mormons, particularly those in the western states, have proved to be long-livers. Longevity is typical among the pioneer families in Heber Grant, who will be 84 years of age next November 22, believes that age is a quality of mind. He often has repeated: "Age is a quality of mind; if your dreams you've left behind, if hope is cold, if you no longer look ahead, if your ambitions are dead, then you are growing old."

A humorist and a known philanthropist, President Grant has appeared at many leading conventions as a principal speaker, often "stealing the show."

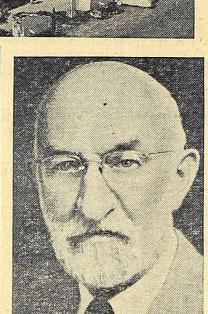

"Without a sense of humor a person will fail to make friends," he declared. "And the more friends, the more you get out of life.' He warned that the "curse of idle-land, take a look at the Articles of Confederation, drafted by the Founding Fathers of the United States in 1777. You will find, say Pearson and Allen, Washington columnists, a paragraph giving specific legal precedent for Canada seeking admittance as a member of the United States. The Founding Fathers opened the door in long-forgotten Article II as follows:

eration, and joining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into, and entitled to all the advantages of this Union. But no other Colony shall be admitted into the same unless such admission be agreed to by nine states." According to this, it would appear that Canada could become a part of the United States without a referendum vote by the other 48 states.

Mr. Grant has been a great organizer and devoted many of his early years to missionary work and was the first representative of the church to preside over a mission in Japan. He was only about 26 years of age when he was ordained a member of the council of twelve

No More Polygamy. He was made president of the council of twelve apostles during the presidency of Joseph F. Smith and following President Smith's death in 1918 he was elevated to the top ranking position he now holds.

The once burning Mormon question-polygamy-has long been forever banished. Any person of the faith who attempts in any way to practice plural marriage is excommunicated from the church.

President Grant has had three wives and was the father of twelve children, two boys and ten girls. His sons and two of his wives are dead.

He has been quoted on the subject of polygamy as follows:

"Plural marriages have long been passe. Although they used to be in good form among members, today they are condemned. There are still some who attempt to practice it, but they suffer when they are discovered. Before the practice was forbidden it was different. Contrary to the propaganda spread by the enemies of the church, plural marriages as practiced by church members were not different from any other form of holy matrimony.

"The laws of the church were such that a man was required to get a written indorsement before he could enter into plural marriage, and he had to have an excellent character. Even when the practice was common, the number of such marriages was insignificant compared with the population.'

Urges 'Words of Wisdom.' The church president is constant ly urging his flock to obey the teachings of the "Word of Wisdom." This prohibits the use of intoxicating liquors, tobacco and tea and coffee.

In his entire career as president of the church, Mr. Grant has only been absent from two general church conferences in Salt Lake City. Both times he was forced to remain away on account of illness. Once he had to go to Chicago to undergo an operation and again he wasn't able to preside at the great gathering in April, 1940 when he was confined in a Los Angeles hospital.

The annual report of the church for 1939 shows a total church membership of 803,528. There are 645,618 in the stakes and 157,910 in the mis-

Mr. Fairchild is, himself, reassuring in exemplifying the tradition of Yankee inventiveness. His father, the late George Winthrop Fairchild, once chairman of the International Business Machines corporation, was the inventor of the dial telephone, the computing machine and finally the adding machine, to keep track of his mounting millions-about 10 of which went to his son. He had begun his business career at $8 a week.
"Anything is possible" seems to have been a sort of family

As a youth, Sherman M. Fairchild was mainly interested in cameras. His father had tapped him for junior executive of his company. When the young man stuck to cameras, this interest later shading into airplanes, his family was indulgent. They thought the boy was just having a "wanderjahr" and would round up at a desk when the time came. But the camera obsession wasn't just monkey business. At 21, he had invented an unique flashlight camera and several years later brought through a radial aerial camera, organized the Fairchild Aerial Surveys and caught attention with a trail-blazing aerial survey of New York. This led to plane-building. In 1927, he corralled several companies, set Igor Sigorsky building planes and turned out the first work of the Red Cross in its greatest endeavor. He responded as follows: "Anyone attempting to bring material assistance to the millions of homeless and miserable war refugees is inevitably seized with a sense of futility. There is so much that needs doing immediately, and there are so many obstacles to overcome that the burden of responsibility becomes almost overwhelming.

"These moods of futility I can dispel by concentrating my thoughts on the splendid support received by the American Red Cross from all over the country. When I think of the 350,000 volunteers sewing bandages and knitting garments, or of the millions of Americans in every walk of life who are contributing to the Red Cross warrelief fund, my spirits are immediately buoyed. Pride in the generous and patriotic response of the public gives each Red Cross worker new courage to carry out his tasks.

