TWO VETERANS PARTICIPATE FIRST CALL

New Phone System Went Into Operation Thursday

The new telephone system in "Tavasland" went into operation at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon (Thurs. day) with two veteran subscribers participating in the first call.

C. J. Walls, manager for the Michigan Bell Telephone Company in this area, announced that Joseph G. Dimmick, of East Tawas, placed the first call over the new system. At the other end of the line was Stephen

H. Ferguson, Tawas City merchant.
Their conversation officially jushered into operation a new telephone plant constructed by the company at an expenditure of more than $32,000. It marked the end of the magneto (crank type) service for East Ta. was and Tawas City. When Mr. Dim-mick placed the first call, he reached the operator merely by lifting the telephone receiver.

"We thought it was fitting that these two veteran subscribers inaugurate the new telephone system in 742 Farms in Iosco en for their club rooms. The work will be completed within a month. These rooms are also used by the said. THE WAR:

'Too Few'

While his armies were busy with "mopping up" military operations against a badly battered France, Adolf Hitler busied himself preparing the terms under which his soldiers would cease firing.

France, meanwhile, after cautioning her troops to fight on until the actual signing of an armistice was announced, dispatched her peace envoys in a snow white plane to meet the Germans and hear their terms

As the nation waited, its 84-yearold premier, Marshal Henri Petain, explained why he had sought peace and why France had been unable to defend itself against invasion. France, he said, had too few friends, too few young men, too few guns and it had wasted the victory years fol-lowing the armistice of November Military deficiencies accounted in large part for the distress of France, in the premier's opinion. He pointed out that only 2,780,000 troops faced the Germans at the beginning of the "battle of France" along the Somme and Aisne rivers. This was a half million fewer than France had on the battlefield after three years of hard fighting in the World war. England had not nearly as many men on French soil in 1940 as she had in 1914-18, and in addition, the old ally, Italy, was an enemy and ally United States a "neu-

Biggest worry of ally England was the disposition of the French fleet following any armistice between France and Germany. If Germany gets control of the whole strength of this fleet, the Rome-Berlin axis will have sea power that could compete favorably against England's London was happy enough though over the appointment of Frank Knox and Henry Stimson to President Roosevelt's cabinet (See below). The British hailed this move as assuring a continued policy of U.S. material and moral aid to the allied cause.

THE PRESIDENCY:

Coalition

No respecter of precedent, but respected even by his enemies as a master political strategist, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, detracted little from his reputation in these two categories with his pre-G. O. P. convention appointment of Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson to his cabinet. These two important Republican leaders were asked to serve in what was termed a "coalition" cabinet-Knox as secretary of navy and Stimson as secretary of war. Knox was the Republican vice presidential candidate in 1936 and Stimson served as secretary of state in the Hoover administration. Both have

INDUSTRY:

New Competition

Many are the economists who have forecast a trade war between Germany and the United States after Adolf Hitler has finished his political and military war in Europe. It now appears that the Nazis are not going to wait for a final cleanup of Europe before launching this type of attack upon the American mar-

For from South America comes news that German steel companies are offering steel in that sector at prices below United States quotations and are giving a cash guarantee of delivery by October. To some observers this early beginning of the long awaited trade war seems a bit premature. For Adolf Hitler still has a few big obstacles to overcome before he can expect to compete with American business in this hemisphere.

Germany bases her ability to deliver these shipments of steel upon the fact that she has virtual control of 95 per cent of the French steel industry and this, plus the Reich's own output, combined with the Belgium - Luxembourg production, amounts to about 40,000,000 tons per year. Biggest problem is keeping all these steel mills running at capacity and still being able to maintain order throughout the "protected" nations. And after the steel is produced, Germany must reckon with Britain's still-effective sea

Slump

Petroleum, another industry which has a big stake in foreign markets, has a more immediate problem on early proposal by the administration its hands. In Texas, oil reserve to build a completely separate At-lantic fleet. Talk of building up this tanks are almost full, prices are slipping every day, and foreign markets are near collapse. That state's railroad commission, which controls the output of oil, is studying the problem and is considering a 30-day shutdown of producing wells to boost prices.