"The war-relief funds are going to work for humanity almost as fast as they come in. Relief supplies are being distributed, hospital supplies are on the way and ambulances have been ordered. Clothing and surgical dressings are being shipped to the stricken areas, in huge quantities. Our activities are rapidly being geared to greatly increased needs as the toll of invasion continues to mount. I have an abiding faith that the people of this country will help the Red Cross keep pace with its increasing obligations.

Mr. Davis is a Scutherner by birth, and therefore fundamentally humane; as a successful business man and financier, he is effective, and as a European ambassador at large under five Presidents, he is discreet.

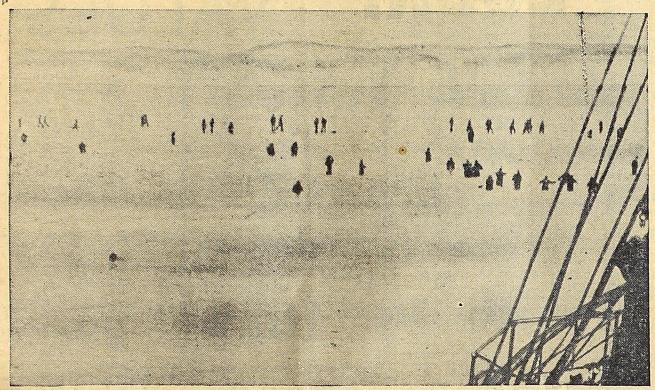

In the dark depths of the rear seat of his town car, one night two yearsago, I had a talk with him about power politics in Europe. He was, indeed, discreet, but I gained an impression of his shrewd awareness of the deeper realities of the European impasse, as now tragically revealed. When, later, he was appointed chairman of the Red Cross, it seemed to me that our greatest humane tradition had been fortunately personalized, in a man with both a touch of homespun and the sophistication of one accustomed to getting things done.

MALACHI DEMANDS HONESTY TOWARD GOD

LESSON fEXT—Malachi 3:7-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me how herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.—Malachi 3:10.

Spiritually sick—and desperately so—was Israel in the days of Malachi. The nation had been released from captivity in Babylon and had been back in their own land for almost a century. The outburst of religious enthusiasm which characterized their return had resulted in the rebuilding of the temple (Ezra 1:1-4). In this they were encouraged by Haggai, as we recall from our lesson of last Sunday. They had later been led by Nehemiah in renewed interest in spiritual things and in the rebuilding of the city wall, but now again they had turned away from God. Malachi came with what one might call God's last word before judgment upon their sins. The lesson centers around

I. Apostasy.
"Ye have turned aside" (v. 7, R. V.). This was God's complaint against His people. In spite of His blessings upon them, they had intermarried with the heathen, they had dealt treacherously with their brethren, and had neglected to worship God. What was even worse, they felt no conviction about their sin and denied that they owed God anything, not even the debt of common

Read the insolent, self-confident questions and assertions of the people in verses 7, 8, 13 and 14. Think how perfectly they fit the attitude of thousands of unbelievers and backslidden Christians in our day. One might almost think that Malachi were reading the secret thoughts of our own people, and possibly of our own hearts. II. Robbery.

Illness commonly has its center of infection, whether it be physical or spiritual sickness. Malachi struck at a very vital point when he re-vealed that the heart of Israel's difficulty was dishonesty toward God.

That dishonesty reflected itself in spiritual things, but, since Malachi was talking to an arguing generation (just like ours), he gave them a concrete illustration of their deceit—they had withheld from God the tithes and offerings.

Men who would never cheat the telephone company out of a nickel will rob God consistently Sunday after Sunday by sanctimoniously slipping a thin dime into the collection plate. If that is all a man can and should give, God will bless it and multiply it for His glory. But certainly it does not befit one who lives in luxury to give God's work the smallest piece of change which he can decently slip into the plate.

Tithing may be said to be an Old Testament principle. Doubtless it is also true that the principle of New Testament Christianity is that all we have belongs to God, but often the one who hides behind that fact does not give as much as the people of Old Testament times. Is that honest? III. Judgment.

God is love, but that does not mean that His patience is without limit nor that He will forever withhold judgment. He says, through Malachi (v. 9), "Ye are cursed with a curse." The blessing has been withheld (v. 10). The devourer is in the land (v. 11). He promised them release and blessing if they repented and returned to the right way, which obviously means that their failure to do so would bring judgment. We know that Israel despised God's warning and to this day is paying for its sin. Will America be wise enough to heed God's call?