LATIN AMERICA:

Tangle

Latin American nations are at present in default of some $1,000,-000,000 worth of bonds held by U. S. investors. To the development of additional foreign trade and in the meeting of foreign competition in this hemisphere (see Industry) this default creates a huge stumbling block.

Economic relations between nations become difficult when debts pile up and as U.S. business has lost many of its foreign markets due to war in Europe, the federal government is making every effort to untangle the debt problem in the Latin American nations.

One current proposal is to launch a huge government loan program to the Latin American nations and give them a chance to make payments on their debts, eventually repaying the United States on a longterm basis. President Roosevelt is expected to outline details of this plan within a short time.

Sick Child May Be Problem to Parents, Doctor

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

UST as a child learns to have confidence in and a liking for his physician, so also can he have fear and distrust. Certain thoughts or feel-TODAY'S

ings are associ-HEALTH ated with the visit or sight of COLUMN the physician and patience and kindness will open the way to the child's trust and confidence. Dr. Stewart R. Smith, Indianapolis, in the Journal of the Indiana State Medical Association says: "The general practitioner of medicine can be one of the most pro-

the emotional life of the children whom he meets. The doctor should know that this influence can accomplish a great deal in helping a sick child to a healthy acceptance of his illness, but if this influence is misdirected it may be a big factor in causing the youngster to be found influences on

Doctor Must Know Parents.

To gain full knowledge of why a youngster behaves as he does, the physician must know the child's surroundings, including the type of parents he has. "Arguing with these children is useless, shaming is cruel, and coddling is fatal."

"In dealing with these children, the practitioner might well have unending patience, have faith in the child's ability, try to see the problem as the child sees it, and believe that in every sort of conduct disorder the child is trying to solve some problem."

I believe that parents and teachers before referring a youngster to a physician because of some "odd" behavior could save the time and patience of the physician by asking themselves "Why does he behave this way?" The answer, as Dr. Smith points out, is that the youngster is trying to solve a problem. By patient questioning, parent or teacher or both might learn what is the problem and help the youngster to solve the problem for himself.

Immunization Is Boon to Children

PHYSICIAN friend of mine once confided the following to

"I wish we had lived in a poor and more thickly populated section of the city when my youngsters were small; they would have had all the childhood diseases—measles, scarlet fever, chickenpox, whooping cough-and have become immune to (free from) virtually all ailments, now they are grown.'

I do not think many parents would choose this method of "strengthening" their children because the complications from these childhood ailments might have resulted in partial deafness, heart disease and even

There is, however, a way of protecting children from many of these diseases. It is called the "immunization" of the children.

In an article by Prof. C. S. Raue, M. D., Philadelphia, writing as guest editor of the Medical World, it is Earliest Immunization.

"The earliest immunization procedure is vaccination against smallpox. The best time to vaccinate an infant is between the third and the sixth month. At this age complications are less likely to occur and there is little or no danger of brain inflammation following vaccination." After the infant is six months old, there should be immunization against whooping cough; it is claimed that 80 per cent of children receiving Sauer whooping cough vaccine will, two to three months after vaccination, be immune for several years.

Nine months is the age to immunize against diphtheria. The horror of diphtheria is almost unknown to

The advisability of immunizing against scarlet fever is not fully endorsed by the medical profession; it is left to the physician's judgment in each case.

"There is no vaccine for obtaining permanent immunity against into 2 parts. To one part add the measles, but a child exposed to melted chocolate. To the other add measles may be protected by an injection of placental globulin.

QUESTION BOX

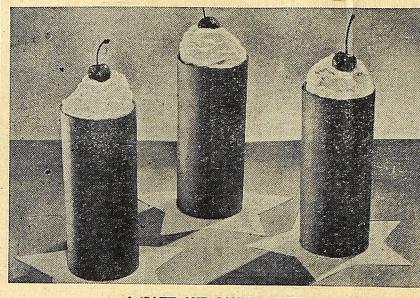

Q.—What causes pain at the top of the head as if it were gripped by an iron lung?

A.—This is often a symptom of neurasthenia-physical and mental fatigue.

Q.-What are the symptoms of goiter?

A .- The symptoms of the severe type of goiter are nervousness, rapid heart beat, sleeplessness and indigestion.

A 'SAFE AND SANE' PARTY (See Recipes Below)

Why not plan a party for the | Fourth of July, to keep the youngsters in the family happy and out of mischief? It might be a party on the porch or in the yard-or a picnic in the country, if you prefer it. Make it a family affair, or invite a youthful guest or two to keep your own children company.

Whatever type of party you plan,

make it a festive affair-with gay table decorations

(if refreshments are being served at home), very special "Party foods" and patriotic party favors, too. Gaily colored paper table cloths and napkins are a must, and they do save work! And be sure to provide balloons and snap crackers, or noisemakers of another kind.

Plan definite entertainment, with an active game or two to permit the children to use up excess energy, and a "pencil and paper" or guessing game to play when a little rest is in order. Pencil and paper games such as these two might be usedand you'll find that adults as well as young people enjoy them.

Jumbled Names.

Is your child a NOSE PICKER?

It may be just a nasty habit, but sometimes nose picking is a sign of something nastier. It may mean that your child has round worms—especially if there are other symptoms, such as fidgeting, finicky appetite, restless sleep and itching in certain parts. People don't like to talk about bowel worms, so you may not realize how many children have this dreadful infection. They "catch" it from other children, from dogs, or unwashed vegetables, or infected water.

If you even suspect that your child has round worms, get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE right away! Jayne's is the best known worm expellant in America, It is backed by modern scientific study, and has been used by millions, for over a century.

JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE is pleasant tasting and gentle, yet it does a good job. Jayne's has the ability to drive out large round worms without upsetting the digestive system. If there are no worms, it acts merely as a mild laxative.

How gracious God is "to continue to us . . . the privilege of service even when we seem to have sinned away our first chance, misused our endowments, and have by our very failure embarrassed His plans." Dr. J. Stuart Holden goes on to point out that only God gives a second chance. Nature does not; man seldom, if ever, gives his fellow who has failed a second opportunity. But God does. Praise His There was also a second chance extended to Nineveh. God was not willing to bring judgment upon the city without another warning. Quoting Dr. Holden again: "I care not

God has sent times of revival when whole cities-and even whole nations—have been turned from their sin. Such revivals have been occurring in recent years in various mission fields. Thousands of earnest Christians are praying now that such a revival may come again in our own land. The writer knows where helpful literature along this line is available without cost. Let us pray and be faithful, and trust God to bring revival to the hearts

"Oh, I'm paying and don't think I'm not," he said doggedly. "Senator, I—I give you my word, I never anticipated this."

"Was it a nightmare?" asked Aunt Olympia.

"Oh, I know I should have realized I was stirring up a horner's nest, but we've been in such a damned hole over the whole mess-I just thought it would be one more jack-in-the-box from the bag of tricks."

"You wrote that speech, Len Hardesty, and don't you dare to deny

"I don't deny it. And that's all I did do. I thought maybe it would stir up a little local fuss and maybe entice a few rabidly Americanistic partisans, and God knows we need them. I thought it would shut the Senator up on subversive activities, which the Governor doesn't know a tinker's dam about.'

"If that's all you did, how about these papers?" demanded Aunt Olympia.

"The dirty skunk! d'Allotti, I mean. It suddenly dawned on him that if he could drag you into it, Senator, you'd get him out to clear your own skirts. Use your pull with the administration. He called the newsmen after I left. A pal down there tipped me off and I flew back down. I've worked like a devil on it but I couldn't stop it.'

"You'd better have a drink, Len," said the Senator kindly. "You look all in. Ring, Ollie."

"Scotch and soda for me," he said briefly. "You'd better have ham and eggs. Bring him some food, Hilda. After all, we can't starve snakes on our very doorstep. It would give us a bad

"It's not irreparable, even yet, Senator," said Len Hardesty. "Now if you had a good publicity man-like me, for instance-" "He's on his way out here, now," said the Senator. "Cece, too. We 'phoned him.' "He'll work out the details. And if he's good enough, he can even make capital of it. Of course, he'll get you a nation-wide hook-up to answer the charges. He will not let you make any statements until you have spoken straight to the nation. He will have you start off by saying that from the beginning of time it has been the practice of cowards and curs to hide behind sorry. We're reduced to snatching the skirts of a woman-preferably, a young and pretty woman."