IV. Blessing.

So often the loving God had to speak through His prophets of impending judgment on sin, but how gracious He is in that He always holds out the promise of blessing for repentance and obedience.

Look at the precious promise in verse 10. Thousands of Christians join the writer in saying, "That is true in A. D. 1940 just as it was in 400 B. C." Read verses 11 and 12. Note that our God is not only a great God, but a good God. Consider the blessings of spiritual fellowship-the certainty of victory revealed in verses 16 and 17. One marvels that Israel could resist such a loving plea just as one wonders also why men of our own day of God's grace still resist His gracious

CHAPTER VIII—Continued -10-

"No wonder Gabriel knew more about things than I do," Helen said. "I'd know things too, if I were paid a salary for learning them. I'm afraid he wasn't the old palsy-walsy I thought him; he didn't tell me what he was finding out."

Even Aunt Olympia thought it was amusing. She said she wasn't at all surprised; she declared that half the ambassadors and all of the diplomats in Washington were spies. She said, "I give you my word, before I go to an embassy reception I take the safety pins out of the broken straps on my slip and have Hilda sew them on. I'm too proud to have foreign spies looking through me at those safety pins."

"It's an outrage," said the Senator, bristling all over with Americanism. "They ought to be shot." "Not just for looking at a safety pin, Del, surely," said Aunt Olymon the next Sunday Len Hardesty arrived at Shires, too late for church but in ample time for dinner.

"I'm supposed to be down in Washington touching the Committee for more funds," he explained cheerfully. "We're running short. In fact, we're low. We were reduced to hamburgers last night, though I see you have an abundance of fried chicken here. Farley must be doing all right by you."

"You'd better get along down to Washington," said Aunt Olympia, "or you'll be reduced to canned dog

When dinner was over the Senator begged to be excused; he had important work on hand. Aunt Olympia got up and walked off; she was going to take a nap, but whose business was it? Helen had letters to write and Limpy took the box of nuts and the funny papers and went out to the porch. Adele and Len Hardesty, thus considerately left alone, wandered down through the garden and on out into the orchard where they selected a big apple tree, far removed from the house and sheltered by a hedge, and sat

For a long time they devoted themselves to the tender, personal things natural to a young couple very much in love, but eventually settled down to speak of other things, of politics, their daily activities, their hopes, their plans.

"Oh, Len!" Adele cried suddenly. "Wasn't it exciting about Gabriel d'Allotti?"

"Exciting! I don't see anything exciting about it, but that they didn't catch him months ago. Quote: 'The lousy worm.' End quote."

"But that he should turn out to be a spy! We never dreamed of such a thing! We've had no end of fun with Helen about it."

a cigarette, paused suddenly, his hand in midair.

'The American system! With Helen," he repeated.

"Oh, it was perfectly all right," she said hastily. "There was nothserious about being engaged to Brick, you know . . . Sh! It's a surprise for Aunt Olympia . . . Gabriel said he was gathering material for a book on the American picture and he got Helen to help him. Though she says he knew more about it than she did. They used to argue for hours about pacificism and armaments and military preparedness and all that. Why, he even warned her against Canada-in an indirect way. We call her the First Assistant Spy." Len lit his cigarette slowly. "Did she see much of him?"

"Oh, he was hardly ever out of our sight. He went every place we did-not with us! He just met us there by accident, the way you do. He came to the house three or four times a week, afternoons, mostly.

"I see." Len stood up. beautiful, I've got to be a-flying myself down to Washington, so don't sit there blinking your lashes and looking lonesome, trying to get my mind off the salvation of the nation. According to the papers, Sloppy is taking a few days off to rest his corns. Will you be here the rest of the week?"

"Till Thursday. It isn't for Uncle Lancy's corns. It's so Hilda can get us mended and laundered and fed. It's terrible cooking in that trailer. We all have to work at once, you know, for the sake of the photos, and there's not room for three. Our digestions pay the penalty."

"I'll be over before Thursday. Thank Ollie for the chicken . Hamburgers! . . . And to think if it hadn't been for the shortsightedness, the hopeless inefficiency of old Sloppy, I'd be with you on fried chicken instead of over there with the brats on hamburger." Aunt Olympia, shrewd as she was, could not understand Cecil Dodd. In the beginning, though she had certainly made it clear that as assistant director of publicity he was chiefly to take care of the woman angle, he hardly get hold of him long enough to take the girls horse-back riding. Dave Cooper assured her the kid was doing all right, that there was real stuff back of his gentle smile, but Aunt Olympia felt that her plan had been somewhat of a failure. Now suddenly all this was changed. Cecil had become ubiquitous, constantly underfoot, as Olympia complained. When Dave, who had come to rely on him, flatly ordered him off on certain missions, he went, but

"He's beginning to miss the sofas," said the Senator sympathetically. "That's the worst thing about cushions-they become habitual."

with reluctance.

"Oh, I knew he couldn't keep it up," grumbled Aunt Olympia. These fireworks that go off with the biggest explosion always sputter out first."

Still, Dave assured her, once he was dragged away from the insidious comforts of Shires or the clubby attractions of the trailer entourage, he worked both hard and well; "like a dog," Dave said; "and does what

On Saturday when the cavalcade returned to Shires for rest and renovation, Dave said he and Cece would go to town and do some intensive groundwork at Headquarters, Cece objected; objected gently, but firmly. He said he needed rest and renovation as much as anybody.

"Call up Headquarters and tell 'em we're coming," said Dave firmly. Aunt Olympia gave him his hat. On Sunday, except for the visit, of Len Hardesty, which they had come to expect, the day was restfully calm and quiet. And then, on Monday evening, as they were having coffee in the cool of the east veranda, Hilda announced disapprovingly. "It's Mr. Dodd on the 'phone and he wants Miss Limpy."

You could have knocked Aunt Olympia down with a feather. She said so herself, at least a hundred times in the days that followed. She couldn't open her mouth. She just sat, as if she had indeed been knocked there.

Limpy ran back from the tele-hone. "Oh, Aunt Olympia, Cece phone. says the Young Democrats are getting up a dance rally at the Fire House and if he comes and gets me and drives carefully and brings me back early, may I go?"

Aunt Olympia, still suffering from the feather-blow, couldn't speak. "Would you like to go, girls?" asked the Senator mildly.

"Did he invite all of us, Limpy? asked Adele significantly. "Um-ah-well-ah-perhaps not specifically. I'll go and ask him, shall I? He only mentioned me—a small party, I believe." Aunt Olympia came to. "You can't ith Helen about it."

"With Helen?"

"Don't you remember? Gabriel

"Bon't you remember? Gabriel

"All the standard of the stan d'Allotti was the man who spent all | I'm running this nursery and you

Limpy. "He doesn't care about the Len, who had just started to light | dance. He says he'll come over and make a report to the Senator."

'You call him right up, Del, and tell him to stay where he is and not interrupt our rest with any reports. You tell him to stay where he is and do as Dave tells him. Here I am, ing flirtatious about it. Helen is dead | just getting somewhere with my extemporaneous speech and now getting all upset about Limpy . . . You call him right up, Del. Tell him when we want him we'll send for him." Aunt Olympia tried to still the under-chin with a few fierce jabs. "With a feather," she muttered feebly.

On Tuesday morning, a surprising announcement temporarily distracted her from her maternal anxiety. Every paper in the state announced that Governor Wilkie had suddenly decided the time was ripe for him to make the most important speech of the campaign over a nation-wide hook-up. He was quoted as saying that "certain dramatic developments in Washington had impelled him to alter his original schedule and since the revelations he was about to make concerned not only their sovereign state but the entire nation, he had arranged for the national audience.'

The family at Shires discussed it at length over their breakfast.

"It's a fake," said Aunt Olympia. 'There's nothing more he can say. He's said everything already, and more, too.'

"Maybe he has found some new words in the dictionary," said "Do you suppose he'll pause for applause so the listening world can hear the brats wave lollypops?" wondered Limpy.

Before they left the table there was a call from Dave at Headquarters.

"See the papers, Senator?"

"Yes, what's up?" "Nobody seems to know. But the reports are that their Headquarters are agog. They've hired a college professor to check the speech. Maybe we'd better come out and listen in with you so we can cock up an answer. "Yes, do that. It's a good idea," said the Senator. When he remarked mildly that the boys were coming out to listen in with them and help frame his rehad flung himself into the campaign ply, Aunt Olympia bounded clear out with such assiduity that she could of her chair.

"You call him right back and tell him to leave Cece where he is!" she "I can't listen to speeches and look at that worm in the same breath."

"Adele, that's the most perfectly mixed figure I ever heard in my life!" said Limpy admiringly. "It's triple! It's unique!" Aunt Olympia didn't hear her.

"My dear," the Senator remonstrated, "we can't hurt the boy's feelings. Dave says he's working like a dog and making a good job of it, too.'

"Why shouldn't he? What is he, anyhow, but a dog, a yellow dog, too!" Aunt Olympia smiled ever so faintly in appreciation of herself. "I tell you what to say, Del. You tell Dave one of them had better stay there to get the general reaction to the Governor's drivel-and Cece can stay-and Dave can come."