'Now, in the second place, after holding him up to public scorn for trying to ease out behind a petticoat, you will adroitly mention that his purpose is to get you to use your influence to get him out of the jam."

"Get him out! I'd get him into the electric chair, if I could!"

"Work that in, in your own suave and diplomatic language. You will bring out that he was received at all the best houses in Washington, and if you meet a man at the home of the President or a cabinet member, you cannot very well ask if he is a spy. You'll use your recordwhich is okay, for I've been combing it myself. Of course, you can prove that Helen didn't show him any papers because you never took any home with you and they were locked up. This really should make a sort of martyr out of you and win you any number of votes. You know

"But how about me?" asked Helen faintly. "What does it do to me,

Len looked at her. Helen looked more anguished, Aunt Olympia thought, than she had at the funeral so long ago.

"It's a tough break, Helen," he said. "You've just got to keep your head up and take it on the chin. He's using you as a cover-up and everybody will know it. You didn't tell him anything, and stick to it. You merely met him."

"She couldn't tell him anything confidential," said the Senator stoutly. "For I never told her anything. Most of it was so technical I didn't really understand it myself. I just believe we ought to have strong defense; and anything they said was for better defense, I was in favor of.

"Helen," said Len, diffidently, "do you mind-telling us about-the map you gave him?"

'Map! I never gave him a map!" "She couldn't! I haven't got a map myself."

"He says you gave him a map of our national defenses."
"She never had a map!"

"He couldn't possibly mean that relief map of the United States, could he?-Don't you remember, Uncle Lancy? I asked you about it. He brought the map to show how vulnerable we are and I asked

"Was it your map, Helen?"

"No, he brought it. He marked all our vulnerable points with a red pencil. And I asked you, Uncle Lancy, and you said the Mexican border was defended, and the Atlantic seaboard had strings of defenses all across the country and that all the shipbuilding places were fortified, and Boston and Manhattan and Washington. Don't you remember? I marked them with a blue pencil."

'And you gave him the map?" "No. After we had it marked, he rolled it up to take along and I said I wanted it to send-as a sort of souvenir. I kept it."
"Have you got it?"

"Yes. It's up in my desk."

"Will you get it?" "Yes, of course."

Aunt Olympia turned to Limpy. "Do you feel better, darling? Do you want an aspirin?

"No. I just want a good sharp stiletto with a poisoned point. Helen is so-good-"

"Sow the wind and reap the whirlwind," said Len moodily. "That's what I did.' "Well, experience is a good thing," said the Senator sympathet-"I know I've learned a lot ically.

that way.' "Here is the map," said Helen. "See, Uncle Lancy? Gabriel drew the blue lines to show where we are vulnerable. I didn't know anything about it myself and you told me about defending the shipyards and the cities and the harbors-" The Senator examined the map with two pairs of glasses. "Dear me, Helen, you did a very bad job of it," he said reprovingly. "You must have those forts 200 miles off. And those submarine bases-tch, tch, tch, tch!"

"I didn't try to be accurate," said Helen. "I didn't know enough, in the first place. We weren't being technical about it. But when he was criticizing our unpreparedness, I just boastfully drew red lines around every city I could think of."

"Is anything of secret nature indicated on this map?" asked Len. "Lord, no," said the Senator with unwonted profanity. "There's not only nothing secret; there's nothing right. I'm afraid I didn't make myself very clear, Helen." "Yes, you did, Uncle Lancy; but you weren't trying to be explicit and I didn't think it made any difference whether I put the red marks north or south, or even if I missed the town entirely; we were laughing; it was just a joke—then!" she added pathetically. "You can give photostatic copies of this map to the press," suggested Len Hardesty. "Not till after your speech. That's the highlight. And rest assured, the nation'll be on the air, from White House down to white wings . . . It's more easily reparable for you-than for me," he said with another glance at Adele's silhouette before the window. "Well, I'll be getting along, Senator. I'm at straws; I thought this was a straw and snatched at it; I didn't realize it was tied to dynamite." The Senator held out his hand. 'Good-by, Len. It was a bad break. You look thin. Doesn't Brother Wilkie see that you get your three squares a day?"