That sounding reasonable, the Senator started for the telephone. 'You needn't tell him it's my idea,' said Olympia. "I'm willing you should take the credit."

The Governor began his speech with dignified and disarming mildness. He explained that he had known the Senator for many years, as his friend, and, more recently, as Governor of his state. He made it very clear that, knowing him thus intimately, he could not brand the Senator as a wicked man, a vicious man, or a traitorous man. He was merely a hopeless inefficient, a courteous, richly comfortable gentleman farmer; one who knew nothing of the insidious intricacies of statecraft; one who could be led as a lamb to the slaughter by those wiser, more subtle, more farseeing, than he. He said that hitherto—"I say hitherto"-he repeated sonorously, the Senator had been saved from egregious and irreparable error by the firmly coercive hand of his party leaders.

"I say 'hitherto.' I mean 'hitherto.' This time, lacking coercive guidance, he has fallen into error both egregious and irreparable. The Senator has denounced subversive, un-American activities. Orally, yes, he has denounced them. And in all fairness, my friends, I believe the Senator at heart is opposed to such activities. But, my friends, is the good Senator-and I believe him to be a good, if not a particularly intelligent, man-is the good Senator smart enough to recognize subversive activities when he meets them? When he encounters them in the luxurious drawing rooms, at the lavish banquet tables, of Washington? When he entertains them in his own home, introduces them to his own

"It is this point on which we challenge the Senator! Who, during the last session of Congress, was one of the most constant and familiar visitants in the Senator's luxurious apartment in Washington? Who ate his food, drank his imported wine, danced with the women of his household? Who was their confidant?

"On this point I challenge the Senator! Last week three handsome, ingratiating, polished young foreigners were arrested in Washington as spies for foreign governments. They were educated men, of cultured tastes and training; they were well supplied with money; they wore correct clothes, did correct things, were gracious, suave and acceptable. They were spies. One of these men was Gabriel d'Allotti. Today, Gabriel d'Allotti languishes in jail as a spy, while the Senator dines on squab and rich aspics in his stately mansion at Maysville, while campaigning for re-election to his high

"In Washington, this Gabriel d'Allotti was one of the most confidential intimates of the family in their Shoreham apartment. The Senator was a member of the powerful committee on armaments. He is now on the Committee on Naval Affairs that deals closely with matters of national defense. Gabriel d'Allotti is a spy. What is the connection between these two? Why did they so constantly dine and wine to-

"My friends, I do not suggestnor do I believe—that my old friend the Senator would deliberately betray his country and sell its secrets to any foreign, inimical nation. I know the Senator; he is my friend. He is an innocent, trustful, unsuspecting gentleman farmer, but sadly lacking in political acumen and farsightedness. Are you to trust to handle the intricate problems of statecraft, to represent you in the Senate of the United States, a man who innocently, ingenuously-and most unwisely-receives as his intimate a common spy? On these points, I challenge the Senator! Good night, and thank you."

The Senator was a good deal surprised. Olympia, scarlet with rage, was at work on her under-chin. Adele and Limpy, who had become accustomed to charges and countercharges and knew there was nothing in them, snickered a little. But Helen, who had turned dead white, twisted her slim hands nervously in "Who's the wop? Ever hear of him?" asked Dave briskly.

"Why, the girls have been talking about him! Yes, I must have met him."

"He never had dinner at our house in his life! He just came to call," shouted Aunt Olympia. "How'd he get in?" persisted

Dave. "I invited him," said Olympia angrily. "He asked for it and I invited him." "Oh, Uncle Lancy, it's—all—my fault!" Helen stammered.

"Not at all, not at all, my dear," said the Senator soothingly. "Every-body goes everywhere in Washington. Anybody calls on anybody. There's no crime in that."

"He said he was-writing a book," said Helen weakly.

"Writing a book covers a multitude of spies," said Olympia. "Uncle Lancy, I-feel just terribly," wailed Helen.

"Terribly, my dear? What nonsense! There's nothing to feel terribly about. It doesn't mean anything. He can't substantiate his charges. It's just another red herring he's got hold of. It doesn't mean a thing." "Oh, yes, it does," said Olympia grimly. "It means that louse, Len Hardesty, is buckling down to business and we've got to mind our P's and Q's. He wrote that speech from beginning to end."

"Of course," said the Senator.
"And Dave'll write me one tomorrow that will show them up in great shape. They can look at my record. I'm clean-on that score, anyhow. Everybody is entertained in Washington, and you can't go around at tea tables sorting sheep from goats. . . . Why, that fellow d'Allotti has even horned into the White House. Don't worry, my dear. Dave will take care of it."

CHAPTER IX

On Wednesday morning, after the Governor's speech, they had hardly started their breakfast when suddenly Aunt Olympia bounded onto the porch. She was in her dressing gown, very red of face, and had not taken time to remove the net from her permanent wave; nor to powder, although usually most punctilious about her appearance before the girls. The Senator, his bathrobe draped not too neatly about him, his thin hair standing up unbrushed on a very pink head, was close at her heels.

"Helen," she said abruptly, "what in the world did you tell that man?" "What man, Aunt Olympia?" asked Helen.

"That dastardly varmint, Gabriel d'Allotti."

"Gabriel d'Allotti!" repeated Helen. "Why, I didn't tell him anything! He knew lots more than I did. I couldn't tell him anything. I don't know anything."

"There you see, my dear! Just as I said. She doesn't know anything,' said the Senator triumphantly.

Aunt Olympia looked up from the papers. Her eyes went first to Limpy, then to Adele and then to Helen. The three of them sat like one piece of sculpture, white of face, wide eyed, motionless. Tears came to Olympia's eyes. Better betray the nation (and let the army save it, she thought treacherously) than lose these girls.

"I didn't mean to startle you, Helen," she said cheerfully. "Del, ring for hot coffee . . . It's nothing to worry about, girls. Limpy, you'd better eat your breakfast; your toast is getting cold. There's nothing to it, of course, Helen; we know that." "What is it?" Helen asked, with white lips. "What has happened?" "Oh, you know how those foreigners are! They love the limelight, even when they're in jail. Not like us Americans who commit our crimes confidentially . . . Fill their cups, Hilda! Del's, too . . . see, Helen, it seems he told the press that he got his information from you-"

"From me!" "He did not!" cried Limpy passionately. "Of course not, darling. But naturally the papers are making quite a splurge of it. They have your pictures and-quite a lot of dope about you, and about us, too, for that matter. They've even got some pictures of him juxtaposed among you; fakes, of course, but it gives the effect. He told the press it was you who told him about our national defenses."

"But I don't know a thing about our national defenses," cried Helen. "Except what I asked Uncle Lan-

A TEA IN THE TIME OF ROSES (See Recipes Below)

It's the custom, in a great many clubs, to draw the season to a graceful close with a charming spring tea. If you're chairman of the refreshment committee for that delightful social function of your organization, why not plan to make 'In the Time of Roses' the theme song for your tea?

Use roses here, there and everywhere . . . a rose-pink damask cloth with rose pattern; rosesprigged china; a great bowl of real roses for the centerpiece, and candied rose petals to decorate the tiny cakes. When you plan the refreshments, allow at least three sandwiches and two little cakes (or cookies) for each guest, and a pound of mints or salted nuts for each 25 guests. If the tea is a large one, you'll need two platters of sandwiches, two of cakes and one dish each of mints and nuts, on the table at one time, and make sure that for each platter on the table there's at least one full one in the kitchen to take its place.

Choose an interesting variety of dainty sandwiches for your tea. Oblong brown bread sandwiches with cream cheese and marmalade are good, and combine effectively with round white bread sandwiches, with a blend of tuna fish and mayonnaise between them. Very thin dainty slices of an unusual bread are excellent for plain bread and butter sandwiches.

An assortment of dark and light cookies, and very small cakes provide the sweet touch for your menu. And tea you must have, of course.

Tea, when properly made, is one of the most invigorating drinks you can serve. It is most important, especially when making tea for a group, to measure the amount of tea used and to brew it just long enough and not too long in order to insure its best fragrance and tang. (Three to five minutes is generally conceded to be just about right brewing time.)

Bishop's Bread. (Makes 1 loaf)

3 eggs 1 cup sugar

1½ cups flour 11/2 teaspoons baking powder

3/4 teaspoon salt 2 cups nut meats (broken) 1 cup dates (sliced)

1 cup Maraschino cherries 1/4 pound sweet or semi-sweet chocolate

Beat eggs until light, and add the sugar, beating just enough to mix. Sift flour, baking powder and salt and add the nuts, dates, cherries and chocolate which has been broken into pieces about the size of a five-cent piece.

Add to the first mixture, and mix just enough to blend the ingredients. Grease a bread loaf pan thoroughly and line the bottom with wax paper. Grease paper and pour in the batter. Bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for about 11/2 hours. Cool and slice very thin.

Butter Ovals. (Makes 30 small cookies)

½ cup butter 3 tablespoons superfine powdered sugar

1 cup flour 1 cup nut meats (broken)

Cream butter, add powdered sugar and blend well. Add flour slowly and mix thoroughly. Fold in nut meats. Shape into small crescent shaped rolls about the size of a small finger. Place on greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately 20 minutes. Roll in powdered sugar while warm. Little Swedish Tea Cakes.