"You look terrible," said Aunt Olympia cheerfully.

"You're a couple of swell sports," he said moodily. "You've ruined the whole campaign for me. Remember how I used to love campaigns? Not any more!"

CHAPTER X

It seemed to Aunt Olympia that she had been called upon that day to endure more than could reasonably be expected even of a President's wife. But the day was not over. She had no more than seen them all comfortably relaxed and settled down when Dave Cooper arrived with Cecil Dodd. Dave looked disconcerted, almost disheveled. Before he could say a word, Cecil Dodd crossed debonairely to Limpy's chair, smiling, and said,

"Hello, Limpy! I brought you a present!"

Aunt Olympia's backbone stiffened starchily.

"A present for me, Cece? How nice!" said Limpy. "Limpy's too young to be receiv-ing presents," interrupted Aunt Olympia. "She's not of age yet." "She's not too young to be receiving this," said Cecil Dodd. "This is a political present. Any Slopshirefor-Senator fan can receive political presents. Look, Limpy. It's a little Slopshire pin. I had it made to "Let me see that pin!" said Olympia angrily. "What does it say on there? That doesn't look like Votefor-Slopshire to me!"

"Oh, there wasn't room for all that!" explained Cecil Dodd. "I had to cut it down to Slopshire, or it wouldn't go on. And I didn't think enamel would look good on platinum, so I just had it engraved."

"Was it your map, Helen?"

"Look at this, Del," said Olympia. "If those are diamonds around the edge of it, Limpy can't have it till I pry them out."

"Aw, Uncle Lancy!" wailed Lim-

The Senator put on his glasses. "They don't look like diamonds to me," he said firmly.

"They're brilliants," said Cecil hastily. "Certainly," said the Senator. "I could see that. And if they are diamonds, they're only chip diamonds. Cece says they're bril-

"Well, what's a diamond but a brilliant?" demanded Aunt Olympia. "Rhinestones are brilliants," said Adele helpfully.

"Sure! Brilliant rhinestones!" corroborated Cecil Dodd. "Del Slopshire-"

"Uncle Lancy!" from Limpy. "I feel very much honored to have little Limpy flashing through the campaign in a Slopshire pin," said the Senator determinedly.

"Sure! Let me pin it on your shoulder, Limpy!"

Before the rapt eyes of the rest of the family, the outraged ones of Aunt Olympia, with Limpy smiling pleased approval, Cecil Dodd deftly attached the tiny pin to the shoulder of her frock and smiled down into her face.

"Lord, it's been lonesome," he said devoutly. "I thought we'd never get back.'

"Lonesome!" boomed Aunt Olym-"Lonesome in the pia irritably. thick of a political campaign? Lonesome while the Senator is being accused of high treason and likely to be knifed at the polls if not strung from a gibbet? Of all times and places to be lonesome, that beats anything I ever heard!"

"I hope you didn't have a good time while I was gone," said Cecil. Limpy was slightly disconcerted. 'A good time? Oh-I can't remember exactly what we did know we had a lot of trouble . . No, we didn't have a good time at all, Cece." "Put him to work," said Olympia, waving the Senator to take him away. "And if he's got money to go around buying platinum pins and -brilliants-we can cut down on our expenses by reducing his salary."

The Senator had no trouble taking care of the spy challenge. There was no one, either Democrat or Republican, who could seriously push the charge, for Gabriel d'Allotti had been received everywhere. The Senator did not stop with citing his rec-ord, virtually from the cradle to the trailer of '38, with documentary evidence to support his claims. He went further. He demanded a complete, inquisitorial investigation of the entire case, and wrote the Department of Justice offering himself to be a witness, along with every other member of his household from Hilda up. The Opposition was obliged to drop the issue, but their fingers were already slightly burned. As for Helen, there was no more pleasure in the campaign for her. She had be-come terrified of the whole business. She wrote frantically to Brick imploring him to withdraw from the rotten mess before it was too late. And she was not greatly reassured by his loyal declaration that she had nothing to fear: they didn't play politics that way in Iowa.

The campaign was spoiled for Adele, too. She wrote Len Hardesty a brief note.