1 cup butter ½ cup sugar 1 egg

2 cups cake flour 1/4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream butter and add sugar slowly. Cream well. Add well-beaten egg and blend. Sift flour once before measuring and then sift again with salt. Add and blend in flavoring. Place a rounded teaspoonful of batter in very small greased muffin tins (11/2 inches in diameter). Press batter up sides and over bottom so that there is a hollow in the center. Fill this hollow with an almond filling (about 1 teaspoonful). Almond Filling.

2 eggs ½ cup sugar

1/4 teaspoon salt

1/2 pound finely ground almonds Beat eggs until very light and add sugar, salt, and ground almonds which have been put through food chopper twice. Bake 30 minutes in a slow moderate oven (325 degrees).

Black Walnut Bread. (Makes 1 loaf)

1 cup milk

1 cup sugar 1 cup black walnuts (rolled fine)

3 cups flour 3 teaspoons baking powder

Combine milk, sugar and walnuts. Sift flour and baking powder together, and blend with the first mixture. Pour batter into small, greased bread pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 60 to 70 minutes.

> Dream Bars. (Serves 6-8)

11/4 cups flour 1% cups brown sugar ½ cup butter 1/2 teaspoon baking powder

2 eggs (well beaten)

1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract 3/4 cup coconut greased square pan and bake 10 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees). Add baking powder to remaining 1/4 cup flour and sift. Beat eggs and add the remain-cups brown sugar, beating thoroughly. Then add the flour and the vanilla extract. Spread this mixture over the partially baked butter and flour mixture. Sprinkle with coconut, return to oven, and continue baking approximately 25 minutes

English Currant Bread.

2 cups bread flour 2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg 1/2 teaspoon salt ½ cup sugar

2 tablespoons butter 3/4 cup currants 1/2 cup pecans or other nut meats

(broken) 1 egg (well beaten) ½ cup milk

1 teaspoon orange rind (grated) 1 teaspoon orange juice

Sift all dry ingredients together Cut in shortening. Add currants and nut meats. Combine egg and milk and add to first mixture. Add orange juice and rind. Mix well. Place in well-greased loaf pan. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees) 40 to 45 minutes. Strawberry Jam Gems. 2 cups general purpose flour 1/2 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon baking powder

1/4 cup shortening

3/4 cup milk Strawberry preserves Sift all dry ingredients and blend in shortening. Add liquid and knead lightly for a few seconds. Form small biscuits with finger tips as for yeast dough mixtures. Make small indentation with spoon and put 1 teaspoon strawberry preserves in each indentation. Stretch dough over opening and place in greased muffin tins. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees) until brown. Serve hot like biscuits.

Velveteen Frames For Your Pictures

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DO YOU remember Miss Fixit who, a week or so ago in one of these articles, made over an old rocker? Today's sketch shows how she used that chair at her desk. The full description of the transformation of the chair is in Sewing Book 5, which is offered here for the first time. This new book contains 32 pages of helpful ideas for homemakers and is available to readers of this paper for 10 cents in coin to cover cost and mailing.

Miss Fixit painted an old desk blue to match her chair. She had some enlarged snapshots that she wanted to hang over the desk but she also wanted to repeat the blue color and some of the red in the chintz used for the chair. So, she decided to make blue velveteen frames for the pictures and then hang them with red ribbon. The diagrams show you exactly how the frames were made for I have a feeling that you are going to want to hang some of your photographs in this colorful way. Betsy, who streamlined an old iron bed, which she found in the attic, will be with us again next week with more "attic magic." Meanwhile better send your order for your copy of Sewing Book 5 to:

Warm Climate Slows Pulse, Aids Relaxation

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.).

WHEN asked why he went south every winter for a few weeks, a busy physician answered:

"At home I am busy, am tensed most of the time, and the cool weather stimulates further activity. I know it is good for anyone to keep active mentally and physically, but I'm not as young as I was, and require relaxation. When I go south I am away from my work which, of course, gives some relaxation, but there is something about the weather in the South that makes me content to be idle, to just sit and read, or not even read. I find my pulse is slower and my blood pressure lower in the warm climate."

TODAY'S HEALTH COLUMN

The rate at which the body processes work would appear to be slower in southern people than in those who live in the North. In discussing the metabolic rate (rate at which body processes work), Dr. A. G. Eaton, New Orleans, in the Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine, after examining 98 women and 62 men (apparently normal students and teachers of Louisiana State university, New Orleans), states that a new set of standards is necessary. He found that the metabolic rate was about 10 per cent slower in these normal individuals living in the South than that given in textbooks for those living in temperate climates.

As the weather is always "warmer" than in the North, there is a general or prolonged effect upon these individuals. Lessened desire for strenuous exertion and greater ability and desire for relaxation must be considered as probable factors in lowering the metabolic rate. Whatever the cause may be, the lowered heat production lessens the strain on the body's machinery for getting rid of heat and makes life more comfortable in a warm climate, especially hot moist nights when it is so difficult to get rid of heat from the body.

Excitement Chief Cause of Insomnia

IT WOULD seem that the matter of sleep and relaxation is now the sation because, during the last few years and at present, more and more individuals are finding it difficult to get "sufficient" sleep.

A study of the sleep habits of 50 women who had recovered from slight mental or behavior disturbances and who did not complain of insomnia, were observed for three months in an observation hospital and reported by Dr. Louis J. Karnosh, Cleveland, in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The period of sleep varied from 61/2 to 8 hours. Age, temperament and diet did not seem to influence the amount or degree of sleep.

"On the other hand, excitement due to visits by relatives, arguments or disagreements with other patients or attendants, and holidays with the emotion or excitement which occurs at these times, were definitely to blame for breaking the regular rhythms of sleep."

Mentality 'Can't Take It.'

This shows that it is the nervous or mental side of us that "can't take it" blows or disturbances and not so much the physical disturbances that prevent us from sleeping.

Another fact found, and this same fact has often been found before, is that lack of sleep will not cause severe mental disturbances or insan-

The knowledge that lack of sleep will not cause insanity or serious body disturbances is reassuring to those who fear the terrible consequences of sleeplessness. Further, observations by nurses and physicians all agree that most of us sleep longer than we think, because sleepless hours pass so slowly.

What is the best method of bringing on sleep? A good bed, a quiet room, and muscular relaxationkeeping arms and legs in a halfbent position—are most important.

Origins of Cattle Brands

Probably most of the stories about the origins of the 1,500,000 cattle brands registered in the West are legends. One such outstanding tale, still told and published as a true story, is that Burk Burnett adopted the famous brand "6666" in 1900 because he won his great Texas ranch in a poker game with a hand containing four sixes .- Collier's.

farms to see these foundation Here-

This organization has already received considerable valuable publicity as to its efforts and aims. We hope to keep our membership in-formed as to where and when good grade range females can be bought at not too high a figure. We hope to maintain a list of Hereford hedrs here with cattle that they have for sale each season.

The section included in our association: viz, Arenac, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Alcona and Josco Qunties, is primarily a roughage producing area and has an unlimited acerage of excellent pasture land available. We believe better and more profitable use of this idle land can be made by following a beef calf program.

We now have a very fine nucleus of Hereford cows in this area and it is the aim of this association to in-crease this to the extent that this secion will become known as an area where quality beef calves can be purchased. We hope to supply at least a portion of the thousands of calves by by the calves by our state in this manner and hereby eliminate the high freight rates from western areas, as well as place these calves within a few hours in the feed lot of these feeders in good healthy condition. Cattlemen in this area have for some time realized that more income should be derived from the generous supply of grass provided us by nature. Abundance of grasses this year with a large hay clop in sight as result of the heavy rainfall is pleasing to our cattle breeders and many of these men are seeking additional cattle. We are aware that dry_lot cattle feeders in southern Michigan are each year finding it increasingly difficult to procure satisfactory feeder cattle at even extremely high prices. We realize that their calves must be uniform which will call for uniform calving dates; produce quality desired for this particular feeder; that a beef cow can can go through the winter in reasonable flesh with a ton of hay and one and one-half tons of silage, or two tons of hay if no silage is available; that one and one-half acres of alfalfa and brome grass will pasture a cow and calf during the summer, for the average wild pasture not overloaded will carry a cow and calf on three to five acres. We know that these calves in the fall at seven months will weigh 400 to 450 pounds and sell for $35 to $50 each; and that we may expect to raise an 85 per cent calf crop.

Inquiries are already arriving from the southern Michigan cattle feeders regarding the sale of these calves and we anticipate no difficulty in disposing of the calf crop.

Membership in this organization will be confined to cattlemen in Ogemaw, Alcona, Oscoda, Iosco and Arenac counties who agree to use reg-istered Hereford bulls and maintain females of predominately beef breed-ing. Should any cattlemen desire to become a member of this association, please see your county agricultural agent or contact the follownig directors: Arenac county, Frank Lentz, of Standish; Ogemaw county, W.