"I can't see you or speak to you again, Len, until it is all over. I try not to think of you, but that is too hard. When it is over, if you feel the same, we will try to talk it through and see where we stand. But I simply can't see you. I couldn't draw a free breath in your presence until Uncle Lancy has either won or been defeated.'

Aunt Olympia remonstrated with her, reminding her that this was Len's job and he had to do the best he could; reminded her, too, that his contract with the Governor would be up this year, and the Senator could use him in '44. Adele was gently obdurate.

Len wrote to her and she read the letters again and again, and kept them, but she made no answer. When he saw any member of the household, or when he called over the telephone to get news of them, he had one invariable message for

"Tell her it's nearly over, and I feel the same."

When the message was passed on to Adele, tears came to her eyes and she got up and left the room. But she did not weaken.

Aunt Olympia was none too happy, either. She couldn't turn her usual robust enthusiasm into the campaign because she had to watch Limpy; rather, she had to watch Cecil Dodd. It seemed to her as a simple act of loyalty he might have postponed his admiration until after the election. She even suspected, bitterly, that he was working for the Opposition; it would be like Len Hardesty to bribe him to do this just to get her mind off the cam-

"Do you like that creature, Limpy?" she asked hopefully. "Oh, sure, I like him. He's all right. Yes, I like him." "I mean, do you like him better than anybody else?" persisted Aunt Olympia.

"Oh, no, of course not! I like Helen and Adele and you and Uncle Lancy best; and I like our grocery man back home and I'll like Len Hardesty again as soon as Adele gets over being mad at him. I like Dave and Martin and Hilda and I don't really mind Brother Wilkie, though I don't care much for the

The girls teased Limpy, who, after the first flush of confusion, rather enjoyed it. "I can't understand why you should be surprised," she said lofti-"I had admirers at home, didn't I? Who got Carl Walker to sing in the choir-best tenor we ever had? You'd think I was some beldame hobbling around on a tin trumpet."

When Aunt Olympia couldn't stand it another minute she asked the girls confidentially to drop the subject. "For Limpy's own good," she assured them. "I don't want her to get her mind set on him."

"She's used to being teased," the girls told her. "We all are. Teasing doesn't mean a thing to us.' "But if we keep dangling him before her eyes she may get to thinking of him," pleaded Aunt Olympia 'Besides, it upsets me. If we don't get rid of that button I'm apt to go straight to the polls and vote for Brother Wilkie."

The girls considerately dropped the subject. But there was no dropping Cecil Dodd. As the campaign grew hotter, it was inevitable that he should be with them almost constantly. And even when Aunt Olympia did connive to send him off on quite distant missions, he returned so soon-with favorable reports of his activities—that Aunt Olympia swore he had just hidden behind a tree for five or ten minutes.

During September there was a succession of deluging rains, but the campaign had to go on. She bought raincoats with matching umbrellas and galoshes for the girls and made them drink hot lemonade every night. Even in raincoats, they photographed well. She bought aspirin for the Senator-who believed in it -by the dozen boxes.

When at last it appeared that the sun was to shine again they took the trail back to Shires, to get their clothes and bedding thoroughly dried out and laundered. "There's no place like home to dry out," she remarked contentedly.

"Did you say dry out or dry up?" asked Limpy. Aunt Olympia laughed good-naturedly. "No hope of drying up till the election," she said. "We're lucky even to get dried out."

More of Our Friend Betsy's Attic Magic

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HERE is Betsy again — that clever girl in Sewing Book 3, who streamlined an old iron bed. In her house there was an enormous kitchen and her mother hated big kitchens. So, a partition was used to divide it into two rooms. The half with a door into the front hall was for Betsy to entertain her own special friends.

The old linoleum was painted dark green. All the walls were painted cream and then pink stripes were painted on the new wall. The neat and efficient cot cover is cream chintz with pink roses and green leaves. The sides of the pad, the two end cushions and the center cushion are green, lighter than the floor. The cutdown table with the tin tray on top is painted with the green floor paint with some of the cream wall color added.

NOTE: Betsy is now making a hooked rug for her new sitting room from directions in the Sewing Book 5. It also contains directions for streamlining an old couch; rockers; dining room chairs and other "attic magic." Send name, address and 10 cents in coin to cover cost and mailing. Send order to:
